Bushnell Elementary principal resigns

The principal wheels at Lowell Schools keep spinning. Unfortunately for Lowell Superintendent Fritz Esch some of the spokes are falling off.

In June, Linda Zaczek resigned as LCTK Community Education Consortium so that her husband could accept a new promotion in Chicago. In July, Dick Korb resigned as Lowell High School Principal in order that he could assume Zaczek's vacancy. It was learned last late last week that Bill Kirby, Principal of Bushnell Elementary had handed in his resignation so that he could accept the Superintendent's position at Bellevue life there and sending two children through school was a tough decision. It's like leaving home - that's not as easy to do as it is to say."

While at Lowell, Kirby has seen just two administrative positions open up. "Like any principal, when a promotion is out there, it's nice to be considered. No. I was not interested in LCTK Community Education Consortium position with the job description the way it was. But, if the primary interest in the position was redirected, then, yes, I may have been interested."

He continues, "However, that had no motivating factor in my accepting the Bellevue Superintendent's position. I leave Lowell Schools very much pleased with the support that I received from the staff and the community. The district has a school system it can be proud of."

The opportunity to participate in teacher negotiations and to be active in a quality public relations program (association with employees, millage, communications with the public and the newsletter) are two valuable experiences Kirby believes will be of great benefit at Bellevue.

A social worker will also be available to assist families with the emotional and financial stresses of having a diabetic child.

Children's Hospital encourages families in the Lowell area with children and adolescents who have diabetes requiring insulin to attend the Free clinic August 31, 1989. It will be held at the St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids. Children are seen by APPOINT-MENT ONLY.

Appointments may be made by contacting a member of the Masonic Lodge in your community, who can assist with transportation to and from Grand Rapids. In Lowell call David Miller at 897-7195.

Kirby went back to Western Michigan University in 1984 for his doctorate so he could qualify for a superintendent position. The opportunity came to surface in June when Bellevue learned its superintendent would not return in the fall so that he could accept another job offer.

Bellevue contacted placement bureaus and school personnel they knew in an effort to fill the spot. Kirby, an elementary principal at Bellevue from 1970-75, was still fresh in the administration's minds.

"As far as the position is concerned, there was never a hesitancy in accepting the job," Kirby explains over the phone after his first day on the new job. "Leaving a community (Lowell) after spending 14 years of your

Homelessness: A visible national disgrace

Michigan State AFL-CIO President writes "It's a problem that just won't go away. Some people may avert their eyes to it, but homelessness continues as a visible national disgrace. The problem may get worse before it gets better."

lying in the homelessness case. Housing NOW Steering committee member Diane Siciliano of Lowell explains, "Since 1981, budget authority for all Federal housing assistance programs has been cut 77 percent - from $32 billion to less than $8 billion per year."

A coalition of 75 organizations have endorsed the Housing NOW program, which is an awareness program concerning the problem with the three million homeless and 30 million working poor and their struggle with the non-availability of affordable housing.

"It's reaching critical proportions. The average apartment in Grand Rapids is $440 a month. and the average house in Grand Rapids sells for $74-$79,000. In order to qualify for a loan a person must earn $35,000," Siciliano says. "Rental property right now in Lowell is at a prime rate."

She adds that years ago more than a fourth of a person's wages went toward housing - now its half.

Siciliano is thankful that there seems to be a growing consciousness among Americans about the plight of the homeless and the

Unfortunately statistics aren't lack of decent, affordable housing. "If a person is interested in helping spur action on these problems, there are two events you can participate in over the next three months," she says.

> The first is a "Run for Shelter, Walk to Help" event sponsored by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) to be held Aug. 12 in Lansing's Riverfront Park. Governor James Blanchard has proclaimed the week of Aug. 6-12 to be Homeless Assistance Week in Michigan, and this event featuring a four-mile race and a two-mile walk will raise money to establish a Homeless Children's Fund that will help Michigan shelters meet the needs of infants and children in their care.

> The second event is a large national rally called "Housing NOW" which has over 80 national sponsors including the

The two 1,350 foot towers of the World Trade Center in New York City occupy only two acres, but can accommodate 130,000 people.

I just got back from a two week trip out west. There were ten people in our group, seven of them kids aged 10 to 16. The group consisted of my brother, his wife, their four kids, my two kids, our German exchange kid and myself. My wife couldn't make the trip because of commitments at work. We traveled in two vans. I pulled a borrowed camper and my brother pulled a small cargo trailer for his tent and camping gear. We traveled 4,600 miles in the 17 days we were gone, and seven of those days were spent aboard a houseboat on Lake Powell in southern Utah. That's an erverage of 460 miles a day folks, and you can bet I've got a few "hard traveling" stories to tell! You've heard people say they needed to get back home from vacation to rest up . . . well, this was definitely one of those vacations.

van, and a replacement was not easy to find. The mechanics didn't drop it down off the hoist until about five hours after our planned Departure time. Our schedule was already looking like the airlines when the weather is bad at O'Hare.

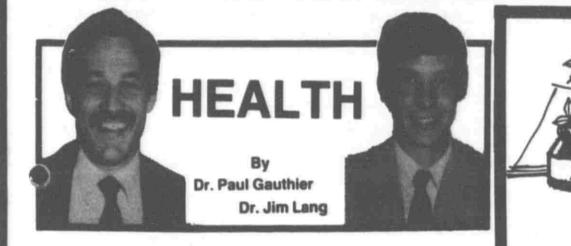

Once on the road we drove, and drove and drove. We saw corn, and corn and corn. After 25 hours on the road with a only a three hour snooze curled up in the front seat of the van at a rest stop in Iowa, we drove into Denver, Colorado. It was rush hour on a Friday afternoon. The heat was intense, the traffic was four lanes of bumper to bumper, and I blew a tire on the camper I was towing. Good old Murphy!

Changing the flat was no problem, but getting back on the expressway appeared to be impossible. We finally drove a half mile in the grassy strip next to the road, jumped the curb on an exit ramp and hit the nearest gas station. Illegal? Sure . . . but these were desparate times!

The spare for the camper was badly checked, and surely not going to make the rest of the journey with us. It was immediately apparent that I was not going to deal with the problem with nine other very tired people in tow. We found a motel, they all headed for the showers and pool, while I began my quest for a camper tire. After about eight stops at various gas stations and tire stores, I finally scored a tire just before closing time. Murphy was foiled this time, but I sure looked like I'd been through a fight with him.

The next leg was not so bad. We had planned to travel only 300 miles or so to Moab. Utah on Saturday. A piece of cake, We got off on the wrong foot when I took my van in the day except for the fact we had to cross over the continental divide. At before our departure to have a pair of new tires installed on the one point we were at over 11,000 feet above sea level. Between front. Nothing like waiting until the last minute. There was plenty the thin air, the heavy load, the camper and the long journey, my of time to get the job done, unless of course something went van got right down and groaned at times. HOLTER MONITORING

Holter monitoring is a method of continuously monitoring a patient's heart while they go through their routine daily activities. It is an ambulatory EKG, so to speak, and it can provide your physician with a wealth of knowledge about your cardiovascular well-being. Because abnormal heart activity can happen at any me, often an EKG performed only in the office setting may not be inclusive enough to aid your doctor in detecting what may be wrong with your heart.

What sort of symptoms may alert your doctor to the possibility of a heart rhythm disorder? Dizziness, light-headedness, palpitations, a feeling of your heart skipping a beat - all these sensations and symptoms may indicate the possibility of a cardiac arrhythmia, which a holter monitor may reveal.

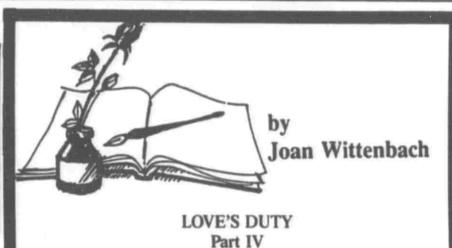

The monitor itself looks like a small tape recorder, and it fits in a holster, which is worn about the waist. EKG leads are fastened to the chest wall to provide the continuous monitoring of your heart beat. You will be expected to wear the monitor while you ere sleeping as well as while you are awake. It is specifically equested that you go about your daily routine, because the purpose of this test is to monitor your heart during normal activities.

You will be asked to keep a diary of pain, chest discomfort, palpitations, or other symptoms you feel and the times they occur. This will help the doctor match those symptoms with events taking place in your heart.

When you return to the doctor's office or hospital the next day, the monitor is removed and the recording is interpreted. Based on the interpretation, your doctor may prescribe medicine, order further tests, or do nothing at all if the test is normal. Holter monitoring is a safe, efficient way of diagnosing potentially danger-Is heart disorders.

Synopsis:

There are two things I remember that were inevitable in our yearly visits to Ohio in August. The first was the unbearable, muggy heat and the other was the dress ritual that Aunt Sudie presented for us.

During the long nights and off and on through the days that we visited with relatives and neighbors, I heard many stories of people I didn't know. One day I met a story, face to face.

Early one morning, just before we were leaving to go back home to Michigan, there was a knock on the screen door.

"Sudie Mae, ya'll home?" The muffled speech was happy and expectant. It sounded like a mouthful of cotton balls. "Maybe everyone sounds like that early in the morning," I thought.

"Come on in, Frank," Sudie invited. "Someone's come to visit. Have some breakfast and sit a spell."

I leaned over to the far side of the couch that I slept on in the living room, and saw the man she was talking to. He was short and had white, angel-like hair that was all slicked back, neat and clean. Frank's pear-shaped body looked familiar, as did the long and empty, toothless smile.

"Had breakfast, Sudie", the cotton mouth was lisping. "Just came to borrow your teeth. Got 'em soaking in the glass?" He continued about his errand, "Thought I'd like to go to church today and want to look proper."

I snickered and gagged at the same time. All this so early in the morning, and on an empty stomach.

Frank was Sudie's younger brother. I had heard about him, but hadn't seen him on our other trips. He seemed to be away doing things most of the time, which was partying or sleeping off a "few too many" or working on a project. never did find out what his projects were. I just watched and listened and turned the other way when he popped in Sudie's teeth.

"Well, gotta go, Sudie." Uncle Frank pushed back his chair. "Walter's got them shiny, black shoes I'd like to borrow. Be a shame not to have a nice pair -- going to church and all." Sudie stood up, straightened his tie, winked at him and said so lovingly, "The Lord bless you, Frank." I wanted to

"I'll bring your teeth back about 5:00 o'clock, Sudie. And the Lord bless you too," Frank widely smiled. To be continued worries. My brakes began to smell hot from the heavy use, and I kept a sharp eye out for runaway truck ramps. Those ramps might work to save the vehicle, but I don't think my heart could take it if I ever had to use one.

Once down out of the big mountains and into Utah, we began motoring through what I'd call desert. It was hot! It had to be at least 100 degrees, and I kept a close watch on the temperature gauge. It held steady . . . right near the top.

For the last leg of that day's journey we dropped down off U.S. 70 along highway 128. The road snaked through a canyon on the Colorado River lined with nothing but huge red sandstone formations that had been carved by elements. I later found a brochure that noted all the movies that had been filmed in that canyon. About half the westerns you can think of were filmed there. If I hadn't been so tired, I could have imagined myself as John Wayne. Glenn Ford or Gary Cooper. Actually I'm probably more of a Slim Pickens or Gabby Haves type.

We stayed at another motel in Moab. Everybody swam in the pool. The adults had a couple of libations and we rustled up some grub for the kids (that's western talk). When it was finally time to retire. I did so with a fervor. I never knew a motel bed could leep so good.

On Sunday we had less than 200 miles to travel to the marina on Lake Powell where we were to pick up our houseboat. Again, we took off with the attitude it would be a piece of cake. It turned out to be a very hot, twisty, turny, hilly 200 miles of the most "nothing" I'd ever seen in my life. We put the 200 miles behind us in pretty good fashion, but I was more than ready to park that van and get aboard the houseboat for a week.

Well, that's the first episode. Next week I'll tell you about houseboating. It was great, but it wasn't the total relaxation I'd hoped it would be.

Rogers Reunion

On July 22, 1989 at the Fallasburg Park Pavilion. Mr. and Mrs. Mel Rogers and son, David hosted the first family reunion with 49 guests present. The last reunion was held 62 vears ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Rogers, and their son David, have done extensive research to locate relatives of the Rogers family. Needless to say, with great success.

Family members were from Lowell, Alto, Hastings, Jackson, St. Joseph, Flint, Stevensville, Cedar Springs, Crystal Lake and Lousiana.

The oldest family member was Bea McLane from Grand Rapids - 83 years young. The two voungest were grandchilden of the Ward J. Rogers, Jessica Lynn Rogers of Sand Lake and Danial Wilson of Cedar Springs.

We'll be looking forward to seeing more of the family members at next year's reunion to be held at Fallasburg Park Pavilion in 1990.

Kent County Youth Fair runs Aug.7-12

"Let's Salute Our Folk Heritage" is the theme for the 55th annual Kent County Youth Fair, August 7-12 at the Lowell Fairgrounds. Besides carnival rides, games and food, the fair showcases the youth of Kent County. Sewing, crafts, performing arts and many other exhibits as well as livestock and horse judging will take place.

Those having a part in Monday's Opening Ceremonies will be Kent County Commission Chairperson, Kenneth Kuipers, Lowell Mayor James Maatman and State Senator Richard Posthumus. The ceremonies also feature Comedy Ventriloquist, Barbara Jean Crandall. Miss Michigan 1984. Opening ceremonies start at 7:30 p.m.

A 4-H Fashion show is set for Tuesday on the Youth Stage at 7 p.m. Nearly 80 4-H members from all areas of Kent County will model their handiwork.

The livestock sale is expected to sell over $115,000 of swine, sheep and cattle raised by local youth. The sale will begin at 6 p.m. in the Reath show barn on Wednesday.

The fourth annual Youth Talent Show, 7 p.m. Thursday, will feature dancers, magic, clowning and comedy. This show is always a crowd pleaser.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m. is the time for the lighweight draft horse pull. These work horses have amazing power and are a joy to watch compete.

Professional Speed Horse Races will return for a third time, 4 p.m. Saturday. The competition offers approximately $5,000.00 in total prizes and will include speed horses and riders from a five state region.

All exhibit buildings will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday. Pig Races will run hourly each evening. Kandu, the Magician, will perform three times daily.

The Carnival offers reduced ride specials during certain hours on August 7, 8 & 12.

Entrance to the fair is free. Parking is only $1 per day or $2 for the week. For information concerning any fair activities call 897-6050.

Shining talent show scheduled for Fair

Dancers, Animal Acts, Comedy and Music will be only part of the program for the third annual Youth Talent Show at 7 p.m. on August 10 at the Kent County Youth Fair.

Kent County 4-H members and other youth have been practicing long and hard on the show and hope to dazzle the audience, which is expected to number 500-800. Betty Shelby, Kent County 4-H Youth Agent, explained, "This is our third year at the fair and each year the performances get more polished and entertaining. It's really a fun show for performers and spectators." It will be a great experience for the participants as well as for the audience. A great deal can be learned by kids working together on a performance and then putting their efforts in front of the audience. It can be a real self-confidence builder.

Other activities planned for Thursday include dairy and horse judging, a pet parade, and a Lightweight Draft Horse Pull. Both the Youth Talent Show and the Youth Fair have a free admission. The fairgrounds are just south of the stoplight in Lowell.

Barbara Crandall to be featured at opening ceremonies

Barbara Jean Crandall, Miss Michigan 1984, is an accomplished ventriloquist, performer and speaker.

Her talent and personality are an asset to any occasion as she proved to be the busiest Miss Michigan ever, appearing some 200 times in her year as Michigan's representative to the Miss America Pageant. Barbara's performances have included banquets, fairs, schools, corporate meetings, churches and many other festivities. She has also had several radio interviews and television appear-

Since giving up her crown June 15, 1988, she has entertained at 23 county fairs, appeared with the Beach Boys and was the featured entertainer at the Governor's Luncheon at the Ionia County Free Fair. She has appeared in major magazines and recently taped a cable special for the Grand Rapids market.

She was "bitten" by the ventriloquist bug when she was eleven years old and saw "Garray and Tomio" perform. Fascinated by the art, she set her sights on being a professional ventriloquist. Her father, convinced the dream could become a reality, trained her through an old Paul Stadelman book.

Crandall enjoys sharing her talent to entertain, help people laugh and enjoy life. Future plans are a national tour, television special, and expanding her musical career.

Crandall will be the entertainment for opening ceremonies at the Kent County Youth Fair. The program starts at 7:30 p.m., Monday, August 7 at the Lowell Fairgrounds. For more information call 897-6050.

Vergennes Cooperative Club celebrates 75 years

hy: Priscilla Lussmyer

On October 29, 1914 several young women - mostly daughters of the ladies of the "Birthday Club" - formed the Vergennes Cooperative Farm Woman's Club, so named from a part of a printed pledge in the front of the first secretary's book: "To overcome the solation of farm life by neighborhood cooperative clubs and all healthful forms of recreation.

Meeting in member's homes (except for January, 1915, when meeting was held at the "camp where Melville McPherson is sawing wood", they soon had officers, by-laws, 1 1/2 pages of notes about the by-laws, and dues which have been raised only a few times since. They usually sang a few songs and gave readings at meetings; only a number of years later did outside speakers become the rule.

Of course there were refreshments, starting with the rule that only 2 articles of food and a drink be served. The penalty for non-observance was a quarter fine, pretty steep for those days, However, the rule must have been broken early on, for secretaries in succession dutifully recorded discussion on the "luncheon question", and for quite awhile there was a potluck at every meeting. In 1934 when the "luncheon question" was brought up yet another time, Bertha Odell was quoted as saying that she "would serve 4 or 5 kinds of cakes and 6 or 7 kinds of sandwiches and a good strong drink" when she entertained.

There were serious matters to attend to also. They sewed for the Red Cross and exchanged "wheatless days" recipes during World War I; requested instruction in voting when Woman Suffrage at last was granted; visited the sick members; and bought War Stamps in World War II, they made the best of cashless depression days, paying no dues but giving 15¢ each for the needy at Christmas, and making the old program books do for another year by writing the new programs in (though when it was suggested that the books be carried over yet another year, "the house was in an uproar".) In 1932 Laura Ford won a prize for the "prettiest assortment of articles made from mash bags."

It became necessary to raise money even though members gave a nickel each for program books and got back to paying dues. IN 1937 they had given $5 of the $7.40 in the treasury to victims of the Ohio River floods. So for many years the "prize box" was raffled off at every meeting, bringing in 15-20¢ each time, and increasing with passing years. The winner of the box was dutybound to fill it with a fresh prize for the next meeting. Needless VanderTuin's trip lasted from June 15-23. He spent seven days on the road and one day for rest. Along the way he covered Western Michigan, Northwest Indiana, Central Illinois, Southern Iowa and up into Eastern South Dakota.

Unlike many bikers, Vander-Tuin did not plot his trip every step of the way. He adjusted each day's plan for wind direction. While he put on extra miles that way, he made up for it with favorable gusts, he said.

"It makes a huge difference when you don't have to buck the wind," he said.

VanderTuin noticed changed in terrain. Central Illinois and Eastern South Dakota are flat while Southern Iowa is hilly, requiring more adjustment.

He stayed mostly on state highways and county roads which run straighter and are ightly travelled, he said. He encountered no traffic problems except for an elderly woman who nearly sideswiped him near Parkston.

It is time for the government encourage the open exchange of information. More data should be placed on the bargaining table so both sides can understand the issue and make the best deal. Unnecessary classification of budget nformation should be reduced so industry can know the real shape and size of the budget and make correct investment decisions.

A great deal of time and effort was spent to root out the few unethical consultants during the two-year probe. Equal time and effort should now be spent improving the procurement process. It is time for industry and government to close the communications gap and again work together for national security.
