City may soon resolve airport issue

by: Thad Kraus

Hinging on an agreement between the Lowell City Council and the Grand Rapids School of Bible and Music, improvements on the Lowell Municipal Airport could commence come the beginning of the new year.

Lowell City Manager David Pasquale reports that the council would like to keep the airport a city airport and look into forming an airport committee, consisting of individuals that would provide direction and guidance to the council. This committee would also work with the airport manager representative from the Bible School.

"Both sides are receptive to the idea of extending the Bible School's lease," interim airport manager Leonard Jackson said.

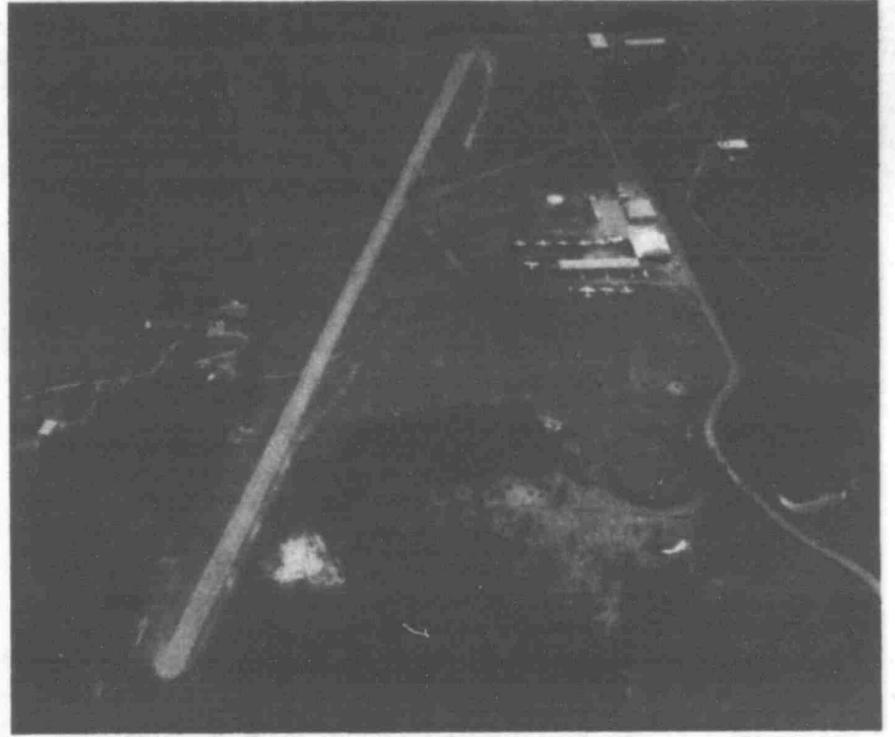

The Bible School would then pay yearly rental on the facility and in return, would collect revenues for tie down fees, hangar rentals, and the selling of fuel.

"The school would use this revenue to pay expenses to run the airport, including insurance and for a building capital fund that would be used for improvement on the runway, lights, and changing the runway from a turf to a hard surface runway," Pasquale said. "I'm hopeful this will be resolved by the beginning of the year."

Students in the school for aviation and missionary are trained to be missionary pilots and mechanics. The Bible School uses the airport for its aviation missionary program which delivers cargo to remote places.

"If Lowell is to grow industrially an airport is a must," Jackson said. "With this arrangement there is no reason an agreement can't be worked out."

The Lowell Municipal Airport became active after World War II under returning veterans. Then in the early 1960's the Lowell Airport Association was formed. Through the association, improvements were made; the addition of two 1,600 - 1,700 foot long runways, a fence was put up, runway markers were put up, and runways were mowed.

Jackson says that later in the 1960's the city and volunteers worked to put in a 2,000 foot runway. He adds that during this time skydivers were eliminated because he guesses the city thought it was too dangerous.

"Then in the 1970's 30 acres were purchased for cemetery and airport expansion. And with the expansion came the lengthening of the runway to 2,250 feet,"

Jackson said.

Many of the opposing views see individual pleasure as the only good coming from the airport, according to Jackson. "And most of them don't want to see the city expand anyway," Jackson concluded.

"Capitol Column"

By State Senator Dick Posthumus

It is an area that needs attention and action. Developers provide increased economic activity, supply jobs and revenue for the state. They deserve prompt answers to their requests for construction permits.

Their requests, in turn, must be balanced against the need to preserve a dwindling natural resource. There is no single or easy answer to the problem. I'm sure it is an issue we will continue to deal with in years to come as we grapple with ways to protect both interests.

Growth in Michigan is good news and that good news is evident throughout our state. We're putting up new houses, apartments, condominiums, office buildings and shopping malls.

And the Legislature does what it can to encourage continued growth and development within our state.

We must make sure, however, that growth and development won't impede on some of Michigan's greatest natural resources -- wetlands. To the casual observer, a wetland may appear to be nothing more than a low-lying swampy area filled with weeds, cattails and frogs. But wetlands are much more than that. Wetlands serve as strainers that trap pollutants as water flows through them. When a wetland is filled or drained, its water-purifying function is lost. They act as storm water holding ponds until the excess water is absorbed. They are home for fish and wildlife. Wetlands also are important migratory stops for many birds.

Michigan once had more than 11 million acres of wetlands. That figure is now somewhere around 3.2 million acres, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

To curb that loss of natural wetland areas, Michigan adopted the Wetland Protection Act in 1979. The state's Department of Natural Resources was charged with reviewing construction permit applications for all wetland areas. But with new construction up, the department has been swamped with requests and in turn frustrated many developers waiting for replies.

Just this week, the DNR issued a special report which included suggestions to improve the application and review process such as better education, faster decisions and completion of a wetlands inventory. Some of the suggestions will ultimately involve the Legislature because additional funds will be required.

HEALTH

By Dr. Paul Gauthier and Dr. Jim Lang

URINARY INCONTINENCE

Urinary incontinence is a widespread but frequently misunderstood and under-discussed problem. Estimates are that 10 million Americans suffer from this malady, but many are too embarrassed to talk about it or even to consult their physician. In today's article we'll discuss its diagnosis and treatment.

Incontinence can be classified into three different types. Stress incontinence, urge incontinence and neurogenic incontinence. Stress incontinence is the most common type and may affect all ages. Spontaneous urinary leakage may occur without warning following a sudden stress in the abdomen. These stresses may be the result of sneezing, coughing, laughing or lifting a heavy object. This type of incontinence is usually not severe.

Urge incontinence typically affects the elderly and is characterized by the urgent need to void urine. This type of incontinence is often the result of a stroke, a tumor, hardening of the arteries or Alzheimer's disease. Urge incontinence is usually moderate to severe.

Neurogenic incontinence is the result of an injury to the nervous system, with paraplegics, diabetics, multiple sclerosis patients and spina bifida victims being the most common sufferers. This is the most severe type.

Depending on the type of incontinence, treatment includes both medical and surgical intervention. Drug therapy has been used to treat stress and urge incontinence and some surgical procedures are available for treating and correcting more severe types of incontinence. Some exercises are recommended for stress incontinence, to strengthen the pelvic muscles to help control bladder reflexes. Bladder training and toileting with the use of incontinence products such as disposable briefs, undergarments and pads, also have worked well for incontinence patients.

Proctor and Gamble offers a toll free number for those who have questions about incontinence. The phones are staffed by nurses who are fully trained in the subject of incontinence. The number is 1-800-4-ATTENDS.

Co-operative Club's annual Christmas luncheon will be held at the Vergennes Methodist Hall at 1:00 p.m. Reservations must be made. Cost of luncheon is $2.25 per person. DAV donates van Lowell veterans need not worry about transportation to and from the Veterans Administration (VA) medical facility in Grand Rapids.

That hospital is one of 19 VA facilities to receive a van from the nonprofit Disabled American Veterans (DAV) on November 17. The donation was made possible through a cooperative effort of the DAV's national organization and Michigan DAV Chapter No. 2.

The van will be driven by volunteers from local DAV Chapters and DAV Auxiliary Units. These volunteers will be participating in a nationwide DAV National Transportation Network. Overseeing the program at the VA Medical facility in Grand Rapids will be DAV Hospital Service Coordinator Derek M. Flack.

The number of DAV-donated vans across the country will increase to 24 by the end of the year. The one-million-member organization hopes to fully meet the transportation needs of veterans at all of the VA's 172 medical centers before the end of 1988, donating vans wherever neces-

Homespun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

...Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar... (Acts 27:24)

Marjorie felt called of God to go to Africa as a missionary. She spent years in preparation. At last, when she was ready to leave, unforeseen circumstances prohibited her departure, and she was forced to wait many months before sailing. She has been ministering to her beloved Africans now for several years.

God gave Paul a job to do and he, too, met with interference. A shipwreck disrupted his journey. He and the other men aboard escaped safely to land. Paul spent three months waiting on an island before resuming his journey and accomplishing his mission.

Interferences come in all our lives. Sicknesses, delayed plans, and disappointments are trying and often require a great deal of patience. But the Lord keeps His resolves. He will not fail. He may allow our faith to be tested - sometimes severely. We can rest assured that if He has assigned special tasks to us, He will see us through. Interferences may come, but they cannot hinder God's ultimate goal for our lives, if we trust Him implicitly.

Prayer: Dear God, enable me to be patient when interferences come. Strengthen my faith in the time of trial. Thou wilt not fail me. Thou wilt see me through. Amen.

Teach me Thy patience; still with Thee
In closer, dearer company,
In work that keeps faith sweet and strong,
In trust that triumphs over wrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rogers

The LeValley United Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage of Janine Marie Weisgerber and Dale LaVern Rogers on Saturday, October 10, at 4:00 p.m. The Reverend Willis Braun performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with candelabra, peach and ivory flowers, and fresh ivy. Parents of the couple are Mel and Mirt Rogers of Lowell, and Bill and Elinor Weisgerber of Ionia. Maid of honor was Kristen Stout of Ionia, friend of the bride. The bride's sisters, Cathy Weisgerber of Ohio, and Lori Weisgerber of Kalamazoo, were bridesmaids.

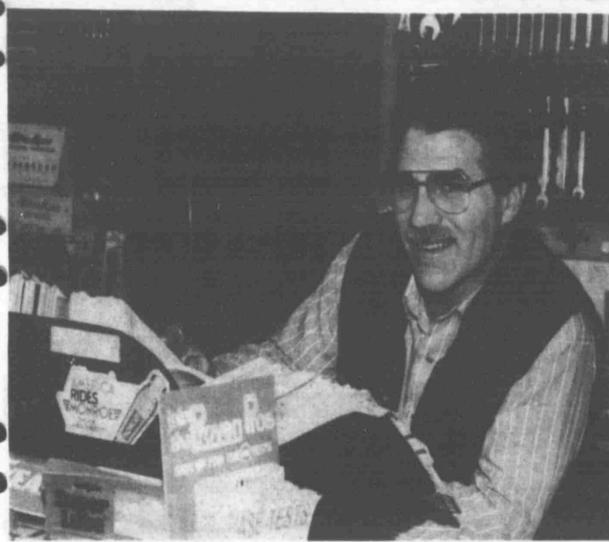

Best man was John North of Lowell, and groomsmen were Kerry Fitzpatrick of Ada and Fred Beachler of Kalamazoo, friends of the groom. Ushers were the groom's brothers: Bud Rogers and Jim Rogers of Lowell, and David Rogers of Alto. Vocalist was Lori Weisgerber, who sang "Sunrise, Sunset" accompanied by organist Janet Croel of Ionia. A reading of I Corinthians Chapter 13 was done by Kevin Hurt, friend of the groom.

The bridal gown was of ivory silk organza and featured a sweetheart neckline, bodice of alencon lace accented with seed pearls, and a chapel length train embroidered with alencon lace. The fingertip veil was held in place with a headpiece of alencon lace and seed pearls. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of peach colored roses, lilies and carnations accented with ivy. The bride attendants wore matching teal length dresses of teal green taffeta and lace, and carried cascading bouquets of peach colored flowers and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Felice and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Kuhlman were Hosts at the reception, which was held at the Ionia Country Club.

After a honeymoon cruise in the Caribbean, Dale and Jan are residing at their home in Lowell.

Showboat Auto, Cosgrove, hum right along

Hugh Cosgrove has successfully run Showboat Automotive for the past 14 years. When away from the workplace Cosgrove moonlights as a singer with his two guitar-playing daughters Kerry and Chantel at weddings and in the church choir.

by: Thad Kraus

Growing up through high school, as many boys without the financial funds to hire a mechanic have done, Hugh Cosgrove had a wrench in one hand and a screwdriver in his back pocket, working on his automobile.

Little did Cosgrove know, that would be the ground work for what the future would hold for the Comstock Park graduate.

"Times have changed. When I went to school only the students whose parents had money went to college," remembers Cosgrove. "The rest of us found a job."

Although it's only indirectly related to mechanical type work, Cosgrove hitched on with an automotive warehouse distributor center.

He worked there three years before taking to the road as a salesman for the warehouse distributor. "I called on jobbing stores in Western Michigan like the one I own now," Cosgrove said.

Cosgrove, who owns and has run Showboat Automotive since 1973, also runs another automotive store in Ionia. He started the Ionia and a Greenville store in February of 1984, but in 1986 sold the Greenville branch.

"By working sales in a warehouse I got to go to different places and meet different people," explains Cosgrove. "It also allowed me to stay on top of the field and become familiar with the stores and speculate on how I thought one should be run."

Cosgrove added that this experience built up his interest, and when the opportunity presented itself, he thought he had the knowledge to run an automotive store. "I had everything to gain and nothing to lose."

He originally opened up Showboat Automotive at the old Christiansen Drug Store, which eventually became Lippert's. After Lippert's moved to what is now Rite-Aid, Cosgrove moved in. Then in 1976 Cosgrove moved to his location at 1450 W. Main.

When Showboat Automotive started some 14 years ago it was Cosgrove and one other employee. Today there are five employees, and Cosgrove is very appreciative of the help he has received.

"I think the key to success in any small business is good people (employees)," said Cosgrove.

When talking of his Lowell store he refers to store manager Kirk Collins, 11 years; shop man Bry Russell, past five years; and Mark Friesner, four years.

Cosgrove and his wife Joan, have been married for 24 years.

The couple has raised four daughters, Amy, Kerry, Jennifer, and Chantel.

Cosgrove's four daughters show horses in 4-H. "They've done real well in the shows," he added.

When away from the store, Cosgrove, with the help of his two guitar-playing daughters, Kerry and Chantel, sing at weddings and in the church choir.

"I do it for relaxation and my ego," laughs Cosgrove. "I sing the traditional and ballad type songs. No rock & roll."

If you are not sure of that Christmas gift for that favorite child, grandchild, or niece or nephew, the Lowell Post Office has some terrific gifts that will give enjoyment all year long. There are many philatelic products available, states local postmaster, Charlie Doyle, that would interest young people into a hobby of stamp collecting. The local post office has numerous collecting kits, which cover sports, transportation, famous people, animals, science, and U.S. history. Doyle also stated that they have available Commemorative Mint Sets dating back to 1981 through the current set of 1987.

Also available are the Presidential Mint Sets and "Wildlife America" Mint Sets which contain a 55 page booklet giving detailed information on all 50 stamps in the Wildlife Set—and the Golden Moments Olympic Set, which is a collection of United States 1984 Commemorative Olympic Issues. Along with this is a beautiful hardcover 75 page book on the 1984 Olympics. This is truly a collectors item.

Lowell teachers bolster United Way

Culminating a week long campaign, the staff of the Lowell Area Schools raised $4,972.00 for the Kent County United Way. This represents a whopping 282% increase over last year.

This tremendous support is due in part to the generous incentives provided by: FMB State Savings Bank, Keiser's Kitchen, Larkins, Sneakers, McDonalds, Changing Times Restaurant, and the Casual Touch. A special thank you goes to these businesses and to Fritz Esch and Gary Kemp for being good sports and playing guinea pig for this year's campaign. Bushnell Elementary had the highest dollar amount increase over last year with 700%. Runciman/Riverside had the largest staff participation at 79%. Participating staff in these buildings were eligible to receive the many prizes donated by the above mentioned businesses. Jim DeWeerd was the winner of the $50.00 savings bond donated by FMB State Savings Bank. Congratulations to all who participated in our campaign. Success like this makes us all winners.

Kent County 4-H volunteers are recognized

4-H volunteers and teens of Kent County were recognized for outstanding service to youth Tuesday, Nov. 3, at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum. Slightly more than 300 attended. The awards program was sponsored by the Friends of 4-H Committee through donations from local businesses and individuals.

WOTV News Reporter, Brenda Garton, acted as Mistress of Ceremonies. Garton was a 4-H member in Indiana. She credited 4-H with building her self-esteem and improving her communication skills which started her towards TV broadcasting.

Dr. Wally Moline, Director, Michigan Cooperative Extension Service, also pointed out that his 4-H experiences were important in his development as a teen in Wisconsin.

The meal for the event included Korean Bul Ko Ki, Chinese Egg Rolls, Italian Agnolotti Verdi, Danish Hot Dogs, and French and Middle Eastern pastries. Each food item was prepared by a local ethnic restaurant and served by 4-H teen members.

Receiving Club Booster Awards were Bruce and Stacy Langlois of the Lowell Veterinarian Clinic, Barbara Greene from Smith Brothers Sewing Centers, and Brenda Garton from WOTV Channel 8. Club Boosters Awards are given to individuals and organizations not connected to the 4-H Program, but who have offered outstanding service to the program.

Mae Black of Grand Rapids, Karen Tow from Wyoming, Dave and Lynn Karel from Byron Center, Sandy Scott from Alto, and the Fairgrounds Barn Committee each received Leader Citizenship Awards. These are given to 4-H volunteers who offer extraordinary service to the 4-H program on the club, county or state level.

Black is a leader with the Deltan 4-H Club in Grand Rapids. This club focuses on personal growth experiences for its members. Each year they attend many state and local workshops on leadership and communication training and all members are involved in community service projects.

Tow and the Karels' lead the Galloping Riders 4-H Club in Byron Center. Most of their members are involved in horse projects, but they all get well-rounded experiences in leadership, group decision making, and public speaking. The club has grown from 12 to 31 members in three years.

Sandy Scott has raised over $3000.00 for the Kent Riding Program in the past three years. She works all year soliciting donations for the horseback riding for the handicapped program, as well as acting as a volunteer during classes.

The Sheep/Swine barn committee raised $20,000.00 and built a new barn at the Kent County Fairgrounds in Lowell. This was funded and ready for use in just one year.

Among those who received awards during the banquet were:

Last week I promised to share some interesting little anecdote concerning a few of my nieces and nephews. My pre-teen teenage kids just don't say all those cutesy things anymore, so I'm going to a different well for material. The whole idea started when my little first grade niece, Amy, asked me to write about her in my column. So, I'll start with Amy.

Amy is a "cutter than the dickens" little blond with a very strong-willed personality. She's the daughter of my wife's sister, and everyone in the family says she acts just like my wife did when she was that age. I don't remember the details, but last year there was a story circulating around the family about Amy beating up a boy on the school bus because he tried to kiss her. That's enough to give you an idea of where Amy's coming from.

A few weeks ago the entire family got together at my mother-in-law's cottage for a work weekend. Along about 10:00 Friday night, Amy and her younger sister Kristen, were put to bed in one of the upstairs open loft bedrooms. The adults downstairs could hear an over-tired Kristen crying herself to sleep, and her unsympathetic sister telling her to "shut up and go to sleep". The adults all snickered quietly as the struggle for sleep continued. Finally, Amy screamed, "Mom, you better come up here and do something about this cryin' little wimp before I kill her".

I couldn't contain myself after that, and burst out in laughter. It wasn't until a little later that I finally realized why everybody says Amy acts just like her Aunt Terese did. The one thing they don't know, is that Terese still acts like that when it comes to dealing with me.

The next night at the cottage, I settled into an easy chair with a beer, kicked off my ratty old tennis shoes and put my feet up on an ottoman. My wife's brother, Pat, sat down next to me. It had been a long, hard day of plumbing, wiring, chasing parts, etc. My feet don't have the most pleasant aroma under the best of circumstances. So, after no shower that morning (we hadn't plumbed it in yet), a hard day in old tennis and black socks, they were really ripe.

Pat's five-year-old boy Sean, decided he wanted to sit on his dad's lap, so he made his way around the ottoman, and my aromatic feet. Sean is a cutie. He is a little on the quiet side, but he has very expressive eyes that more than make up for what he doesn't say. On his way around my feet he gave me a look that left no doubt there was something on his little mind. Sure enough, once on his dad's lap he very emphatically said, "Uncle Roger's feet don't smell so good, do they?" Pat and I busted up.

A couple of weeks ago my kids and I stopped at my youngest brother's house. His four-year-old son Beau, worships the ground his twelve-year-old cousin Casey walks on. In no time, Beau, Casey and one of Casey's friends disappeared into Beau's bedroom.

When it came time to leave, my brother and I went to round the boys up. When I opened the door to Beau's room, I couldn't believe my eyes. There were toys on top of toys. You couldn't see the furniture for the toys. I said, "Beau, what happened to your room?" Casey's friend Scotty blurted out, "That's what I asked him, and do you know what he said?" I said, "What?" Scotty said, "He told us he had to clean his room!", and everybody cracked up. Beau nodded his head in agreement, and tried to offer some explanation about his mother making him clean his room. It's a little hard to imagine what Beau's idea of a "messy room" is.

Well, this column is a little like Art Linkletter's "Kids Say the Darndest Things". I'll be seeing all my little nieces and nephews over the upcoming holiday weekend. I'll keep my ears open for more material.

Veterans surveyed

The Census Bureau will gather data on employment and unemployment from residents in this area November 16-21, according to Dwight P. Dean, acting director of the bureau's Detroit regional office. The local data will contribute to the national labor force picture to be released December 4 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In addition, for this month only, data will be gathered from Armed Forces veterans to be used to evaluate their participation in the labor force and in various government programs for veterans.

Data collected in April 1985, the most recent collection of detailed data on veterans, showed that while the unemployment rate for all male veterans was 5.5 percent, the rate for Vietnam-era veterans was 6.0 percent, and the rate for veterans who actually served in Southeast Asia was 6.7 percent.

Dwelling shall include, but is not limited to, one and two family dwellings, apartments, and boarding and lodging houses. Hotels, motels, tourist cabins, trailers or units defined in Section 2.40 are excluded.

2. Revise Section 2.15 as follows:

2.15 - Family. One or more persons living as a single non-profit housekeeping unit, organized as a single entity in which the members share common kitchen facilities in a domestic relationship based on consanguinity, marriage, adoption or other domestic bond. This definition does not include any society, combine club, fraternity, sorority, association, federation, lodge, school dormitory, organization or any other group whose domestic relationship is of a transitional or seasonal nature or for an anticipated limited duration.

3. Add new Section 2.601 as follows:

2.601 - Underground Home. A residence with sides which are either partially or totally below grade designed as a complete living unit and meeting the requirements of a Special Use under Section 13.081 herein. An underground home shall include earth-bermed, earth sheltered and envelope homes and similar dwelling units. The underground home shall be at grade on one side and have one exit at a common grade to the interior of the home.

ARTICLE III - GENERAL PROVISIONS

4. Revise Section 3.04 as follows:

3.04 - Basement Dwellings. The use of any basement as a dwelling is prohibited. Any dwelling without a full floor above grade level shall be considered a basement dwelling. An underground home approved pursuant to Section 13.081 is not considered a basement dwelling.

5. Add new Section 3.091 as follows:

3.091 - Dwelling Requirements

(1) Every dwelling shall:

a. Comply with the minimum requirements of this ordinance for the zone in which it is located, including living area requirements, area, height, width and dimension regulations.

b. Have a minimum width across any front, side or rear elevation of 22 feet and complies in all respects with the current BOCA standards, including minimum heights for habitable rooms. Where a dwelling is required by law to comply with any federal or state standards or regulations for construction are different than those imposed by the current BOCA standards, then and in that event such federal or state standard or regulation shall apply.

c. Be firmly attached to a permanent foundation or footings buried beneath the frost line in accordance with the current BOCA standards and shall have a wall of the same perimeter dimension of the dwelling and constructed of such materials and type as required in the applicable building code for single-family dwellings. In the event that the dwelling is a mobile home, as defined herein, such dwelling shall be installed pursuant to the manufacturer's setup instructions and shall be secured to the premises by an anchoring system or device complying with the rules and regulations of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission and shall have a perimeter wall as required above.

d. Be installed with the wheels removed, in the event that a dwelling is a mobile home as defined herein. Additionally, no dwelling shall have any exposed towing mechanism, undercarriage or chassis. The perimeter of the mobile home shall have a skirting of a permanent nature similar to that

The compatibility of design and appearance shall be determined in the first instance by the township Building Inspector upon review of the plans submitted for a particular dwelling, subject to appeal by an aggrieved party to the zoning board of appeals within a period of 15 days from the receipt of notice of said building inspector's decision. Any determination of compatibility shall be based upon the standards set forth in this section, as well as the character, design and appearance of one or more residential dwellings located outside of mobile home parks throughout the township. The foregoing shall not be construed to prohibit innovative design concepts involving such matters as solar energy, view, unique land contour or relief from the common or standard designed home.

Additionally, all dwellings shall meet or exceed all applicable roof snow load and strength requirements.

(2) The foregoing standards shall not apply to a mobile home located in a licensed mobile home park except to the extent required by state or federal law or otherwise specifically required in the ordinance of the township pertaining to such parks.

3.25 Roads - Private

(1) Location Permitted. Private roads are permitted in all districts in the Township.

The application package shall include a written description of the proposed development to be served, detailed site plans and construction plans (see Article 17) and a detailed description of how the costs of operation and maintenance will be apportioned and paid for by benefitting property owners.

In reviewing the preliminary application, the Planning Commission shall consider the impact of the proposed development on adjacent properties, whether the health, safety and general welfare of persons or property using or affected by the private road will be adequately protected and whether the precedent set by allowing the private road in the circumstances under consideration will adversely affect the long term development policies of Bowne Township. An architect, engineer or other persons will be consulted if deemed necessary. If the Planning Commission approves the preliminary application, the Building Official shall issue a Preliminary Private Road Permit to the Owner upon payment of the Construction Review Fee.

(3) Final Private Road Permit. No construction shall begin on the private road or on adjacent properties which depend on the private road for access until the Preliminary Private Road Permit has been issued. The Owner shall notify the Township at least 72 hours prior to initiation of construction of the Private Road. During construction, the Owner shall allow the Township to review construction progress for compliance with the approved site plan and construction drawings. Upon completion of construction, the Township will complete a final review of the private road improvement to check compliance with the approved site plan and construction plans. The Owner shall correct any deficiencies identified during either an interim or final review. Upon final review and approval of the completed Private Road improvement, the Township Clerk shall issue a Final Private Road Permit to the Owner. Building permits for construction on properties served by the Private Road shall not be issued until the Final Private Road Permit has been issued.

(4) Site Plans and Construction Plans. A site plan and construction plan, in compliance with Article 17, showing the proposed location, adjacent properties, proposed street grades, drainage and proposed improvements, shall be prepared by a registered engineer or registered land surveyor and shall be submitted to the Township Planning Commission as part of the preliminary private road permit application and approval.

(5) Maintenance and Repair. Maintenance, repair and liability for private roads shall be the responsibility of property owners adjacent to the private road and not the responsibility or liability of the Township. The developer shall establish by appropriate deed provisions an Association which shall be responsible for road maintenance and repair and which shall have the authority to apportion and collect the cost of maintenance and repair from benefitting property owners.

(6) Design Standards for Roads Serving Two to Four Dwelling Units. Private roads serving between 2 and 4 dwelling units shall meet the following design standards:

(a) Be constructed in a good and workmanlike manner upon and parallel to the centerline of an easement which is established by duly recorded conveyance and which is not less than sixty-six (66) feet in width;

(b) Be constructed so as to sufficiently control storm water runoff and permit effective storm water drainage, such as by means of ditches constructed parallel to and on either side of the drive, by sloping the sides of the drive from the center thereof, or by other effective methods;

(c) Have a sand and gravel base of not less than ten (10) inches in depth of which only six (6) inches in depth shall be only gravel;

(d) Have a road bed not less than twelve (12) feet wide;

(e) Be constructed over adequate culverts where necessary.

(7) Design Standards for Roads Serving Five or More Dwelling Units. Private roads serving 5 or more dwelling units shall meet the following design standards:

(a) All private roads shall have a minimum 66 foot wide right-of-way easement granted to the adjacent property owners.

(b) The layout of private roads in respect to their location, intersections, cul-de-sacs, vertical street alignment, street signs, horizontal curves, curb openings at intersecting streets, etc., shall conform to the Kent County Road Commission standards for platted streets. Kent County Road Commission standards for maximum street grades shall not be required.

(c) The construction of the roadway shall conform to the Kent County Road Commission standards for a local road 22' wide with 7" gravel base (MDSH)(22A), 7' wide grass shoulders and other current County Road Commission requirements. Ditches shall outlet into a cross culvert or drainage course.

In impervious soils (clay or other unsuitable materials), a 12" sand sub-base, graded parallel to the road surface (extending into the front ditch slope), shall be constructed. Bituminous surfacing and storm sewer will not be required.

(d) Culverts shall be placed at all natural drainage courses or other waterways. Culvert sizes and grades shall be determined using the Kent County Road Commission storm runoff calculations formula. Materials for culverts shall also conform to their requirements.

(8) Additional Dwelling Units Served. A private road serving between two and four dwelling units and approved pursuant to Section 3.25 (6) which is subsequently intended to serve five or more dwelling units shall meet the design standards specified in Section 3.25 (7) for the entire private road and shall follow the procedures outlined in Sections 3.25 (2), (3), and (4).

Airline Passenger Protection Act

Many of you have found yourselves extremely frustrated by poor airline service. Things seem to have gotten worse lately - chronically delayed or cancelled flights, missed connections, and lost luggage. In an attempt to reverse this trend, the House just passed the Airline Passenger Protection Act, H.R. 3051.

A major goal of this legislation is to ensure that potential passengers have access to "quality of service" airline information. The Airline Passenger Protection Act requires the Department of Transportation (DOT) to publish a monthly report which will include data on each airline's on-time performance, damaged and lost baggage, cancelled flights, overbooking, missed connections, and consumer complaints.

The data contained in this report will be available to the public, upon request, through airline ticket offices and travel agents, as well as on a DOT toll-free hotline. This background information will enable consumers to vote with their pocketbooks and avoid those carriers which provide inferior service.

The Airline Passenger Protection Act addresses many other problem areas. For example, customers who have been lured by low advertised fares have complained that these ads have failed to make it clear that the discount fares are not available on many flights and may be nonrefundable. Under H.R. 3051, ticket restrictions policies such as specific flight availability, advance purchase of tickets, minimum stay requirements, and refundability must be disclosed in the advertisement.

A brief grace period is also provided for flyers who have purchased what has been billed as otherwise "non-refundable" tickets. Individuals have two days following receipt of the ticket, or seven days after its mailing, in which to cancel the ticket and receive a full refund, unless the ticket is purchased within four days of departure date.

Under H.R. 3051 airlines must notify passengers before they board if the departure time is going to be delayed by at least 15 minutes. Carriers cancelling a flight must explain to individuals in the boarding area why the flight was cancelled. Each airline must also state on the ticket or ticket jacket the minimum amenities they will provide in the event a flight is cancelled (and the passenger cannot be put on another flight within a reasonable period of time), a passenger is bumped, or a passenger does not receive his or her baggage within a reasonable period of time.

This legislation encourages airlines to keep tabs on wandering luggage, as owners will be compensated with a one way space-available ticket, when baggage is not located within two hours.

Republican proposals will improve quality of life for seniors

Several proposals designed to improve the quality of life for senior citizens, including an innovative Individual Medical Account (IMA), were announced last week in a House Republican Task Force Report on Long-Term Care. The long-term care plan deals with finances, housing and quality health care.

The report recommends ways seniors can maintain their homes and still receive adequate and affordable health care. House Republicans hope to find creative solutions to the problems facing our older population.

One approach would be establishing IMAs, similar to IRAs, to pay for medical expenses or insurance premiums. Such plans would be an incentive for persons to plan for their own future medical expenses.

The task force also recommended: Passing legislation that would relieve spousal impoverishment by protecting the assets and income of the at-home spouse (HB 5021)

Regulating long-term care insurance policies and establishing industry standards (HB 5107)

Requiring pre-admission screening for individuals seeking to enter nursing homes (HB 4588).

Providing tax incentives for family members who care for seniors at home by establishing an additional income tax exemption (HB 5067)

Considering direct subsidies to primary caregivers who care for elderly family members in their home.

Forming a state task force to advocate elderly housing programs and explore new strategies for affordable housing for seniors.

Volunteers add to quality of life at nursing home

by: Thad Kraus

The Lowell Medical Care Center represents to many of the area elderly more than a skilled 24-hour nursing care facility for senior citizens.

The medical treatment helps provide the best possible quality of life for geriatric residents in a homelike structure.

"Keeping a homelike atmosphere is most difficult because of the various needs of the patients," Lowell Medical Care Center Administrator Larry Yachcik said.

Many of the residents do not have families. Those that do, find that their families are unable to provide the type of care needed, thus an aide is hired into the home or the resident is put into a long-term nursing care facility.

Yachcik emphasizes, though, that entering into a nursing care facility is not necessarily the end of the line.

"Of all of our residents, 15-20 percent of them will end up leaving for a lesser care facility or will go back to their own home," Yachcik said.

With 135 employees, consisting of licensed nurses, nursing aides, and physicians, the Lowell Medical Care Center is able to reach out, unlike many care facilities.

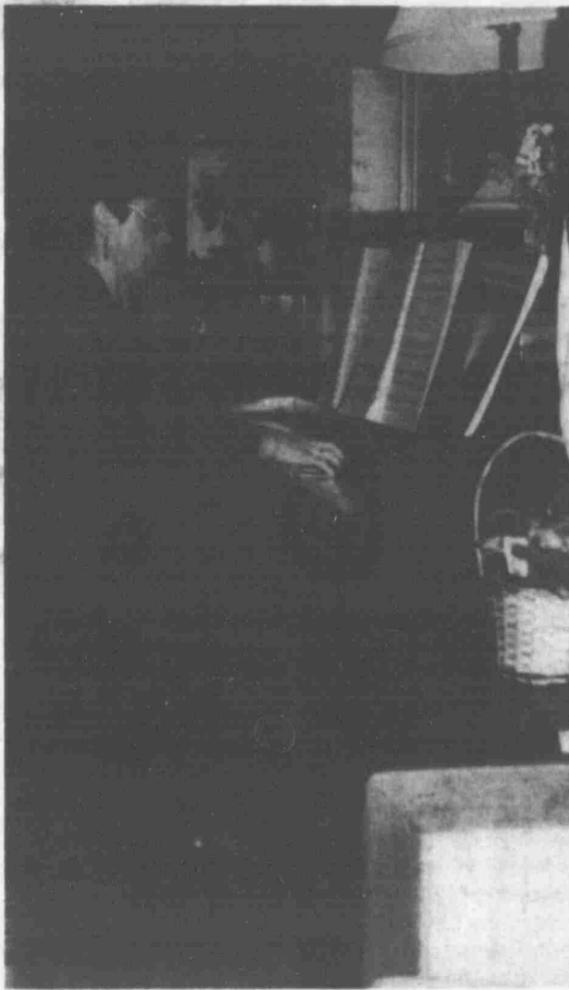

"We encourage social blend and participation in group activities," Director of Nursing Faire Tate said. "There is a broad base of activities including bingo, singing, cocktail parties, crafts, shopping, fishing and a beauty shop."

Many would prefer to sit and watch their soaps. "But this is not unique to just the elderly," Yachcik muses.

Tate adds that there is truth to the saying, if people look good they feel good.

And feeling good for many of the Lowell Medical Care Center residents is a day-to-day proposition. The average age at the center is 82 years old, with the youngest being 44, and the oldest being 99.

Hospitals account for 75-80 percent of the center's admissions, with the remainder coming from the family physician and/or home.

The Lowell Medical Care Center staff communicates with the families of the residents. The residents are reviewed once every three to four months. Tate adds that family support is very important to the residents. Support is also provided by local agencies such as church groups, veterans of war and volunteers. "Many families feel guilty because they are unable to provide the quality of care that is needed," Tate said.

Yachcik explains that families could make the transition easier on themselves and its family members, if the planning was started in advance of the anti-pated need.

One of the major fallacies that families have, according to office manager B. J. Hockenberry, is that Medicare will cover the cost. "It won't. Less than 2 1/2 percent is covered by Medicare," Hockenberry said.

She adds that the average minimum cost per month in a nursing home ranges between $1,800 and $2,000.

The Lowell Medical Care Center is unique, in that its staff's care not only provides its residents with a great deal of love, sympathy and empathy, but in return, a great deal of gratification is derived from their service.

"The backbone of our hands-on care is provided by the nursing aides. They have the most contact with our residents and know the level of care needed to keep them comfortable, clean and happy," Yachcik said.

"This understanding and compassion is rewarded when one of the residents gives one of us a hug or a kiss on the cheek. It's a thank you that kind of stops you in your tracks."

Judy Perrin, with 14 years of nursing experience, adds that the resident's attitude is important. Being positive can help persuade their attitude and can be uplifting."

She continues, "I am where I am because of them, so I try to give a little back. And most of the residents don't have anybody else to care for them.

"Many cannot verbalize their thoughts, so they say thank you with a smile. The Lowell Medical Care Center has been good to me, both the administration and residents, it's like a second home."
