GOVERNMENT COMMODITIES TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Government Surplus Commodities will be distributed to all qualified persons on Thursday, July 27 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Lowell Moose Lodge at 210 1/2 E. Main St., Lowell.

Commodities available are butter, flour, canned pork, vegetarian canned beans, honey and peanut butter.

"PERSON OF THE YEAR" NOMINATIONS NOW BEING ACCEPTED

Nominations for Lowell's next "Person of the Year" are now being accepted.

Send your nomination to the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 56, Lowell, Michigan 49331 by August 5, 1989.

The "Person of the Year" dinner is scheduled for September 7, so get your nomination in now.

FREE SWIMS! FREE SWIMS! FREE SWIMS!

The Lowell Lions Club is sponsoring free swims for all age groups, Monday through Friday from 4:15 - 5:15 through the months of July and August.

So, come on down to the King Memorial Pool and enjoy a free swim on the Lions Club.

LOWELL LIBRARY OFFERS "FOLLOW THAT STAR"

The Lowell Library will present a special program to youngsters 6 - 12 years of age. "Follow That Star" focuses on the stars and constellations.

Storytellers, Mary Johnson and Pamela VanderPloeg will entertain with tales of the Great Bear, the Milky Way and the Pleiades.

The program is free and lasts for one hour and each child will receive a mini star-show kit to take home.

"Follow That Star" will be offered at the Lowell Library, 325 W. Main St. on July 24 at 11 a.m.

The library is also offering 3-2-1 Blast-off, a story-telling program for little children, ages 3-6. 3-2-1 Blast-off will be offered at the Lowell Library on July 31 at 11 a.m.

COME VISIT THE FALLASBURG SCHOOLHOUSE

Come show the kids (or grandkids) a replica of the country school classroom you fidgeted in back in the old days.

The hand pump in the front yard still works if you need a drink, and the little house out back is a modern version of the long-ago two little houses out back.

Inside, see a realistic model of an 1860's village, go on to sadirons, bonecrusher, cobbler's bench, straight razor, coppertoe boots, and finish with tables of reasonably priced souvenirs, crafts and rummage.

All this is in the Fallasburg Schoolhouse Museum, across the Covered Bridge from Fallasburg Park. It is open from 1-5 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from May to October. Admission is free.

FINE ARTS DAY CAMP COMING SOON!

The Lowell Area Arts Council will offer Fine Arts Day Camp to children having completed grades two through six.

The program will be held at the Center, 149 S. Hudson and will run Monday, July 31 through Friday, August 4 from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily.

Each child will have the opportunity to participate in painting, drama, music, drawing and dance. Fee for this workshop is $5 per day or $20 for the entire week.

Phone the Arts Center at 897-8545 to register or for further information.

ALTO LIBRARY OFFERS SPACE ACTIVITIES

The Alto Library is offering a summer series of space-related activities and events.

Youngsters ages 6 - 12 will be treated to a very special program celebrating the 20th anniversary of the first moon walk. The program entitled "Moonstruck", will feature a puppet performance of James Thurber's, "Many Moons" and fun-filled facts about the

Korb resigns as LHS principal to fill SCSD void

Lowell Area Schools Superintendent Fritz Esch announced the appointment of Richard Korb to the position of LCTK Consortium and School Community Services Director, pending the approval by the Lowell School Board on Aug 14.

Korb will replace Linda Zaczek, who recently resigned to move to the Chicago, Illinois area. He has been Lowell High School's Principal for the past six years. Prior to that, Korb also served six years as the Assistant High School Principal.

Korb's central office appointment came in conjunction with the appointment of Jim DeWeerd as the acting Lowell High School Principal. DeWeerd has served as the Assistant High School Principal for the past six years and seems the logical choice to replace Korb.

Legalities are all that are in the way of making that announcement official. "The school must post the opening and take applications," Esch said. While Esch did not say the position is DeWeerd's, he did say it is the most logical choice.

Korb, who has been in education for 20 years, holds a Masters Degree in Educational Leadership from Western Michigan University and is nearing completion on his specialist degree.

"I'm tremendously excited about the new challenge and opportunity and look forward to being able to continue to serve students, teachers, support staff, and parents of the Lowell School Community," Korb says.

His new position of LCTK Consortium and School Community Services Director will be expanded. The job, while held by Zaczek, was 45 weeks long. It will be increased to 52 weeks so that Korb can work with Assistant Superintendent Gary Kemp on some personnel duties. The job description will also include work with the local school community citizen groups; serving as an information liaison to the community at large; assisting with bargaining; and child accounting.

"The new position gives me an opportunity to explore another phase of education. It will allow me to work within the scope of what's current and the present," Korb said.

There is a large gap in salaries between that of Lowell High School Principal and Lowell LCTK Consortium and School Community Services Director. The contractual arrangement will be worked out and then brought before the board at the August meeting. Currently, the salary for high school principal is at $57,264 for 52 weeks and the salary for the Community Education position is at $45,823. However, that is based on 45 work weeks. While looking forward to the new challenge, Korb will leave behind the day-to-day contact with students and staff. "I'm sure I'll miss this the most. Over the years I have had opportunities to move away from the Lowell area, but my decision to stay has always come back to my fondness for Lowell students and staff. I think they are the best in the West Michigan Area," Korb says.

The Western Michigan graduate sees the change as a continuance of high school and as a natural follow-up to high school education.

The change will not only provide a natural continuance for Korb,

Jim DeWeerd will now be answering his office phone as acting Lowell High School principal. However, it is expected that DeWeerd will be named as the new High School principal prior to the start of the school year.

KEC enlarges EI program

It was ascertained at the July Lowell School Board meeting that portable units will be constructed at the Kent Education Center to help alleviate the emotionally impaired placement problem Lowell encountered during the 1988-89 school year.

The two portable units at the Kent Education Center and the four units that will be placed just south of the Kent Occupational High School outweighed the alternatives that were looked into, according to Gene Thurber, Director of Special Education for the Kent Intermediate School District.

The number of units built was based on the referrals. "There will be no more than 10 students in each classroom with a teacher and an aide. In some cases there will be a teacher and two aides. These portables are expected to help alleviate the waiting lists that exist at a number of schools.

The units will be leased for not more than two years. During this period a study will be completed for a facility to meet the placement needs of the center. The study is scheduled to be completed by September with the recommendation brought forth by spring. "By then we hope to know whether we need to buy or amend," Thurber said.

LITE & LISTEN SOUND - Music for all occasions. Make your reception or party a time to remember. Call Jerry and Alicia Despres at 897-4336.

The study is being completed by Stan-Fred, experts in project building needs, from Michigan State University. "We hope to use our own center program buildings," Thurber said.

Currently the students are divided into two groups - elementary, and middle school/high school. A third building would allow for the buildings to break down this way - elementary, middle school/junior high, and high school.

The cost for the portables will be covered by Act 18 which is a special education voted millage.

The problem surfaced for Lowell school officials this past year, when Director of Special Education and Bushnell Elementary Principal Bill Kirby announced that there were four students who needed the Kent Education Center program but who could not be placed because KEC did not have room for additional students.

This left Kirby and Lowell Schools in a dilemma. The state law says a school has to provide an educational program for all students. Lowell looked into the possibility of leasing the Grattan Elementary School for five years for education purposes however, according to Kirby it makes more sense and is easier to increase an already existing program than to put a new one together. "We would have been hard pressed to put one together," Kirby said.

It was no longer necessary to consider purchasing Grattan after the Kent Education Center announced it would increase its programming. "That made any move on our part not necessary," Kirby said.

For at least the next two years, placement at the Kent Education Center would seem to be copacetic.

Lowell student, Decator, injured in accident on Grand River Dr.

Dina Decator, 17, of Lowell was injured in an accident that occurred Sunday morning, July 16, on Grand River Drive.

Decator was traveling east on Grand River Drive between Bevell and Gulliford, when her dog jumped out the rear window of the vehicle, causing her to lose control and cross the center line.

She slid down an embankment and was pinned in her car for approximately thirty minutes before she was freed by rescuers from Lowell.

Decator was taken to Butterworth Hospital where she is listed in serious condition with a broken leg and internal injuries, according to a nursing supervisor. Fifty-year-old blue whales have been known to reach a length of 100 feet.

City Fathers decide on financial institution

At a special meeting of the Lowell City Council Monday night (July 17) the City Fathers considered four financial proposals for the construction of the fire station.

The decision did not take long, it basically came down to which of the four proposals offered the best interest rate.

Comerica out of Grand Rapids was chosen at 7.1 percent. Others that were considered were FMB State Savings Bank, 7.65 or 70 percent of the prime interest rate (a variable rate); financial institution Dougherty-Dawkins out of Minneapolis, 7.25; and Public System Exchange out of Phoenix at 8.19.

"Obviously our main concern in a matter like this is the interest rate," Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said. "The City was looking for the best rate over a five-year period."

Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him... (Job 13:15).

Many of us have visited the home of Mark Twain and have seen a replica of the fence Tom Sawyer once painted.

High board fences, though not as popular as they once were, are a provocation to the curious. If one cannot see through such a fence, and there are no peep holes available, it can be irritating.

There are many things in life we cannot "see through." Often we become irritated and upset because of this. We may not understand the actions of our friends, nor their attitudes. We may not understand why others do not return our gestures of kindness.

Letters to the Editor

Letter to Lowell Community

During the 1988-89 school year, the Lowell Area Schools Athletic Boosters continued to provide support to all interscholastic athletic programs at the Middle School and the High School. As a result of the millage defeat last fall, an additional $1,000 was provided to both levels to supplement funds reinstating interscholastic competition at the Middle School and tournaments at the High School.

A very active role was taken by the Boosters in the recent successful millage election.

During the past year funding was provided to send a student to an athletic trainers camp, to purchase pom-poms for cheerleaders, to pay Karyn Hazel for her services as a sports trainer, to purchase additional weights for the weight room and to purchase requested equipment for track, softball, soccer, hockey, wrestling, gymnastics, volleyball and boys' basketball.

Fund raisers for the past year included: the selling of seat cushions, Booster memberships, ads in the sports program, membership in the Sports Clubs, half the gross from the concession stands, and community service concession sales for Sidewalk Sale Days, H.O.O.P.S., and Showboat Talent Night.

In addition to involvement with fund raisers, the Boosters provided assistance with various sports banquets, workers for numerous tournaments and initiated a spring Meet The Team Night. The officers of the Lowell Boosters hosted a meeting with representatives from other Athletic Booster organizations in the O-K White Conference to share ideas and concerns.

As you can see, the Boosters have had a very active and rewarding year. We take great pride in our athletes and sports programs. Next year promises to be even more involved, as we have approached the School Board with concerns about the condition of existing facilities and the lack of a soccer field and track. We have committed ourselves to provide our athletes with support, facilities and equipment to help them achieve their full potential.

Your support at meetings, volunteering of your time and financial contributions are needed to continue the successful support of our sports programs.

Again this year, the Boosters are offering membership into

- $100 or more - Varsity Club
- $50 - Red Arrow Club
- $25 - White Club
- $10 - Red Club

Your membership into one of these clubs will help your Boosters Club to continue to maintain its excellent support of the school's athletic programs. In addition, membership into the Varsity Club entitles each donor a Family pass to two Lowell home sporting events (not including tournament competition).

Mail your contribution to Sandy Nagy. All gifts are tax deductible. Contributions must be received by August 14, 1989 in order to guarantee inspection in the Fall and Winter Sports Program.

For more information contact Fred Lenger at 897-5847 or Sue Burt at 897-7804.

Thank you for your support!

Dear Editor:

I have a concern with our young people of Lowell. It's been brought to my attention of the staggering number of teen pregnancies in our schools. The number shouldn't be taken lightly, (over 10 between the sophomore and senior grades).

The facts are this, "children are having children" and that scares me. Our young aren't being educated enough on the realities of life here. Yes, you've got a sex education class they take, I've taken the same class too. They taught me why my eyes are blue, why I'm short and why my hair is blond. But, I still left that class thinking you only got pregnant when you had sex during your menstrual cycle!! (Thank God I have an honest mother who set me straight on the facts). So wake up Lowell, you can't hide sex behind locked doors anymore!

Yes, you've hidden the unfortunate girls in the Congregational Church for them to finish up the rest of their schooling - but in turn segregating them from their schoolmates and in turn the pregnant mothers look special, lucky ("they don't have to be in this rotten school" says a student to me) and it doesn't look like being a pregnant teen is so bad after all. Believe me, they honestly feel everything will work out and they will have no problem with the care of the child ("The state pays everything!")

I'm not going to condemn the girls that become pregnant, I'm upset with our "sex education classes". Don't you realize that our children are not only becoming parents at the prime of their youth, but they're dying too.

With the AIDS scare, I'm shocked that we haven't got off our duffs and "revised" that class!! Please, people, let's give our young people a chance to have all the facts about sex and all the consequences that come with it.

PNEUMONIA

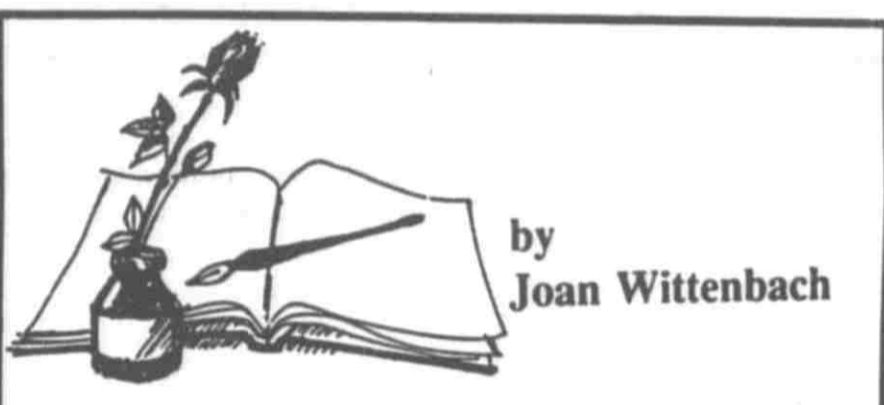

Pneumonia is an acute infection of the lung. Together with influenza, it ranks as the fifth leading cause of death in the United States. Pneumonia is the fourth leading cause of death in the elderly. While there are many different types of pneumonia, this disease can be generally described as an acute infection of one or both lungs. It can be caused by a bacteria or a virus; most frequently, however, it is due to the pneumococcus bacteria, hence its name.

Most cases of pneumonia are caused by bacteria or viruses; but other less common causes are sometimes seen: inhalation of toxic fumes may cause pneumonia. So can types of fungi and yeast. Generally speaking viral pneumonia is milder than the bacterial form of the disease.

The symptoms of pneumonia are generally the same, regardless of the cause. The affected individual usually comes down with fever (sometimes high), chills, chest pain when coughing, difficulty in breathing, and productive cough. Sometimes the sputum produced may be blood tinged. The diagnosis of pneumonia is made after a microscopic examination and culture of the sputum.

Most pneumonias can be effectively treated on an out-patient basis. Appropriate antibiotic therapy and adequate hydration are the mainstays of therapy. A cough suppressant may be added as well. Hospitalization is usually reserved for the very young and elderly, depending on the type and severity of the infection. Lung patients, cancer patients, or other individuals with any compromised immunity also are good candidates for hospital admission.

Fortunately, with the advent of excellent antimicrobial therapy and the ready availability of x-ray, pneumonia is no longer the life threatening ailment it was in the past.

Synopsis:
"Aunt Sudie needs to see us and there is a duty in loving someone." That was the drumbeat in my mother's heart as we boarded a train on a sultry August day for the town of Manchester, Ohio, in 1947. My mother's elderly aunt lived there and not only was she waiting for us -- so was her famous ritual.

There was a ritual that Aunt Sudie and my mother loved. I could time it for about forty minutes after our arrival. We washed our face and hands, had a cold drink, took off our shoes and it began. Sudie Mae disappeared into her bedroom through a cloth-covered doorway of a closet. "Want to see my new dresses, girls?" We waited, smiled at each other, understanding that this was Aunt Sudie's time. Out of the bedroom closet she would come. Eyes twinkling, grinning her long, toothless smile, looking for approval.

For the next hour, as tired and hot as we were, we watched Aunt Sudie move in and out of the material-covered doorway. "Ain't this pretty, girls," she'd beam with excitement, "this is the dress you sent me at Christmas." Once more, she would disappear into the closet and as if by magic to our tired, blurry eyes, out she would come - a new woman, in a different outfit. Sometimes a hat topped her sweaty head and she would dab her forehead with a dainty handkerchief. I can still see her standing there -- short and pear-shaped with a mass of white, angel-like hair tipping off her happy smile. Aunt Sudie was always neat, always clean and never quite satisfied with anything.

It seemed we sat for hours watching Aunt Sudie's style show. For my mother, it was love -- it was duty. For me, it was a pain.

Sudie Mae had been a widow for many years. She and her husband were childless. When her older brother's wife died of scarlet fever and left four small children, she took them into her home for several years. My mother, Helen, was one of those children. By the time her brother remarried and took the children with him, the stamp of mother-love had made its impression on Sudie's heart.

Gerkin finds happiness in Christ & Lowell

First Baptist Church of Lowell Pastor, Joe Gerkin, right stands with Associate Pastor Dan Nave, left. Nave joined the church staff in April and Gerkin became Pastor in March of '88.

If you ever had a chance to play with a train set as a youth, you are well aware of how easy it was to derail the train and how much more difficult it was to align the wheels back onto the track. For most, aligning the wheels onto the track meant lying on the floor and twisting your neck into position so that you could see what you were doing.

While not much thought was given to the process, within that process was a valuable lesson. One that we encounter many times growing up. It is easy to get derailed from life's paths and goals, but those who find happiness and success manage to get back on track.

That can be said of First Baptist Church of Lowell Pastor Joe Gerkin and the church's Associate Pastor, Dan Nave. They were both derailed from their life's paths as youth. They were both untraced when they found the message of the scripture relevant to their needs.

"As a youngster, the plans I made to play football and/or baseball after school didn't come about, due to a hand injury," Gerkin said. "Now that doesn't sound devastating, but then it was my life."

Through a youth pastor at his family's church, Gerkin heard a message that tugged at his heart, that met his needs, that helped bring him to church ministry.

"I, like Joe (Gerkin), was rebellious as a youngster and through a long set of circumstances learned that although I liked my job (electrician) true happiness wasn't possible until I accepted Christ into my life," Nave said.

Four years ago Nave came to the First Baptist Church of Lowell from Mishawaka, IN and then in April joined the staff.

Gerkin worked in St. Louis Missouri at the Faith Baptist Church from 1974 through 1984. He moved into the Grand Rapids area in '84 as Pastor of the Good News Baptist Church for two years prior to becoming a mid-west representative for Trans World Radio, a mission organization that preached the gospel by way of radio wave.

He arrived on the Lowell scene in March of '88. "The transition was much tougher for the kids than for me," Gerkin said. However, with the help of athletics, his children were able to make a smooth change. For Gerkin, a family man, this was most important.

Gerkin has also strived to place the church back within the community, to make it a family oriented ministry. "I believe by being located on the west end of town, the church became somewhat removed."

This family oriented ministry has taken the message out beyond the church structure. "People will not just walk in," he said.

Through such programs like AWANA, Approved Workmen

Are Not Ashamed, and a Bible ministry, Gerkin and the First Baptist Church of Lowell has been able to provide family time, help kids understand who Christ is, and what Christianity is.

Gerkin, who was raised in Aurora Illinois 40 miles west of Chicago, went to school at East Aurora High School. "I was raised in a godly home. My father was a deacon for many years in the Baptist Church," he says.

Like most youths he thought about not attending church. "But out of respect for my parents I did," Gerkin says. "I guess I knew the truth all along, of my need of Christ and the scripture."

Gerkin believes the local church is ordained of the Lord. "Christ is its head and we are the church's body. Our goal is to do what the scripture says. To accept Christ's word, to be Christ-like, to use him as our blueprint for our lives," he says. "The church hopes to create a thirst for his message, to help people understand that church can help them find an answer."

He continues, "Religion is man making himself important reaching out for Christ. Christianity is Christ reaching out for man."

Gerkin believes that one of the reasons people are not turning to the church as in the past is because the church has not ministered to the heart of the people. "The message remains the same - the method used to get it out to the people is all that should change."

Gerkin says his role is to get people to be ministers, to be one another and to remind them who God is. "That's how I am able to give back to the church."

Real estate a difficult aspect of divorce settlement

One of the most difficult aspects of a divorce, aside from the emotional turmoil, is settling the division or distribution of property. Getting an expert, objective appraisal of the property's value is essential in the determination of a fair settlement.

While real estate appraisers cannot give advice on personal matters or on divorce court law, they are knowledgeable about the governing rules and can counsel clients as to the effects of estate taxes, capital gains taxes and the marketability of any particular real property asset.

An appraisal is an impartial estimate of the value of real estate formulated by an expert who knows the factors which comprise the current behavior of the real estate market. The appraisal process follows an established pattern of client consultation, research, property inspection, analysis and evaluation.

After discussing the purpose of the real estate appraisal with the client, the appraiser conducts research using such resources as title and mortgage records, assessment and zoning files and multiple listing services. During the actual property inspection, the appraiser evaluates the physical condition of the property, both exterior and interior. The data is then analyzed to arrive at an estimate of value which can be substantiated and defended.

"In most cases, the client's attorney will be able to recommend an appraiser who is qualified and would be able to serve as an expert witness in a court of law," notes Louise Reese, III, SRPA, president of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

When an appraiser is being selected, it is important that the client is satisfied with the appraiser's experience in the type of property being contested. If the client's case involves residential and income property, the appraiser should be experienced in both disciplines.

"A professional appraiser will be able to furnish the client with a list of qualifications," comments Reese. "A good indication of the appraiser's qualifications is the professional designation held."

Listed after the appraiser's name, a designation signifies the appraiser's field of expertise. The Society of Real Estate Appraisers, the oldest independent real estate appraisal association with 20,000 members nationwide, awards three designations to appraisers who have passed stringent education and experience requirements.

The SRA (Senior Residential Appraiser) designation is awarded to appraisers who have demonstrated expertise in the appraisal of one- to four-family residential properties.

IRS office cuts through red tape, solves problems

"Michigan taxpayers who meet delays or encounter difficulties in resolving federal tax problems can get help from our Problem Resolution Program (PRP) office," said IRS District Director, John Hummel.

"The PRP office helps taxpayers who have had unsuccessful contacts with the IRS. The taxpayer generally deals with one person who has the authority to cut through red tape and handle problems promptly," Hummel added.

According to the IRS, the most common problems brought to the PRP office are inquiries about missing refunds, mixed up social security numbers, incorrect billings by IRS, or mistakes made by the taxpayer.

"Problem Resolution should not be used as a substitute for normal channels, because almost all problems can be resolved before they reach the PRP office," said Hummel. "Also, PRP cannot be used to appeal the decision of a tax examination. However, for the taxpayer who has contacted us before and whose problem remains unresolved, PRP can certainly help," he said. The IRS Problem Resolution Program office can be reached by calling the IRS toll-free number, 1-800-424-1040, and asking for Problem Resolution.

Local teens attend 4-H citizenship program in nation's capitol

Alicia Richmond of Lowell, was among more than 4,000 young people from around the country who have been examining their rights and responsibilities as citizens as they experienced an exciting 4-H program this summer at the National 4-H center, Chevy Chase, MD. Citizenship - Washington Focus (CWF) took the theme "A People's Power" and developed a strong issue-oriented program which encourages 4-H'ers to become involved in citizenship projects. Richmond and 28 other 4-H'ers from West/Central Michigan attended CWF from June 25 to July 1.

The program, which runs each week from June 4 to August 12, helps young people ages 15 to 19 better understand how government functions at all levels and learn how to effectively use local government processes to address issues.

"CWF is taking its cue from President Bush's stated intention to 'put power in the hands of the people'. Young people explore issues of critical importance to them, study the impact of the new administration and observe government in action, as they learn about the Constitution and the way our government functions. But the most important objective of this program is to stimulate the young people to conduct at least one back-home citizenship project," said Russ Weathers, vice president of program services, National 4-H council.

During educational visits to federal agencies and other organizations, CWF participants met with officials to determine what those agencies' responsibilities are in addressing current issues and how they deal with those issues.

The West/Central Michigan delegation also met with Paul Henry, Guy VanderJagt and Robert Davis. Seeing and learning the significance of historic locations and monuments in the metropolitan Washington area, such as the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Mount Vernon, the Washington Cathedral and the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, challenged CWF delegates to define U.S. culture and to determine their role in our culture as responsible citizens.

"The monuments were very impressive. We were told, when viewing these, if we saw any mounted figure on a horse with two of the horses legs up they died in war. If we saw one leg up they were wounded in war, and if we saw none up they lived during the war," Richmond said. She continues, "We also saw the Lincoln Memorial; it was the most impressive because it was a great monument to a great person in American History. It also added first-hand value to seeing something you always read about."

Richmond says she found CWF a worthwhile experience because it helped her understand the impact of a new administration by exploring staff and cabinet appointments, proposed agendas, and comparing facts and events to election promises.

"I also experienced government in action and observed historical sites to increase understanding and appreciation of our American Heritage. Last but not least, I met 4-H members from across the nation to share concerns, ideas, and inspiration," Richmond said.

Program support and fellowships for 14 4-H alumni who helped conduct the program were provided by the Auxiliary to the American Optometric Association; Bethesda - Chevy Chase Rotary Club; Colgate Youth for America Program; Farmland Industries, Inc.; Georgia State 4-H Foundation; Iowa State 4-H Foundation; National Safety Council; Norman C. Mindrum Educational Fund; Readers Digest Foundation; Ruritan National; Sterling Drug Inc.; Tennessee Agriculture Extension Service; Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc. and the Coca-Cola Company.

CWF is one of the largest of the national citizenship education programs. It is planned and conducted by the Cooperative Extension system of the state land-grant universities and the Extension Service, USDA. The program is arranged and supported by National 4-H Council.

The first polo game in America was played indoors at Dickel's Riding Academy in New York City in 1876.

The nation's capitol building is just one of the historic and inspiring sites seen by young people attending a 4-H Citizenship program in Washington, DC this month.

CONTAINS LISTINGS FOR FRIDAY, JULY 21, THRU THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1989

TERENCE KNOX is reaping the rewards of success and planning to start filming the third season of Tour of Duty, which is returning to CBS in the fall. This year the show will be action-oriented rather than laced with romance to show a more realistic view of the war in Vietnam.

Make good use of your summer's yard wastes

With landfill space at a premium, many municipalities are considering limiting or even discontinuing pick-up of yard wastes, including grass clippings, leaves and brush. Lawn-Boy, a leading manufacturer of outdoor power equipment based in Wisconsin, has compiled some simple guidelines, also using information from the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, on recycling yard wastes.

The process of recycling grass clippings and other yard debris is best achieved with a lawn mower that can be easily converted from a bagging unit to a mulcher to a leaf shredder, as the season or timing dictates.

There are two approaches to recycling yard wastes -- to bag the clippings and yard wastes and use them as raw materials in a mulch or compost, or to return the clippings to the lawn while mowing.

HOW TO USE BAGGED GRASS CLIPPINGS AND YARD WASTES

Growing conditions, influenced by temperature and rainfall, will determine the amount of clippings you'll produce in a single mowing. When the grass is too wet and thick, or if you've just returned from a two week vacation, you will want to bag the clippings or rake to remove the heavy build-up. Homeowners may want to bag the clippings for appearance sake as well. Consider recycling these bagged clippings and other yard wastes as a mulch in your garden or planting beds, or begin your own composting program.

Mulch -- How Something So Simple Works So Well

Disposing of yard wastes can be made easy, even if your municipality limits or discontinues pick-up. Using those materials for mulch is a simple, workable solution. To get started:

- use a sharp mower blade to get finer grass clippings and then bag the clippings;
- consider using a leaf shredder accessory and large capacity leaf bag for fall clean-up -- Lawn Boy's shredder, for example, reduces leaf volume up to an 8 to 1 ratio -- and then bag the leaves or discharge them on your lawn for a quick winter mulch;
- and for woody materials up to 1" in diameter, rent or purchase a chipper/shredder or cut them with hand tools.

Then, use the mulch for weed control and water retention by simply spreading it beneath plants and between garden rows. The yard wastes will work first as a mulch and then as a soil enrichment as decomposition proceeds.

An important note -- grass which has been treated with pesticides or weed killers should not be used as mulch immediately after mowing. Some of these chemicals take six weeks to break down, so compost treated grass clippings instead of using them as mulch.

You can recycle yard wastes, whether you bag the clippings or use a mower mulching plate attachment. (inset).

RETURNING GRASS CLIPPINGS TO THE LAWN

During the summer months, grass clippings can account for a whopping 50% of residential trash. Grass clippings not only use up valuable landfill space, but contribute to methane gas and leachate problems as well. Grass makes incinerators less efficient because of its high moisture content. Here are some reasons for returning your clippings to the lawn while you mow:

- the bigger the lawn, the more clippings, the greater the expense for you and your city's sanitation department;
- grass clippings decompose rapidly on your lawn;
- every trash bag of grass clippings contains up to a quarter pound of usable organic nitrogen, which can reduce your fertilization costs by recycling them back into the lawn;
- grass clippings reduce water evaporation from the lawn, provide a cushioning layer to reduce lawn wear, and facilitate better growth by providing nutrients and keeping the soil temperature cooler.

To successfully recycle the grass clippings back to the lawn:

- remove excessive thatch -- grass clippings that have not de-

Composting -- Cost Savings and Convenience Make It A Natural Choice

if you have a garden, lawn, trees, shrubs or even planter boxes, you have a use for compost. Composting is a biological process in which bacteria, over time, break down plant tissue, with the resulting organic material returned to the soil.

Here's how compost makes soil healthier:

- organic matter produced by composting improves plant

19th District
State Representative

Under a plan finalized by the Legislature last week, Michigan voters will be given two choices on the November ballot to change the way the state funds its public schools.

Both constitutional amendments would result in a net spending increase of at least $400 million for schools.

One proposal would raise the state sales tax one-half cent, effective January 1, 1990. Of the $400 million generated from the increase, $285 million would be spread among school districts through a revised school aid formula, and $115 million would be earmarked for quality programs in specific districts. This plan provides no property tax relief and makes no change in local school district operating millages. All current levels, caps and requirements would remain the same.

The second measure raises the state sales tax 2 cents and provides $468 million to school districts. It also lowers residential school operating property taxes by an average 37 percent and reduces business taxes approximately 22 percent on the average. In addition, the 2-cent plan: --provides 1990-91 per-pupil revenues for each district equal to their 1989-90 revenues, plus an additional $250 to $350 per student. Districts with 1989-90 per-pupil revenues of less than $3,190 receive an extra $350 until they reach the guaranteed $3,540 per pupil. Other district increases are determined on a sliding scale based on their per-pupil revenues of the past school year.

--requires the state to levy 14 mills on business property and 9 mills on residential property and spread the money statewide. --allows up to 4 additional mills to be levied by school districts on a renewable basis if approved by voters.

--exempts from the 6-percent sales tax electricity and heating fuel for residential customers with household incomes below 150 percent of the poverty level.

If both proposals receive the necessary majority votes at the polls, the one with the most votes would become law. If voters reject both choices, the school finance reform issue once again will come before the Legislature.

American fishing sportsmen call for attack on Great Lakes pollution

Representatives of the fishing tackle industry, sport fishing groups, and environmental organizations jointly called on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Great Lakes states to adopt a new approach to stopping toxic pollution of the Great Lakes.

In a prepared statement the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association, National Wildlife Federation, Michigan United Conservation Clubs, and the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation said, "Current programs to control toxic pollution of the Great Lakes are inadequate and must be overhauled to achieve immediate reductions from all sources in the amounts of the most dangerous toxics found in the lakes and in the fish and wildlife that inhabit them."

Specifically, the groups endorsed a four-point program for cleaning up the Great Lakes contained in a report prepared by more than 20 environmental groups. The report, entitled Promises to Keep, was presented to EPA Regional Administrator, Vall Adamkus and representatives of the Great Lakes states at a June 14 meeting. I called for:

- * Uniform water quality standards and pollution control requirements for the toxic pollutants known to be poisoning the Great Lakes ecosystem in order to end competition between the states for heavy-pollution industries like pulp and paper mills;
- * An immediate "Toxics

Freeze" prohibiting increased dumping of the most dangerous toxics poisoning the Great Lakes, their fish and wildlife, and the people consuming these fish and wildlife;

* A timetable for reducing the total amount of toxic chemicals from all sources to reduce the levels in fish to a point that they can be safely consumed in limited amounts and, eventually, to achieve the "zero discharge" goal of the Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement; and;

* A comprehensive pollution prevention strategy to achieve the zero discharge goal by reducing toxic pollutants at the source before they are created or dumped into the Great Lakes ecosystem.

The joint statement was issued at a news conference conducted by the National Wildlife Federation to release the results of a two-year study of the health effects of eating Lake Michigan sport fish. NWF's study concluded that "the problem of toxic pollution of Lake Michigan sport fish is more serious than has previously been reported." The groups welcomed the attention that the NWF report directs toward the need to clean up the toxic chemicals contaminating the Great Lakes.

The joint statement concluded, "Those of us whose livelihood depends on sport fishing and those of us who love to fish have a common goal: to rid sport fish of toxic pollution. We have resolved to work together to demand that the "zero discharge" goal of the Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement is achieved and toxic pollution of our Great Lakes is stopped."

The groups' proposal to clean up the Great Lakes will be discussed at public workshops to be conducted around the Lake Michigan basin by the NWF.

Pick Southwestern Michigan - fresh is best

Pick Southwestern Michigan and you are about to sample one of the most delectable parts of the state.

This part of the state is called the "Fruit Belt". The waters of Lake Michigan temper the shore climate so an abundance of fruits can be grown, everything from apples to raspberries. The shores are the home of Red Haven peaches, first premium wines in the Midwest, and the nation's largest crops of blueberries and tart cherries.

Here you will find bushels of your favorite vegetables. Asparagus, beans, beets, cabbage, cucumbers, sweet corn, eggplant, peas, popcorn, potatoes, greens, squash are just starters to whet the appetite.

Roadside markets of just-picked produce are easily accessible. Pick up a bagful to enjoy on the trip or buy a bushel or two to can or freeze. Many farmers open their fields and orchards to let you pick your own - a country experience to share with the whole family.

Of course tasting Southwestern Michigan is not limited to farm fresh fruits and vegetables. You can fry lake-fresh fish on an early morning campfire, enjoy the many attractions at one of the numerous festivals or fairs, sip premium Michigan wines overlooking the vineyards, dine in one of many restaurants serving regional favorites, or get a good taste of Michigan hospitality at a quiet lodging or campground.

The Pick Michigan brochure, put out by the Southwestern Michigan Tourist Council, gives you a flavor of the area's many points of interest, lodgings, wineries, farm markets and You-Pick farms.

Contact the Tourist Council at 2300 Pipestone Road, Benton Harbor, Michigan 49022; or call 616-925-6301.

DEAR SIR,
Before the Chinese invented paper around the year A.D. 100, they wrote on bones, tortoise shells and silk.

Boyce realizes a dream at GGRO

For Bruce Boyce of Lowell, playing in the Greater Grand Rapids Pro Am Tournament at the Elks Country Club was a childhood dream turning to reality. Tying for first at the Pro Am was reality turned fantasy. Boyce teamed with partners Raymond Theys (Magna Corporation, Toronto), Bill Kay (Fisher Body, Detroit), and Ron Velthoven (Fisher Body, Detroit) and pros Charles Owen on Wednesday and Jim King on Thursday to shoot a two-day tying total of 27 under par. Boyce fired a 39 (three over par). On a rain shortened round (nine holes) Wednesday, Boyce's foursome came home at nine under par - 27. On Thursday, 18 holes were played, and Boyce and company carded a 20 under par total for 18 holes, which included five birdies turned eagles due to the handicap. Boyce, the acting General Manager of Lowell Engineering, was ecstatic with the two-day results. "This has definitely been a lifelong dream of mine to play professional golf. Playing in the Greater Grand Rapids Open Pro Am has been great, but tying for first is something special," Boyce said.

Soccer summer league prepares Lowell soccer club for season

In past O-K White conference, soccer powers have come into the fall season with a summer schedule already behind them, hitting the high school season in full stride. The same thing will happen in 1989, but this year Lowell plans to stride right with them. The Red Arrows, playing in the Kentwood High School League, with the likes of Greenville, East Grand Rapids, Grand Rapids Christian, Ottawa Hills, Grand Rapids Baptist Academy and South Christian have posted a record of 2-1-2 as of July 15. Lowell's most recent win was over O-K Red foe Kentwood, 3-1. "Not playing in the summer league in the past has hurt the Lowell program but this year people will see the benefits as have the players," Lowell soccer coach John Turkal said. The Red Arrows will be playing in the Michigan Games Tournament in Battle Creek on Aug. 5 and 6. High school practice will begin Aug. 14 at the high school at 9 a.m.

Gary & Kathy Yeoman rule Pool Gallery II with cue stick in hands

The dark, crowded, smoke filled pool rooms of the past, are just that - a thing of the past, according to Gary and Kathy Yeoman, owners of Pool Gallery I in Greenville and now Pool Gallery II at 103 E. Main in Lowell.

The Yeomans, who have successfully run Pool Gallery I in Greenville since January, opened up Pool Gallery II in Lowell on June 16. However, they had a few hurdles to clear in the process.

Lowell's amusement ordinance showed restrictions for those under 17 years which would eliminate the majority of Yeoman's business. Following a public hearing on June 5 that ordinance was changed by Lowell's City Council.

"We're not trying to do anyone out of anything," Gary Yeoman says. "I think that's why we're successful."

The Council's approval was contingent on the approval of Lowell Police Chief Barry Emmons. "I welcomed it and think it's something we can work with and be useful," he says. "Lowell has a strip problem with cruising and kids on the sidewalks and in parking lots. The Pool Gallery II gives the kids an alternative." Prior to giving his approval, Emmons checked with Greenville Police Chief James St. Louis. He was informed that in the six months of the pool gallery, Greenville Police have not been called down there for any problems.

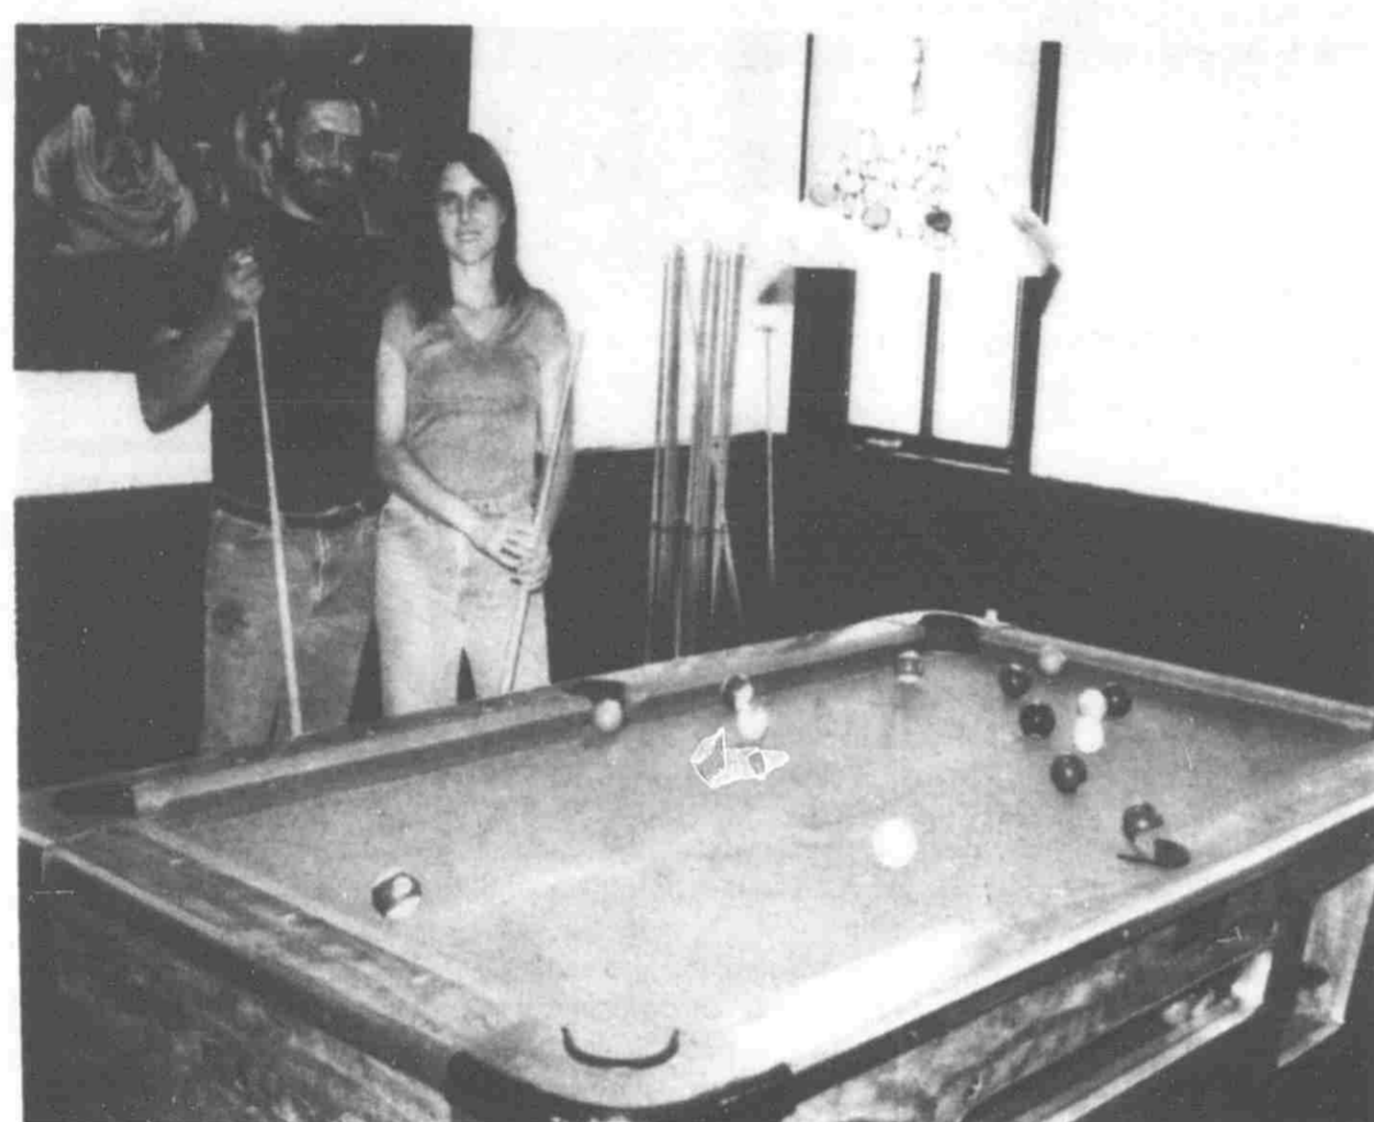

Gary Yeoman works at Keeler Brass in the engineering Department. He travels through Lowell everyday. "I noticed Lowell did not have anything for the kids to do. I never saw anything for people under 21," Gary Yeoman said.

That fact alone, enticed Yeoman to open up a second Pool Gallery in Lowell. He started looking for a second location following the purchase of 12 pool tables from a gentleman in Rockford.

Lowell Showboat Scramble results

The weather shone brightly over the first Lowell Showboat golf scramble at Arrowhead golf course.

Winning the women's division were Rose Fonger and Donna Laux at two-over par. Jim Chambers and Steve Wardenbug won Gary and Kathy Yeoman are excited about their new Lowell business venture. According to Gary Yeoman it gives youth in Lowell something to do.

Yeoman, who grew up with a pool stick in his hand, has found being up-front the best way to prevent trouble. "I've always told the kids the way things are going to be and I think they respect that. I've found that they tend to police themselves. Most of them don't want the pool hall to close," he says.

Pool Gallery II has 10 coin-operated pool tables and a handful or more of video games. Yeomans also sell pop and snacks.

The pool hall is open from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. on Monday through Thursday; from noon until midnight on Friday and Saturday and due to requests, it opens from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. on Sunday.

The cost for a game of pool is 50 cents, or $4 an hour.

"I have two other pool tables in storage and I would like to open a third Pool Gallery someday," he says.

Gary Yeoman gets set to break at the Pool Gallery. Gary and his wife, Kathy recently opened up a pool hall here in Lowell. In January of this year they opened their first one in Greenville.

To remove shine when ironing, run a dampened sponge over the shiny area and press lightly over a pressing cloth.

Rittersdorf celebrates 25 years at post office

Jim Rittersdorf was recognized for his 25 years of service at the Lowell Post Office recently by Lowell Postmaster Charlie Doyle. Rittersdorf came aboard in December of 1965. He's carried for 17 years and clerked for nearly eight. He plans on retiring in 1990.

Judge White makes a difference for 3 Lowell men

After nearly 20 years on the bench, Judge Joseph White of the 63rd District Court will replace his gavel with a fishing pole in nearly seven months.

Helping him to celebrate that occasion Saturday were three former acquaintances: Ron Chesebro, Pat Witherell and Vic Tidd all from Lowell. The previous meetings the threesome had with Judge White have all taken place in his court. This meeting occurred at the Vic Tidd residence.

Judge White, a man with a degree of compassion and understanding, sentenced the three men (as youths), combined, to nearly five years of prison for a list of wrongdoings which included stealing, fighting and drunk driving.

"He was fair and he gave us what we deserved," Witherell said. "Judge White has the remarkable ability to distinguish between a kid who has done something bad and a bad kid."

Judge White believes sitting behind the bench involves more than being punitive. "Many people make mistakes of judgment but that doesn't always mean that they're bad people. It is my job to enforce the law but it is also important for me to realize that the person standing before me is human.

For 17 years Jimmy Hutson was the Lowell Police force. He was also the man who put Chesebro, Witherell and Tidd before Judge White.

"They were little squirts looking for excitement and change, and along the way they did some things that were not acceptable," Hutson said. "Many times a good kick is all they needed." Hutson recounts the time times he did just that prior to taking them home to their parents. "That's not acceptable today. Parents won't accept it and people won't accept it."

As a sign of their appreciation for his understanding, degree of compassion, and for his 20 years of fine service, Judge White was given a paddle for all the times he sent people up the river without one.

Both Judge White and Hutson were asked to change roles prior to leaving the retirement party.

Witherell handed each of them a bag with prison greenies (wardrobe worn in prison) and prison booties. The final act of the penal system going full cycle.

A legal system that seems to fail many times, worked this time. Both Hutson and Judge White recognized that Chesebro, Witherell and Tidd were youths being bad. Handled right, and the legal system could return to society three men looking to be good.

Pat Witherell, left, stands next to Judge Joseph White of the 63rd District Court at a retirement party Witherell and friends held in his honor. Standing next to White is former Lowell policeman Jimmy Hutson, Ron Chesebro and Vic Tidd. White and Hutson are dressed in prison greenies and booties for the picture.

Upper Peninsula - An untouched wilderness

It appears to be suspended there -- floating between two of the world's largest lakes and balanced between the clang and crash of the 20th century to the south and the peace of the ancient, almost untouched wilderness to the north.

The Upper Peninsula of Michigan: 9 million acres of forest within an easy day's drive of tens of millions of Midwesterners -- an accessible wilderness larger than Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island combined.

Less than 500 miles to the south lie such great population centers as Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Columbus, and Cleveland. Slightly more than 500 miles to the north is the Polar Bear Provincial Park on the shores of Hudson Bay.

The Upper Peninsula guards the southern edge of the great northern wilderness; here it's possible to spend weeks, days, or just hours in tracts that are measured in tens of thousands of acres, and yet return to "civilization" virtually at will. Here, despite the vastness of the wilderness, the hiker, camper, canoeist, angler, or hunter is never more than 30 miles from the amenities of town.

With 24 state parks, millions of acres in state and national forests, a national lakeshore and a national park, you can set off into the wilderness from almost any point in the Upper Peninsula.

Some of the best-known wild areas scattered along the peninsula's 300-mile length are Isle Royale National Park, the two units of Porcupine Mountains State Park, the Sylvania Recreation Area, and the Seney National Wildlife Refuge.

Isle Royale is the United States' only island national park: a self-contained wilderness archipelago some 50 miles out in the waters of Lake Superior, it is populated by moose, wolf, beaver, red fox, hare, and other wild creatures in a delicate natural balance. The heavily forested island is laced with 166 miles of foot trails (no roads: vehicles are prohibited) and is dotted with more than a score of inland lakes.

From mid-May through October, the island can be reached by passenger vessel or floatplane from Houghton or Copper Harbor. There is a lodge on the island, and camping is permitted (with a permit that can be obtained, free, from any national park ranger station).

In Porcupine Mountains Wilderness State Park, you can drive almost to the edge of an escarpment overlooking one of Michigan's signature sites -- the dramatic Lake of the Clouds -- and then head back to the comforts of your motel, or you can camp out in a 58,000-acre forest wilderness.

At Craig Lake State Park, you can hike in and camp near Mt. Curwood, the highest point in Michigan (and in the Midwest). You'll also be near Michigan's primary moose range.

At the western end of the peninsula, between the town of Watersmeet and the Wisconsin border, in the Ottawa National Forest, 21,000 acres of virgin forest are preserved: the Sylvania Recreation Area. Nationally known for fishing, sparkling waters, majestic forests, and wilderness camping, and canoeing, Sylvania is close to the popular Cisco Chain of Lakes. Surrounding Sylvania is the Ottawa National Forest with its 30 waterfalls and 10 campgrounds. Nearby accommodations range from modest to deluxe house-keeping cottages.

Sylvania Outfitters in Watersmeet will arrange canoe trips ranging from two hours to two weeks into Sylvania (which is described as "a miniature Boundary Waters") and along the adjacent Ontonagon River system.

A couple hundred road miles to the east is the largest contiguous wildlife refuge east of the Mississippi: the Seney Wildlife Refuge. More than 230 species of birds inhabit the 95,000-acre refuge, 25,000 acres of which form a National Wilderness tract.

Access is primarily by canoe, and Northland Outfitters in Germfask can arrange trips ranging from two hours to a week in length. The refuge is surrounded by state and national forests, which are laced with streams and dotted with lakes, camping, hunting, and fishing sites.

Information on all of the Upper Peninsula's accessible wilderness experiences is available from the Upper Peninsula Tourism and Recreation Association, P.O. Box 400, Iron Mountain, Michigan 49801. The phone number is (906) 774-5480.
