METHODIST PRESCHOOL HOLDS PARENTS NIGHT

The Lowell United Methodist Preschool will host Parent's Night on Wednesday, Aug. 30 from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

The preschool still has one opening in its Monday - Wednesday - Friday afternoon session for a child who will be four years old by Sept. 1, 1989.

LAAC GALLERY FEATURES LOCAL ARTIST

The Lowell Area Arts Council Gallery will feature through the month of August, "Skyscapes and Roadside Attractions", paintings by local artist, David F. Davis.

THE LOWELL SHOWBOAT NEEDS YOU!

The Lowell Showboat needs volunteers to make next year's the very best.

Help is needed in decorating, parade, boat fix-up, tickets, festival, group tours, publicity, float and more.

Come, join in the fun and challenge. Call 897-8280 Monday, Wednesday and Friday or 897-7904 anytime.

KENT SOIL DISTRICT TAKES ORDERS FOR SEEDLINGS

The Kent County Soil Conservation District is taking orders for fall delivery of tree seedlings to be used for windbreaks, to fight erosion and for wildlife habitat. The deadline for ordering is September 15, 1989.

Seedlings available are: Red Pine, Austrian Pine, White Pine, White Spruce, Blue Spruce, Norway Spruce, and Douglas Fir.

Prices range from $7.50 to $11.50 for a quantity of 25 tree seedlings. Quantities of more than 500 of the same species are cheaper per seedling.

Order blanks and more information are available at the district office, 3260 Eagle Park Drive, NE, Suite 101B, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, or by calling Ann Pitsch, at 940-9917. Orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

PHYSICALS FOR MIDDLE SCHOOL ATHLETES

Physicals for Middle School students interested in athletics for the 1989-90 school year will be held at the Middle School on August 30 at 6 p.m.

LAAC WILL HOST LIFE DRAWING WORKSHOP

The Lowell Area Arts Council is taking registrations for its Life Drawing workshop. The Workshop begins Monday, October 2 and will run for seven weeks.

This is not an instructional workshop but rather a series of sessions to enable artists within the community to have the opportunity to paint and draw from life and character models.

The fee for the workshop is $32 for LAAC members and $38 for non-members. For further information or registration call the Arts Center at 897-8545.

Bailey Rd. accident claims Ada man's life

Grand Rapids woman injured on Grand River

Two area accidents this past week claimed the life of an Ada man and injured a young Grand Rapids lady.

Donald Scott Dykhuizen, 29, of Thorncrest in Ada, was pronounced dead at the scene by John Connolly of the Kent County Medical Examiner's office.

Dykhuizen, driving a motor cycle, was eastbound on Bailey as he came over the crest of a hill and struck a manure spreader in the rear. The manure spreader was being pulled by a tractor driven by William Venneman, 37, of Lowell, according to the Kent County Sheriff's Department.

According to the sheriff's report the tractor and spreader had no lights or slow moving vehicle sign attached to it. No citation was given as the investigation is ongoing.

Thomas Hillen, Kent County Sheriff's Deputy said following completion of the investigation the accident report will be taken to the prosecutor's office where it will be decided if the case involves a civil infraction, a criminal infraction or whether no further steps are required.

Dykhuizen's body was taken to Blodgett Hospital where the autopsy was performed.

Surviving are his mother, Sandy Dykhuizen of Lowell; his father, Charles Dykhuizen of Cascade; brother, Jeffrey Dykhuizen of Tokyo, Japan; two sisters, Anne and Jennifer Dykhuizen; his fiancée, Sharon Wierenga, all of Lowell; grandfather, Lyle E. Dykhuizen of Cascade; several aunts and uncles. Funeral services were held Pool Gallery makes a difference with City's loitering

Lowell's Police Department started a foot patrol in April of last year to help Lowell merchants with the disorderly conduct on the city streets and bridge, and to alleviate the group congestion outside of city businesses. It was also established to help create an atmosphere where the youth of Lowell felt comfortable talking to the City's finest.

"The foot patrol has not been abandoned. Our reserve Sergeant Scott Borg still patrols streets on foot," Lowell Police Chief Barry Emmons said. "It seems to have helped and it

Area students accepted into WMU Honors College

Some area students are among 224 Freshmen who have been accepted into the Carl and Winifred Lee Honors College at Western Michigan University.

These students are not only academically talented with a group high school grade point average of 3.81, but they also have participated in a variety of extracurricular activities ranging from Students Against Drunk Driving to sports to drama and debate.

Among those named are: Colleen Wolpert of Alto and Darin Hodde of Ada.

"This outstanding group of freshmen will join more than 700 other academically talented undergraduates who are current members of the Lee Honors College in taking honors courses this fall," said Dr. Faith Gabelnick, dean of the Lee Honors College.

In each of their first two years, the students will take a group of three courses clustered around common themes, issues and problems such as "Mind and Body," "Science and Technology" and "American Culture."

"The cluster concept encourages students to explore relation-

'89 Showboat ticket sales fall short

The 1989 Lowell Showboat unlike previous galas, had two purposes, to provide quality entertainment and to raise funds for a special, worthwhile project within the community.

In its second year back, the 1989 Lowell Showboat met one of those two purposes. While B.J. Thomas provided quality entertainment, enough funds were not raised in the effort to help a worthwhile project within the community.

The Lowell Showboat year-end production report released recently by the Showboat board shows the 1989 extravaganza costs $7,000 more than it brought in.

According to Showboat President Gordon Gould, the Lowell gala came about 700 people (tickets) short of breaking even. The cost for this year's show was roughly $57,000. Showboat's revenue was roughly $50,000. In 1988, Showboat brought in $60,000 while its expenditures totaled $50,000, making for a $17,000 swing over the two years. Lowell Showboat Treasurer Chuck Myers said while advertising costs remained the same, production costs were up.

Gould added the increase was significant. "Our production costs (lights, sound etc.) doubled from a year ago," he said. "Entertainment was also up roughly $3,000."

According to Ticket Manager Laura McCollum, sales were going at a rate above the 1988 total until the cool, wet weather hit 10 days prior to the show. "While many factors entered into the revenue drop, I think one of the main factors was the cool, rainy weather prior to the Showboat, the threat of rain on opening night and the thunderstorms on Friday night," Gould said.

Gould added that the shortfall this year was certainly disappointing to all of those who worked to present the show. "However, it hasn't dampened the enthusiasm of the board to go ahead and plan for next year's show," he said.

Showboat's President said one thing the board will be looking at in an effort to increase revenue is to try to finance various parts of the operation so the Showboat can operate from less of a "paycheck to paycheck" position.

"It's always disappointing to work so hard and then come up short," Gould says. "There are more ways to judge the success of the year than financial. I think the board is going about it in the right manner - by looking at the positive things that happened and using them as a base for next year."

There will be a $3,000 base in the bank for the 1990 show. "We're fortunate to have some reserves from last year that will allow us to start the year with some operating capital and not from a deficit position," Gould said.

The positives Gould spoke about include, many new people becoming involved, a good positive spirit of cooperation engendered among board members, a positive attitude toward Showboat by many people, and more bus tours. People interested in volunteering their help for the 1990 Showboat can contact Gordon Gould, 949-8777, Jim Reagan 897-7179 and or Judy Straub at 897-7904. Lowell Showboat embodies what volunteerism in a small community is all about, and the rewards that are gained from it.

keeps the kids moving." While the foot patrol has helped, Emmons is the first to admit that a substantial improvement has been noticeable since the arrival of the Pool Gallery on East Main. "We still have problems with impeding traffic, graffiti, littering, trespassing, harassment and drug trafficking, but the pool hall has made a difference," Emmons said. "We are pleased with the cooperation and opportunity it has afforded the youth in Lowell. It has definitely helped as has the improvement made at Iceman's Outlet."

He adds the priorer shows the youth respect and in turn they show him courtesy in return. Emmons points to a recent drug trafficking arrest as signs of combating a small city drug problem.

Lowell will be involved in a county-wide program which will create a task force to follow up and investigate drug situations. Such programs are successful through the cooperation of cities, communities, businesses, civic organizations, churches and community residents.

"That is the first of a three-fold information program that will be started," Emmons said. "We will also be going into the schools this year and work with first, second and third-graders on an anti-drug program. We've had great community support in purchasing materials for this program."

The drug program will then filter into the middle schools and high school levels. The high school program will be similar to the adult awareness program.

Lowell will also start a child watch and a neighbor watching neighbor program. The child watch program will entail putting signs in windows of homes and businesses within the town and city limits so that a child suffering from abuse, approached by a kidnapper or drug dealer can identify where to go for help.

Neighbors watching neighbors will have neighbors reporting on suspicious activities within the neighborhood, according to Emmons.

Viewpoint

Cross my heart and hope to die... this is the "final" chapter in the Brown family western saga. Last week's episode ended at a campground near Zion National Park. After showers, some swimming and a good night's sleep we were ready for the rigors of more touring. I hate to make my vacation sound as if it was work. Honest, we really had a great time, but I think work is a little more relaxing.

Zion National Park is awesome. It differs from most of the other parks we visited in that most of the roads are down in the canyon floor. Here you are looking up at the scenery rather than down into a canyon. There are lots of great hiking trails in the park, but my bum knee and our hectic itinerary prohibited us from taking full advantage of what that wonderful park had to offer. Whoever said, "When traveling along life's highway, take time to stop and smell the flowers", certainly wouldn't enjoy traveling with me.

Off to Bryce Canyon National Park. Bryce is right next door to Zion... a mere 40 or 50 miles. Bryce Canyon gets my vote as the most scenic of all the places we visited. A 15 mile road snakes along the rim of the canyon. There are numerous places to pull off the road and take in the breathtaking scenery. It seemed as if you could just about see forever from the canyon rim which has elevations to 9,000 feet above sea level. Looking down into the canyon you are treated to an endless panorama of multi-colored rock formations that have been carved by the elements. A placard at one of the overlooks bore a quote from old Ebenezer Bryce who settled the area, and for whom the park is named. Eb's most remembered remark about the canyon is, "It's a helluva place to lose a cow". Right on, Eb baby!

We happened to visit the park as thunderstorms loomed overhead adding spectacular color and drama to the canyon. Of course we ignored the signs warning visitors to stay in their vehicles if thunderstorms are present. We heard sirens while we were there, and discovered later at a gas station that a woman had been struck by lightning at one of the scenic overlooks. We got some great pictures, but next time I just might obey the signs after hearing that story.

On to Capital Reef National Park. This was a little longer jaunt, 150 miles or so. Maybe 200 or so. By this time I was sick of trying to compute distances on a road map. I just got behind the wheel and drove, and drove, and drove.

Capital Reef is a nice park, but perhaps a little anti-climactic after Lake Powell, The Grand Canyon, Monument Valley, Valley of the Gods, Bryce Canyon, Zion and Arches National Parks, etc. The park has interesting rock formations, some fairly large peaks, but no dramatic canyons or endless arrays of spires and arches and such. The highlight of the park, in my opinion, is the Fremont River which flows through it. The Park Service uses the river to irrigate the campground and picnic areas. The lush green grass was a welcome variation from the moonscapes we had grown used to in our travels.

The garden-like setting for the campground attracted lots of wildlife, to include deer that would eat from your hand. At dinner-time a family of skunks wandered through our campsite to check what was on the grill. Fortunately they kept going in favor of the aroma coming from somebody else's dinner. They did come back that evening and eat all the kids' "Trix" cereal that was stowed in a cardboard box under the camper. They left the "Cheerios" alone. The skunks obviously never learned that "Trix are for kids".

On to Colorado on our meandering journey home. Our first stop was the Black Canyon in the Gunnison National Forest. Here the Fremont River has carved its way deep into the black rock. Hence the name. The canyon is deep, steep and narrow. It's not the deepest, steepest or narrowest in the world, but the combination of the three make it awesome! Again, the Park Service has provided those of us with a fear of heights a nice road that follows along the rim of the canyon and scares the devil out of us.

On to Royal Gorge. On the way we stopped at Monarch pass on the Continental Divide. An aerial tram ride took us up an additional 700 feet to an elevation of 12,000 feet above sea level. From this vantage point the Rockies sprawl in every direction. Kinda' made me want to sing a few bars of John Denver's "Rocky Mountain High", but I took pity on the people trying to enjoy the view.

The big deal at Royal Gorge is the bridge. The Arkansas River winds through the canyon 1,250 below the wood decked suspension bridge built back in the thirties. I was fortunate not to wet my pants as cars clattered past on the wood planks while I meekly peered over the edge. There is a sign on the railing about halfway across marking the spot where some clown jumped off the bridge tethered to a bungie cord. Try that sometime.

From Royal Gorge I led our merry band over the worst stretch of road you can imagine. It was unpaved, twisty-turny, ropy-downy, round-n-rouny for fifty miles. I doubt the army would let its tanks run on that road, and here we were pulling campers behind our vans. Two hours later the road came out where the map said it would... Victor, Colorado. Victor is an old silver mining town that was a haunt of mine when stationed at nearby Fort Carson about a hundred years ago. It hadn't changed much, except that it had died just a little more. We hit a couple of antique shops and threw back a couple of beers at Zeke's Bar. Zeke is still there. Zeke, his gartered sleeves and handlebar mustache have been there over fifty years. Of all the places we had visited, the kids liked Victor and the nearby Cripple Creek best. You figger it out!

From Cripple Creek we motored down and around the back side of Pike's Peak and into Colorado Springs. This was really my old stomping grounds. I have lots of fond memories from there, to include proposing to my wife from a pay phone. But, I was pooped, and instead of painting the town, I crashed early. Besides, I hadn't brought my old address book with me. Just kidding, Terese.

Well, Colorado Springs was about the end of the line as far as our vacation went. From there it was 1,250 miles of eastern Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Michigan. Unless you are up for tales of endless cornfields, then I guess I'm done here. Thanks for bearing with me over these four weeks of vacation stories. If you've made it this far, and aren't bored to tears, maybe you'd like to see some slides. I've got about 600, or so.

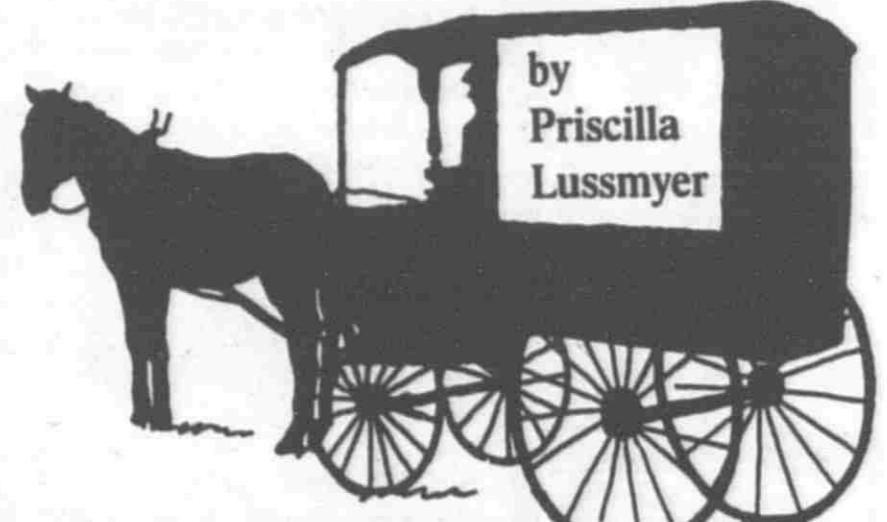

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
 Drunk driving kills our friends and family members at an alarming rate, and remains the most frequently committed crime in the nation. On average, one person dies every 22 minutes, 65 each day, and more than 23,000 Americans lose their lives due to drunk driving crashes each year. Here in Michigan 793 men, women and children died in alcohol-related crashes last year. That is why MADD and Volkswagen United States, Inc. are focusing state attention on the third annual DRIVE FOR LIFE public awareness campaign. We are asking that all motorists turn on their headlights during daylight hours of the Labor Day Weekend in remembrance of those 793 individuals who were killed in drunk driving crashes and, of course, to drive sober over the Labor Day Weekend and for the rest of the year.

a lot stronger. I know that there are mothers/stepmothers that also abuse their children, but something has to be done about this and the stepparent/live-in friend's continued abuse of children.

To summarize the current attitude amidst our governmental agencies: the first time that I had called Protective Services, the worker I spoke with informed me that the question is not "was the child abused," but "to what extent has the child been abused" before they would attempt to intervene.
 Amy J. Starkweather/Thornton

To Parents and Students of Lowell High School:
 We need your help. We have a major problem called "lack of space" in the High School parking lot. The administration has been forced to limit driving and parking privileges to Juniors and Seniors only.
 Over the past few years, we have experienced an increased number of student drivers, creating overcrowded conditions in the parking lot. We have gone from 385 cars registered in 1984 to over 650 cars registered last year. As a result of this tremendous increase, we have experienced problems such as blocked fire lanes, blocked emergency exits and entrances and damaged cars due to parking too close to each other.
 By curtailing 10th grade drivers, we have solved much of these problems, but we still need your help. PLEASE do not allow your son or daughter to drive a car to school unless it's absolutely necessary. Bus transportation is available to almost all students and it is the easiest, most punctual, and economical means of transportation to school. We ask all parents that if it is at all possible, to please have your student ride the bus to school.
 Those 10th graders who find it necessary to drive to school will be provided parking space in the Middle School parking lot in the southeast corner. Please do not park on the city streets surrounding the High School, as this creates problems with our neighbors, resulting in blocked driveways, mailboxes and narrow streets. Tickets will be issued to violators by the City Police.

HEALTH
 By Dr. Paul Gauthier and Dr. Jim Lang
GENITAL WARTS
 Condyloma acuminata is the medical term for genital warts. It is probably one of the most common sexually transmitted diseases. Unfortunately, it has been implicated as one of the principle causes of cancer of the cervix.
 Genital warts are due to infection of the genital tract by a virus, human papilloma virus. It infects both males and females and is spread by intimate sexual contact. A person infected with the virus may or may not develop warts. Recently, studies have shown that a great number of individuals proven to be infected with the virus have never had visible genital warts. Some warts are so small they can only be seen after staining the genital tract and then examining the area with special magnifying equipment. In other words, many unsuspecting individuals carry the virus as a sub-clinical infection. It is currently not known whether those with sub-clinical infection can transmit the virus to their partners.
 Genital warts appear as small warty bumps or clusters on the penis, vulva and perianal region. Warts may also be detected inside the vagina or on the cervix during pelvic examinations.
 Because of its association with the development of cervical cancer, it is very important for females to be followed closely with pap smears and occasionally colposcopic (a magnified exam of the cervix after special staining) examinations. If atypical cells are found on the pap smear, your doctor will usually recommend a colposcopic examination and biopsy of suspicious tissue of the cervix, which is done in the office.
 Genital warts are treated by freezing, electrocautery, laser or placement of chemicals on the lesion to completely destroy them. Sexual partners should also be examined and treated. The male partner does not seem to be at increased risk of developing genital warts if he is infected, but it is important to eradicate visible lesions to prevent spread to others.
 As with other sexually transmitted diseases, prevention is the key. Know your partner very well and use condoms if there is any doubt.

Siler is Agriscience "Teacher of the Year"

Pete Siler, Advisor for the Lowell FFA Chapter, has been selected as the Michigan winner of the Agriscience Teacher of the Year award program. Siler was recognized in Michigan for excellence in teaching science principles and emerging technologies as they relate to agriculture.

As a state winner, Siler, Lowell High School agriculture instructor/FFA advisor, will receive a plaque and is now eligible to compete for regional and national awards totalling $12,000 in the National FFA's Agriscience Teacher of the Year awards program.

The National FFA Organization will recognize up to four Agriscience Teachers of the Year at their 62nd National FFA Convention to be held November 9-11, in Kansas City, MO. The Agriscience Teacher of the Year awards program is the only awards program for instructors awarded by the youth organization. The national winners will be featured in a slide show to be presented during the awards ceremony.

The Agriscience Teacher of the Year award recognizes outstanding agricultural educators who emphasize agriscience technology in their curriculum through innovative programs in biological, environmental and engineering sciences and agribusiness technologies. The program is a special project and the National FFA Foundation, Inc., sponsored by Dow Chemical, U.S.A., GTE Corporation and the General Fund of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

FFA is a national organization of 405,000 students in 7,800 local chapters preparing for agricultural careers. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in agricultural education by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. Developing agricultural leadership, cooperation, and citizenship are FFA's major objectives.

DONALD R. GARVIN, HEAD DESIGNER

Lowell community holds benefit for Michael Doyle

Article submitted by:
Elaine Starkweather

On the battlefield, when a soldier is wounded, the other infantrymen clamour around him and escalate their efforts. They designate a couple of able-bodied doughboys to carry him on a makeshift stretcher, while others divide his gear and willingly burden what he is unable to. One army buddy offers to personally contact his loved ones. Another pal walks alongside him and reassures, with a strong and clutching grip, as he is being lumbered to a "pick-up", where he'll be helicoptered to an infirmary. And the entire platoon adjusts and reshifts responsibilities and watches in their operation so that a remarkable "joint effort" takes up the slack. That's what this benefit's all about. Lowellites can be proud of themselves. They are a community of medal-of-honor-deserving comrades! So many willing foot soldiers have volunteered their time, services, efforts, talents, goods and expertise that it enlightens Lowell's benevolence-status to goose-bump proportions. With every "yes, I'll be glad to help or donate to the benefit," I have felt tingling shivers and tugs at my heart. It's such an emotional high to be involved in something that is being so well-received by the businesses, merchants and townspeople!

Watching Lowell rally around Michael Doyle to help raise money for his cause has certainly vanquished any doubts I might have had about mankind. We have a local soldier down; the call has been heeded; and everyone is offering to help carry the proverbial stretcher. Mike is an amazing young man, with quick wit, and a shy but open smile, who has battled cancer for eight long years. In 1981 he lost his leg to the disease. He knew what the enemy was from the start: GIVING UP. He determined himself to forge the enemy line; he continued to war against the cancer, though critically wounded. He marched through years of painful testing, draining and devastating surgeries and insurmountable odds. He worked; he played; he laughed; he lived. But he never once felt sorry for himself. Michael is a warm and sensitive husband, father, son, brother and friend. And he's done it with great gusto in his nineteen years. He lives with his wife, Kathryn, (also 19) and his son, Justin, (1 year), in Valley Vista Trailer Park. He is the son of Pat Doyle, (of Grand Rapids), and Marie Doyle, (of Lowell). Both of his parents are employed at Amway. They are average, honest, and hardworking people, like most of those you see walking down Lowell's streets. Their misfortune could befall any one of us.

Michael, Kathryn and Justin Doyle

Realizing that, Lowell residents will be raising money for Michael at a benefit on Sunday, Sept. 3 at the Lowell Village Inn, (211 W. Main St.). There will be a pancake breakfast from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., with all the proceeds going to Michael. At 12 noon SHARP, a pool tournament for mixed singles will start. There is a $10 entry fee, with $5 going to Mike and $5 going to prizes. The tournament will last until about 4 p.m.

There will be a raffle. The tickets are $1 each. The prize is $250 in gift certificates and merchandise, donated by Lowell businesses and merchants, who are nothing short of valiant, top-notch and remarkable. The grand total of the raffle prizes could amount to even more than $250 by the day of the benefit, depending on any new donations. All proceeds from the raffle will go to Mike. Tickets can be purchased right now at the Village Inn, or by calling 897-8624, (ask for Elaine). Or they can be purchased the day of the benefit, at the Village Inn. There will be live entertainment beginning at 5 p.m., furnished by Easy Road, Country Connection and possibly the Dave and Sharon Potter Band.

From my bird's-eye-view, I'd say this event is going to skyrocket into something that Lowell will be proud to have hosted for many years to come. If you want to donate or contribute in any way, just call the above telephone number, or go to the Village Inn, and ask for Jane. We want to give everybody a chance to be a part of this. And however prematurely, let me just express my deepest appreciation to all of you who have already donated or contributed to make the MICHAEL DOYLE BENEFIT a whopping success. Hope to see you there.

scores. They also were evaluated on the quality of an essay, their participation in co-curricular and community activities and academic recommendations.

Once accepted into the Lee Honors College, students became eligible for honors housing in the Eldridge-Fox residence hall complex, where a majority of them elected to live. While pursuing their major and minor fields of study, the freshmen will join other able students in honors courses, internships, research projects, volunteer work in the community and cultural and social activities. Lee Honors College students receive priority registration for all classes. "The special courses and enrichment opportunities provided for these academically high achievers through the Lee Honors College illustrate the University's continued commitment to academic excellence," Gabnick said.

We hope you will discuss this problem with your student and stress the importance of cooperation with school and city officials. We regret our high school parking lot can no longer serve the growing number of drivers. We do not want to impose a "large parking fee" for a permit because it might hurt those who really do need to drive, but we may have to consider such in the future if the problem continues. James C. DeWester, Principal

Red Arrows' Akers guarded about season

Lowell's young bench will be served in '89 season

Coach Ken Akers seemed a little confused as he prepared to sit down and talk about the upcoming Lowell girls' basketball team.

In his first breath, he spoke of how he was worried because there were only two days of practice left before his club's first game.

In his second breath, he talked about the talented, hard working, good listening and competitive group of girls that fill the 12-player roster.

"It's a fun group to coach. They listen and they want to improve," Akers said.

Lowell's girls' basketball program got a taste of winning in 1988, finishing third in the league at 9-5 and 14-6 overall.

"I believe we can be competitive and as successful as last year's team," Akers concurs about a team that returns one starter from last year (Erica Hackenbruch).

"Kim Marvin and Deb Adams saw plenty of playing time coming off the bench," he adds.

There maybe just one returning starter, but there are five returning lettermen. All of whom, should play a part in a bigger and possibly quicker attack.

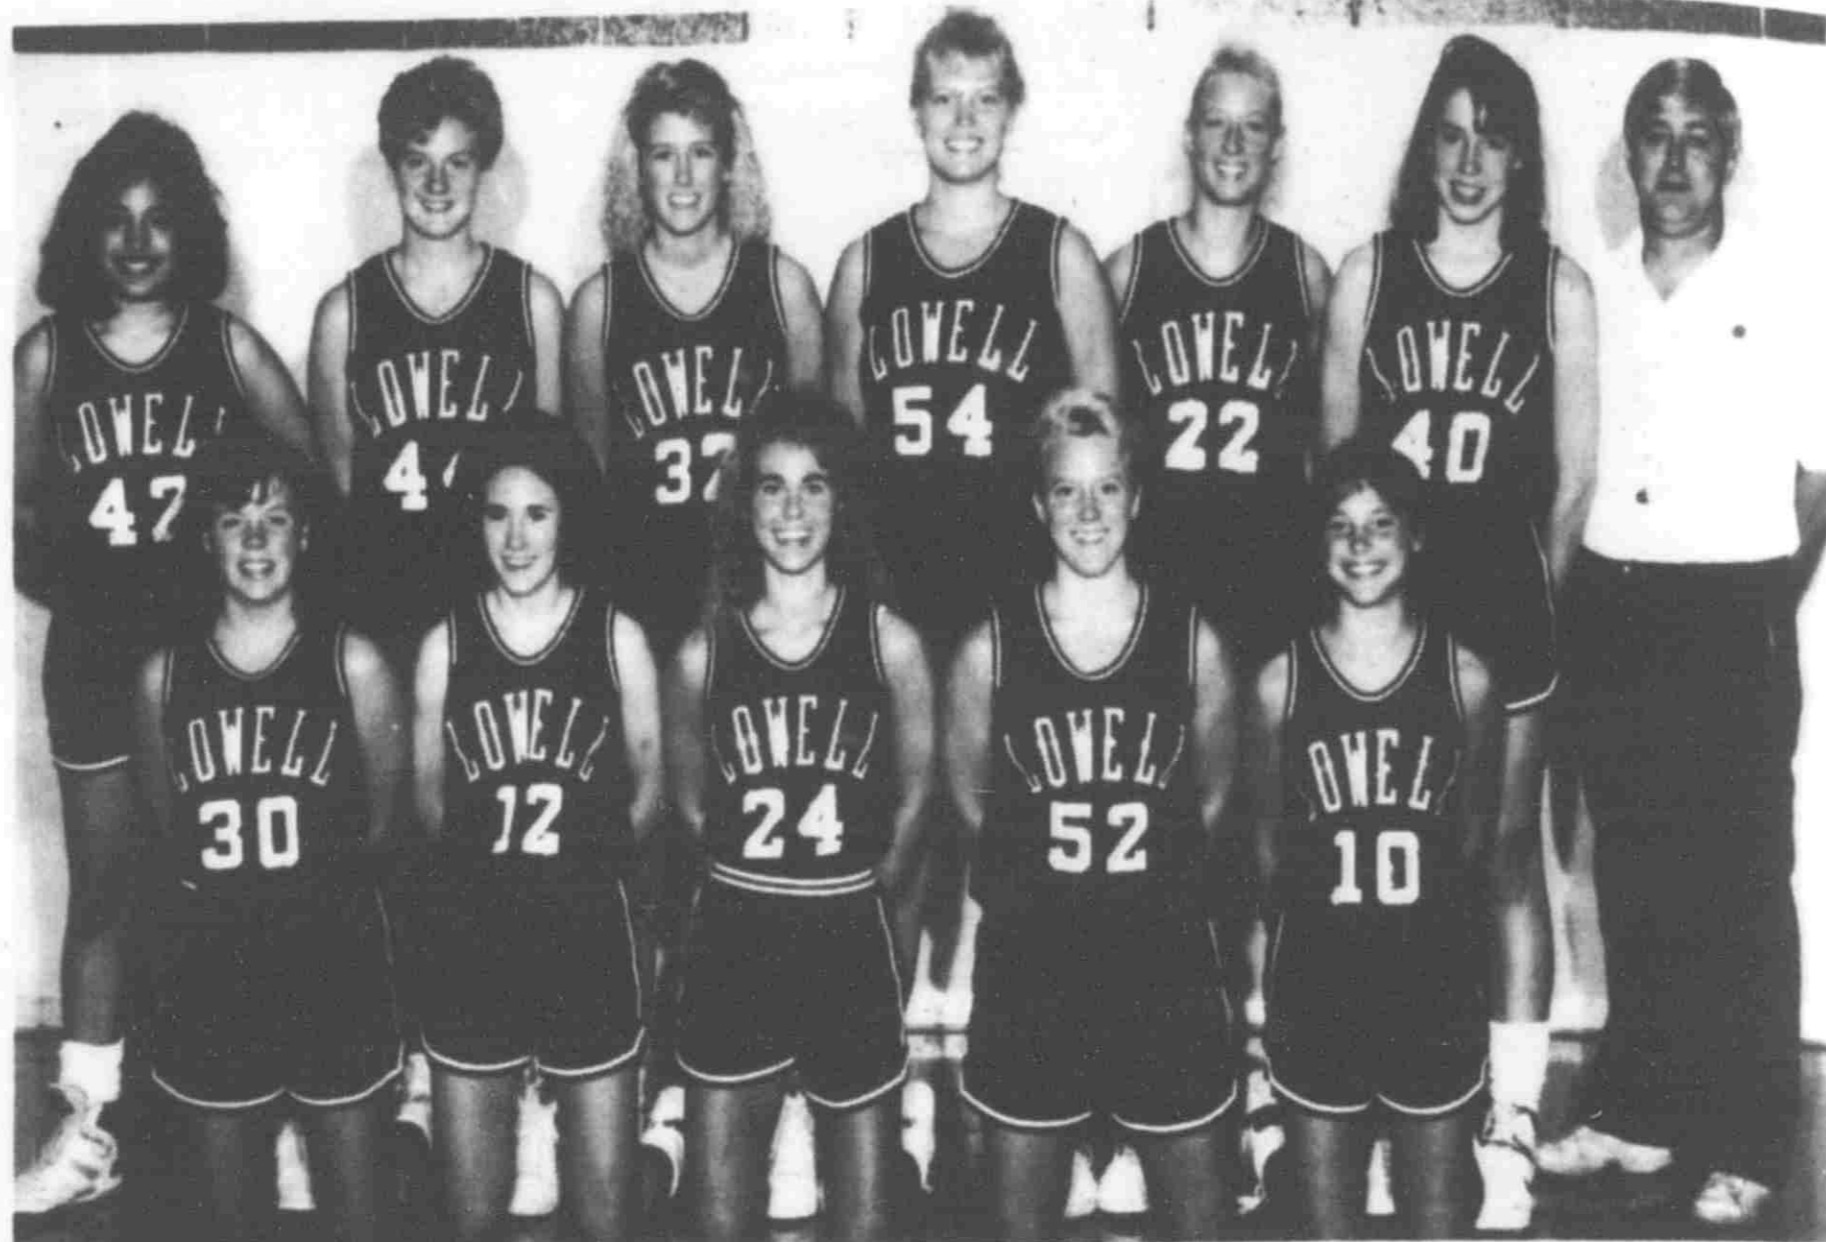

Akers sees the success of replacing the void left by Julie Tarak at point guard as a key to how the season will progress. So far, he has been pleasantly surprised by the effort of senior Jennifer Murphy. "She's doing a decent job. She's dribbled and shot well, especially the three-pointer," he says. If there is an area of her game he believes she needs some work, it would be in her passing. She will also be counted on for floor leadership.

Her partner at the off-guard position will be senior Tonya Stepek. Both girls will be counted on to get the ball in the capable scoring hands of forward Kim Marvin and Hackenbruch (center).

"Marvin is quick and we will count on her as a scorer along with Hackenbruch," he says. Akers is also hopeful that Murphy and Stepek will pick up some of the scoring slack.

Hackenbruch, tough inside, is the type of player Akers believes can dominate a game. "We will be posting up both Hackenbruch and Marvin," he says. The second-year coach also plans on using more double screens to free Marvin for the ball.

forward position will be Deb Adams. The senior will provide strong defense and solid rebounding on the inside. When asked about depth, Lowell's coach smiles. "I think I will be able to play nine girls and not lose a whole lot in the switch," he said.

Thanks to a bench that will hold the likes of Tonya Czarnopis, Angie Arnett, Renee Nugent and Angie Brown. Czarnopis will play backup point guard to Murphy. "Her fine effort at point guard has also been a pleasant surprise. There may come a time during the regular season where I play Czarnopis at point and move Murphy to the off guard position," Akers said.

Arnett, not far from breaking into the starting lineup, according to Akers, possesses a tough inside game. The sophomore duo of Nugent and Brown give added depth to the guard and forward spots. Along with Hackenbruch, the threesome form a solid nucleus for the future.

"Nugent does everything well. Her long arms and good hands help to make her deceptively quick," Akers says. "She works well inside and can postup."

Brown, not as fast or quick as many of her teammates, but with good anticipation is able to run the floor well, according to Akers. "She's playing varsity basketball because she is smart and is an excellent outside shooter," he concludes. Akers said if a combination of things happen, most importantly the girls gain some confidence boys' cont'd.

Harper warns. Pushing those three letter winners from a year ago will be freshmen with promising last names - Jason VanderWarf (Clay's younger brother) and Tom Mull (Mike Mull's younger brother). "Both freshmen are looking strong. They could run 18 or better," smiles Harper.

The coach explains that it is hard to tell right now. "It's early and we are working on hills and strength. Come mid-season, I will work more for speed."

While only five times are used in scoring, seven barriers participate in each varsity meet. The Red Arrow filling that seventh spot may change with every meet. "I couldn't tell you right now who that seventh man might be," Harper says.

early. He then thinks they will contend for the league title along with Rogers and Forest Hills Central.

The Red Arrows first league game is at home Sept. 21 against Rogers.

Red Arrow netters and first-year coach eager to learn and get better

Sheila Dubbink, Lowell's varsity girls' tennis coach, may have bitten off more than she can chew.

The first-year coach, replacing (her sister) Sharon Huver, takes over a program "whose cupboards are bare" following the graduation of seven seniors.

"I'm not sure the girls know what's ahead," Dubbink teases. "Seriously, I would like to build girls' tennis in Lowell so it becomes competitive and more than just a recreation. That is tough to do when there has been a different coach each of the last five years."

While Dubbink inherits a young and inexperienced club, the flipside of that is they're all eager to learn and eager to get better.

"We can't compete with schools like Forest Hills Central and East Grand Rapids where tennis is played year-round," she says.

Tennis is for the most part an individual's game, but Dubbink wants to build a team togetherness attitude. "When a player is through with her match, I want her to have a genuine interest in what her teammates are doing," she says.

One Red Arrow, who will compete and compete hard against many of her league competitors, will be the Red Arrow's number one singles player, sophomore Kathie Abel.

Senior Kirsten Amundsen, in her fourth year of tennis, will fill the second singles spot for Dubbink.

The first-year coach will position Nancy Wingeier in at third singles, while Sara Kelly will answer the call as the fourth singles player.

Kris Stouffer and Alison Zillmer will be ticketed for number one doubles. Other doubles players will include Heather Tap, Rachael McGrew, Connie Colburn, Diedra Denboer and Jenny Langridge.

Lowell's first league match will be at home Sept. 11 against Rogers.

Lowell boy linksters eye improved '89 season and O-K White's top 3

No matter the Lowell High School sport, there seems to be one common denominator, great student participation.

"Lowell athletics has always had good participation levels. The same can be said for boys' golf this year," Lowell boys' golf coach Jack Ogle said. "I have 20 boys out for the team this year. That's great, it makes for great competition within the team. It also makes players better."

In 1988 Jerud Mierkalkns was far and away the best Red Arrow golfer week in and week out. Mierkalkns may prove to be the best again in 1989, but he will have to work for it.

A transfer from football, junior John Borg has created what Ogle calls a good healthy competitive spirit between the two linksters. "They may enjoy beating one another more than their opponents," Ogle laughs.

Both Red Arrows are capable of coming home under 80 for 18 and in the high 30s for nine holes. Mierkalkns, an All-Conference performer from a year ago, may hold a slight advantage.

Lowell placed seventh in the O-K White last year. Ogle says that will change drastically in 1989. "I think our boys and Zealand will be the most improved clubs in the conference with Forest Hills Central (three All-State kids returning) and East Grand Rapids being the favorites," he says.

How much Lowell improves will depend heavily on the performances of Chris Elzinga, Phil Bennis, Steve Barnhart and Chad Laux. All four players average between 42 and 44. "This is Laux's first year out and he shot an 81 (18 holes) at North Kent," Ogle said.

Even should a few of these linksters falter slightly, there is a group of five players that are carding 45-46s in the early

In the Kent County Tourney (30-plus teams) at Broadmoor (par 72), Lowell placed fifth among Class B schools and ninth overall. Mierkals and Borg both shot 81. Laux came home in 86, while Elzinga carded an 89. In the Forest Hills Northern Classic at North Kent (par 70), the Red Arrows placed fourth in Division I. Lowell posted a team score of 320. Borg came off the course with a 77, Mierkals carded a 79, Laux shot an 81 and Elzinga finished with an 83. In the Lowell Invitational held at Deer Run Golf Course, the Red Arrows were sixth out of 24 teams. In match play Mierkals and Borg came home with an 80 and an 83 respectively. Mierkals was fifth out of 132 players. Lowell's best ball team of Elzinga and Laux combined for an 89, while the Red Arrow scramble squad of Barnhart and Bennis carded an 80. Lowell's team score was 332.

Lowell opens with Catholic Central, Sept. 1

Red Arrow gridders add new offensive set for '89; to team with traditionally tough defense

Shhhhhhhhhhh. I've got a secret. Promise not to tell anyone from Catholic Central. More importantly, don't let it slip out when in the company of a Pioneer (you know, East Grand Rapids).

Lowell Coach Phil Christensen, entering his 10th year as the Red Arrow gridiron leader, will introduce another offensive look to opponents on the 1989 football schedule.

No, he's still going to run from the two-back set, but this year he will cross-up opponents with the more wide open one-back offense. Whatever you do, don't suggest to the Coach that he's slipping away from his power football style. "We're still going to be a power football team. We're just going to give opponents another set to look at," he says with conviction.

Coach Christensen says the offense has looked good running plays from both sets. "Our offense has done as well against our defense at this point than any Lowell offense in the recent past," he says.

I asked him if that meant the offense was better or the defense was not as strong? He gave me a "if looks could kill" glance before adding, "we're still going to have our traditionally tough defense."

Tradition may be tested this year for only two defensive starters return - David Organek at linebacker and defensive back, Jason Pine. Joel Eckman, who was a part-time starter at defense one year ago will return too. Bob Adams will make the switch from running back to safety for Coach Christensen in 1989.

Candidates who could join Pine and Adams in the secondary include Jeff Compton, Scott Nagy and Jeff Lilly. The group could also get help from a list of linebackers which includes Tom Moore, Jeff Hoffman, Jerud Blough, Todd Phillips, Lee Iteen, Chad Newhouse and Bill Black.

"I have good feelings about our linebacking and secondary crews," Christensen said. "There are six players vying for the four defensive line positions. While Christensen would not say, penciling in John Rupp and Tim VanAmburgh and Jason Hamilton would be safe. Mike Debold, Mike Forrest and Josh Duher are also in the hunt for a starting spot.

"Our defense has to prevent against being victimized by long drives," Christensen explains.

Using the one-back offense requires someone who is throwing with confidence and has good feet. Senior Ryan Holtz has displayed all of those characteristics in two-a-day practices. "The offensive line is giving him time and Holtz has used that to his advantage. He's been an off-sive bright spot."

When not passing, Holtz will be helped out by senior tailback, and Lowell speed demon Kevin Goggins, fullback Brett Knoop and power back Steve Lenger. "Knoop runs well and is strong and Lenger has been a pleasant surprise.

Mike Gahan and/or David Stencil will be Holtz's tight end target and Rob Phillips will be the Red Arrow wideout.

The offensive line has given Holtz quality time in the pocket. The tackle spots will be filled by Dennis Wisman and either Gary Krul or Jeremy Hull. Starting at the two guard spots will be Dan Stockreef, Pete Gerkin and/or Rob McGee. Jeff Schmidt, the starting center, will be out indefinitely due to knee surgery. Filling his spot will either be Chris Thompson or Jim Bowen.

"Our offensive line is bigger than in previous years and it is still somewhat quick," Christensen said.

"Our offense must execute so that our defense isn't on the field as much."

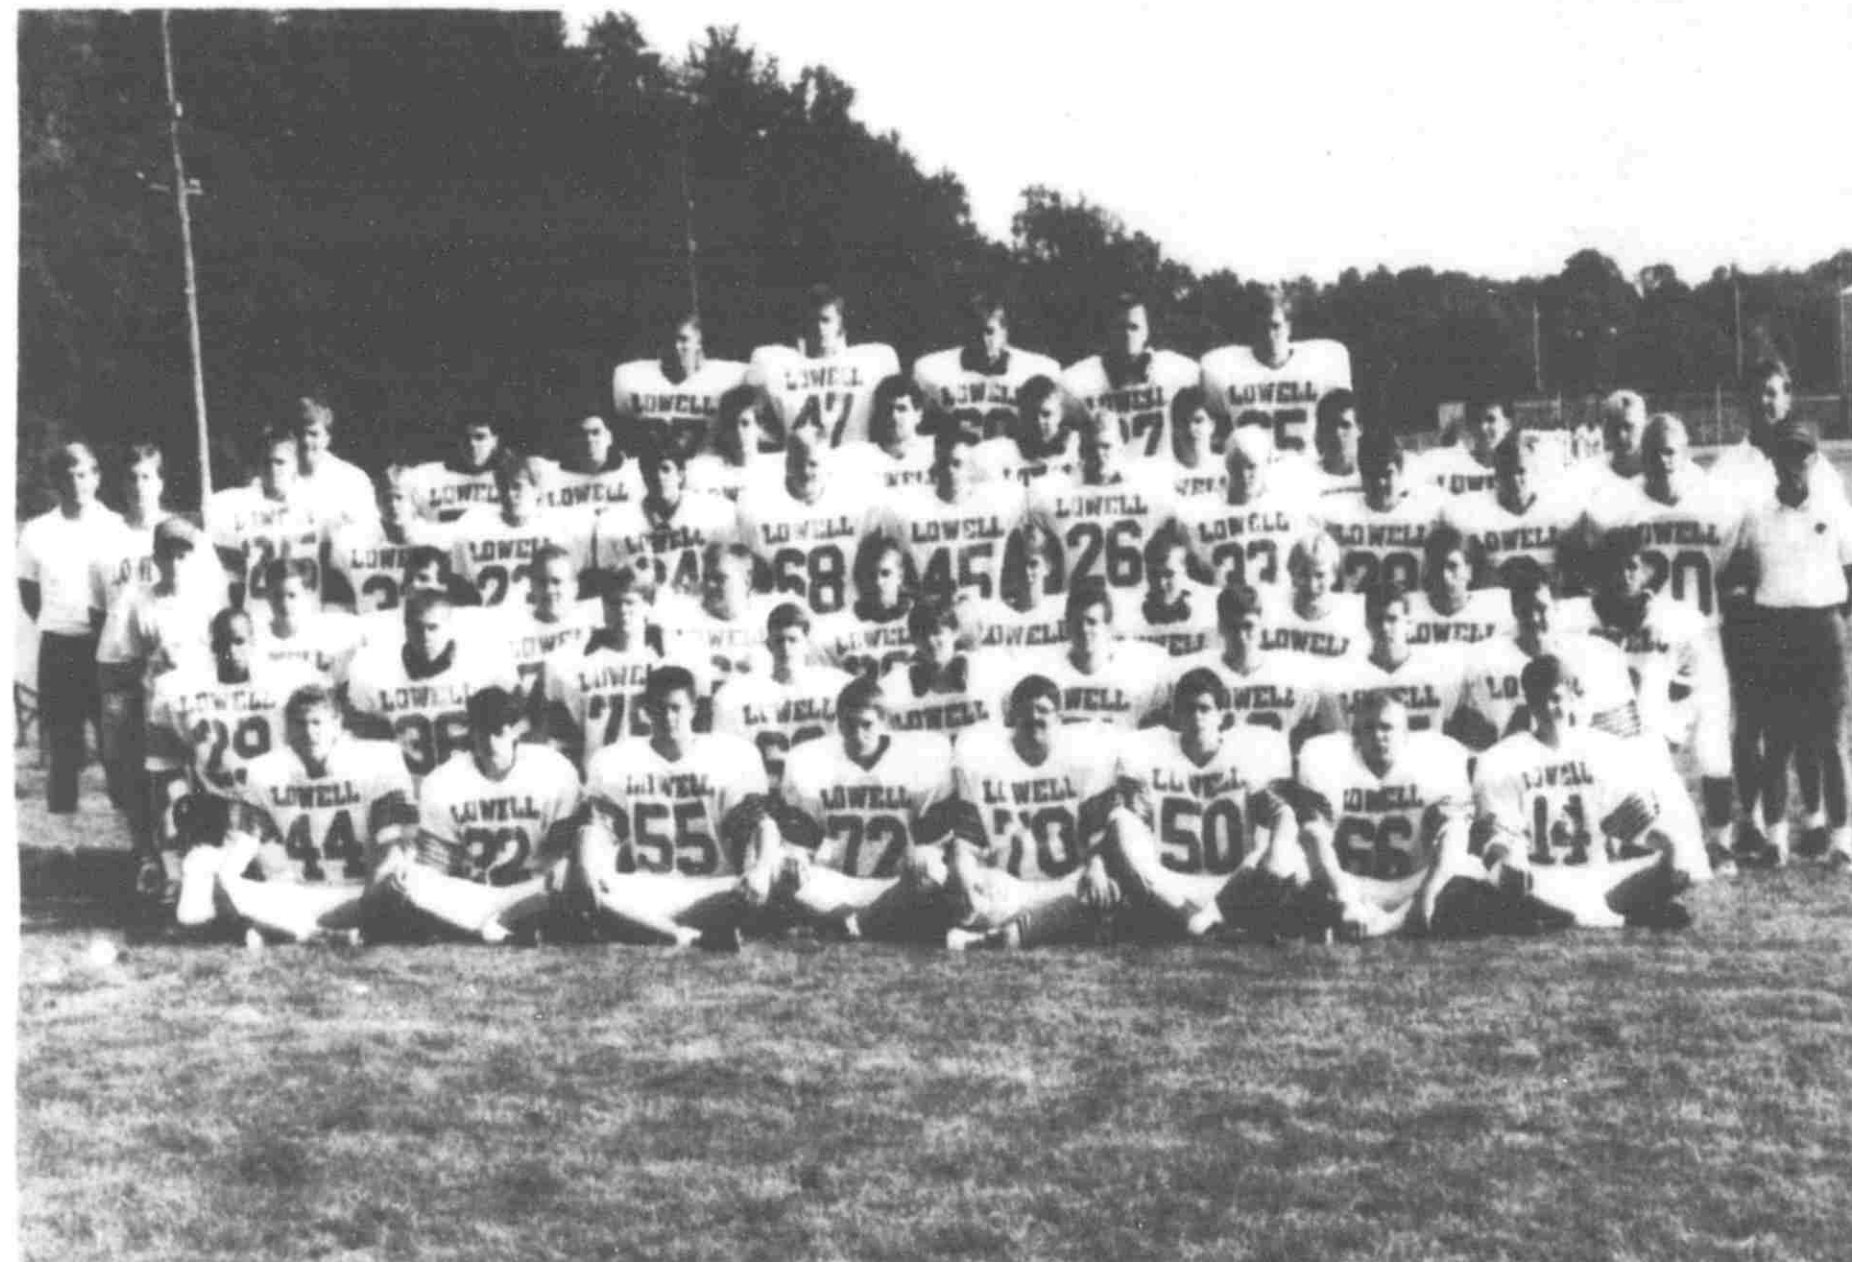

Lowell's coach would like to see his run-to-pass ratio right around 70-30 or 65-35.

The 10-year mentor favors East Grand Rapids and Zealand in the O-K White, ironically enough both games are on the road in 1989. "Many are picking Zealand, but EGR hasn't lost two years in a row to the same club very often," he says. "I think we will also be in the hunt."

Lowell finished at 5-4 overall and 4-3 in the league last year. Christensen believes they can do better. "If we play together as a team and show some heart, we'll be alright," Christensen said.

But coach, that's the Lowell tradition.

Lowell students enrolled in education assessment program

Michigan's fourth, seventh and tenth graders will participate in a nationally and internationally recognized program this fall when they take Michigan's new EAP reading test. The Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) will implement an entirely new reading test in September that will measure how well students apply their reading skills in actual reading situations. The new test is viewed as a model by several states and has received international recognition as well.

Newell Mfg. sponsors finalist in pre-teen pageant

Devon Cantrell, age 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Cantrell of Grand Rapids has been selected as a finalist in the 1989 MISS MICHIGAN NATIONAL PRE-TEEN PAGEANT to be held at the Radisson Hotel in Lansing on September 1 and 2. This is not a beauty pageant but instead based on academics, leadership and achievement. The contest is searching for a young lady who will be representative of American Youth at its best.

Workshop coincides with school improvement plan

Last spring Lowell Schools announced its plan to incorporate a school improvement process that would build from the bottom-up, instead of new ideas being mandated from the top-down. Outside of the Strategic Planning Committee there currently exists no formal method within the structure of the Lowell Area Schools which would assure an on-going process for school improvement.

The group decision process which Lowell has committed itself to, allows ownership into a problem and ownership into the success of providing improvements.

On Thursday, Aug. 29 Lowell took another step in the direction of their school improvement plan with an all-day school improvement workshop. Its emphasis was on how to build effective teams in solving school problems.

The workshop was hosted by Mike Zinn of Dynamics Impact. It was not mandatory that staff attend. "We gave staff the option of going to the workshop and not coming in on Monday, Aug. 29 or not going to the workshop and coming in on the 29th," Lowell High School Principal Jim DeWeerd said. "All but two staff members attended the workshop."

The staff was divided into six teams and were asked to come up with the best possible solution for a problem. "Zinn's exercise showed how to come to a consensus when a group disagrees, and how to incorporate groups together and work as a whole," DeWeerd said. "We all know if more people are involved that more and better ideas surface."

The problems Zinn confronted the staff with, dealt with interaction between staff vs staff, staff vs student, staff vs parents and staff vs administrators.

According to DeWeerd, the 5 1/2 hour workshop provided very practical, positive and useful answers that can be implemented. "My goal is to take the information from the workshop and apply it throughout the school year."

The workshop did not provide solutions to problems, instead it provided processes that can be applied in an attempt to come up with solutions.

DeWeerd is hopeful that the workshop creates a cohesiveness among the staff and reminds the staff that teams are more effective. "I think we are all aware of this, but because of time and self-ishness we sometimes make up our own plan and fail to consult with others," he said.

While Zinn's workshop did not provide any revolutionary ideas, it did make an effort to shed light on processes used in coming to a solution.

Biggs hits hole-in-one

Lowell's Dick Biggs recorded a hole-in-one at Arrowhead Golf Course on Saturday, Aug. 18. Biggs, playing with Dave Brad Biggs and John Brower, guided his ball in off the tee with a three iron on the par three ninth hole.

Red Arrow kickers open with 3-0 win

The 1989 Red Arrow varsity soccer team opened its season with an impressive 3-0 win over Ottawa Hills.

Lowell's Dave Kelly opened the scoring with a 30-yard crossing shot, giving the Red Arrows a 1-0 lead.

It was increased to 2-0 when Brad Biggs scored his first high school goal from 20 yards out. John Kohler used a front-rebound volley in the penalty zone to record Lowell's third and final score of the game. The Red Arrows had 41 shots on goal.

Aaron Snell was the winning goal keeper.

Wierenga ready to see action

Lowell High School product J.J. Wierenga will key the Central Michigan University defensive line this fall. The 6-4, 265-pound junior registered 37 tackles as a starter in '88. He is pictured here with CMU assistant coach Jim Schulte.

The Chippewas open the season Saturday, Sept. 9 at Southwestern Louisiana.

Take your pick of harvest fests in Michigan this fall all's palette of brilliant reds, pinks and browns will be seen at 45 festivals around the state, AAA Michigan reports.

These shades of autumn appear in the woods and on the table. More than 50 colorful varieties of Michigan-grown produce provide enough ingredients for a year's worth of meals. Last year, Michigan produced 800 million pounds of apples, 112 million bushels of corn and 45 million pounds of peaches.

To help discover the state's flavor, AAA Michigan's 1989 harvest festival guide lists a cornucopia of events where travelers can take their pick of things to do and goodies to eat.

A sampling of the fun includes travelers in southwest Michigan with an appreciation for fancy footwork making way for grape stomping during an Oktoberfest at the Berrien Vintners Winery in Harbert, Oct. 7.

Visitors of the Apple Festival in Charlevoix's East Park on Round Lake can take a trip aboard the Star of Charlevoix or haywagon and take in fall colors while sipping cider. Two festivals this year give travelers something to do with seeds after eating to their hearts delight.

The Four Flags Area Apple Festival in Niles, Sept. 22-24, and the Bessemer Pumpkin Festival, Oct. 13-14, serve up seed-spitting contests.

For something to carry freshly picked treats home in, visit Hanover's Fall Heritage Festival, Oct. 1, and catch a basket weaving demonstration.

Honey harvesting demonstrations and beeswax candles highlight a Fall Festival in Jackson, Sept. 24.

Travelers can spend time at the Michigan Peach Festival in Romeo, Aug. 31 - Sept. 4, with bed races, carnival rides and parades.

A toy tractor pull, horse-pulling competition, livestock auction and pony rides will entertain visitors of the Marquette County Fair, Sept. 8-10.

At many of the farms and orchards hosting festivals, visitors may gather their own fresh fruits and vegetables. Some harvesting tips include:

- * Call ahead for business hours and produce availability.
- * Take along enough containers.
- * Wear rugged clothing and shoes.
- * Respect owner's property and follow instructions.

Coho salmon runs promising

Anglers should land good catches of coho salmon during the annual fall spawning runs, AAA Michigan reports.

But prospects for improved chinook salmon fishing, especially in Lake Michigan, remain mixed, according to Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologists.

A number of factors have been identified as contributing to declining chinook salmon populations, including lack of food, disease and water pollution.

To help increase the numbers of chinook salmon, the DNR has planted 6.8 million chinook this year, up from previous years.

However, good survival rates should result in better coho salmon fishing. And pink salmon are also making their biennial return to home rivers this season.

An estimated 500,000 anglers head out to the Great Lakes in August and September and then to tributaries through October to catch the challenging fish.

The 1989 AAA Michigan salmon guide lists 52 spots for the best chinook, coho and pink salmon fishing.

Both chinooks and cohos were introduced into the Great Lakes in the 1960s and are maintained with annual stream stocking programs. Pinks were accidentally introduced into the Great Lakes in the 1950s and have maintained their population since.

Chinook average 14 to 20 pounds with the heaviest concentrations in Lakes Michigan and Huron streams.

Cohos average 6 to 8 pounds with the heaviest runs in Lake Superior and Michigan connecting waters and Detroit-area rivers.

Pinks average 2 to 4 pounds and can be found in Lake Superior and northern portions of Lakes Huron and Michigan.

Another salmon species, Atlantic, has been introduced into the St. Marys River at Sault Ste. Marie since 1987. Anglers catching these fish should return tags clipped to the salmon to the DNR as part of a study on the fish's migration and growth.

Salmon snagging is allowed with artificial baits or unweighted hooks Sept. 10 through Oct. 25 on designated sections of the Sable, Pere Marquette, Big Manistee and Muskegon Rivers. A snagging stamp is required.

Anglers concerned about contaminants in Great Lakes salmon should file, skin and trim the fat along the edges and center of the filets. That removes the fatty portions where contaminants are concentrated. The fish should then be baked, broiled or barbecued allowing remaining fat to drip off.

The Romans built more than 50,000 miles of road in their empire. Some are still in use today. They are distinctive in that they run in almost straight lines, passing over hills instead of cutting around them.

Patsy Deans

Patsy Deans contestant in Michigan teen pageant

Patsy Deans, daughter of David and Betty Deans, 5333 Montcalm, SE, has been selected as an entrant in the 1989 Miss Michigan Teen All American pageant to be staged in the Grand Ballroom of the Troy Hilton on Saturday and Sunday, September 2 and 3. This event will select Michigan's representative to the twelfth annual Miss Teen All American Pageant staged at the luxurious Sheraton Bal Harbour Resort on world-famous Miami Beach next July.

Deans will be competing with young women from all over the State for the title of Miss Michigan Teen All American 1989. She attends Lowell Senior High School where she participates in the National Honor Society and International Club. Deans is also a member of the Outstanding Students of America Organization. Her other activities include the Youth Group at First Baptist Church of Lowell, tennis and aerobics.

Deans wishes to thank her sponsors for this unique opportunity to be part of this pageant. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Max Mortensen, W & W Investors, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Mersman, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Yarrington, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Antcliff, Midwest Machine & Rebuilders, Barb & Scott Johnson, Mark Deans and Wendy Bobo.

Labor Day Weekend to cap summer tourism gain

This Labor Day weekend should help propel Michigan's summer tourism season toward an estimated 4 percent growth over 1988 totals, AAA Michigan reports.

"Tourism spending on accommodations, dining and sightseeing will top last year's $15.8 billion benchmark," said AAA Michigan Touring Manager Brian Potter. "Sixty percent of Michigan's travel expenditures occur between Memorial Day and Labor Day, and we have seen generally brisk activity this summer."

Factors which point to the continuing gains in tourism this holiday weekend include:

* The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates the Labor Day weekend motorists will log 905 million miles, up 2.3 percent from last Labor Day weekend. The 78-hour holiday period officially runs from 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 1, to midnight Monday, Sept. 4.

* AAA Michigan in-state routings so far this year show a 4 percent increase in requests to Lower Peninsula destinations, and 12 percent more for Upper Peninsula areas. The Michigan Travel Bureau also reports an upswing in requests for such information.

* Mackinac Bridge officials say vehicle crossings are up 2.8 percent from last year, with this July's count of 533,692 second to the previous July's all-time monthly high of 546,795 crossings. And June's 367,830 total was the highest ever for that month.

* At least 42 of 53 Lower Peninsula state park campgrounds expect to fill this Labor Day weekend, weather permitting, while many Upper Peninsula sites will have space available. Two-thirds of the Lower Peninsula state campgrounds surveyed added that camping activity so far this summer is about the same or better than last year.

Among the biggest attractions luring visitors this holiday weekend will be the 32nd annual Labor Day Walk across the Mackinac Bridge -- expected to draw up to 55,000 pedestrians for the 7 a.m. start in St. Ignace. Other major events include the 141st Michigan State Fair in Detroit, the Governor's Cup Sailing Regatta at Muskegon and Romeo's 58th Annual Peach Festival.

"Motorists will find the average cost of unleaded self-serve gasoline about 6 cents higher per gallon along state highways than last Labor Day weekend," Potter added.

Last Labor Day holiday, 17 persons died on Michigan roads, compared to 32 killed during the same period in 1987. Only two of the 12 victims with seat belts available were buckled up and eight of the 16 fatal accidents involved alcohol. AAA Michigan's "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" Holiday News Service rounds out its 25th anniversary observance by issuing hourly traffic and travel bulletins to an estimated 190 Michigan radio stations during the Labor Day holiday.

French girl will spend 10 months living & studying here

Valerie Marion comes to Lowell from Habere - Poche, France.

Through ASSE, an International Student Exchange Program, Valerie Marion of Habere - Poche, France will be spending 10 months in Lowell with the Chris Heukels family.

Marion is one of thousands of international students to take advantage of the educational, cultural and social educational experience available to them through such a program.

The Habere - Poche native came to the United States to further her understanding of and speaking the English language. "I'd like to learn to speak English fluently. My favorite subjects back home were english and french," Marion said. Her language skills will help in her pursuit of becoming an air hostess after college.

Marion arrived in Lowell on Tuesday, Aug. 22. She will attend Lowell High School as a member of the senior class. Her aide and/or chauffeur will be her exchange sister, Vanessa Heukels.

The French student explains that she would like to participate in gymnastics while attending Lowell. "I enjoy the uneven bars event the most," she smiles.

Marion is the youngest of two girls. "I have an older sister named Fabienne. My parents are Michel and Odile Marion," she says.

The Heukels hope to have Valerie walk across the Mackinac Bridge with Michigan Governor, James Blanchard and they would like to show her Northern Michigan. Heukels said Valerie may also attend Disney World in Florida with the International Student Exchange Program.

In the two weeks Valerie has been in Lowell, she has already acquired a liking for pizza and McDonalds.

Asked if she misses her family yet, Valerie said "No." Asked if she missed her boyfriend, she smiles "Yes."

Lowell student enrolled at University of Wisconsin - Platteville as a freshman

Fall semester classes at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville will begin on Sept. 5.

Among those students enrolled as a freshman this year is Phillip K. Smith of Lowell, enrolled in the College of Engineering. Smith is the son of Louis George and Terry Kaye Smith.

The quality of UW-Platteville's programs is demonstrated by the success of the institution's graduates. Leaders in business, agriculture, the arts, sciences, education and engineering include among their members a Nobel Prize winner, Pulitzer Prize winner, elected officials and more. These successful students are produced by a University whose staff and faculty are dedicated to academic excellence, practical as well as theoretical education and meeting the individual needs of the students.

The University of Wisconsin-Platteville, located in the southwest corner of Wisconsin, offers over 50 majors in the Colleges of Agriculture, Engineering, Education, Arts and Sciences, and Business, Industry and Communication.
