Two-day snowstorm buries thoughts of a warm Spring under a foot of snow

What a little boy will do for a Big Mac. Kevin Couture shovels the walk for his Mom.

Lowell and other parts of Northern Kent County received up to eight inches of snow late Thursday night and early Friday morning.

The snow closed Lowell Schools for the second time in two weeks. The storm was preceded by rain which made for slick, snow covered roads. Some roads were also speckled with drifts.

Lowell Cable decides not to drop Lansing channels; instead will blackout programming

It was learned at the February Lowell City Council meeting that Lansing channels 6 and 10 may not be dropped from the Lowell Cable service after all.

It was originally thought that because of a recent FCC ruling on local television rights that the two channels would have to be dropped. Instead, Lowell Cable has opted to block the Lansing signals only when they are duplicating programming seen in the Grand Rapids market.

When the ruling first came out, Lowell Cable Supervisor, Herb Haines said in order to prevent using an excessive amount of man-time many cable systems will have to pay for the electronic system so they can do the blocking automatically or just drop the channels and find alternative stations. It takes 20 man-hours a day to switch manually. However, the cost for the electronic system is $12,000.

Now, instead of dropping the channels, a time clock will be used to blackout the two stations at different times of the day when programming is being duplicated. The equipment to do this will cost the cable company $500.

"That's a lot better than $12,000," Haines said. "We've received calls noting Lowell was pelted with eight inches of snow late Thursday night and early Friday morning.

Many motorists arrived at their workplaces late because of the time needed to brush off their cars and to shovel a car path out of their driveways.

According to the National Weather Service, the half inch of rainfall and then the snow was a result of an intense low pressure system over Ohio which brought more snow than expected.

that the sports programming on the Lansing channels varies at times with the Grand Rapids stations."

While channels 6 and 10 will remain as far as the FCC rules and regulations permit, Lowell Cable will add TNT and The Arts and Entertainment network to its basic cable programming package, increasing the number of stations offered to 23.

Another addition planned for basic cable subscribers, is the $1 a month increase from $13 to $14. Haines points to increased supplier costs and equipment costs as reasons for the hike in rates.

rently getting HBO and or the Disney Channel will also incur an increase in rates. HBO will jump from $9.95 to $10.95 a month. The Disney Channel will spring from $8.95 a month to $9.95. The increases are tentatively scheduled for April 1 or until all the equipment gets in.

There are 2,100 homes that have access to Lowell cable, and 1,750 of them have cable outlets.

Other action taken at the council meeting included the approval of an interior coating being applied to the back hopper of the street sweeper. This will be done in order to

"Capitol Column"
By State Senator Dick Posthumus

Work has started on the Herculean task of developing a budget for the coming fiscal year. The final product will be a guidepost to state spending decisions throughout the year. This is never an easy task given the complex problems facing Michigan.

While the Senate applauds his reluctance to cut spending in vital areas such as education, we firmly believe that cuts in the spending should not happen if a realistic budget is developed in the first place. In other words, get it right the first time. His across-the-board policy puts everyone on equal footing. By setting priorities, larger cuts in one area could save vital services provided by DSS from being cut.

This administration has a checkered history rife with budget problems. If it had set proper priorities and realistic spending projections from the outset, the spending cuts would have been avoided. Now we anticipate the Governor will ask for a supplemental bill. The only thing that will accomplish this will be to muddle the economic picture further.

The Senate is proud to have led the way in setting realistic and necessary spending priorities for the year ahead. We've identified education as the Number One state spending priority, and we're pleased to note the administration has echoed our original lead. We're proud to know we have blazed the trail for new economic priorities in Michigan.

The year ahead will in some ways be a frugal year all the way around. We will have to monitor the state's economy closely to see how we are doing. Some spending decisions, obviously, will be based on economic trends as

Home Spun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you. (Isaiah 66:13).

Children are amusing. When they fall and bruise a knee or scratch an arm, how quickly they run to Mother! As soon as she has kissed the injured member, the pain vanishes and the tears stop falling. Then the child skips away to resume his play. What consolation, what medicinal value, what healing is found in a mother's kiss!

There are two kinds of Christians: There is the one who indulges in self pity. He has more burdens to carry and greater afflictions to bear than anyone about him - or so he believes. His sorrows are more numerous and grievous. Everything is wrong and everybody mistreats him. Life is difficult and dreary. His pain shows clearly on his face. Then, there is the other kind of Christian - the one who finds solace in prayer. In his secret closet he seeks and finds comfort, strength, courage and sustaining grace. He takes his burdens to the Lord and leaves them there and comes away as happy as a child whose bruise has been healed by "Mother's kiss."

Prayer: Dear God, to Thee I come with my burdens and bruises, for I know I can find healing in Thee. Sustain. Strengthen. Comfort me with Thy touch. I leave my hurt with Thee. Amen.

O, what peace we often forfeit,
O, what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Ev'rything to God in pray'r.

Viewpoint

Cozy corner by Roger Brown

There seems to be no end to my misadventures, which of course soon become fodder for this column. For example, I considered taking off on vehicle problems this week. There is no shortage of material in that category. My van was towed into the shop on Saturday because I messed up something in the drive train trying to get it "un-stuck". My company car is sporting a new transmission after a two week stay in the shop. And my wife's car makes a hideous noise when the brakes are applied, but we can't put it in the shop until something else is fixed. I could go into much greater detail, but it's tough to be humorous about a subject that taps the wallet as hard as auto repair.

There are also problems at work. What else is new? One of our typesetters made a little snapping noise and went blank. Let me clarify that. A typesetting computer made a snapping noise and went blank, not one of the operators. Anyway, a phone call to the repair company pinpointed the problem, as well as the cost. That little snapping noise is going to set me back $1,100.00. That's when I went blank.

Something is wrong with the furnace at the house. During this cold snap we've been experiencing it has struggled to maintain our old barn at a less than balmy 55 degrees. A furnace guy looked at it Monday, and couldn't find anything necessarily wrong. He suggested souping it up with a bigger blower, which of course means a considerable expense. Since it's the end of February (hooray!), I figured I could snuggle up in my down sleeping bag in front of the fireplace until warmer weather arrives.

I have a surprise for you in the pet department. However, I'm holding off on the announcement until I'm sufficiently over the shock myself. There will of course be more on my dance instruction. I can hardly wait. The kids are due for a little rake over the coals. Not because they've done anything terrible, they're just due. I've been involved in a little remodeling project over the past six weeks that has certainly encompassed enough fiascos to warrant attention in this space. Terese, and a for-now-unnamed, friend of hers deserve a job for their back seat driving while I was white-knuckling it in a blizzard from Detroit to Lowell. The list goes on and on, but, just for this week, I'm going to give myself a little rest and poke fun at someone else.

We've recently been looking at a new copier for the front office. The one we have isn't that old. In fact, I just made the last payment. But, it isn't built to handle the amount of copies we run through it between our own needs and our walk-in copying business. We had our fourth demo in here last week. Typically these demos consist of a couple of well dressed salesmen wheeling in a monstrous copier, soloing out a couple of my staff members, then leaving it for a few days. The sales pitch comes when they return to pick up the machine. Last week's demo began routinely enough, but the similarity between this, and other demos, soon ended.

The salesmen first brought in the stand, then returned with a huge $11,000.00 copier on a gurney. I wasn't in the room, but somewhere between the gurney and the stand, they lost their grip on the thing. I was a good fifty feet away in the composing room when I heard the crash. My first thought was that someone had driven through the front of our building. I bolted to the front office to find several of my employees and two salesmen, mouths agape, staring at a crash site that would compare with a car coming through the front wall.

The copier was strewn about the front office in about six major pieces. The document feeder was over here. The collator was over there. The paper bins went there. The stand went that-a-way. The delivery system went this-a-way. And right in the middle of it all was a not-so-good-looking copier. The first words out of anyone's mouth came from me when I said, "Sure hope you boys are insured". Then I immediately left the room before I busted a gut.

The salesmen made like all the king's horses and all the king's men, but couldn't put "Humpty-Copier" together again. There was a steady parade of employees and customers coming back to the composing room to erupt in fits of laughter. One of my employees came to me with a nice color brochure depicting the crashed copier. With his tongue planted firmly in his cheek he said, "Here, this what it looked like when they brought it in".

The salesmen worked feverishly to get the copier on the stand and hang parts back on it. The laughter in the composing room was dying down to giggles and smirks when one of my employees fiddled with something on one end of the copier and the entire delivery system fell off the other end. The second crash sent another wave of laughter through the composing room like the aftershock of an earthquake.

Well, when the laughter finally died down, and the pieces where gathered up, the salesmen bid their goodbye, and said they'd be back with a new demo this week. True to their word, they showed up yesterday. You can imagine the apprehension on everyone's part, especially the still-red-faced salesmen. Despite a large group of wise-cracking spectators, the salesmen made a successful delivery, gave their instruction presentation and promptly beat feet. And, who could blame them?

I really didn't know this kinda' thing happened to other people, but it sure was a pleasant diversion to poke fun at someone other than myself for a change. The funny thing is, if their copier measures up in performance and price, they'll probably get the sale over this fiasco. If that's the case, I oughta be in sales.

CIRRHOSIS

The liver plays an important role in meeting the body's daily metabolic demands. The liver is our largest organ and performs many functions including production of proteins necessary for our growth and bile production for digestion of fat. The liver plays a role in metabolizing food for energy as well as the breakdown of most chemicals and drugs that we ingest. Abuse of alcohol or drugs can severely damage the liver, leading to cirrhosis.

Close to thirty thousand Americans will die from cirrhosis this year. Most cases of cirrhosis are directly related to alcohol abuse. Other causes of cirrhosis are viral infections, exposure to potent chemicals or insecticides and an abnormality or obstruction of the bile duct. Cirrhosis is slow to develop and in most cases there are no early signs of the disease. Some patients may experience a decreased appetite, weakness, nausea and fatigue. As the disease progresses, jaundice may appear, which is a yellow discoloration of the skin or eyes due to a build-up of bile. Other late symptoms include weight loss, abdominal distention and pain due to fluid retention.

The diagnosis of cirrhosis is made through the use of blood tests, x-rays, and frequently, liver biopsy. The clinical signs are similar to those seen in acute viral hepatitis which is an infection of the liver due to a virus. Hepatitis will usually resolve over several weeks. Cirrhosis is a persistent disorder due to scarring and irreversible damage to the liver. Several trials have shown that some drugs can improve the outcome in treating cirrhosis and almost daily new barriers are broken in the field of transplant surgery, however, prevention is still the best medicine.

Take care of your liver by avoiding excessive alcohol intake, avoiding drugs, which can increase your exposure to hepatitis and eat a well-balanced healthy diet.

KRAUSE at the HOUSE

An estimated 90,000 Michigan residents suffering from epilepsy would be better protected from employment discrimination under legislation introduced in the state House.

House Bill 5503, which I support, amends the Workers' Disability Compensation Act to include people suffering from certified seizure disorders.

The Workers' Disability Compensation Act gives employers incentives to hire the vocationally handicapped by limiting employers' liability in case of work-related injuries. The provision covers workers with heart, back, epileptic or diabetic conditions.

However, many epileptics are ineligible because physicians diagnose them as having "convulsive" or "seizure" disorders rather than epilepsy, to help the sufferers avoid the stigma sometimes associated with the word. The expanded definition of eligible participants will encourage employers to hire people with epilepsy.

Legislation passed last year could help many boaters and owners of small trailers lower their trailer registration fees. The new law, which many trailer owners may be unaware of, allows a six-month registration for anyone owning a recreational trailer that weighs less than 1,500 pounds.

My colleagues and I have received letters and calls from boaters and owners of small trailers concerning trailer registration fees. Those fees were greatly increased in the 1987 transportation package.

Surprise storm halts school as residents shovel out

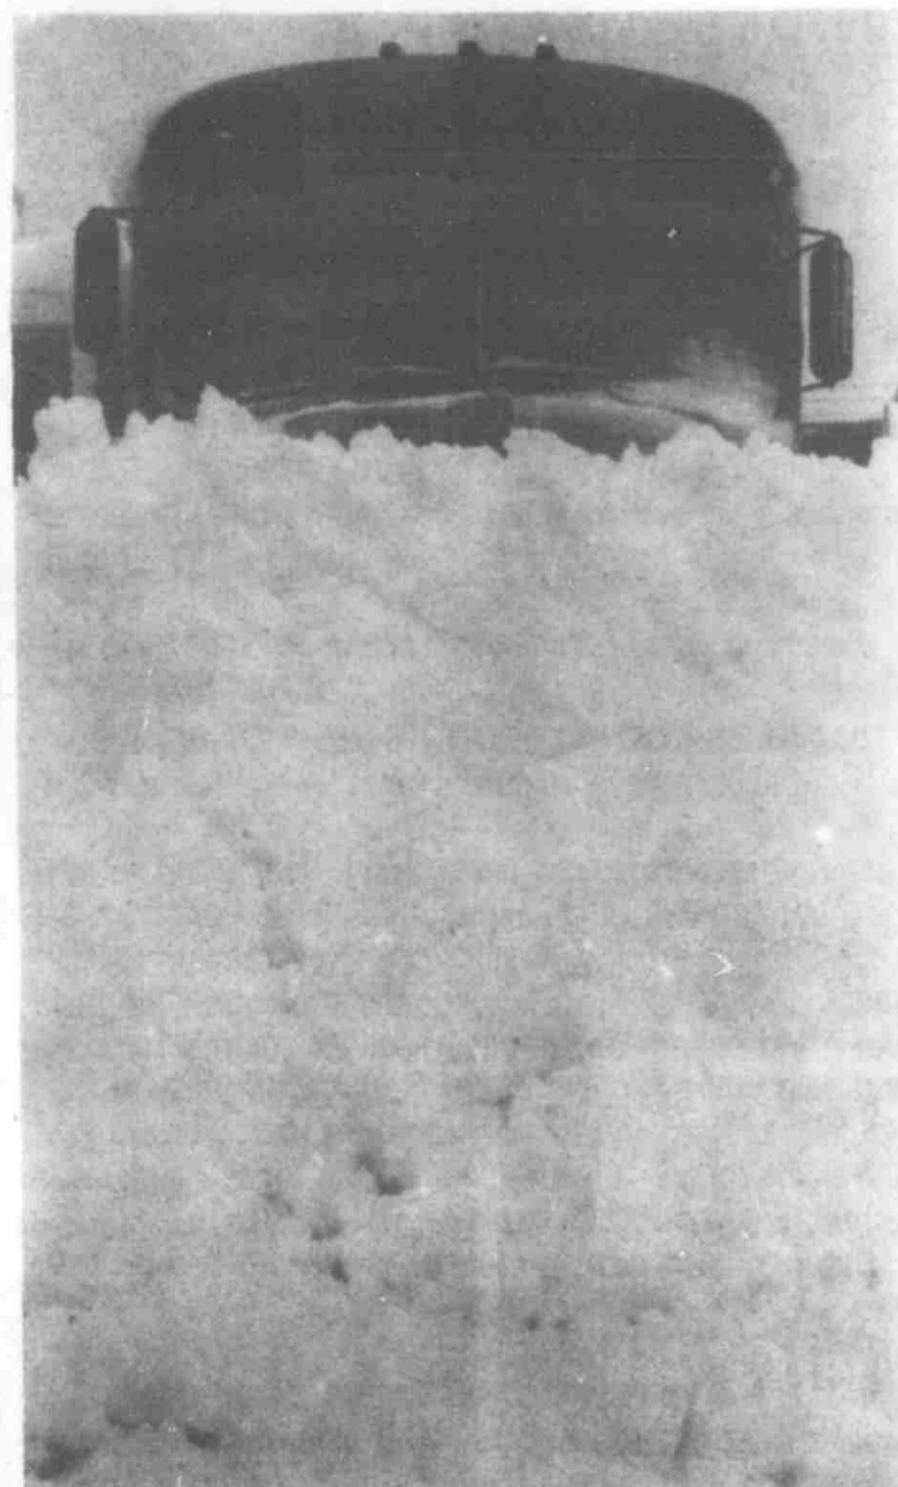

Isn't It Lovely! For some maybe - for others spring can't get here fast enough.

City street workers were busy clearing side streets most of Friday.

Forget the picture, grab a shovel young man.

I still say there should have been school.

Bob Osborne clears a path in front of the Flat River Antique Mall.

Middle School teacher Arnold Kimball has some fun on his tractor-plow Friday.

While the Mayor is away his wife, Cathy, runs the snowblower.

The heavy, wet snow made for some wintery, picturesque scenery.

from under several inches of wet snow

Many students spent part of their day off clearing out driveways and walks.

This scene was repeated often throughout Kent County Friday morning.

There may not have been any school but the sidewalks still had to be cleared.

Lowell received an extra 4-6 inches Friday night/Saturday morning.

Not even a winter storm stops Denise Dommer and Sue Lindhout from their daily walk.

they happen. But we will not veer from our stated priorities. Education will continue to be at the top of our list.

We believe Michigan's future will become clearer as the coming year unfolds. We also strongly adhere to a policy of getting the budget ducks all in a row from the beginning, so that scrambling to keep the state economic picture bright will not be necessary. There's no substitute for planning ahead, especially when it comes to Michigan's economic climate.

Lowell based computer firm offers varied services

DTS provides computer systems peripheral devices and personal computers for companies.

Assisting and satisfying corporations and small companies in their computer needs, interests, and problems has been the objective of Devon Capman's DTC business for the past 2-1/2 years.

"I think companies and corporations really believe that we understand the computer problems that confront them. I also think it has helped in the company's growth," Capman said.

Capman said DTC started out as a complete service for computers, networking systems and PCs. Now DTC provides computer systems, peripheral devices and personal computers for companies.

Capman gained his computer knowledge through his electronic service training in the United States Air Force. "I spent five-and-a-half years working on air craft and navigational equipment while based in California," Capman says.

Capman is hopeful the future will bring the development of his own software. He'd also like to reach the point where two or three technicians are needed for hardware equipment.

"The market is extremely competitive. Right now I'm competing in the low end of the market (PC industry) as well as the high end," Capman said.

The DTC owner said businesses looking to become computerized usually spend too much time examining the hardware. "Businesses should spend about 60 percent of their time examining the software, 30 percent examining how it will apply to their needs and only 10 percent to the hardware," he says. "Most companies change their structure every three years. It's important that your system is compatible and applicable to such changes."

Prior to opening his new business, Capman worked with a company out of Grand Rapids. "I'm excited about the growth the company has made without much advertising (just word of mouth). I chose Lowell because this area does not have a computer store and it is close to my Alto home. He moved DTC to Lowell in October of 1989. Prior to that his mailing address was on 28th Street in Grand Rapids.

DTC, like most of the distributors it buys from, will provide both McIntosh and IBM products. DTC will also begin to customers a repair center. "DTC is able to get most computer supplies within 24 hours," Capman said.

Capman currently has three people working for him and believes that will be increased to four in the near future.

Native Lowellite returns after 71 years

Audrey Yeiter

Audrey Yeiter, a resident of Cumberland Manor, and sister of the late Glen Yeiter, Elmer Yeiter and Floyd Yeiter, will celebrate her 90th birthday on March 8. Yeiter, one of eight children born to John Wesley Yeiter, was born in the Lowell area on the farm where a nephew, Harry Yeiter, now resides.

Yeiter graduated from Lowell High School with the class of 1918. To attend high school it was necessary for her to take a train to Elmdale to connect with a train going into Lowell. During the week she boarded with the Dickinsons and Kenyons for the 4 years of school.

After graduation she taught school at the Lowe, (south of Alto), Snow and Sweet Schools. Her beginning salary was $40 per year. She then went on to bigger and better things and taught at Cascade (Martin School) at a salary of $100 per year. Yeiter was offered a position to head the Family and Children Center near Goshen, IN. She remained there until returning home again last year after an absence of 71 years.

Yeiter's nieces and nephews are Mrs. King Doyle and Harry Yeiter of Lowell and Amy Finkbeiner of Caledonia, as well as other relatives in the area.

The family would appreciate a remembrance of a card sent to her at Cumberland Manor.

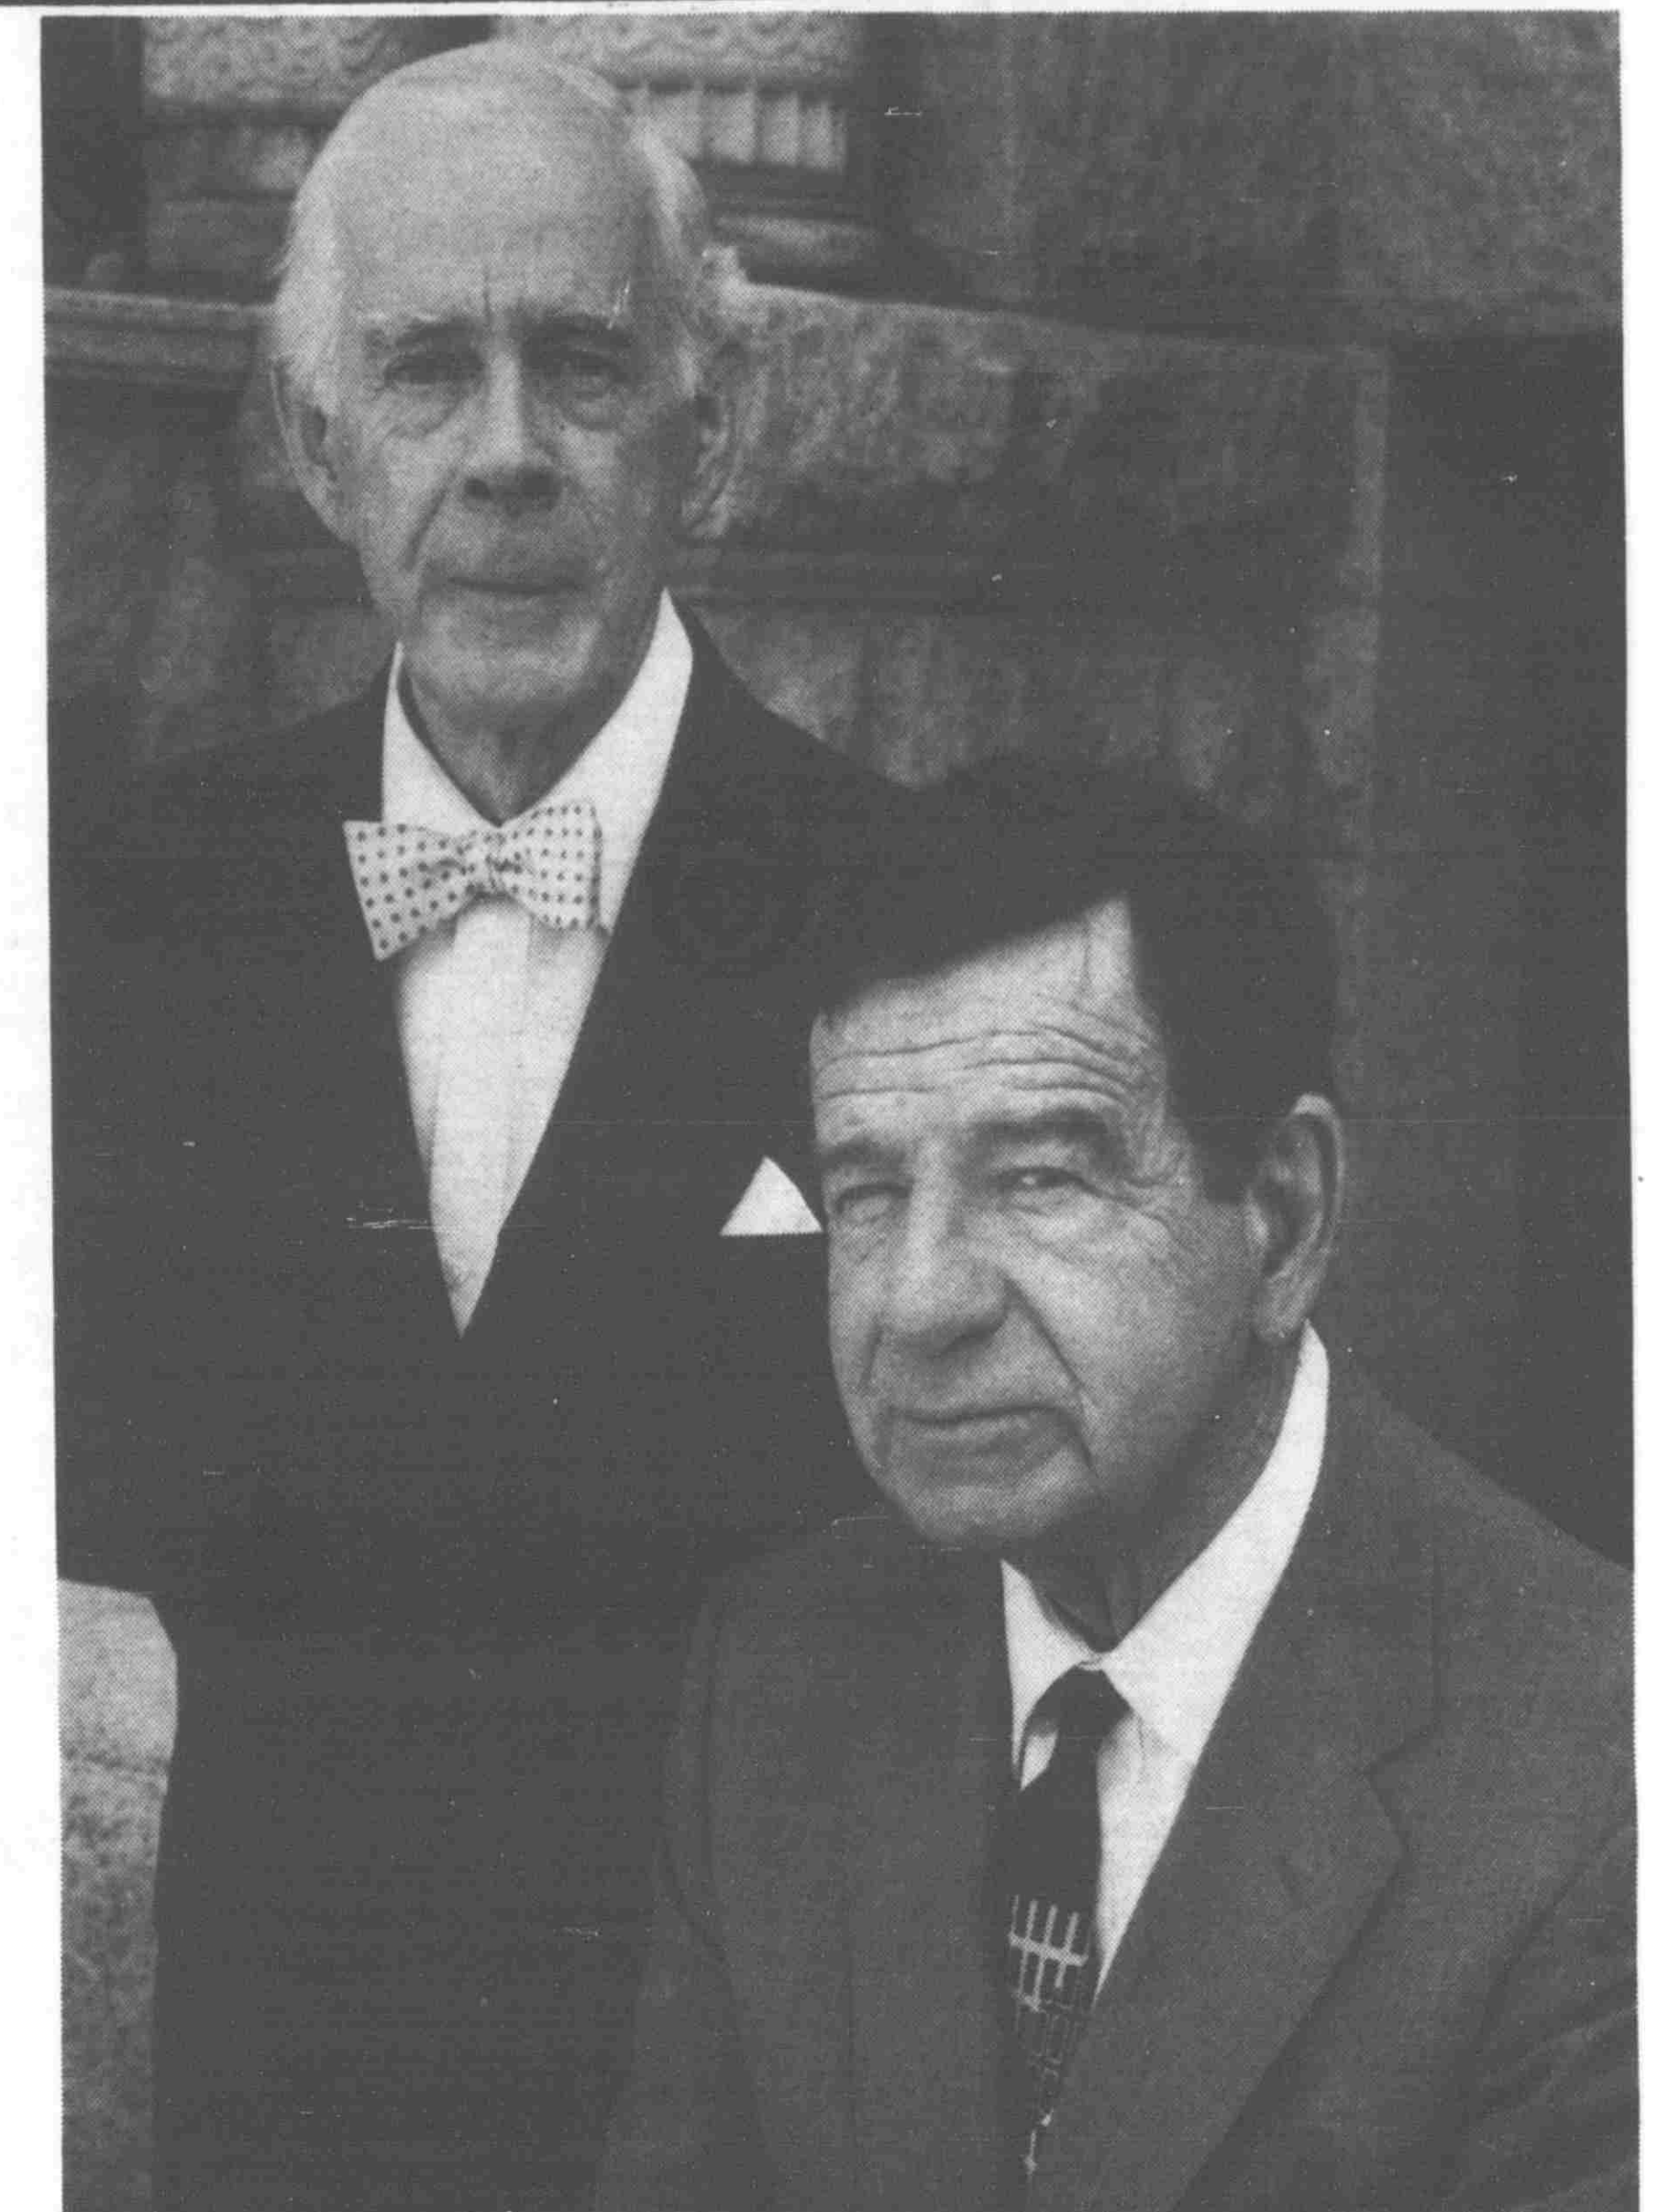

Rabbits are rarely found deep in forests. They prefer places where bushes or clumps of tall grass are available for hiding.

Lowell volleyball team ties for seventh overall in league

Lowell's Kris Stouffer sets for a return against East Grand Rapids.

Lowell's volleyball team lost to EGR 15-2, 15-3.

Lowell volleyball coach Laurie Kuna said it was a moral victory that the Red Arrows arrived at the O-K White Conference Tournament in parta on time.

"I didn't think the girls played bad considering many had to play in unfamiliar positions due to the loss of our starting setter," Kuna said.

Jenny Berry had 15 digs; Kris Stouffer recorded 10 assists and five kills; Carrie Thomet posted five blocks, and Krista Mackety had 12 saves.

Saturday, District play will start at 6 p.m. Joining the Arrows at the district will be Lakewood, Ionia, Portland and Belding. Lowell will open with Lakewood.

Beth Stouffer was Lowell's leader in assists with two. Kathleen Wojciuch had a game-high 13 for EGR.

Kris Stouffer recorded two kills for Lowell while Kelly Olson posted 10. Following the week's play, Lowell was 7-15.

Area wrestlers hold their own at state meet; Whalen and Stouffer don't medal

The battle to be the best wrestler in the state concluded Saturday at Battle Creek Central High School.

The West Michigan area was well represented as 12 wrestlers placed in the Class B competition. Four of those grapplers were members of schools from the O-K White.

Area wrestlers that medaled at the state competition were: At 103 pounds Middleville's Corey Webster (6th) was defeated by Judd

Lowell gymnasts bury Pioneers; tie for third in league

Lowell's gymnastic team completed its Rainbow Conference portion of its schedule Monday night with a 125.55-113.90 victory over East Grand Rapids.

The victory left the Arrows tied for third in the league with Rockford and Kenowa Hills. Holland and Mona Shores were first and second respectively.

"It should make for interesting conference and regional tournaments," Lowell coach Tammy Fitzpatrick said. "The top three teams in each regional advance to state competition. It's a given Mona Shores and Holland will take the top two spots that leaves a third spot open."

Lowell lost to Rockford 125.70-122.85 in a dual meet, but was minus Becky Hovey. The Red Arrows defeated Kenowa Hills. The Knights and Rams tied in their only meet.

"The team that does the best on the beam in both the conference meet and regionals will be the team to advance," Fitzpatrick said. "Rockford won the state championship last year. It has a couple of girls that know how to perform under pressure, that may give the Rams an advantage."

The Red Arrows were described as comical and relaxed in their final home performance of the year. Lowell's Laura Kropf and EGR's Becky Howard were co-all around performers. Kropf earned two firsts on the vault and floor exercises. The Lowell junior posted an 8.5 on the vault. Teammate Tammy Jeske was third with a mark of 7.8. Hovey was fourth at 7.6 and Angie Fox placed fifth with a 7.3.

In the floor exercise Kropf posted a smooth 8.8 routine. Hovey was third with her best floor routine score of the year, 8.3. Carrie Lipkea finished fifth at 8.15 and Jeske was sixth with a 7.9.

Lipkea was the leader on the uneven bars with a mark of 8.65. Kropf was second at 8.3, while Jeske placed third at 8.05 and Katie Hawk placed fourth with a score of 7.35, her highest mark on the bars this year.

The Pioneers' Jenn Harrington had top honors on the balance beam with a score of 8.0. Lowell took the bottom four spots. Jeske was third at 7.8, Kropf fourth at 7.2, Jody Smith was fifth with a 7.1 and Kim Pullen was sixth at 6.7.

"Hovey was great on her floor exercise," Fitzpatrick said. "The girls had a good night."

"It was a super match between two pretty good clubs," Tammie Fitzpatrick said. The Rams, defending state champions, were a touch better on three of the four events. Rockford's Becky Barczak was first on the vault with a mark of 9.05. Lowell's Laura Kropf was fourth at 8.2. Tammie Jeske was fifth with a 7.8 and Angie Fox was sixth at 7.6.

The Rams' Stacie Launstein took top honors on the uneven bars with a tally of 8.75. Kropf achieved a personal best on the beam as she posted her first score of nine (9.1). The junior's score earned her a first. Jeske was fifth at 8.25, included in her routine was a back-flip somi (no hands). The Red Arrow and junior, April Rogers showed great form in her first routine on the uneven bars. Kropf achieved a personal best on the beam as she posted her first score of nine (9.1). The junior's score earned her a first. Jeske was fifth at 8.25, included in her routine was a back-flip somi (no hands). The Red Arrow stuck it (hit her mark). "Jeske has no fear," said an elated Fitzpatrick. Jodi Smith was sixth at 6.65. Rockford's Launstein was first in the floor exercise with a score of 9.15. Kropf was third at 8.45, while Lipkea (fifth) notched a 7.75 and Jeske was sixth at 7.5.

Borg's late free throws key Lowell's 69-66 win

Lowell almost had another slip away from it Tuesday night. However, this time, the Red Arrows were able to recover from a dreadful third quarter in time to post a non-conference victory over former Tri-River foe, Greenville, 69-66.

It took the Arrows all of the fourth quarter to reclaim an advantage it let slip away in the third quarter. An advantage that at one point was as large as 10 points.

Lowell led throughout much of the game. Its biggest lead coming at 4:06 of third quarter 41-31. A four-minute dry spell to end the third stanza allowed Greenville to go on a 13-0 run, surging the Yellowjackets to a 44-41 lead with seconds to play in the third period. The Red Arrows' John Borg then hit a clutch three-pointer to end the period, tying the score at 44-44. Remember that shot, Borg would do it again with less than two minutes to play in the game.

The Yellowjackets held a 63-60 lead with less than two minutes to play when Borg repeated his third quarter heroics. This three-pointer did more than just tie the game, it ignited a 7-0 Arrow run which spurred Lowell to victory.

Borg's three-pointer from the left of the key was as true as the foul committed by Greenville's Todd Truesdell. The Jacket's displeasure with the call also earned him a technical. Borg missed his opportunity at a four-point play, but Holtz gave Lowell a one-point lead when he connected on one of two technical foul shots.

Lowell hit on 15-of-17 from the line in the final quarter. Greenville was 4-for-6. "The disparity in fourth-quarter foul shots was a big factor in the outcome," Greenville Coach Kent Ingles said. "Lowell did a good job of getting the ball into the right person's hands late in the contest."

Borg led all scorers with 23 points, 15 of which came from three-point land. Bob Adams chipped in with 12 and Dave Organek contributed with 10.

Greenville got a team-high 19 points from Jeremy Gough and 17 points from junior center Steve Engel. Engel missed much of the first half because of foul trouble. "He had three touch fouls called on him," said a disgruntled Ingles.

Lowell coach Mark Thomas realized his Red Arrows have played better, but in a season where victories have been few, he was elated with the win.

"We played better against Central, but I'll take the win," Thomas said. "Earlier in the year we would have lost this type of game."

Thomas said he was pleased with the way the Red Arrows rallied back after losing a big lead. "We rebounded better and had a number of people who contributed to our victory."

Lowell's record improved to 4-16 with the win. Greenville fell to 6-12. Lowell's junior varsity team fell on rough times as it was defeated 70-47 by Greenville.

Lowell trailed throughout. It was down 17-7 at the end of one period, 31-20 at halftime, and 47-32 after three quarters.

Lowell was led in scoring by Jon Amundsen with 11.

Matt Kemp added 10 and Jon Hutzilz, Chad Lyon and Jake Vespor all contributed with six points apiece.

Zealand entered the contest against Lowell tied for second in the O-K White with Northview, and a game behind league front-runner, Rogers.

Zealand did everything well as it executed to near perfection in dismantling Lowell, 108-74.

"Ooh - that was a buzzsaw," claimed Lowell coach Mark Thomas. "That's the best ballclub in the O-K White. Zealand was excellent tonight."

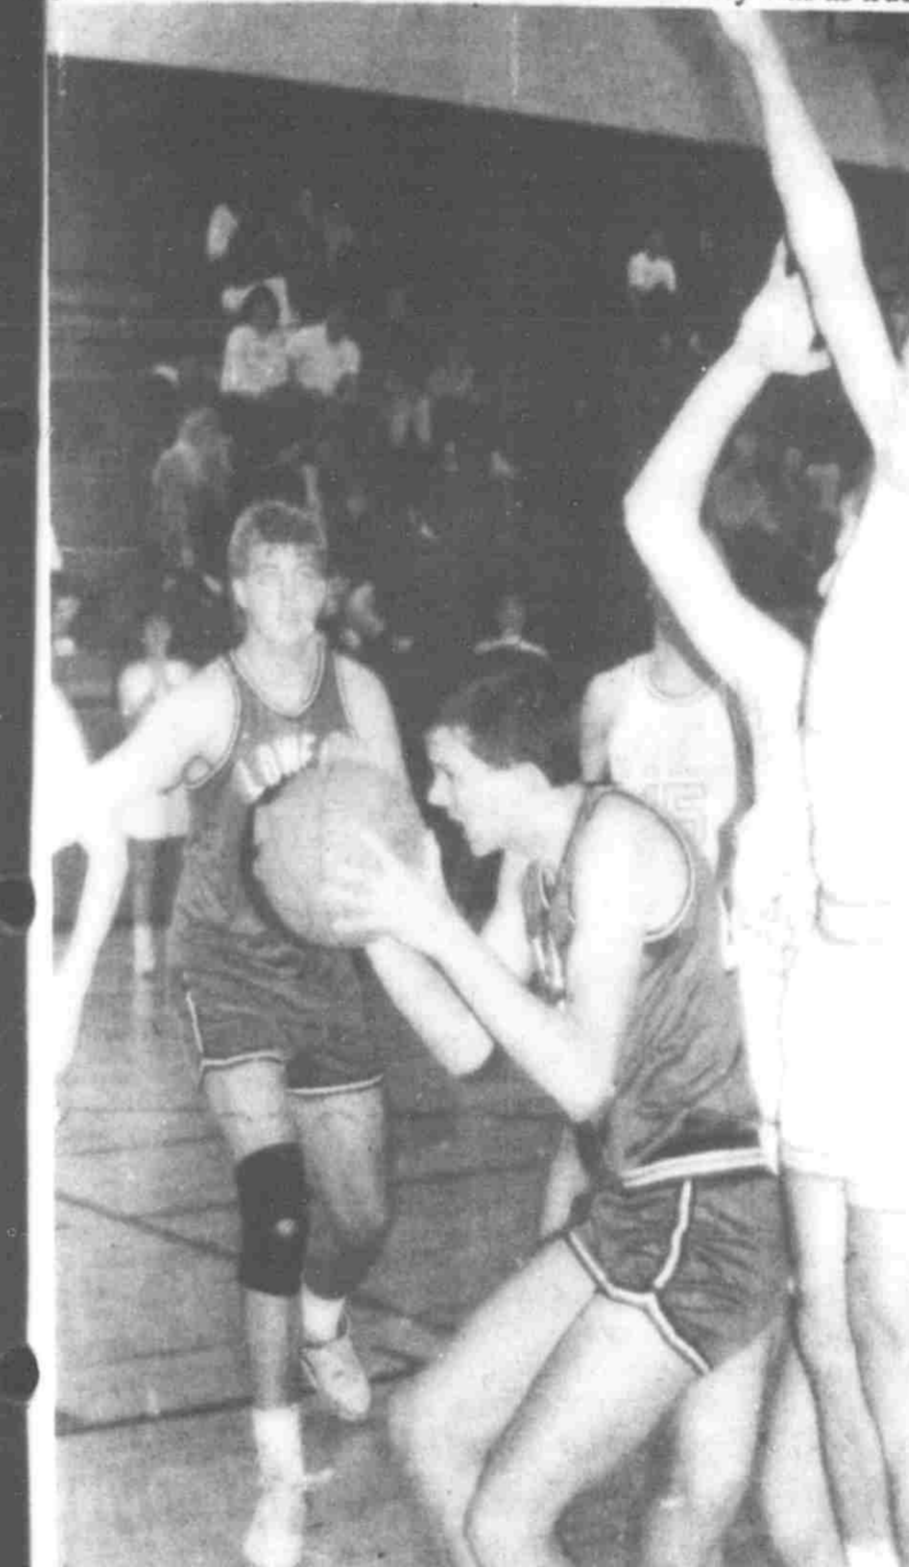

All nine of Zealand's players scored, while seven of the Chix finished in double figures.

It was 37-18 Zealand at the end of eight minutes. The game was actually tied at 11-11 with two minutes gone in the first quarter.

The Chix took a 64-25 halftime lead and extended it to 91-41 to start the fourth quarter. Lowell outscored Zealand 33-17 in the fourth stanza, cutting the deficit to 34.

"The boys moved and shot the ball well tonight," Zealand coach Mickey Cochran said. "Some nights everything is working, tonight was one of those nights."

Athlete of the Week

John Borg

As a youth growing up on a farm, John Borg spent much of his free time inside a barn shooting hoops.

Then, most of the Red Arrow's concentration was on developing a shot. In his junior year, Borg has spent a number of wintery days inside the gym with his teammates, developing other aspects of his game. It has helped to make him a more rounded player.

"John cares about what happens. He cares about basketball," Lowell coach Mark Thomas said. "He's taken time to become aware of the whole game."

COMMISSION ORDER - CFI-103.90

(Under the authority of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925, as amended)

GEAR RESTRICTIONS FOR STREAM FISHING DURING SALMON AND STEELHEAD RUNS

Under the authority of Act 230 of the Public Acts of 1925, as amended, being sections 300.1 through 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission at its February 14, 1990, meeting ordered that for a period of five years the following gear restrictions shall be in effect:

- On any stream, except the St. Mary's, St. Clair, and Detroit Rivers, before May 15 or after August 31 of each year, except otherwise permitted under the authority of a salmon snagging stamp, it shall be unlawful to:
 - Use multi-pointed hooks exceeding 3/8-inch between point and shank or single-pointed hooks exceeding 1/2-inch.
 - Use a hook, fly or lure having more than one single pointed hook if a weight is rigidly attached to the hook or suspended from or below the hook.
 - Use any hook attached to the line between any weight and the rod, except on an unweighted dropper line at least 3 inches long.

The intent of this regulation is to allow the baited hook or the lure to suspend freely in the water, allowing the fish to take the hook or lure in its mouth.

This order supersedes the Commission Order entitled "Gear Restrictions for Stream Fishing during Salmon and Steelhead Runs", effective April 1, 1985, and assigned number CFI-103.85.

This order shall take effect on April 1, 1990, and shall remain effective through March 31, 1995.

IN PARTS OF EUROPE it was once believed putting cummin seeds in bread would keep the wood spirits from stealing it. Probably always worked, too.

Townships' residents looking for sewage dumping answers

For the past ten years raw sewage from Cascade, Ada, Vergennes and Lowell Townships has been dumped on a daily basis at the Tip Top Gravel Company, 9741 Fulton in Ada.

Complaints about the lack of supervision and the smell have fallen on contaminated wells and irritated nasals.

Jessie Vandenberg, of 8526 Fulton, Ada, located directly below the dump site and in the natural drainage area said neighbors in this area of Ada Township are testing their water supply frequently and have had several instances of bacteria contamination. She adds the cause of the tainted wells has not been determined. "I'm not sure if there is any way of proving if the root of the problem is the sewage waste dumping."

With the dump site located in Lowell Township, it is easy for other townships involved to disregard complaints about the sewage dumping.

Lowell Township Supervisor John Timpson said he is still working on a plan to build a metered dump station at the City of Lowell's new sewage facility to take care of Lowell Township's sewage. "I'd be happy to cooperate in any manner with other townships about sewage problems in the area."

The grievances about the odor in the Hawthorne Hills area even carried into court a few years ago, according to Vandenberg.

"The odor last year was not as bad as two years ago when we had the hot summer," said Jeff Cebelak of 1515 Hawthorne Hills. "I didn't have it as bad as my neighbor. My house is situated about 50 feet higher up. My neighbor is in the valley."

Cebelak said he believes something needs to be done. He adds, "However, probably nothing will be done."

Vandenberg said she thinks part of the the problem is the supervision. "I don't think they supervise the waste dumping very well."

That in part, may be due to Kent County. "Kent County is A-typical compared to other counties. Most counties do the supervising themselves Kent County does not, thus the responsibility falls back onto the DNR," says Kurt Thelan of the Waste Management Division of the Department of Natural Resources in Lansing.

He adds that the DNR hired a contract worker last spring to make sure all the minimum requirements were being met. "The dump site at Tip Top Gravel was given satisfactory marks," Thelan said. "It's better if the County does the supervision though, since it is closer to the site."

Disposing of septage wastes in densely populated rural areas is an increasingly difficult problem. Most of the rural residential expansion in the state relies on septic tank-tile drain fields for wastewater disposal.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency considers normal retention in septic tanks as constituting an aerobic digestion - retention of septage in tank that is in absence of oxygen. Thus, fences around land application sites are not required.

Act 181 (land application requirements) is designed to protect the groundwaters. Thelan said the number of gallons of waste which can be applied per acre is designed to allow the soil a chance to break the waste water down so that the nutrients in the waste can be utilized by the plants.

According to a DNR report, bacteria or viruses in the waste are not transported through the soil into the groundwaters. Instead, they remain in the top few inches of soil and most die off within a few months. As an additional safety factor, the law requires 800 feet of isolation distance to drinking water wells.

As long as the DNR approves the dumping, the only way to alter the the waste dumping pattern is to come with an alternative. One alternative was putting the Lowell Township waste through the City's new waste water treatment plant.

"The City was approached last summer with the idea of processing the waste through our new wastewater treatment plant," Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said. "Our big concern now is not to do anything to knock the plant out of compliance. So, before the city gives an answer, we want to know the impact it may have on the plant." To this end, the City hired engineers to complete a study. Pasquale said the results should be available this summer.

Unless an alternative is found, Timpson said Lowell Township's hands are tied as to what it can do.

Students participate in learning activity

Mathcounts - this is not just a statement of fact but also the name of a program from the Society of National Engineers to promote the learning of higher math skills.

Lowell Area Schools has participated in this learning activity since September. Four local students competed as a team at Grand Valley State University's downtown campus and placed 10th out of 21 teams.
