/74We anticipate moving on Wednesday, Aug. 24 and being at full force by Aug. 29," Senior Center Coordinator Marj Snyder said.

Snyder believes the new location will work. "The reaction has been split, but I think with time and a little promotion the apprehension will go away," she said.

Both the school and the Center believe that the intergenerational activiities that will be made possible can be advantageous to

"I can see the day, down the road, when one of the ladies helps a girl in home economics put a button on a shirt, or one of the men helps students in one of our shop classes," Esch said.

The Center's executive director, Margaret Dean, believes many positives are possible and points to a similar situation that has been operating successfully for 10 years.

"Harbor Springs has been running a similar program in their high school for the past 10 years," Dean said. " It's been a successful program -- one which has received national recogni-

Dean expects a little apprehension at first in large part because the age groups have not had a lot of contact.

In talking to some of the senior neighbors the apprehension that was brought forward was not about the difference in age groups. It was about parking and seating.

One senior neighbor who wished not to have her name printed since she is new to the area, said that whenever two age groups can come closer together she thinks it's good.

Hazel Knoop of Ada said she thought interaction and possible intergenerational activities down the road was good. "I'm also glad to have a place to go," she adds.

The rent agreement between the school and the Senior Center will call for $200 a month, which according to Esch works consistently with board policy. This will include utilities, custodian service, general maintenance and storage for the van.

"The rent will be equal to what we were paying before," Dean said."It has been rewarding working with the school. The school has been wonderful and has gone out of its way to be accomodating."

It's ironic but conversation was first started between the two

Ladies at the Senior Neighbors Center took time from their game of Pedro to chat about the Center's move to the Middle

CORRECTION

In last week's Lowell Ledger a story regarding the pre-hospital emergency medical service coming to Lowell on Aug. 22 inadvertently left out Lowell Township.

It is important to note that Lowell Township has also been very supportive of the ambulance service, and is one of the entities that will be giving $3,000 a year.

The Ledger apologizes for any misunderstanding this may have

However, Dean said a minimum of $25,000 in renovations would be needed. "That would have included new plumbing, wiring, a barrier free restroom and a ramp," she said. "Probably an addition would also have been needed since the first floor is all we could have used and its space is limited."

Dean added that the Center appreciates the offer given to it by the Lowell Area housing Board on the Hale house. "They also did all they could to accomodate us," Dean said.

THE CHOKING CHILD

Many of us have experienced fear and panic when a young child or infant begins to choke at the dinner table. Usually the episode is minor and passes without the serious incident, but we should all know emergency first aid techniques in case the incident isn't so minor. In today's column we are going to review the appropriate steps to take in a life threatening situation. The steps are not difficult to follow, but you should practice them with a doll, or better yet, take a first aid course just in case your child's life depends on it.

For children older than 1 year:

Tell someone to call for emergency help immediately. If you are alone begin the following series of steps first, then call for help. Figure I: 1. Place the child on his back. Place the heel of your hands above his navel, just below the ribs.

2. Push upward and inward on the child's stomach rapidly 6 to 10 times until the object is pushed out.

Figure II: 3. If the child is large or older than 4 years, you can use the Heimlich maneuver instead of laying him on his Figure III. 4. If the object is not expelled open the mouth by holding the tongue and lower jaw with your thumb. Pull up on the jaw. This pulls the tongue away from the back of the throat loosening the object.

5. If you can see the object remove it with a sweeping motion of your fingers. If you cannot see the object do not try to reach it with your fingers as this may push the object further down the throat.

6. If the child is not breathing, begin mouth to mouth resuscitation. If the child's chest does not rise and fall with each breath, repeat steps 1 to 3 and then try mouth to mouth resuscitation again. Continue until emergency help arrives.

For a child less than 1 year old:

Figure IV: 1. Support the head and neck with one hand and straddle the infant face down over your forearm, (head lower than trunk), supported by your thigh.

2. Using the heel of your hand deliver four blows between the shoulder blades.

3. If the obstruction is not released, support the head and neck, roll the baby to his back, keeping the head lower than the trunk and deliver four thrusts to the middle of the breast bone using 2 fingers.

4. Begin mouth to mouth resuscitation if he isn't breathing. If the chest does not rise repeat steps 1 to 3 and continue mouth to mouth until help arrives.

By reviewing and practicing the techniques in a controlled environment you will be able to perform them adequately rather than panic if the situation should arise.

I have lived in the city. I have lived in the country. Here on the farm the hearing becomes more acute, the nose picks up odors of all kinds, the eyes search for signs of change in the sky, the ground, the animals, the trees, the birds

There are the annual tell-tale signs in the house that fall is coming. Walking through the living room one morning this past week, I walked through a long, ghostly cobweb (and velled). It hadn't been there the night before when I dusted and vacuumed. I noticed daddy long-leg spiders in almost every corner, plus their increasing pleasure to hide in the shower. Crickets are jumping all over the place, indoors as well as out. They seem to hitch rides in the peach and apple baskets. I hear them singing their sneaky messages to each other in my kitchen, or another room, if they don't get swatted before they get there. Their song is loud, but I seldom find them. The annual ritual of putting up a Terror

For me, peach time here on the farm is the prelude to fall. This year many of the peaches cooked on the trees.

The Transparent and Duchess apples had a shorter tree life and we've had three or four lovely sleeping nights. Unthinkable...just a week ago. The apples are just beginning to show the red blush. Apple harvest, silo filling, cows put back in the barn in November...all this will be on schedule.

It brings to my mind the hymn that says such a truth..."Sum-

Item No. 1: H.O.O.P PRESENTATION. Tom Scheidel, as a director of the Showboat City HOOP Classic, gave a short report on the three-on-three basketball tournament which took place in June. There were 75 teams who participated having approximately 80 players. Scheidel presented checks from the HOOP tournament to the Lowell Boosters, Knights of Columbus, Senior Neighbors and Lowell Area Rescue. Mayor James Maatman stated that he was pleased with what he saw of the tournament and heard many positive remarks.

Item No. 2. DENTAL INSURANCE - CHANGE OF CAR-RIERS. City Manager Pasquale mentioned that at the June 20th meeting, the Council approved dental insurance coverage for City employees from Blue Cross. A provision provided for family coverage as an option at the employee's expense. Blue Cross notified the City recently that the family coverage option as originally stated cannot be given. Thus, family coverage must be paid in total from City contributions.

Since the cost of providing family coverage is prohibitive (additional $3,800), it was recommended that the City enter into a plan for Delta Dental which costs $12.66 per month per employee. If 75% of employees participate, family coverage can be paid through their contributions.

IT WAS MOVED by Doyle and supported by Thompson change the carrier of dental insurance to Delta Dental Plan of Michigan, Inc. For $12.66 per month per employee with the option of family coverage if 75% of employees participate. YEA: 4. (Doyle, Fonger, Thompson and Mayor Maatman) NAY: 1 (Collins). ABSENT: 0.

Item No. 3. AIRPORT TIE DOWN FEES. City Manager Pasquale explained that during the June Airport Board meeting, a fee for airplane tie downs of $20.00 per month or $200.00 per year was recommended. No nightly fee was suggested, which is common among local airports, because of the difficulty in collecting. Grand Rapids School of the Bible and Music will be responsible for collection of the fees.

IT WAS MOVED by Doyle and supported by Fonger to set the airplane tie down fees for the Lowell City Airport at $20.00 per month or $200.00 per year.

IT WAS MOVED by Collins and supported by Fonger to have City Manager Pasquale to serve as delegate and Councilmember Doyle as alternate to the Michigan Municipal League Convention. YEA: 5.

Item No. 7. CONTROL OF THE GRAVEL PIT PARK AREA City Manager Pasquale mentioned that the Council needs to establish rules for the usage of the Gravel Pit area on Bowes Road. This would include activities allowed and where the public should be permitted within the park area. In response, the Council considered the usage of boulders to outline the parking area. Also, the Council stated that signs should be placed stating, "Swimming at Your Own Risk". No other measures were felt necessary at this time.

Judd Zykstra of Grand River Investments said that he is hop-

Terese and I were saddened to see some very close friends move to Florida last spring. The move took advantage of a good job opportunity, and of course I'm going to be jealous as can be about mid-February when I've had about twice as much winter as I need. But, it's still tough to have friends move that far away. Phone calls and letters are nice, but they don't replace friends who feel free to pop in unannounced with their kids and something for the grill.

I didn't explain about our friends' move in an effort to get all sentimental. I told you so that you could appreciate the logistics involved in one of the best practical jokes ever played on anyone. And, unbelieveable as it may seem, I wasn't on the receiving end

My Florida friend called a month or so ago to ask me for a favor. The company he works for had a semi-truck heading his way from Michigan, and he had arranged to have the final remnants of his move shipped on the truck. My friend asked if I would make sure everything got loaded. "No problem", I said.

The next day I rounded up my friend's brother, and we met the truck at the warehouse. The items to be loaded were bulky things that didn't fit in the first moving van. There was a desk, a couple of file cabinets, a chest freezer, his son's little quad-rider and a few other assorted items. We pushed and shoved, lifted and heaved, and pretty soon the entire list of items was loaded.

The brother and I stood back, mopped our brows, and surveyed the warehouse for any items that might have been left off the list. He looked at me. I looked at him. He looked at a corner of the building. My eyes followed his. And with no hesitation, we both

The object of our attention, and delight, was a battered old snowmobile. It was my friend's old Massey-Ferguson model. The seat was ripped. The windshield was missing. The cowl was cracked and the skis were bent. We couldn't have come up with a better gift to send to Florida if we had thought for days. With a glee in our hearts known only to those who have pulled off such a prank, the brother and I loaded the snowmobile on the back of the truck.

The truck wasn't leaving until the next day, so that evening we threw a party at which we prepared a Michigan to Florida CARE package to go along with the snowmobile. Into a large box went a hockey stick, snow shovel, ski poles, ice fishing rod, hot seat, Winter coat, stocking hat, mittens, sliding disc, whitetail deer ders, windshield scraper, antifreeze, electric socks, long und ar and an endless list of items that are totally worthless in Florida,

We waited with baited breath for the phone call following the truck's arrival. In a feeble attempt to get even, he called collect. Laccepted the charges. "Brownie! You son of a bleep. What the bleep am I supposed to do with this bleep snowmobile?" I laughed. and I roared, and I howled. He said all the employees were walking around the thing on the loading dock trying to figure out what it was. Most thought it was a jet-ski of some kind.

The box of goodies was also a hit, but the snowmobile was the topper. My friend vowed to get even. I didn't lose any sleep over the threat, knowing full well that he'd never top the snowmobile gag. He recently got in a pretty good reprisal, but I'll wait to tell that story next week.

Reagan named school millage citizen chairperson

Robert Reagan

Dr. Robert Reagan, D.D.S. who has been in Lowell for 35 years, was selected by the "Keeping in Step for Kids" millage campaign as the school millage citizen chairperson.

Reagan and his wife, Carol, educated and graduated all 10 of their children from Lowell Schools.

Reagan spent 14 years on the Lowell Board of Education, seven of which were as board

"We're excited about Reagan's leadership and direction that he will bring to the campaign," Lowell principal Dick Korb said. "Along with his knowledge and expertise he is credible and well respected within the communi-

According to Korb, Reagan will be used to speak at small gatherings and functions. "Reagan will be able to talk from the aspect of community life -- a community perspective," Korb the 21st Century.

Getting the information to the community is important and Korb said he felt it was important that someone other than a school official talk to the people. "The committee picked someone that doesn't have close ties to the school," he said.

Korb added that the millage dollars the school is asking for will allow Lowell students to be employable and competitive in

"I believe it is important enough to help see that the millage gets through," Reagan said. "The school would like me to attend gatherings and say a few words from the aspect of community life."

Local citizens interested in assisting with the millage campaign are asked to contact Korb or Linda Zaczek 897-4125, 897-8415.

Doyle attends 85th postal convention

Postmaster Charlie Doyle of Lowell, MI was one of the more than 1,500 delegates who recently attended the 85th Annual National Convention of the National League of Postmasters in St. Louis, MO.

Founded in 1904, the League of Postmasters is the oldest organization representing the nation's Postmasters.

The theme of the 85th conven-

tion is a rededication to service and a commitment to the "New Postal Service", which has been realigned to better serve America. The League believes strongly in a continuing effort to improve upon a postal system that is both deserved and paid for by all citizens.

Postmaster Ron D. Swisher, President of the organization, reminded delegates to the convention that, "because of your commitment, Americans enjoy the most reliable postal system at the lowest cost of any industrialized nation on earth. And, service is still the most important product we have to sell.'

"It's Postmasters like Doyle who make our nation's Postal Service both personal and responsive to the needs of citizens in the largest cities to the smallest villages," Swisher said. "Postmasters are often the only evidence of federal government in thousands of smaller communities. The Post Office is more than just a place to send and receive mail, it's the center of community life."

Postmaster General Anthony Frank, Deputy Postmaster General Michael Coughlin, and Postal Service Board of Governors Chairman John Griesemer were among postal speakers at the conference. Other noted speakers include Members of Congress, among them: Rep. William Clay (D-MO) and Rep. Frank Horton (R-NY). Assistant Postmaster General John Wargo, Regional Postmaster General Jerry K. Lee, and St. Louis Division Manager/Postmaster John Goodman all welcomed the large group of delegates.

The League, as a professional management organization, has led the fight to preserve a cost efficient postal service in rural areas of the country and to provide consistently reliable service. The organization and its more than 25,000 members continue to be in the forefront of the fight against service curtailments and strongly supports the preservation of a universal postal service for America.

Eaglet finds home in Michigan

For the first time in 25 years, southeast Michigan is "home" to State. month-old bird is expected to first spread its wings late this month at the Pointe Mouillee area in Monroe County, home to the rare bird's family since just Frequent sightingss of another pair of eagles recently near the Willow Run Airport in Wayne County, however, could mean the Pointe Mouillee threesome have neighbors nesting nearby.

No nest has been located at this time, but DNR wildlife biologists will be watching the Willow Run area for signs of nest building this fall and into the 1989 nesting season.

To date, nearly 150 nesting pairs of eagles, a threatened species in Michigan, have adapted well to areas within northern Michigan and are gradually beginning to reoccupy

the more southern parts of the ing," reported Endangered Species Coordinator Thomas Weise, "because it is an indication that environmental conditions in the Southern Great Lakes region have improved to the point where eagles can successfully nest."

The Monroe County eagles are believed to be an extension of a growing western Lake Erie population now numbering 12 pairs, which nest in northern Ohio. The Ohio population was restored through a captive-raised eaglet fostering project that began in 1979 by the Ohio DNR.

Although data are incomplete for 1988 it appears that 155 pairs have nested with an expected success similar to 1987 when, 139 nesting pairs produced 149 surviving young with 66 per cent nesting success.

"The continued successful nesting of the Monroe County eagles, and our other eagle populations, will depend on continued public cooperation," said State Nongame Wildlife Program Supervisor Robert Hess. "By keeping a safe distance from the birds during the March to July nesting period especially, the eagles can carry out their normal nesting cycle unhampered."

Undisturbed nests are typically occupied for many years by the same eagle pair, which may live to be over 20 years old. Nests are repaired each year with additional sticks being added until nests may be eight to 10 feet deep and 12 to 15 feet across.

Single-show attendance record broken

This is a portion of the 13,000 that jammed the grandstand and track for the Def Leppard Concert at the Ionia (Michigan) Free Fair, August 2. The huge crowd broke the 73-year old fair's grandstand single-show attendance record. Europe also appeared on the bill.
