Sliding hill ready for area's youth

Every December and January Reservoir Hill (Jefferson Street) and the hill on Gee Drive were descended upon by the youth of Lowell for the high adventure of sledding.

Sledding wasn't a problem, but the sleds failing to stop until they reached the street pavement was a problem. So much so that roughly two years ago Lowell's Park and Recreation Commission decided to try to take the danger out of sledding for the community's youth.

With the allocation of $7,500 from the Look Memorial Fund, Bieri Construction was hired to do the excavating and Fishbach, Thompson, Carr and Hubert came up with the design for a sledder's delight. Located on N. Washington behind the Boy Scout cabin and east of the old shooting range lies a 1,000 foot hill that has been designed and excavated strictly for sledding. The hill will get its first test this winter when youngsters from the community try it out.

"There's still some general maintenance that will need to be done in the spring, inserting a catch basin where there's an erosion problem, filling in some of the holes and gullies on the hill and removing the shooting ranges," Lowell Public Works spokesman Tony Siciliano said. "We could have filled those holes and gullies, but the ground is too soft for the equipment needed.

"The hill needs some seasoning," Siciliano said.

Wolverine Electric, owner of the hill and land around, it has given the city permission to use the hill for sledding.

Siciliano said the city also put down a land cover type matting to help with the planting of grass. He added the dry summer and then the heavy rains has hurt its effectiveness.

"I hope it's used a lot," Lowell City Manager David Pasquale said. "We must make sure that people are aware of where the hill is located."

The city has also provided a foot trail for sledders to return to the top. "This is strictly for sledders, the hill is not designed for skiers," Siciliano said.

It's 1,000 feet to the bottom of this hill on N. Washington east of the old shooting range.

Perry named "A.D. of the Year"

Over 300 people were on hand Monday at the Adrian's Ramona Terrace to honor Lowell's Athletic Director Bob Perry for his 37 years of dedicated service in education and 20 years as the school's A.D.

Perry was presented a plaque by John Velthouse, a representative of the West Michigan Officials Association.

"It's a real honor for Lowell, the district and for Bob Perry," Lowell High School Principal

Dick Korb said. "The award is well deserved."

The Lowell A.D. came to Lowell in 1951 as a teacher and a coach. In those 37 years he coached varsity football, track, cross country, tennis, junior varsity basketball.

In 1967-68 Perry was named assistant principal and athletic director. While he has been A.D. for the past 20 years, Perry served as assistant principal from 1967-1970.

Monday night's guest speaker was Jim Northrup, the former Detroit Tiger great. Perry was also present at the first West Michigan Officials Association banquet, "Ed 'Moose' Krause, the former Athletic Director at the University of Notre Dame, was the speaker 31 years ago," he recalled.

Perry, a 1944 Alma High School graduate, played football four years. "I was a guard all four years," he said.

It was much of the same in college for Perry, the four-year gridiron guard graduated from Alma College with a Degree in Education. In 1954 Perry graduated from the University of Michigan with a Masters Degree in Education/Administration.

Perry thanked the coaches, staff and fans at Lowell High School for their support.

Lowell's A.D. also had some thoughts on high school athletics. "I think sportsmanship has changed for the worse," Perry said. "People are forgetting what the game is for, it's for the kids, today, though, it's win at all costs."

Lowell's Athletic Director of 20 years would not speculate on how many more years he will serve the school district. "I wouldn't tell you," Perry chuckled. "The day that I no longer enjoy this job is the day I will step aside."

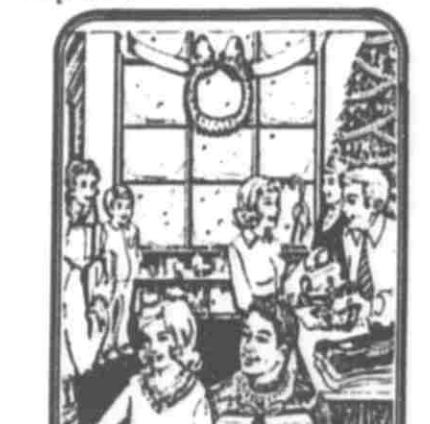

Bob Perry, Lowell's Athletic Director for the past 31 years, was named Athletic Director of the Year by the Western Michigan Officials Association.

1987-88 hunting accidents increased

Big and small game hunting accidents in Michigan increased during the 1987-88 hunting season compared to previous years, with 100 accidents (11 deaths, 89 injuries) reported; up from 81 accidents in 1986-87, 85 accidents in 1985-86 and 88 accidents for the 1984-85 season.

Michigan, however, still ranks below the national average for hunter accidents, with only 6.43 accidents reported for every 100,000 licenses sold annually, compared to a national average of 8.10. More than 1,571,000 Michigan hunting licenses were sold in 1987-88.

"We're disturbed to see an increase in accidents from previous years," said Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Director David F. Hales. "Nearly all of these accidents could have been prevented if hunters had worn the required orange apparel or observed some very basic safety rules."

More than 70 percent of the 1987-88 hunting accidents fell into the following categories:

- * Victim out of sight of shooter: 28 accidents (3 fatalities, 25 injuries);
- * Careless handling of firearms: 18 accidents (1 fatal, 17 injuries);
- * Victim mistaken for game: 10 accidents (5 fatalities, 5 injuries);
- * Victim shot by hunter turning to shoot at game: 10 accidents (10 injuries);
- * Victim moved into line of fire: 5 accidents (5 injuries).

Overall, 33 of the 100 accidents were self-inflicted, while 67 accidents were the result of another hunter's bullet. In addition, most of the accidents occurred within 10 yards of the victim, involved violators 32 years and older, and included persons of the same hunting party.

Two hunter safety laws have had a significant impact on the reduction of hunter accidents in Michigan since the mid-1970's, when Michigan averaged 219 hunting accidents annually, said Lt. Jim Dabb, hunter education coordinator for the DNR's Law Enforcement Division.

"Implementation of mandatory hunter safety training in 1971 for first-time hunters ages 12-16, and enactment of the hunter orange law in 1977, requiring hunters to wear a blaze orange cap or vest, continues to be a key element in reduction of hunter accidents," added Dabb.

For more information on the hunting safety training course, recommended for all hunters, contact the DNR's Law Enforcement Division at 517-373-1230.

To help insure a safe hunting trip, DNR law enforcement officials advise hunters to follow four essential safety measures:

1. Wear hunter orange -- cap and vest or cap and coat, preferred.
2. Keep the muzzle of the gun pointed in a safe direction and keep the safety on until ready to shoot.
3. Make sure of your target -- check what lies beyond your target and see whether a safe shot can be taken.
4. Keep track of where your hunting companions are at all times before shooting.

HEALTH

By Dr. Paul Gauthier and Dr. Jim Lang

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS

Multiple Sclerosis (MS) is a chronic, slowly progressive disease of the central nervous system. Unfortunately, its cause is unknown and although it is treatable, there is no known cure.

About 250,000 Americans currently suffer from MS. Most victims are young adults, with most cases diagnosed in people between the ages of 15 and 40. Women tend to be affected twice as often as men. MS is not a contagious disease and it is rarely fatal. Many MS patients are building constructive lives, provided they are receiving proper medical care.

MS usually develops with symptoms relative to the nervous system. They may include weakness, clumsiness, tingling sensations or numbness in the limbs. Patients may also experience visual disturbances; double vision, eyeball pain, or even blindness. Some people may have only loss of bladder control as an initial symptom.

The diagnosis of MS is sometimes difficult, because of the wide range of nonspecific symptoms it may cause. Sophisticated neurological testing, including a spinal tap or perhaps an MRI (magnetic resonance image) are performed to aid in the diagnosis.

While there is currently no cure for MS, there are several medical therapies available to help lessen the symptoms of initial attack or subsequent relapse. These therapies include an adrenal hormone, (ACTH) and muscle relaxants if muscle spasm develops. Several investigational treatment modalities are also being considered for general use.

MS is a disease which is complex and unpredictable. Its lack of predictability makes its diagnosis and treatment difficult. A great deal of research is currently being done on MS, and we can only hope that the future holds more promise for the victims of this neurological disease.

Homespun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof... (Genesis 3:6)

Safety glasses are worn by factory workers to protect their eyes. Colored glasses are commonly worn by those who stay out in the sunlight.

Sight is a wonderful thing. But through the medium of sight, Satan works to bring spiritual destruction if he can. Many times the enemy uses those things which are "good for food," "pleasant to the eyes," and which "make one wise" to tempt us. Most people are not tempted by the ugly, the unpleasant, and unattractive. Satan uses the beautiful to entice mankind to partake of his wares. Through the serpent, Satan used the sense of sight to seduce Eve. When she yielded to his suggestions and cast her attention upon the forbidden fruit, sin soon followed.

The Christian must guard his seeing with all diligence. One is most affected by those things which he sees. They can either lead to a more beautiful existence, or they can destroy. To avoid temptation, it is wise to wear "safety glasses."

Prayer: O Lord, help me to see those things which Thou wouldst have me see. Keep me from looking upon anything that would seduce and draw me away from Thee. Amen.

Take the name of Jesus even. As a shield from every snare. If temptations round you gather. Breathe that holy name in prayer. Lydia Baxter

New board game created locally

The Michigan Lottery provides fun, excitement, and anticipation of winning big money for all of its players.

For the highest percentage of its participants the reality of winning big money never gets any further than anticipation and dreaming about it.

One way to help deal with your illusions of grandeur this holiday season may be to check out the board game "Lottery Fever." You win more often, yeah it's just play money, but what's that about imagination and fantasy...

"Lottery Fever" developed by a local creator in Lowell and another creator in Grand Rapids, may not match the excitement of the real thing, but it sure beats no excitement at all.

Lowell resident Bob Perkins and partner and friend, Ken Zoodsma, stirred up a conversation one evening about the Michigan Lottery and all the excitement it had created. Zoodsma, who along with other buddies had already created a never marketed baseball game, was intrigued enough, as was Perkins, as to how well a lottery board game would sell.

Those few words turned into months of creating the game's basic concepts - bouncing ideas off one another. This led to making a game board prototype and its components. Which led to its actual production; the printing, the packaging, and the marketing of "Lottery Fever."

Creating and fine-tuning the concept took time, finding companies to produce the components needed for the game was no easy Sunday morning jog.

The game's ideas were discussed in November of 1986, the actual production didn't start until February of 1988.

"We were not sure what we needed or wanted printed," Perkins said. The two West Michigan partners called and talked to many different companies. "Selling and marketing the game was the hardest. "To get a board game on the shelves of a chain store - takes lots of advertising money."

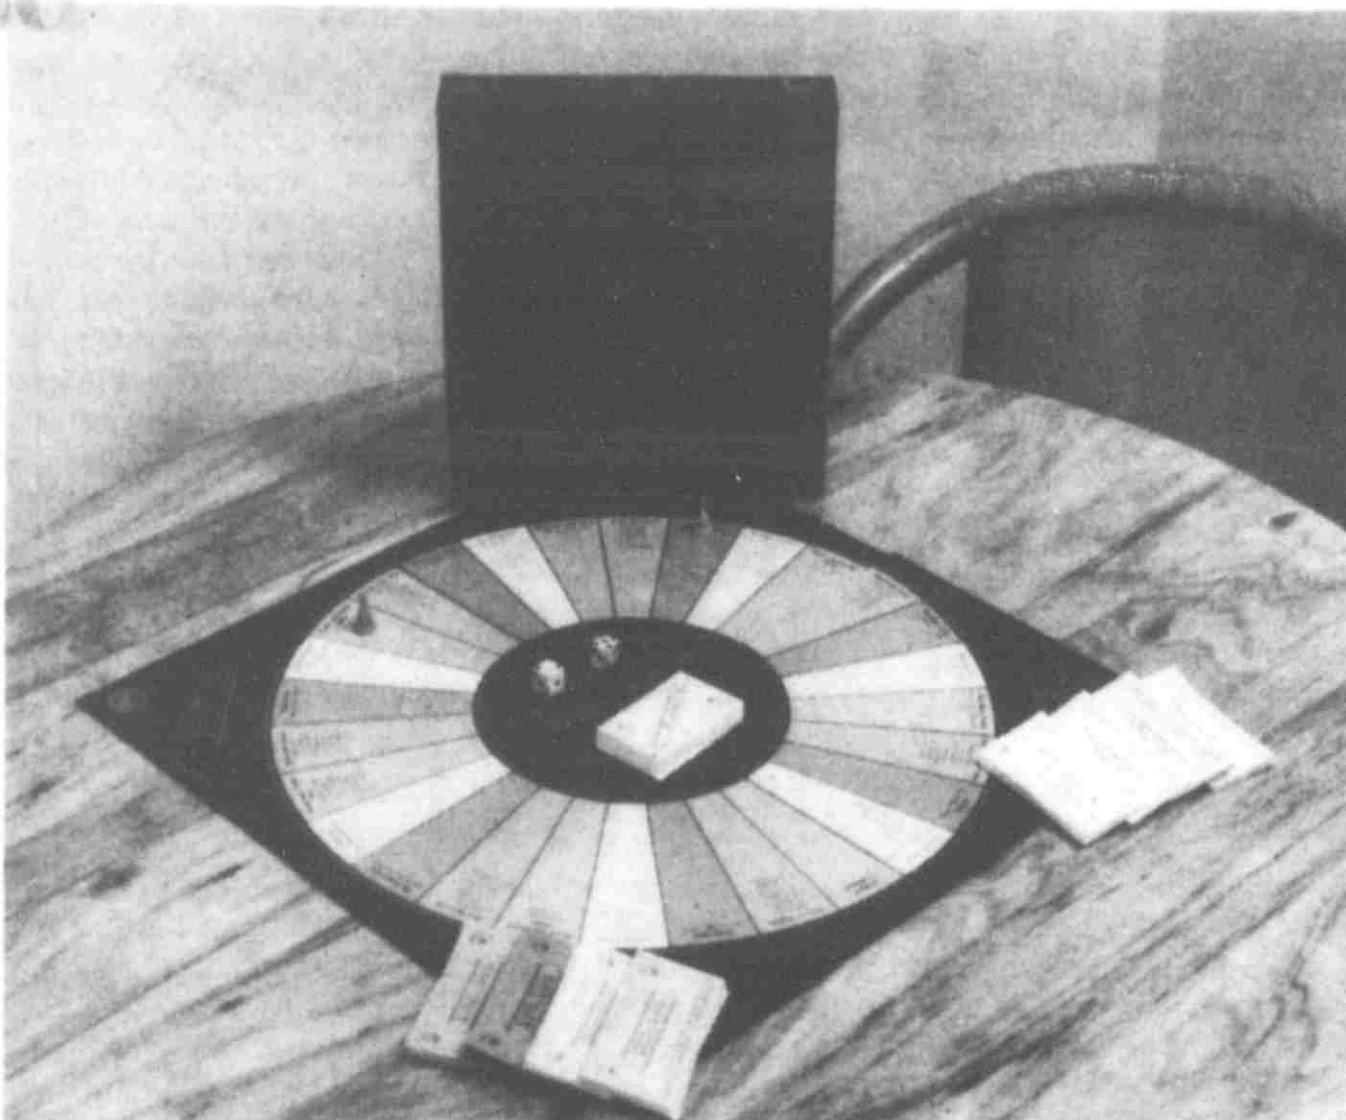

So instead Perkins and Zoodsma have used mail order campaigns and local five and dime type stores. "The game is available at Cousins," Perkins said.

All of the game parts except the plastic components were produced in Michigan, according to Perkins.

"The satisfaction of getting the game produced provide me with a sense of accomplishment," Perkins said.

The game can also be purchased by sending $19.95 to Bobkin Creations, P.O. Box 67, Lowell, MI 49331 or by calling 616/897-7662.

Perkins said they printed enough material for 5,000 games, but have only packaged 1,000. "So far we are happy with the sales. It takes as long as 5-7 years before board games take off," Perkins said.

It took Perkins and Ken Zoodsma roughly two years to get the game ready for production.

"Like any good game, "Lottery Fever" has interaction between players," Perkins adds. The board game also includes problems we all face, college tuition, taxes, auto accident costs, and credit cards.

The local creators believe "Lottery Fever" is designed to create the same type of fun and excitement that the lottery does.

"The object of "Lottery Fever" is to accumulate a million dollars by playing the various lotteries on the board such as Triple Play, 4-Play, and Instant Winners or match all six Big Deal Lotto numbers.

There are plenty of ways to accumulate money but along the way players are required to spend some of their money on a host of aforementioned expenses.

"The fact that Michigan Lottery is so popular and created such enthusiasm, that played a role in our effort to market the board game. We hope our game captures that same feeling for people," Perkins said.

Mickey Mouse's voice was originally that of Walt Disney, himself.

Bob Perkins, co-creator of "Lottery Fever," hopes many Lowell residents find his board game underneath their Christmas Tree this year.

by Roger Brown

My, my, Mr. VanderVeen's letter regarding Lowell High School's use of the "Red Arrows" as a nickname certainly aroused the ire of Red Arrow fans. Last week's Ledger had nearly a full page of responses regarding the issue. Judging from those responses, a person would think they were going to cut down all the walnut trees in Oakwood Cemetery or something!

In case you missed the hub-bub, two weeks ago, Timothy VanderVeen "Class of '63" (a former Lowell resident now residing in California), sent the Ledger a very well written letter regarding the use of "Red Arrows" as a nickname for the high school athletic teams. VanderVeen criticized the name because, in his opinion, it denotes a negative attitude toward American Indians. As it was so aptly pointed out in several letters responding to VanderVeen's accusation, the "Red Arrows" nickname has nothing to do with American Indians. Even if it did, I'm not so sure I could agree with VanderVeen and those seeking to abolish nicknames like "Redskins", "Chiefs", "Braves", etc.

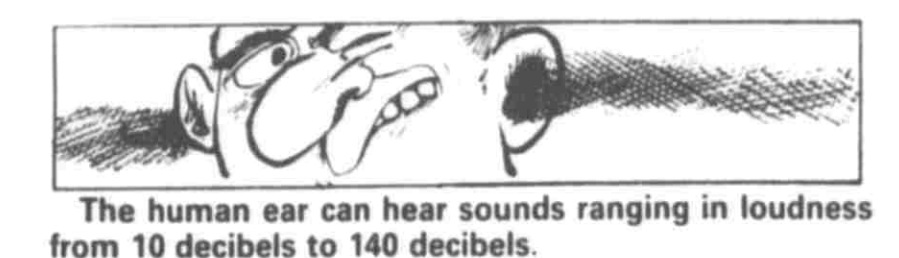

Where do we go from there? The Caledonia "Fighting Scots", the Hastings "Saxons", the Hope "Flying Dutchmen" and even the Notre Dame "Fighting Irish" would all seem to be fair game for those seeking to abolish any ethnic affiliation to a sports team.

As one of the well-researched letters responding to VanderVeen pointed out, the original selection of a mascot name for L.H.S. was the "Red Devils". However, the school board refused to adopt the name because of its anti-Christian implications. I've also heard of other movements attempting to abolish nicknames such as "Raiders", "Pirates", "Warriors", etc. because of the negative connotations that can be applied.

I'm just waiting for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to step onto the scene with a referendum to abolish such names as "Lions", "Tigers", "Bears" and "Bulldogs". I can envision the networks hyping the 1995 "Superbowl" now. "Be sure to tune in to NBC on Superbowl Sunday when the Chicago Oatmeal clash with the Miami Toast & Jam!"

All in seriousness, my opinion is that those who chose these nicknames, never would have selected "Redskins", "Chiefs", "Braves", etc., unless they were the type of words describing something to which a great deal of pride could be attributed. Being a Saranac High School alumnus, I played football, baseball and track as a "Redskin". I don't remember ever feeling anything but pride in being a "Redskin". I'm not sure I could say the same if I had played for the Saranac "Ducks"!

VanderVeen also accused our headline prior to the East Grand Rapids football game, "Scalp them Pioneers", as being "poor grammar and very poor taste". As far as the poor taste goes, I understand my sports editor's reasoning behind his choice of words. After all, a goodly number of pioneers were scalped while our country was being settled. But, I have to agree with VanderVeen on this one, the headline was in poor taste, and the Ledger will refrain from the use of such references in the future. As for the poor grammar, I've always felt (as I suspect most editors do) some lousy grammar on the sports page is acceptable, and helps to make the rest of the paper look better. Even the editor's column. "Nuff said."

The human ear can hear sounds ranging in loudness from 10 decibels to 140 decibels.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor

Concerning recent attacks on the "Red Arrows" nickname of Lowell High School, I recently sent the following letter to the Detroit News, which should be of interest to your readers:

In attacking school Indian nicknames and symbols Michigan Civil Rights Commission member Beverly Clark is quoted: "Indians are the only people who are singled out for caricature. No other group of people have been singled out for this kind of derision." Apparently she's not heard of the Scots, Britons, Dutchmen, Fighting Irish, Spartans, Yankees, and Vikings. Or the Pirates, Prospectors, Pioneers, Miners, Lumberjacks, Railroaders, Sailors, Marauders, Magicians, Doughboys, all school nicknames with proud and honored traditions, not derided at all.

Some of the Commission's accusations are downright silly and based on ignorance. For instance, the Lowell Red Arrows (my alma mater) were named in honor of Michigan's famed Red Arrow Division of the U.S. Army, after local churchmen objected to a former nickname, the Red Devils. As far as I know, nothing in the school's official logo or team references has ever related to Indians or Indian culture. The school symbol is a block "L" bisected from upper left to lower right by a block arrow, not an Indian arrow. On military maps a red arrow represents an attacking force.

To suggest that the arrow is implicitly, predominantly, or exclusively an Indian symbol is excessive. Archaeologists note that the bow and arrow was widely used in Asia, Africa, and Europe thousand of years before the earliest peoples arrived in the Americas. It was the main weapon for armies in Egypt, Persia, and Assyria, as well as for the English and European armies through the Middle Ages. Today archery is a popular deer hunting method and an Olympic-level sport.

Even the nickname Chiefs is not inherently Indian. Neither Random House nor Webster's dictionaries mention Indians in the definitions of "chief", although many schools use it in that context. They could adopt a fireman's hat as a symbol, perhaps. We already have school nicknames of Generals, Commanders, Commodores, Admirals, and Pilots.

There are important civil rights issues that need to be addressed in Michigan. Unfortunately, by overstatement and misrepresentation in this matter, the Michigan Civil Rights Commission becomes itself an object of public ridicule or animosity, thereby weakening the cause of civil rights generally. And in assuming that nicknames such as Red Arrows or Warriors have, or imply, a reference to Indians, the Commission is engaging in the same sort of stereotyping and scapegoating that it claims to be fighting against.

nor is the name Reds, of Big Red, necessarily a reference to Indians (illustrated by the Cincinnati Reds or major league baseball). In former times schools often had only school colors, not particular names or mascots, and they were called by their dominant color: the Maroons, the Reds, the Orangemen, etc.

Keeping your car cozy in the cold

Do you hear a chirping or screeching sound when you turn on your car heater? This noise, most prevalent in cold weather, usually comes from a worn bearing in the fan motor. It's an indication of pending failure.

This is just one of many parts we take for granted until, usually too late, we discover they were calling for attention. That's when the cold ride to work becomes misery.

Most of this discomfort and inconvenience can be avoided by being more aware of pending failure of a heating system component, says Car Care Council.

In addition to the fan or blower motor, other components of the system which may give warning signals of failure are as follows:

* The heater control valve, which may become sticky or totally inoperative. You're likely to notice stiffness in the panel control lever.

* The heater core, a miniature radiator which, like its big brother at the front of the engine, eventually may seep or leak.

Your first tip-off will be an accumulation of moisture inside the car, where even defrosters won't help.

* Heater and defroster duct hoses carry fresh air into the system and warmed air to locations beyond the heater core. When they're leaking, you'll lose heating/defrosting efficiency.

* Heater hoses are the smaller hoses in the cooling system that direct the hot coolant from the engine to the heater core. A leaking heater hose goes beyond simple discomfort and can ultimately leave you stranded on the side of the road.

Because of the safety aspects of driving comfort and clear vision, the heating/defroster system is a vitally important part of the vehicle, emphasizes the Council, and should be taken seriously when failure is indicated. Be alert to early warning signs such as inefficient heating or defrosting, unusual noises or smells. It's quicker, more convenient and usually less expensive to have these malfunctions taken care of while they are only minor problems.

Herbert Hoover appeared on an experimental telecast in 1927 when he was Secretary of Commerce.

Helen Look Memorial Fund creates legacy of service

The Helen Look Memorial Fund has helped finance numerous items for the City of Lowell and the Congregational Church.

The many worthwhile projects that have been undertaken and completed through the Look Fund since Helen Look Daley's death in 1985 have left the community a legacy of appreciation for a lady whose life was filled with service and care.

After Daley's death it was announced that the city and the First Congregational Church of Lowell were to be equal beneficiaries of her estate.

When the stocks willed to Lowell were sold, as a city is not permitted to have holding in private corporations, the $750,000 realized was used to buy Government National Mortgage Association bonds. It generates about $75,000 interest on an annual basis, according to "Bequests To The City of Lowell" as written by Elizabeth Coons.

By the terms of the estate, the fund is administered by a five-member committee consisting of two persons appointed by the Lowell City Council; one by the Congregational Church; Dr. Orval McKay or, if he should decline, another medical doctor appointed by the first three members; and a nurse or another professional person appointed by the first three members.

"It has become committee policy to put back into the principal of the fund 15 percent of the annual interest earnings," McKay said. McKay, who visited with Daley in Tucson, Ariz. prior to her death, added "I think Daley would have been happy with how the money has been used. She would have been really pleased with the contributions made to the emergency services. She was always interested in good medical help."

McKay continued, "Daley wanted the memorial to be for her parents and not herself." Daley was the daughter of Dexter G. Look, who came to Lowell at the age of 14 with his family from a Lapeer County farm. Married to Evelyn Rickert in 1885, Daley's father made a living as a druggist and opened his own store.

After her college training, the Looks' daughter went to Constantine, Michigan, where she taught kindergarten and first grade.

Some of the allocations made from the Look Memorial fund have been for:

* Repair of the King Milling Memorial Pool.

* Contribution to the Envelope of Life.

* Re-roofing and restoration of the soffit and fascia of the Graham Building.

* Eight new monitors for the Lowell Area Rescue Squad.

* Contribution to the Lowell Area Arts Council for the renovation of the building leased to them by King Milling Company for use as a community arts center.

* Micro-filming of over 100 years of back copies of the Lowell Journal and the Grand Valley and Lowell Ledgers.

* Anti-shock air pants and Jobst-Jet air splints for the Lowell Area Rescue Squad.

"The city has never touched the principal. That money is kept intact," McKay said. "The Look Fund Memorial committee may allocate money towards future projects including a new fire barn and a city center when that's started."

The bequest made to the Congregational Church has a committee of church members as overseers for the account. Some of the community projects in Lowell which the committee has supported over the years includes scholarships to area students, Access-6, Lowell Rescue, Lowell YMCA' summer day camp program, soccer and softball teams, and the Family Service Association's New Dawn program. The committee's contributions to the area's Domestic Crisis Center and the Salvation Army also provide help when needed by local citizens.

As Coons writes in the "Bequests To The City Of Lowell" book, many a worthwhile project has been undertaken and new vistas have been opened by the living legacy which Daley left to Lowell.

St. Mary's / St. Pat's are league champs

The St. Mary's and St. Patrick's combined seventh and eighth-grade basketball team finished the year at 5-1.

The 12-girl squad's record was good enough for first in the Diocesan League. The seventh and eighth-grade team placed second in the tournament following the regular season.

The coaches for this year's team were Pat Pullen and Rick Neureither. The two schools combined their teams since neither school had enough girls to form a team of their own.

Diocesan League champion members included Cortney Morse, Shannon Morse, Kelly Schanta, Paula Kivinen, Liz Arnold, Amy Pullen, Janel Neureither, Chris Lee, Emily Bryant, Erin Bryant, Andrea Richmond and Heather Herington.

Safety should be one of those precious gifts your household enjoys during the holidays and, of course, throughout the year.

For a hazard-free, accident-free happy household during the holidays, we've packaged five little safety reminders for you to place around your personal Christmas tree, so that you and your family will be assured of the added blessing of a safe holiday.

Use flame-proof decorations and spray your tree with a fire retardant mixture. Have a reliable fire extinguisher in your home. Know where it is and how to use it.

Keep your tree in water at all times, and keep it away from your fireplace, radiator and heater. Turn off all the lights when you leave home or go to bed.

Check your tree lights. Repair or throw away lights with frayed or exposed wires, loose connections or broken sockets. Look for the Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) label.

If you are planning to use your fireplace during the holidays, make sure to keep tree, decorations and gift wrappings away from it.

Don't let tree bulbs touch the needles or branches. Get rid of your tree when it dries out.

'Yule' have fun cutting your own tree

Soccer awards received
 Eric Fulkerson, left and Tom Cichon, right, were named to the All-Conference honorable mention soccer team. Cichon was also honored with team awards; top gun, most valuable player, most improved, returning.

As the Yuletide spirit spreads, many families find fun exploring for an ideal evergreen in rustic settings, AAA Michigan reports. AAA Michigan's 1988 Christmas Tree Guide, available free to members, lists 90 "cut your own" commercial nurseries and tree farms.

For those who prefer to leave their saws at home, 59 sites stock pre-cut trees. Holiday wreaths and other trimming are also displayed for sale at most places.

Besides the fun of searching for and chopping down one's own Christmas tree, many farms offer other diversions such as sleigh, train and haywagon rides, snack stands, and a chat with Santa Claus for tiny tots.

Growers estimate that more than 700,000 evergreens will end up in Michigan homes this holiday season. One of those trees, a majestic 50-foot balsam fir, will be sent from the Manistee National Forest to Washington, D.C., where it will decorate the U.S. Capitol. The tree was cut and delivered during a Nov. 26 send-off ceremony that was held at the park, located just west of Cadillac.

Experts note that last summer's long drought did not damage most of the crop except for some scattered areas of the Lower Peninsula's southwest region, where sandy soil did not retain enough moisture.

Consumers can expect to pay about the same as last year, with trees averaging $2.50 per foot but ranging from a low of $1.50 to a high of $4, according to a AAA Michigan survey of the state's major tree growers.

Among the most popular trees this year are: Scotch Pine $12 to $30; Douglas Fir $15-$35; Fraser Fir $20-$40; Blue Spruce $15-$40 and White Pine $15-$30.

AAA Michigan's Christmas Tree Guide also lists 17 Snow-fresh farms (members of the Michigan Christmas Tree Association). These member farms have high tree maintenance standards, including soil management, disease protection and continual trimming and shaping.

AAA Michigan offers the following cutting and safety tips:

When soup or stock recipes call for a bouquet garni, save time and trouble by putting the spices in a tea bag instead of making a cheesecloth bag.

Michigan ski facilities to offer free lessons

For the second year in a row, learning to ski in Michigan is free, if you are willing to wait for the right day.

Participating Michigan ski facilities will offer free beginner ski lessons and free beginner-area lift and trail tickets to anyone who signs up in advance for the special Learn to Ski Free Day, Friday, Jan. 20, 1989.

Called "Let's Go Skiing, Michigan!" it is a part of the national "Let's Go Skiing, America" program. It is designed to encourage non-skiers to spend a free day learning the skills needed to enjoy the sport. Free beginner downhill and cross-country lessons will be offered at more than 50 participating facilities that day. More downhill and cross-country facilities are signing up for the program every day, said Michigan Travel Bureau Director John Savich.

"Last year, when 42 downhill facilities took part in the program, more than 8,000 novices learned to ski in Michigan—compared with a nationwide total of 24,000," he said. "In other words, Michigan attracted one-third of the first-time skiers in the nation that day."

In addition to free beginner lessons, lift tickets, and cross-country trail passes, many facilities will also provide free use of rental equipment.

Prospective skiers must call the facility of their choice before Jan. 20 to make reservations. Because many facilities will be making reservations on a first-come, first-served basis, reservations should be made as early as possible.

A brochure explaining the "Let's Go Skiing, Michigan!" program and listing the participating resorts and facilities is available from the Michigan Travel Bureau.

To request a copy of the brochure call the Michigan Travel Bureau at 1-800-5432-YES. The hearing impaired can call the TDD (Michigan only) at 1-800-722-8191.

Cannonsburg Ski Area is participating in this Ski Free Day, from the Grand Rapids area.

Take a trip in time with the Museum's Blandford Nature Center as they celebrate "Christmas in the Cabin," Dec. 3 from noon to 4 p.m. The Nature Center's Robinson-Kuhtic log cabin will be decorated for a simple but cozy pioneer Christmas, complete with a trimmed tree, carefully hung stockings and dinner on the table.

The atmosphere will truly ring of the holiday season as the Museum's calliope will be on hand to fill the air with favorite Christmas carols.

In addition, Julie Sarge from Congress Park Montessori School will be on hand with 1st through 3rd grade students to make apple-head dolls and hand-sew costumes for them. Visitors can also stroll through the newly

Charlton Park celebrates Christmas spirit

Celebrate the spirit... "Of Christmas Past" at historical Charlton Park Village & Museum. Experience Christmas as it was nearly 100 years ago when the family decorated the tree with handmade ornaments and popcorn and cranberries that they had strung.

On Dec. 3-4 and again on Dec. 10-11, visitors will be able to participate directly in this look at another era by "hands-on" activities such as candle making, stenciling cards, making homemade gift wrap and weaving. The holiday activities begin at noon and end at 5 p.m. each afternoon, with admission $3 for adults, children 5-15 years old are 50 cents. Homemade cookies warm from the woodstove, coffee and hot chocolate will be served in the town's residences.

Youngsters of all ages can visit with St. Nick or join the carolers in the village streets. Many crafts people will be demonstrating their crafts and selling their wares, such as quilting, oil painting, chair caning, Victorian angels and quilting. The Charlton Park Museum gift shop will be offering ornaments, stocking stuffers, books and country store candy.

The Thornapple Valley Dalcimer Society will provide entertainment in the village church.

For more information call (616) 945-3775. Historic Charlton Park Village & Museum is located just north of M-79 between Hastings and Nashville. Charlton Park is a not-for-profit educational institution.

Sr. citizens beware!

Consumers Power Company is alerting senior citizen and low income customers that they can sign up for the Winter Protection Plan, which reduces electric and natural gas bills during the coming months of high energy demand. Under the plan, actual costs are then paid during the remainder of the year when energy demand is lower.

The Winter Protection Plan assures participants of continued heat and electricity service during December, January, February and March. The program is administered by Consumers Power and was initiated by the Michigan Public Service Commission in 1981.

Senior citizens, age 65 and older, and low-income customers on the plan make monthly payments in the winter equal to a portion of their actual bill, plus a partial payment of any outstanding energy bill debt, in exchange for protection from electric or gas service shutoff. The balance of the payment is made up during the remainder of the year.

It makes sense to see more than one of Europe's beautiful, memorable countries. Such a plan is more affordable and attractive these days, because Eurailpass is now offering Eurail Flexipass—a ticket that provides travelers nine days of rail travel which can be used consecutively in any of 16 countries within one 21-day period. The popular 15-day Eurail Saverpass for two or more people traveling together off-season (three or more year-round) and Youthpass, for those under 26 years old, are also very affordable.

Land family adopts three Korean siblings

A pinch of logistics, a pinch of culture, a dash of a whole lot of caring, some shaking and nurturing and shazam! You have a Lowell family that has adapted to the change real well.

Pete and Deb Land were the parents of Joel Land, an adopted four-year-old Korean boy, when they went to a meeting with their caseworker at Bethany International to discuss the prospect of adopting a sister for Joel.

By the time they left, Lands had not only discussed the prospects of adopting Joel a sister, but had also agreed to adopt her two brothers.

"Adopting agencies don't like to split up sibling groups, and Pete was very receptive to the sibling adoption idea," Deb Land said. Both spouses (Pete and Deb) come from families of five and six respectively and wanted to create that type of family atmosphere.

"My family's first response was - Are the both of you crazy?" muses Land. "Both sides of the family have helped a lot and have been receptive to the children."

The three new family members (Cory, 10; Eric, 8; and Trevor, 6) joined the Lands on Oct. 14.

None of the children spoke English, but then none of the Lands spoke Korean. "We have a mini dictionary that translates words," Land said. "Pete also has two Korean friends who attend Calvin College and have helped with our communications. Pantomime was used a lot after their arrival."

Land adds that the three new children have adapted quickly to the culture change and seem to be picking up the English language. "They've made new friends at school and are coming home with new words they've learned every day."

After all the paper work was done, the three children had the final decision on whether or not wanted to leave the orphanage home in Korea to live with the Land family in Lowell, Michigan.

"Those types of choices are tough for children to make, along with being disruptive to their lifestyle," Land said.

Land noted though that Bethany International has been helpful in the cultural area, providing cultural events such as picnics and dances for families to attend.

Providing Korean dinners for the new family members is one gesture the Lands have offered in an attempt to help smooth the change.

"Their first couple days here in Lowell all they would eat was rice and Kimchi (sour cabbage)," Land said. "Now they are much more willing to taste new foods."

Land has also made a big adjustment in the kitchen. "I was use to cooking in pots and pans and casseroles for three, now I'm preparing for six people."

Joel Land, one of four Korean children Pete and Deb Land have adopted, gives his best pose for the camera.

Like many people who look into adoption find out, it is much easier and quicker to adopt internationally than domestic. "Domestically it would have taken 5-8 years to adopt a child. To get Joel it took one year, and to adopt Cory, Eric and Trevor it took six months," Land said. She chuckles, "Pete said he did not want to wait until he was 50 to raise children."

The Lands also looked into adopting other foreign children (India and South American countries), but Land said the agencies in those countries were not as well established.

"We'd do it all again. It's been very rewarding and has gone very smoothly," Land said. "I'd even like another little girl someday."
