Millage Passes!

Largest school district voting turnout saves student services

With the largest school district voting turnout in history, the Lowell "school community" voted "yes" by a persuasive margin for a 2.9 mill increase for 1989-90 and a .3 mill increase in 1990-91, raising the mill increase to 3.2.

While school officials were elated with the election results, they were also thankful for the interest all 2,854 school community voters showed. "I believe the "no" vote clearly states a need for meaningful property tax relief to lessen the burden that falls on many of our neighbors," Lowell Superintendent Fritz Esch said.

School officials stress and encourage the school community to write to their governor and legislators to enact school finance reform without further delay.

People may write to the following addresses: * Governor James Blanchard, C/O Executive Office, Lansing MI 48909; State Senator Richard Posthumus, 804 Farnum Building, Lansing, MI 48909; or State Representative Victor Krause, 319 1/2 Capitol Building, Lansing, MI 48909.

Lowell Principal Dick Korb said that the success of the millage election in large can be attributed to making the issues very clear. "Neighbors were brought face to face with the facts, and then given time to digest and judge the facts," he said. "It was an informed electorate who knew about the issues."

| | Lowell | Bowne | Vergennes | Absentee | Total |
|-------|--------|-------|-----------|----------|-------|
| Yes | 870 | 148 | 560 | 65 | 1,643 |
| No | 519 | 185 | 447 | 50 | 1,201 |
| Total | 1,389 | 333 | 1,007 | 115 | 2,854 |

The Lowell School community approved the increased millage by a margin of 442 votes. Above, the voting results are broken down by precinct.

Korb said the school would like to keep the "Neighbors Who Care" committee intact. "We are very happy with the school community's effort and involvement," he said. Both Korb and Esch pointed to the roughly 55 coffees that were held during the campaign. These coffees were used to discuss issues and answer questions concerning the millage.

The final vote tally was 1,643 "yes" votes and 1,201 "no" votes. The three precincts broke down this way: The Lowell precinct garnered 1,389 votes. There were 870 people who voted yes and 519 who voted no. The Bowne precinct had 333 voters, 148 voted yes and 185 voted no. At the Vergennes precinct 1,007 people turned out to vote, with 560 tallying yes and 447 voting no. There were 115 absentee voters, 65 voting yes and 50 voting no. Breaking it down into percentages the voting showed 58 percent of the 2,854 voters said yes and 42 percent said no to the millage increase.

The millage results mean that the 2.9 mill increase goes into effect in July. The $260,000 worth of cuts made after the first millage election will remain intact through the remainder of this school year.

"Nothing will be put back into the budget that was not planned," Esch said. "Neighbors Who Care" Chairman Ray Quada said he was pleased with the outcome of the election because the additional millage will restore and help maintain a number of vital student services. "I am also pleased that we are sending a message to all of Western Michigan that Lowell is a community that cares about its schools and its school aged youngsters," he said.

The millage results mean that the 2.9 mill increase goes into effect in July. The $260,000 worth of cuts made after the first millage election will remain intact through the remainder of this school year.

M-21 road construction underway

The state started a $906,000 road construction project on a five-mile stretch of M-21 on Monday, March 27. The project is expected to be finished in August.

Michigan's Department of Transportation (MDOT) announced the start of a $906,704 M-21 street repair project.

The work will take place on a five-mile stretch of M-21, from east of the west county line to west of Hawley Road in the Village of Saranac (Ionia County).

M-21 traffic will be slowed by intermittent, daytime lane closures beginning today (Wednesday, March 22). The work includes resurfacing, culvert extensions, guardrail upgrading and tree removal.

The project is scheduled for completion by August 11, however, Bonnie Cadaret, from the MDOT office in Greenville, said with the early start the work could be completed before the target date.

Motorists are advised to observe the 45 miles-per-hour speed limit in construction zones.

Library presents "Dinosaur Tales"

They're mighty, colossal, exciting, exotic, and a source of endless fascination for young children. They're the dinosaurs, and interest in them has reached "mammoth" proportions in recent years.

The Kent County Library System is presenting a program sure to mesmerize any small dinosaur-lover aged three to six. "Dinosaur Tales" transforms the world of prehistoric animals into a multi-media event, with stories, poems, puppetry, film, music and creative dramatics.

The Children's Services department has purchased many new and irresistible books on dinosaurs, and they'll all be on display at the branches and ready for kids to check them out. Children will also receive free dinosaur finger puppets, so they can create their own prehistoric dramas at home.

"Dinosaur Tales" is for pre-schoolers ages three to six.

Adults are welcome, but children under three are discouraged from attending the program. Groups must pre-register.

"Dinosaur Tales" will be offered at the Lowell branch of the library, 325 W. Main, Lowell, on Wednesday, April 12 at 1:30 p.m. and at the Alto Branch, 6059 Linfield, Alto at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, April 20.

Any questions please call 774-3253 or your local library branch.

Several people have asked me when I'm going to put a new picture of myself back at the top of this column. You may remember the promise I made back when I wrote about my latest weight loss effort. I said something to the effect that when I dropped a couple of chins I'd have a new picture taken and put it at the head of my column. Well, I'm not there yet, but I'm gaining on it. Or, I should say, I'm losing on it.

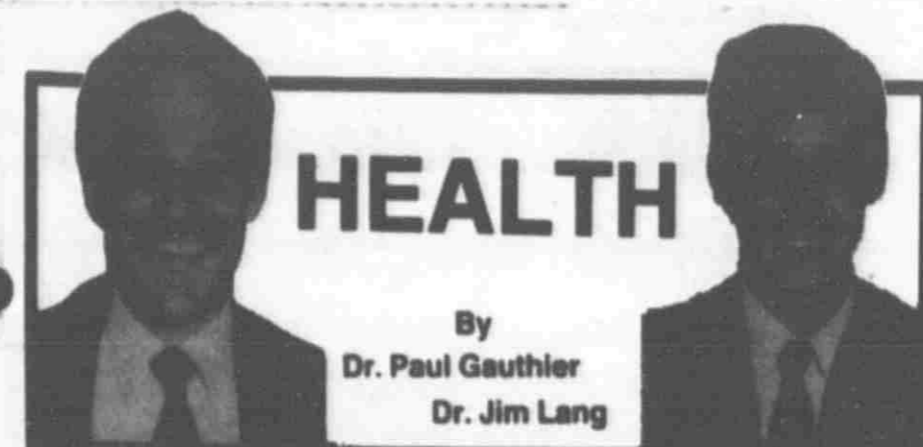

To refresh your memory, on the Tuesday after Labor Day, I tipped the scales at an all time high, Pillsbury Doughboy weight of 264 pounds. This morning I tipped the same scales at a couple of carrots sticks over 226. That's about 38 pounds, and that's just two pounds shy of those 40 pound bags of dog food I struggle with every month or so. Imagine carrying around a forty pound bag of dog food all the time, then all of a sudden somebody told you to set it down. That's how I feel lately.

To answer the question of when my picture will again appear at the top of this column, all I can say is, don't hold your breath! Weight Watchers say I have to be below 189 pounds to be within the specified weight range for my height. And, that's on their scales, at the noon weigh-in, when I've had a chance to bloat up on coffee and have my clothes on. I usually weigh-in five or six pounds heavier at the meeting than I do on my scales first thing in the morning. Someday I'm going to show up at the meeting all sweaty from an hour long ride on my Schwinn Airdyne, strip down to my birthday suit, and prove to the Weight Watchers lecturer that I really do weigh five or six pounds less than she says I do!

So, that means I have to get down to about 184 pounds, or another 38 pounds. It has taken me seven months to drop the first 38. If I can continue to lose at this rate, I should be at my goal somewhere around the Fourth of July. But, that's a big "if", because the pounds seem to be coming off a lot harder these days, and I haven't weighed 183 pounds since the third grade. Like I said, don't hold your breath.

There are some problems associated with serious weight loss that I hadn't anticipated. One is clothes. About the only things in my wardrobe that still fit are my shoes, socks and ties. I know it's getting warmer, but it just wouldn't do for a businessman to be running around in just his shoes, socks and tie. Oh well, I am in real need of new clothes for spring anyway, I just don't know whether to buy stuff for where I am now, or where I hope to be by the middle of summer. The local clothier is really tickled about all this. Now I can be fitted in his store, and no longer have to travel to Omar's Shop for the Grotesque. Besides that, he can sell me a new wardrobe every few months.

Weight Watchers has been a big help in my success, but I'm not nearly as faithful to their program as I should be. My only saving grace has been the love affair I'm having with my Schwinn Airdyne. I'll tell you about it next week. Until then it's, "pass the carrot sticks, and please keep the Girl Scout cookies away from me!"

HEALTH

URTICARIA (HIVES)

Urticaria (hives) is a condition which manifests itself as a transient well circumscribed skin eruption that is usually, but not always, intensely itchy. These eruptions may be very localized (ie: only extremities) or may be widespread. Hives are a very common disorder, and it is estimated that 20 percent of the general population experience at least one episode of hives during their lifetime. It occurs more frequently in young women regardless of the cause.

Hives generally begin as red blotchy lesions with a pale center and usually occur in large numbers. Sometimes the patient's history will explain the hives, but in many instances the cause can never be exactly ascertained. The most common identifiable causes of hives are:

1. Drug reactions
2. Infections (bacterial, viral fungal or parasitic)
3. Foods (especially eggs, milk, wheat, corn, pork, shellfish, nuts)
4. Inhaled allergies (pollen, animal danders)
5. Insect allergy
6. Physical factors (cold, heat, pressure exercise)
7. Psychological factors (anxiety, fear, anger)
8. Occult malignancy (rare)

Once the diagnosis is made, treatment is aimed at reducing the itch, swelling and discomfort of the urticarial lesions. Antihistamines are usually the most effective oral agent in the management of hives. Application of cool compresses may lessen the itch and help with swelling. Occasionally, epinephrine needs to be given in injectable form to reduce the swelling. If the hives persist in spite of the aforementioned measures, sometimes Cortisone is given in oral or injectable form.

Hives remain a rather nebulous entity. Identifying the cause remains difficult in many cases, but realistically it is of utmost importance in attempting to avoid further urticarial reactions.

David, Michael, Steven and Daniel Rottier are happy to announce the arrival of their new baby sister, Kathryn Elizabeth Rottier. She was born at Butterworth Hospital March 14, 1989 at 9:40 p.m. She weighed 7 lbs. 6 ozs. and was 20 inches long. Proud parents are Robert and Mary Rottier of Lowell. Grandparents are Emerson and Betty Smith of Lowell, and Louis and Wilma Rottier of Alto. Great-grandparents are Francis and Mary Smith of Lowell, Iris McClure of Alto, and Elizabeth Baker of Grand Rapids.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
As chairperson of "Neighbors Who Care" I had the pleasure of working with many of the fine residents of the Lowell School District, who demonstrated that they care about the community, the schools and especially our school-aged youngsters.

appreciation to Peter and Ginny Gustafson, Robert Pfaller and Betty Yeiter for their hard work, persistence and dedication to the Lowell community and to those individuals who opened their homes, their hearts and their minds to help us deliver our message to their neighbors and friends.

Finally, I extend my deepest appreciation and respect to those voters who came to the polls and voted on March 21. Whether you voted "for" or "against" the millage, you demonstrated that you truly "care" by taking the time to vote.

In a millage election we can only hope that the children are the winners, because the consequences of such an election are increased taxes and nobody, not even those who vote "yes" enjoy more taxes.

I hope that no matter which side of the millage issue you

Under the authority of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925, as amended, being sections 300.1 to 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its February 10, 1989, meeting, ordered that for a period of four years:

This order shall take effect on April 1, 1989, and shall remain effective through March 31, 1993.

O-K White boosters share ideas & goals

The charge of the first ever O-K White joint athletic boosters organizations was to discuss organizational structures and share ultimate goals and ideas in working with the young people of their communities.

While the specific content of the meeting may not be of interest to all, the joint cooperative effort in an attempt to improve the understanding of each other is a novel idea and one which shall be continued for at least one more year.

"It was a well organized informative meeting," Northview Athletic Booster President Dick Nowicki said. "It showed the different ways booster clubs raised money and the different way the money is spent."

The meeting was hosted by the Lowell Area Schools Athletic Boosters Club in the Board offices of the Lowell Area Schools.

Organizational philosophies discussed included advantages and disadvantages of one booster organization versus fragmented organizations for each sport; and the tax-exempt status for organizations.

Lowell Attorney Steve Idema discussed the importance of obtaining tax exempt status in order to assure members who make donations that such donations will be tax deductible. Idema indicated that in order to qualify for tax exempt status that several qualifications should be met. He indicated that a club doesn't necessarily have to have an attorney, but would need an accountant. "It is necessary to keep good records and that money is spent according to purpose stated in bylaws or constitution."

"We share a common purpose of helping to prepare our young people to be mature, successful adults through the medium of interscholastic athletic competition," Lowell Area Schools Athletic Boosters Club President Fred Lenger said. "To this end, it occurred to me that we might all be more effective in our endeavors if we had the opportunity to share common areas of concern with each other."

Attending the meeting were Dave Mehney and Al Dial from East Grand Rapids; John Morgan and Jon Slagh from Forest Hills

Central; Tom Braun, Don Wilson and Ross Bainbridge from Wyoming Park; Marcia Plugge, Dennis Wolters and Susan Lathem from Sparta; Dick Nowicki and Frank Palazewski from Northview; and Lenger, Susan Burt, Paula Lenger, Peggy Idema, Sandy Nagy, John Stencel, Virginia Stencel, Gary Kemp and Dick Korb from Lowell.

Wyoming Rogers did not send a representative, and Zeeland High School does not have a boosters club.

"This meeting gave us an opportunity to know people as people and not as an opponent," Lenger said.

Lowell is considered fortunate by Rogers, Wyoming Park, Forest Hills Northern Northview and Forest Hills Central because it has one school board responsible for its school. Rogers and Park share the same school board as does Northern and Central. "Those schools consider us fortunate because we don't have to compete for funds."

Lowell is a beneficiary of its community being in and of itself.

"The people have a specific interest here in the Lowell community," Lenger said. "We always thought Rogers had it nice with all those businesses along 28th Street, but it's the reverse. Despite being in that location many of those businesses don't necessarily have a specific interest in the Rogers athletic program."

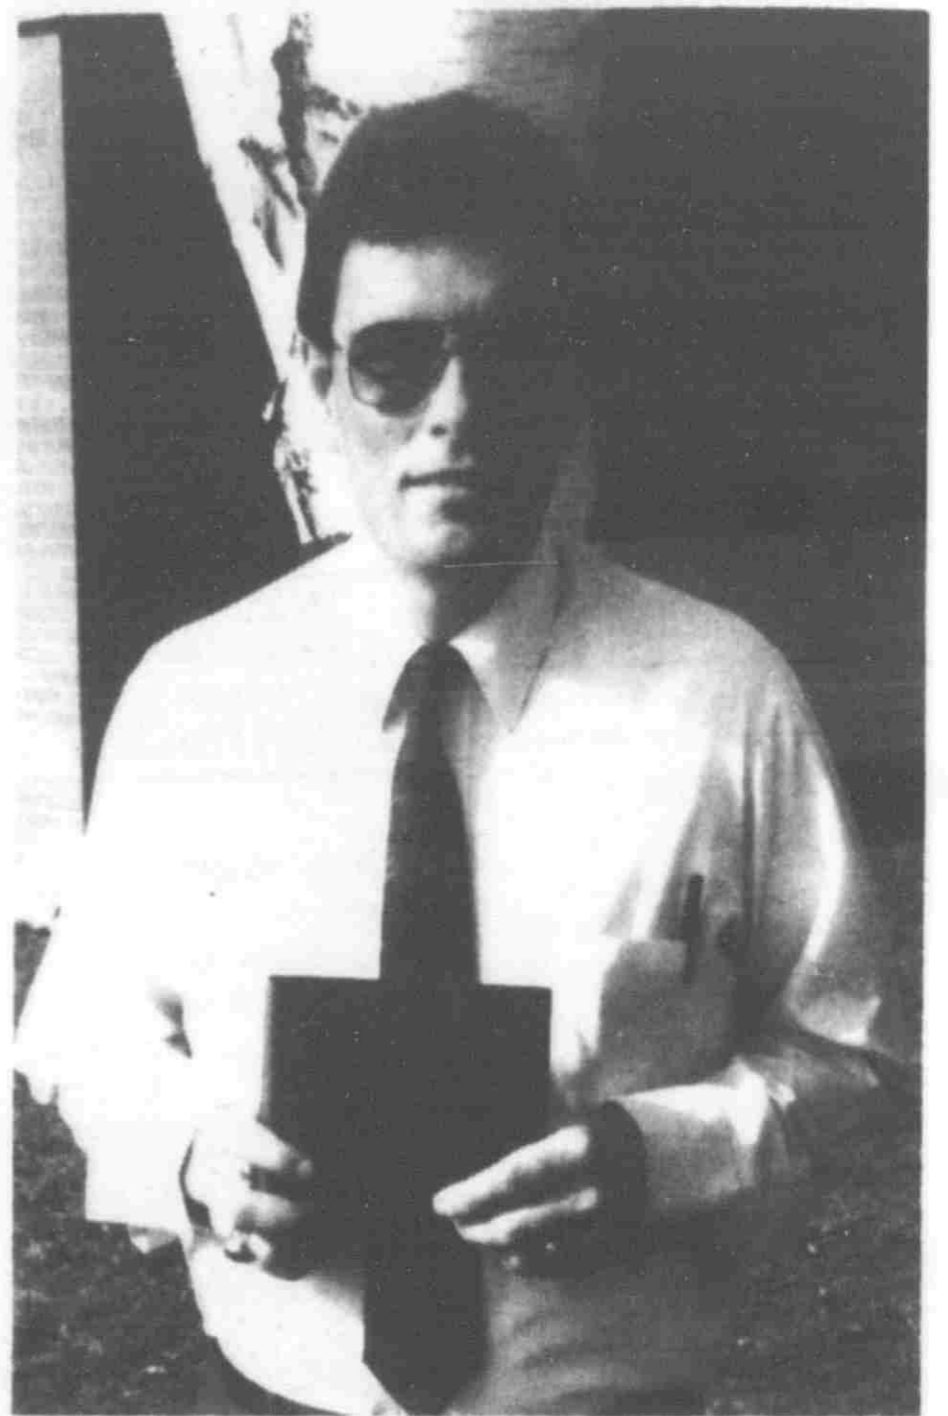

Lenger added that the clubs found out that they have more in common than not in common.

"A meeting like this is good for the conference. I think it can be beneficial in many ways," East Grand Rapids Athletic Boosters Club President Al Dial said.

Ironically, this idea of a joint boosters meeting came about the same time Dave Kniola, Lowell Student Council President, initiated a school student council exchange program.

"There is definitely a positive interest for another meeting next year," Lenger said "Wyoming Park officials said they would be interested in hosting the meeting."

Korb added, "This is an excellent precedent setter and I'd like to see it continue."

Lowell's Pete Siler was honored as the Outstanding Agriculture Education Instructor of Michigan for 1989.

Siler honored as Ag Teacher of the Year

At Michigan State University on March 22, Lowell High School Agricultural Education Instructor, Pete Siler was honored as Outstanding Agriculture Education Instructor of Michigan for 1989.

This award was given by the Michigan Association of Teachers of Vocational Agriculture to six teachers during the recent annual State FFA Convention.

Nationally there are over 10,000 teachers of vocational agriculture, of which only a select few receive recognition of this nature.

This award is given to those individuals that have demonstrated leadership through the activities of their programs, students and personal efforts to better the lives of American youth. It is a vital role that only a select few have chosen to take as their career.

The list of activities is endless but a few examples are: student participation in contests, taking part in local, state and national programs, and attending conferences and workshops to improve skills and abilities.

The MATVA is proud to announce the 1989 winner of the Outstanding Agriculture Instructor award. The future of today's youth looks much brighter because of the efforts of dedicated instructors like Siler.
