SURVEYORS TO DETERMINE LANDMARK LOCATIONS

The Fallasburg Schoolhouse Museum will be open and visitors will be able to view an archeological dig taking place in the Village.

The Surveyor's group operates a museum in Lansing, the only one in the U.S. devoted entirely to surveying. In 1988 they were invited to survey Old Fort Michilimackinac, and this year completed a survey of the old Fort on Mackinac Island.

Ladies of the Alto Apostolic Christian Church will cook and serve all homemade food, including pies, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be demonstrations of outdoor cooking and spinning and Abe Lincoln will be there from 10-12:30. Lincoln was a surveyor in his earlier days.

Little Caesar's opens arms to Lowell

One of the fastest growing restaurant chains in the country has come to Lowell.

Little Caesar's, the first pizza chain to introduce the buy one pizza get one free concept, opened Tuesday in Lowell, under the direction of owners Ron and Pamela Margetin. For Margetin it's their fifth in the state of Michigan.

"All of our stores are in small communities like Lowell," Ron Margetin said. "We're non-corporate, we want people to refer to us as their neighbors."

Little Caesars, now a billion-dollar plus business, has increased its units by 289 percent in the last five years. It is third in systemwide sales, seventh in sales per unit, third in market share, third in units and in 1988 second in profits.

The unit in Lowell expects to employ approximately 25 people, which includes full time and part time staff members.

"Parents of the Lowell Community should be commended, I have been in contact with outstanding kids," Margetin said. "Young kids in our society get a bad rap. They do work and are motivated when you show you're interested in them, invest in their careers, and promote from within."

All of Margetin's staff receives professional training in a Five-Star training program.

Margetin said Little Caesars is the Corporate Sponsor for Easter Seals and plans on creating a community help type program in

Lowell. "I plan on stimulating sales of a product (e.g. Crazy Bread) and then donating the proceeds to local organizations," he says.

Margetin, a man of his word, presented the Lowell Ambulance Service with a check for $1,000 at Monday's Little Caesar Ribbon Cutting Ceremony.

"Little Caesars sets standards that others measure themselves by," Margetin said.

Responsible voters read up on Proposals

The Responsible Tax Reform, or Proposal B, on the November 7 ballot is something most school officials will tell you is needed to guarantee equitable education for all the children in Michigan.

Officials see Responsible Tax Reform as promoting adequate and stable funding for schools, as well as economic growth for communities through $1.5 billion in property tax relief.

Proposal B does three things that are crucial Michigan's future. It guarantees school funding through constitutional dedication, requires tougher standards for everyone and holds them accountable to meeting those standards, and gives our schools the tools that are needed to provide our children with a world class education.

If Michigan is to remain competitive, we must make sure that today's students are qualified for tomorrow's jobs. Proposal B does just that.

For many of the local and statewide supporters of Proposal B, the campaign is about excellence in the classroom with innovations in teaching programs, more parental involvement, more skills for the future, and less politics in education funding.

The proposal will provide all children, regardless of where they live in Michigan, an equal opportunity to a high quality education. What does Responsible Tax Reform propose? It proposes a two-cent sales tax increase ($1.6 billion) effective Jan. 1, 1990. The proposal will raise $325 million, allowing local school boards to decide through

4 seniors earn National Merit Scholarships

Lowell High School Principal Jim DeWeerd and Director of Student Services, Gordon Gould announced the names of the four seniors who are being commended by the National Merit Scholarship Program for their outstanding performance on the 1988 PSAT/NMSQT.

Each year more than a million students nationwide take the tests. The 35,000 commended students nationwide are among the top 50,000 who entered the 1990 Merit Program by taking the qualifying test in 1988.

This year Lowell will recognize Chris Thompson, Bradley Briggs, Jennifer Amundsen and Dennis Wissman for their accomplishments.

The commended students have been named on the basis of a nationally applied qualifying score. They attained selection index scores of 179 (96th percentile) or higher, but below the level required for semifinalist standing in their respective states.

"While the commended students cannot advance in competition for Merit Scholarship awards in 1990 their accomplishments stand on their own merits and deserve recognition by the school and the community," Gould said.

Thompson, 17, the son of Nancy Thompson, plans on attending the University of Michigan where he will study law.

With his sights set on either civil engineering and/or political science, Briggs, the son of Howard and Barbara Briggs will attend either Michigan's Institute of Technology or Northwestern, following high school.

Amundsen, the daughter of Bill and Cathy Amundsen, will attend Northwestern University and study foreign languages and journalism.

The fourth and final Lowell student to be commended was Dennis Wissman. The 17-year old senior will attend either Western Michigan or Michigan Tech to study electrical engineering. His is the son of Sharon Treviso and Fred Wissman.

Commended students are honored in the Merit Program with a Letter of Commendation, congratulating students on their scores.

The 15,000 participants who have been designated semifinalists will have an opportunity to advance in the competition for Merit Scholarships.

"To be designated a Commended Student in this extremely competitive program is an attainment deserving of school and public recognition and is a credit to these young students at Lowell," DeWeerd said.

The Commended Student is included in a Merit Program service through which they could be referred to two colleges or universities of their choice.

Counting Our Blessings

Thank goodness for our scientists! These dedicated men and women have made amazing progress against cancer, one of the deadliest of diseases. Because of their research, today's cancer patients have a much better chance of fighting the disease than they did even five years ago.

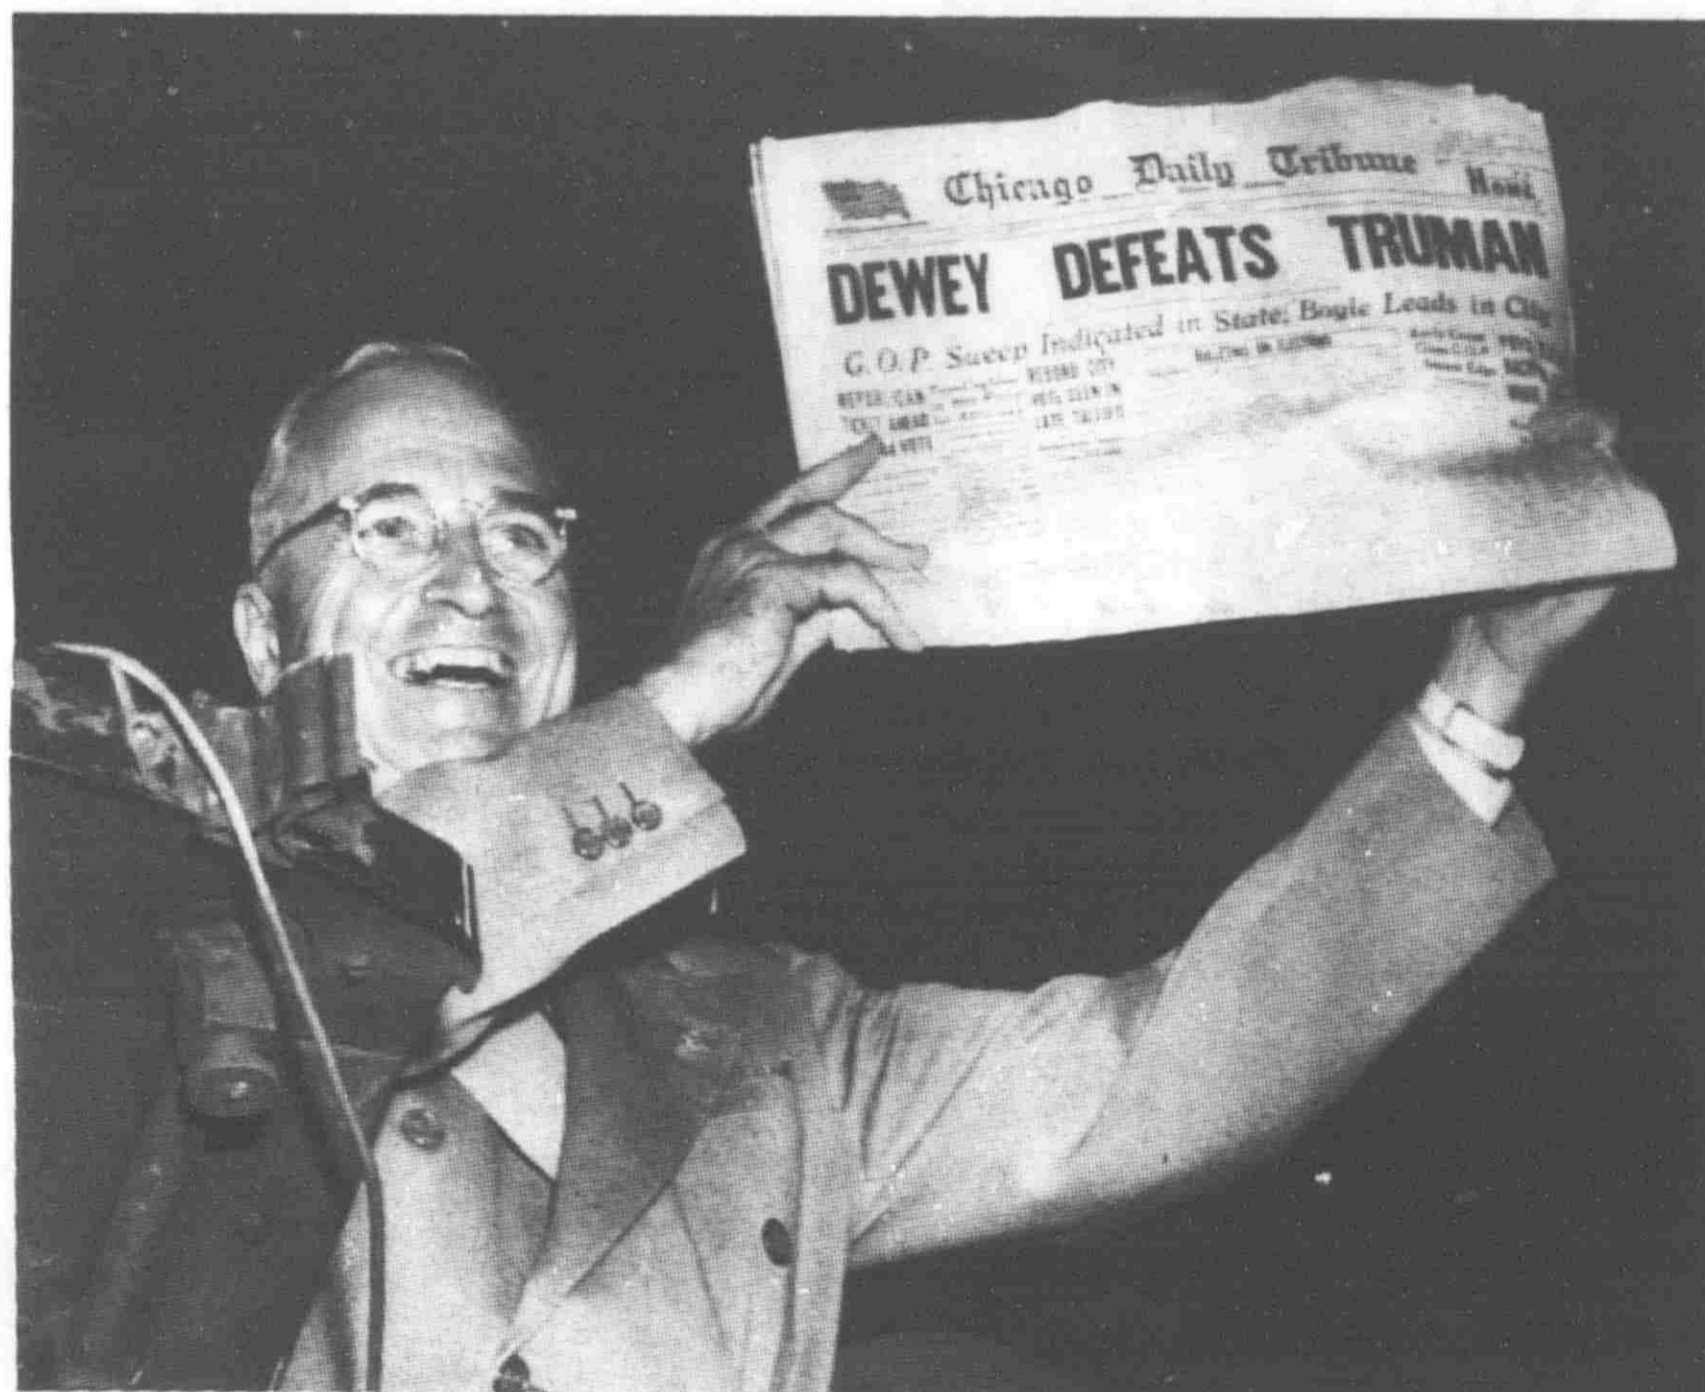

Much of the progress is due to the work of young scientists like Karen K. Perkins, Ph.D., who has been studying cells in the fruit fly which are similar to human cells—work that's essential to understanding what allows a healthy cell to grow. For a long time, scientists had been trying to understand the normal biological function of a rare gene which is known to have cancer-causing properties. Dr. Perkins' experiments enabled her to locate this gene in fruit flies and provide a new, important avenue of information about human cell growth and the development of cancer.

Dr. Perkins' important work is sponsored by The Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Cancer Research Fund. The organization was founded in 1946 by popular radio broadcaster Walter Winchell in honor of his friend and celebrated American author Damon Runyon, who had died of cancer. Since then, the Fund has given more than $66 million to sponsor cancer research at leading laboratories in the U.S., some headed by Nobel laureates like Susumu Tonegawa, Ph.D., who is himself a former Runyon-Winchell Fund Fellow.

The organization is totally supported by private contributions, so if you've recently gotten a clean bill of health after a medical checkup, you may want to celebrate that good health—and promote good health for all—by making a tax-deductible contribution to the Fund. The entire amount of your gift will be used for cancer research. The address is: Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Cancer Research Fund, Room A, 131 East 36 St., New York, N.Y. 10016. You can also make a gift to the Fund as a bequest in your will, or as a memorial to a loved one in lieu of flowers.

Blind for 20 years . . . Alto's Bill Geldersma keeps smilin' through his active years

Ma (Lois) holds the bag as Bill cleans out the birdhouse.

Despite his 20 years of blindness, Geldersma still finds a lot to smile about, especially at work in his workshop.

not prevent him from fishing, his blindness has not stopped him from challenging each day with activities.

He was recently recognized by the Alto Lions Club for donating $500 to the organization. "It made me feel good to share with a club that for the better part of eight years hauled, cut, split and stacked wood for me and Ma (his wife, Lois).

Up until a year ago, the couple which will be married 50 years come March, lived in their Clarksville farm house. They now reside at Bear Creek Villa.

There are signs of Geldersma's generosity all over the community, the county and the state. You see, the loss of sight forced Geldersma to give up hunting, and severely curtailed his number of fishing expeditions. Not willing to sit around and mope, Geldersma searched to supplant those recreations. He did so with a one-acre garden, building picnic tables and now bird houses.

"People brought me the material and then I put the tables together," Geldersma says as Lois points to one of the tables that sits in the yard at Bear Creek Villa. "I made 13 picnic tables. Then, the Sunoco Oil Company, which my son-in-law worked for, offered me a contract to make 500 picnic tables because it liked them so much. However that scared me, so I declined."

"I made picnic tables for several years. I used to hire little kids to run my cub tractor for me. They loved it and it also gave them a chance to earn money," Geldersma says. The tractor was used to move wood and to plow out his and neighbors' driveways.

Geldersma struggled with blindness at first. "It caused trouble at first, but moping about something doesn't make it better. Doctors told me years prior to losing my sight, that I would someday be blind," he says. "I'm fortunate though. If someone mentions the color blue to me, I can envision that color."

Today, Geldersma continues his bird house manufacturing. He has built over 600 bird houses for Wrens and Blue Birds. Except for the bird houses he has put up in his yards, he has given them all away. "You can give a little kid a bird house and they think they've got the world," Geldersma smiles.

Bill follows the leader line to his shed where he spends much of his day building his bird houses.

Since moving into Bear Creek Villa, Geldersma has had a 12 by 16 building put up in the nearby yard of Elmer Richardson. "At first I wanted to put the building up in the yard here at Bear Creek Villa. However, there were some complications, so I worked a deal out with Elmer Richardson," Geldersma said. The deal was that when the day came that Geldersma could no longer use the building, it would then become the property of Richardson's.

One small complication surfaced with the building being constructed on Richardson's land. How would Geldersma get to his workshop to build his bird houses? With the help of a metal clothes line that runs from the corner of the Villa lot to the corner of his workshop shed, Geldersma grabs ahold of the leader line coming down from the metal clothes line and walks himself to the front of the shed door.

"I spend many of my morning hours and many of my afternoon hours working in the shed. At the lunch and dinner hours, Ma comes and walks me home," Geldersma explains.

Bird houses are not the only things that are constructed inside the shed. Geldersma has also crafted a super size magnet on the end of a broom stick to pick up dropped nails and other metal items. He has also neatly made and hung up pencil holders on the wall next to his bench.

The one invention that required the most ingenuity and brings the biggest sparkle to the Clarksville man's eye is his fishing pole holder.

"I don't get to fish as much as I would like anymore, but I put this together so I had something to alert me when I have a bite," he says.

Geldersma has even surprised himself a little bit with all the activities he has been able to tackle. "When you enjoy something, you figure out a way to go at it," he says.

Geldersma likes to keep busy. "That's the farm boy in me." He scared his family and friends recently after informing them he had purchased a chain saw. "They all had a fit," he chuckles.

William and Lois Geldersma stand near a Blue Bird birdhouse in the Bear Creek Villa.

Matlosz appointed Principal at Middle School

Mike Matlosz

Six weeks and 35 applicants later, a selection group of eight agreed unanimously that in Mike Matlosz, Assistant High School Principal at Godwin Heights, Lowell's School System had found its main man for the principalship at the Lowell Middle School.

"We're excited that Mike accepted the position and feel extremely fortunate to be bringing him into our school system," Lowell Superintendent Fritz Esch said. "His references were all very positive. Everyone involved in the selection process had him as our number one candidate."

Matlosz comes to Lowell after spending four-plus years as Assistant Principal at Godwin. Prior to that, he spent roughly four years as a teacher and coach in the Northview School District. The new Middle School Principal also spent five years teaching in the Grand Rapids School System.

"I'm extremely excited about the new position and working in the Lowell School System. My exposure to Lowell during the interview process has been all positive," Matlosz said. "Lowell is a school that cares about education and is looking ahead to the future."

The father of three sons pointed to being able to lead a school in curriculum and instruction as a major factor in his decision to leave Godwin.

"I've worked to prepare myself so that one day I could lead a school in curriculum and instruction," Matlosz said. "In taking the position, I am not running away from anything at Godwin. The school district has been very good to me. Not just any principalship position offer would have pulled me away from Godwin Heights."

Matlosz said in touring the Lowell District, he was impressed by the quality and upkeep of the buildings and the atmosphere of the schools. "It's clear that at Lowell every student has the opportunity to learn in a quality environment," he says. "Students make a school and the kids at Lowell obviously have pride, otherwise the schools would not be as clean."

While at Godwin, Matlosz was a member of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals, and the National Association for School Executives.

Matlosz will start working part-time here in Lowell next week. Currently, his full-time departure from Godwin is being worked out between the two administrations.

Accomplishments that Matlosz initiated at Godwin included computerizing its attendance; limiting the number of classroom interruptions; and starting a program where teachers video tape their teaching for critique purposes.

Matlosz and his wife, Nancy have three boys, Matthew, Thomas and Michael.

He will be hired in at a salary of $51,000.

FFA attends "Made of Excellence" conference

During the weekend of September 16 and 17, six Lowell FFA chapter members attended a conference for the purpose of personal development and improvement. The members attending were Jennifer Cook, Renee Nugent, Jennifer Brown, Scott Fisk, Randy Greiser, and David Hildenbrand.

This is the first year that the "Made For Excellence" conference has come to Michigan. It was sponsored by the National FFA Center and the Michigan Association of FFA. The conference was conducted by past national officers from across the country, which included Kip Godwin, Kevin Ochsner, Terri Hames and Ricky Warren. The conference was also conducted by the state officers from Michigan. Michigan is one of 21 other states that host this conference each year.

The Lowell FFA was one of the 50 chapters attending the conference. It was held at the Lansing Holiday Inn. The guest speaker was State Senator John M. Engler, a former Michigan FFA member.

Mike Gainor walked through Lowell Friday carrying a cross and God's word. Gainor started in Oklahoma on his journey and expects to finish in 3-5 years.

Oklahoma man travels U.S.A. preaching the Word of Christ

Mike Gainor has been circling the country, following the border of the better part of 30 states in his journey for eternal salvation.

The Ford City, Pennsylvania native started his trip a little over three years ago from an oil field in Oklahoma. Gainor's journey, brought him through Lowell on Friday, Oct. 6. He was carrying his cross and spreading the gospel to interested people he met along the way.

"Jesus is the way of eternal salvation. All of us stand in sin. We need a savior and Jesus is that savior and judge," Gainor said.

The former Oklahoma oil field driller said God called him to his ministry three-and-a-half years ago.

"That's when I met a man carrying a cross similar to what I'm doing now. I saw the ministry of good news he was spreading. This triggered the memory of a vision I had 12-13 years ago of myself carrying a cross with a multitude of people following me," Gainor said. "I knew then, God wanted me to carry the cross and preach his word. He had called me to his ministry."

Gainor says his ministry allows him to reach people who are not reached through church. "I support church attendance, but I think we as people can do more to enhance God's Kingdom."

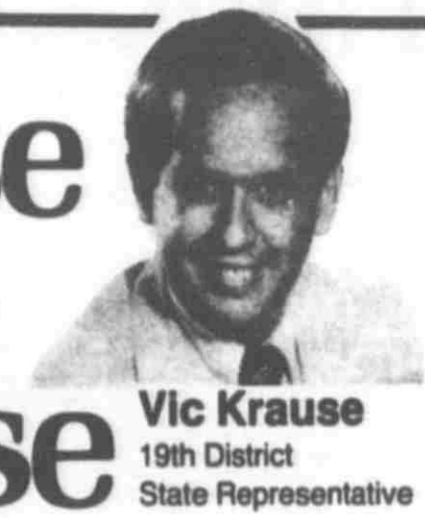

His journey, already three years old, will last another 3-5 years. His shelter is a travel trailer. "I park the trailer in the morning and start my day's journey, carrying the cross. Gainor says. At day's end he puts his cross down, seeks a ride back to his trailer. He then drives his trailer back to the point where he left his cross and prepares for a new day.

Has Gainor encountered any problems along the way? "The world hated Jesus and will hate us as well," he says. "Troubles and tribulations are a part of life."

A card Gainor carries with him reads: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me." He not only believes those words, he lives them.

LEGISLATION SEEKS PRE-CONVICTION AIDS TESTING

Legislation soon will be introduced in the House that would allow courts to order Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) tests for people charged with, but not convicted of, certain criminal sexual offenses.

Under current law, only people convicted of criminal sexual offenses involving penetration and drug-related activity can be required to undergo AIDS testing. The proposal I support seeks AIDS tests for arrests in the preliminary hearing stage instead of waiting for the actual conviction. The results would be transmitted to the victims as well as public health authorities.

The legislation stemmed from the arrest and ultimate conviction earlier this year of the Rochester Hills assistant fire chief, who was charged with sexually assaulting boys in the city's child molesters and sexual deviants to take precedent over the health and well-being of the general public. Children who have been sexually assaulted have psychological problems to overcome and do not need them intensified by a long, drawn-out uncertainty of the possibility of AIDS.

Recent studies show that early detection of AIDS results in more effective medical attention, which helps assure a longer and better quality of life for victims of the disease. While AIDS is not curable, it is treatable, and the sooner treatment begins, the better.

It is appropriate to regard people who commit these crimes in a harsher-than-usual light because of the potential harm inflicted on victims. The possibility of deviants and child molesters transmitting AIDS is akin to a robbery committed with a gun rather than without a gun. The danger is much greater and therefore calls for stronger safety measures.

Steele brings "New Creations" to Lowell

Rhonda Steele, Gowen, will open the doors of New Creations Professional Styling Salon on Oct. 9 and officially join the hairstyling wars of Lowell. "Lowell has its share of hairstyling salons, but many towns have even more (e.g. Greenville)," Steele explains. Steele a 1984 Greenville graduate, attended Montcalm Community College's Career Center (studied cosmetology) her junior and senior years. Following high school, she spent three years at Spurgeon's Salon in Belding prior to spending a cut, along with a clipping of the child's hair," she says. The Greenville graduate also plans on sending out "Thank You's" and check-up cards to her patrons. Hairstyling Salon will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday; 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday; and from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday.

year with Reflections in Greenville.

After leaving Reflections, Steele spent a year looking for a town and a building to start up her own business. "I've always known I wanted to start up a salon of my own, but it meant waiting for the right time and place," Steele said.

Robyn Wierenga will be Steele's only full-time help. Debbie Nachazel, Victoria Lee and Shelia Curtis will all work part-time. "I hope to have them all working full-time within a year," Steele smiles.

To help ensure success, Steele plans on implementing some new ideas. "I'd like to give out certificates for a child's first hair-

"I think it's most important that the hair stylists work together as a team," Steele said. "It's important that patrons portray New Creations with a friendly image."

Steele says she has a touch of the nerves, but is confident New Creations will be a success. "I have a year's lease on the building, and if everything goes well I'd persevere buying it. However, if it doesn't work out, then I'd close up."

New Creations will be offering appetizers, punch, donuts and coffee on its opening day (Oct. 9). "I'm ready to open. I've had enough of this remodeling work," Steele smiles. New Creations - Professional

Lowell observes School Board Recognition Week

At least once a month, 4,200 men and women gather in communities across Michigan to make decisions that affect the lives and the futures of 1.6 million school children.

elect to guide your local schools set economic and cultural directions for the entire community when they determine budget priorities for salaries, curriculum and building needs. Their decisions affect whole families when they approve policies on student discipline, attendance, athletic eligibility and graduation requirements.

School board members must guide their programs through a sea of compliance with state, federal and judicial guidelines. They fight an uphill battle of improving education for our youth with dwindling resources and escalating costs. No wonder they often become frustrated trying to stretch available monies to meet the array of educational needs they know exist in the schools and in the community. Today these boards of education are confronted not only with the needs of K-12 children, but with the great needs of disadvantaged preschoolers and functionally illiterate adults.

School board members know that their community's support—both financial and verbal—is crucial for continued economic development to keep their communities thriving and their constituents employed. Yet the job is often a thankless one, and their service goes unnoticed. Small wonder many communities are finding it difficult to recruit highly qualified candidates for school board elections.

This month, Michigan communities like Lowell will honor the dedicated service of these public school trustees during the first annual observance of School Board Member Recognition Week, October 9-13.

School Board Member Recognition Week offers local communities a chance to pay tribute to the men and women who set direction and policy for their schools. It also offers all citizens the chance to learn more about Michigan's long tradition of local control of schools.

According to history books, the origins of Michigan school boards predates statehood and the Michigan constitution. However, PA 63 of 1837 prescribed a procedure, based on territorial law, for establishing primary school districts and a district "school board" in the management of schools.

MAIN STREET TRAFFIC AND PARKING STUDY PRESENTATION

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1989, AT 7:30 P.M.
LOWELL CITY HALL, 301 E. MAIN ST.

Ed Swanson of Ed Swanson and Associates will present findings and recommendations regarding the Main Street Traffic and Parking Study to the Lowell City Council on Monday, October 16, 1989 at 7:30 p.m. The maps below provide recommendations for downtown parking and traffic light location on West Main.

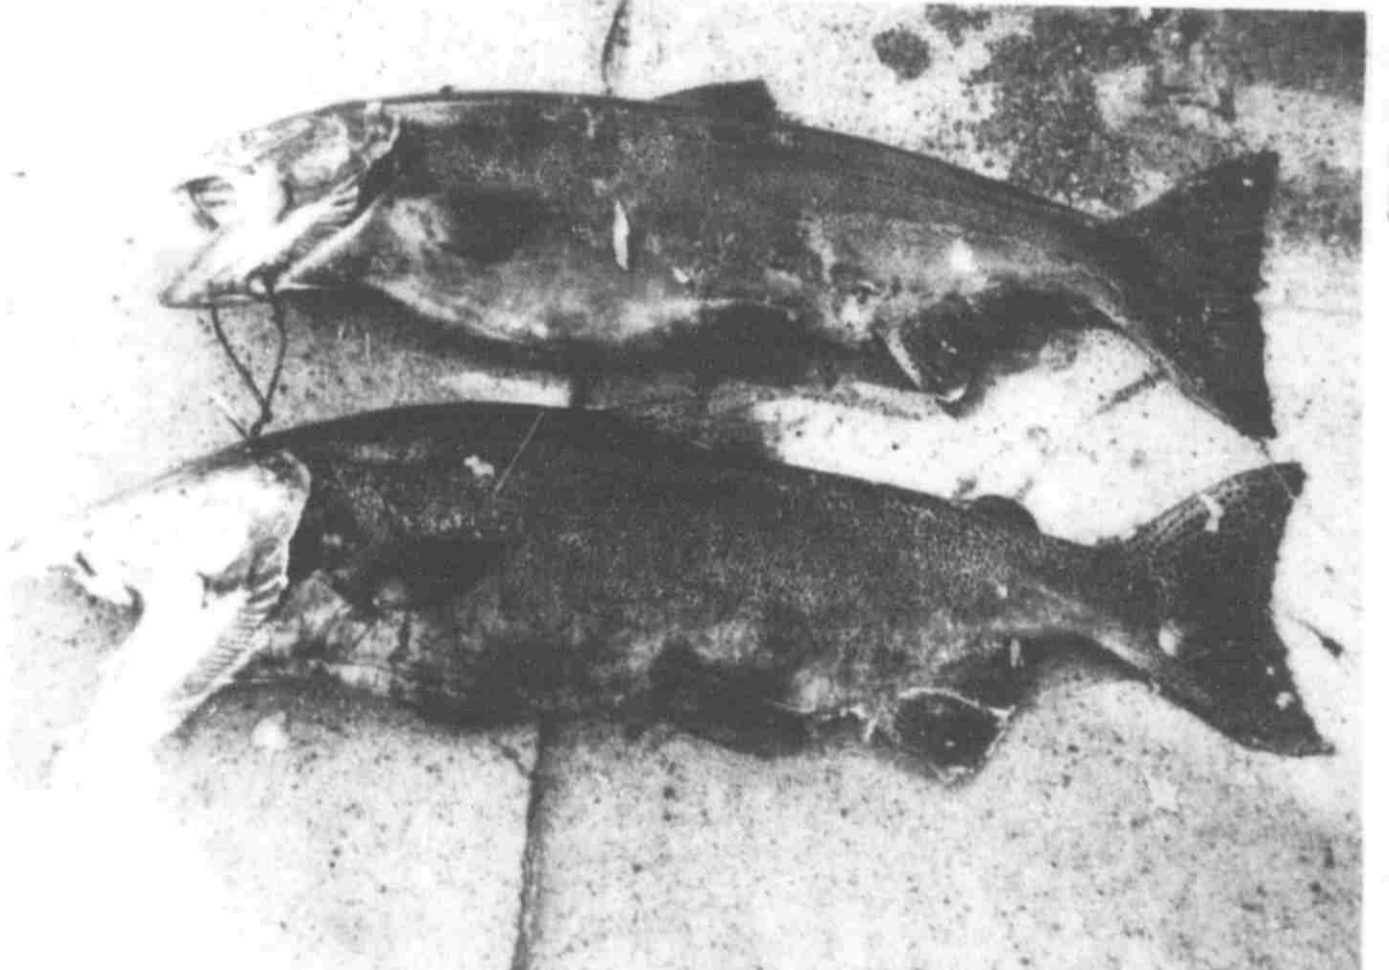

Interested persons may review the document prior to the meeting at the City Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

David M. Pasquale, City Manager

The cross marks the spot on this map where a traffic light would be installed, according to the recommendations made. The Valley Vista Connector is shown in the shaded area. It is a proposed road running south between Westside Deli and Showboat Automotive to connect with Boves Rd. A service road which would run parallel to Boves Road running east and west is also shown.
