Widening of Bowes Road may begin Monday - Lowell City Council awards contract

Work should begin Monday on a road project that will hopefully solve some of the traffic problems that plague Lowell's West Main St. (M-21). The Lowell City Council awarded the contract at Monday's meeting for the widening of Bowes Rd. from M-21 to Hudson St. and construction of an extension of Valley Vista Dr. from Main St. to Bowes Rd. When work is completed, a traffic signal will be installed at the intersection of Main and Valley Vista.

Ken Shaler and Son of Saranac was awarded the contract as low bidder. Total cost of the Valley Vista extension is $206,337.25 while the Bowes Rd. work will cost another $129,534.50. Cheryl Scales, an engineer and manager of this project for the city's engineering firm, WBDC Group, says work should begin Monday to stake the project. Scales says a completion date of November 2, 1990 has been set.

Bowes Rd. will be widened to 30 feet, allowing it to meet standards for major street funding. Curb and gutter will be installed on the north side of the road and storm sewer will be extended from West St. to the new Valley Vista Dr. intersection.

The Valley Vista project includes the widening of the north side of Main St. at the intersection to accommodate a third lane for left turning traffic. The Valley Vista extension will also have a left turn lane at the intersection, but will taper to two lanes as it proceeds south to Bowes Rd. Storm sewer, sanitary sewer and water mains will be installed along the new street. Also, sidewalk will be constructed on both sides of the street as well as adding new sidewalk along Main St. to connect existing sidewalk to the Main St. and Valley Vista intersection.

Four curb cuts are planned for the new section of Valley Vista. Driveways will be installed to accommodate the existing businesses of Showboat Automotive and Curtis Cleaners. Curb cuts will also be made to service the now vacant property south of Showboat Automotive and a possible private road on the east side to serve as a rear entrance to McDonald's Restaurant.

In other council business, a side yard variance was granted to owners of Fritts Bait Shop at 815 W. Main. Bennie Vinton and Gladys Fritts plan to add on to their current structure and the expansion would place the end of the building 6 feet from the lot line to the west rather than the prescribed ten feet. Several residents spoke in support of the project. A letter from Robert Elzinga was read into the minutes in opposition to the variance. Elzinga owns a rental property to the west. The councilmen acting as the Zoning Board of Appeals voted unanimously in favor of the variance.

The council unanimously adopted a resolution calling for drug free school zones. The resolution calls for enforcing recent state law mandating stiffer penalties for those convicted of selling drugs within 500 feet of school property. The resolution will be considered by the school board at their August 13 meeting, if approved by the school board, the program will be implemented.

The council voted unanimously in favor of ratifying support of jail expansion in Kent County. The issue was on the August 7 ballot.

A request from Carol Kelly of 323 Sherman St. to have a street light installed on Sherman St. was approved by the council.

Two members of "Grand River Expedition 1990" were on hand to seek city support of their project. The expedition involves a large group of canoeists paddling the Grand River from its head waters at Liberty, Michigan (near Jackson) to its mouth at Grand Haven. The canoeists will be paddling replica canoes used by early explorers and will be dressed in garb from the 1700's.

The expedition will pass through Lowell on Tuesday, August 21. The city council was asked to provide lunch for approximately 120 canoeists and their support personnel. The council agreed to the request. Details will be worked out later and news of the event will be posted in next week's Ledger.

Lowell's Showboat City Hoop Classic scheduled to tip-off Friday, Aug. 10

Watching Larry Bird play from the bench is easy. Having to fill in for an injured Larry Bird is difficult.

Having a year to plan for the Showboat City Hoop Classic is easy. Having less than two months to plan for the Showboat City - Knights of Columbus Hoop Classic is difficult.

Because the transition of tournament organizers, between the tournament's founders and the Lowell Knights of Columbus was not made until May, most of the preparatory work had to be completed in the hurry mode. "Considering the time frame we had to work with, I think things have gone pretty well." Knights of Columbus member and tournament organizer, Roger Southland said.

Despite the shortened sign-up period, the tournament was able to draw 112 teams for its third year. The figure is one team short of the total draw from a year ago. "I'm sure that next year without such a hurried pace, and a longer sign-up period, the size of the tournament will increase. We've had quite a few people call in late, asking to make reservations for next year."

The 112 teams will be divided into 11 divisions. The games, which will start on Friday evening, will be played on 12 courts. Each court will have a sponsor. "We have been extremely pleased with the support the tournament has received from local merchants."

The games will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Friday and are scheduled to end at 8:30. The 3-on-3 hoopla will start-up again at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and play is scheduled to continue up until 7 p.m.

There will be a short intermission at 11 a.m. so that the Grand Rapids Pacers (wheelchair team) can entertain the crowd.

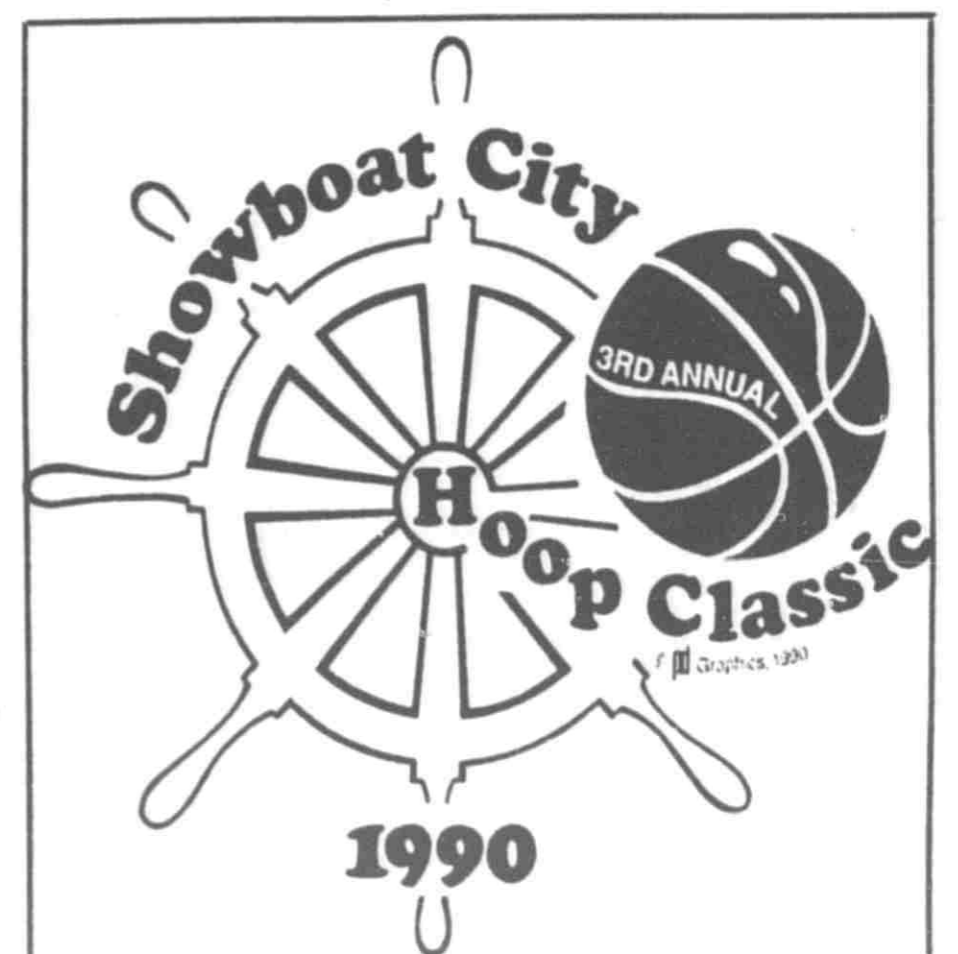

At 8 p.m. on Saturday the Lowell Showboat Knights of Columbus Hoop Classic will hold a slam dunk contest.

On Sunday, the final round of games will start at 1 p.m.

and are scheduled to be completed at approximately 6 p.m.

Fair commences with opening ceremonies

The Kent County Youth Fair played host to roughly 1,800 opening day spectators.

Extension 4-H Youth Agent, Betty Shelby, said while the rain may have dampened the attendance mark, the 4-H Board was extremely pleased with the crowd and how smoothly everything ran. "Especially when one considers the last minute change of the carnival location," Shelby said. "Because of the amount of rain this area has received, we were unable to keep the carnival in the same location. The ground was too soft for setting up the rides and booths." She added because of the change, the Fairgrounds layout is much more condensed. Another change that was made for the 1990 Fair, was switching the still exhibits to Saturday. "By making the switch, 4-Her's did not have to run back-and-forth between showing animals and their projects. The switch made things easier for all who were involved," Shelby said. Kurt Kaeb, Fair grounds maintenance supervisor said the total number of livestock represented at the fair this year is roughly 725. The goats and the lamb representation is up while the hogs and steer representation is down. Other livestock remained roughly the same.

HEALTH With Dr. Paul Gauthier & Dr. Jim Lang

EXERCISE - HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?

We are frequently asked the above question in the office setting. While congratulations are in order for anyone who wishes to embark on an exercise program for better fitness, certain guidelines should be observed if the exercise is to be physiologically productive. Although low exercise levels are associated with some health benefits it takes heightened effort to attain a state of physical fitness. Fatigue begets fatigue. In other words, those who are fatigued and lethargic because of poor fitness classification are likely to remain as such without an exercise program to dissipate these symptoms. The real problem lies in the first, almost insurmountable hurdle for so many people - beginning a structured program and not quitting because "it makes me so tired." If we stick with the program until we start feeling better, then the motivation and discipline to continue will most likely follow. Exercise needs to be productive, that is, it has to be performed at such a level as to enhance fitness. The three key parameters in a good workout involve intensity, frequency and duration. Intensity - refers to how hard you exercise. This is measured by how rapidly your heart beats during exercise. Your doctor can explain how to calculate what your pulse rate should be, based on age and prior medical history. Frequency - your workouts should be three to five times a week. Less than three days is probably not effective as exercise, and more than five days has not been shown to increase fitness to any measurable degree. Duration - should be anywhere from 20 to 60 minutes depending on the intensity of the effort. The less intensive exercises should be continued for longer periods of time. Consider implementing an exercise program into your weekly routine. It will help prevent disease, make you more fit, and most importantly, make you feel better.

Aquinas College receives Federal grant for student services program

The Student Support Services program at Aquinas College has received a grant for $100,524 from the U.S. Department of Education for the 1990-91 school year. It is a three-year grant that will continue to be funded during the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years. This is the fourth time that Aquinas has been awarded this three-year grant. Only 716 of these grants are given annually nationwide. For students to receive assistance, they must be low-income, first-generation college students, or physically handicapped. The Student Support Services program at Aquinas provides assistance to 125 students annually in such academic areas as instruction in reading, writing skills, mathematics, and other subjects necessary for success in college and beyond. The program also helps students in areas such as tutorial services; academic, financial, or personal counseling; assistance in obtaining student financial aid; information on further educational opportunities; and assistance in securing admissions and financial assistance for enrollment in graduate and professional programs. Lee Ann Breidenfeld, a 1990 graduate, found the Support Services Program extremely helpful. "I appreciated this service very much because it was nice to know that someone was always available to help me when I needed it. The tutoring I received in both statistics and research and design will help me in pursuing my master's degree."

KRAUSE at the HOUSE

Gov. Blanchard has unveiled a property tax proposal that would limit taxes to the inflation rate, with the state reimbursing local districts for revenue lost in the reform shuffle. Sound good? Read further. --The $20 million in property "tax relief" is a drop in the bucket, only amounting to about $3 annually per person --the governor instructed the funds to be set aside in next year's budget, causing some Lansing officials to question whether he has the individual authority to escrow $20 million. --some Senate Appropriations Committee members doubt there is money for the plan in next year's budget, which already is estimated to be $250 million in the red. State residents want -- and certainly deserve -- property tax reduction. Michigan is one of the most overtaxed states in America, with the fourth highest property tax rate in the nation. Property owners are upset with the dramatic increase in taxes during Blanchard's tenure. Although property taxes are a local matter, people are looking to the state for relief. Michigan citizens should be wary of tax relief promises from Gov. Blanchard. The first thing he did after winning his 1983 gubernatorial race was to raise the state income tax 38 percent. He also tried to tax state residents' bank accounts, insurance premiums, pensions and paychecks for people serving in the military, which legislative Republicans prevented. Blanchard's dedication to reducing taxes fails to extend beyond words. He recently vetoed a tax-cut bill which would have reduced state residents' inheritance tax liability by 50 percent during a three-year period. When he announced his property "tax relief" plan, the governor said "When you actually pass and sign something, people get excited." A $3 property tax decrease will cause little jubilation.

The brilliant yellow saffron that makes dyes and food flavoring comes from dried autumn crocuses. It takes 4,000 flowers to yield one ounce of saffron--hence its high price. Sage, known for its sweet odor and flavor, is a relative of the mint family.

Adgate reflects on the painfulness of World War I

"It was a slaughterhouse for young boys," says John Adgate as he sits at his kitchen table puffing on a Phillies Cheroot cigar in between euchre games with partner, Lyle Benjamin, Benjamin's wife, June Benjamin and Adgate's niece Maryon Grieves.

Adgate, known as "Mr. Saranac," was referring to World War I. It wasn't a real pleasant reflection, but then again war is never pleasant.

At the age of 95, Adgate, is living proof that time spent in any war is time that is never forgotten. The Saranac native recalls many stories and moments from World War I as if they were yesterday's headlines.

"You never forget, you can't forget," Adgate says. The casualty list for World War I totaled 320,710. Those numbers broke down this way. 53,513 battle deaths, 63,195 other deaths, and 204,002 suffered wounds not mortal.

With such staggering numbers, one begins to understand why veterans, such as Adgate don't forget.

"I won't make myself out to be a hero. I'm on record as serving just seven days on the front," Adgate said. "That was enough for me."

Prior to entering the service, Adgate opened Adgate's Supermarket in 1914. John got his meat from his own slaughterhouse where he butchered his own cattle.

He ran the business until he was drafted into the service in 1917. "I was stationed in England and Paris, France," Adgate recalls. "My superior officer asked me if I wanted to cook or pull K.P. (kitchen police) duty. I told him I don't give a damn what I do, I'm only here for the time being."

The Saranac native said he didn't have to be a good cook. "All I had to do was stir potatoes. I cooked for 500 people when we were on the move and 250 when we were not moving," Adgate says.

The man who is currently recovering from a cornea transplant, recalled one very painful day. "The day they sent 230 of the boys up to the front line. Many never made it back," Adgate says, as he wipes a tear away from underneath his glasses. "It was a terrible day for us, we were all pretty close. They might as well have taken the boys to a slaughterhouse."

Armistice Day, Nov. 11 1918, the day the fighting ended, ignited celebrations in many hometowns across the country including Saranac. Lyle Benjamin remembers, "John's mother was going crazy. She was real happy. People were shooting guns into the air in celebration."

While those at home celebrated, Adgate recalls that it wasn't such a good day for his buddy, Joe. "He had received word that his mother had passed away. "We just kind of moped around," Adgate says.

After returning home, Ad-gate hitched up with his sweetheart, Helen Poole. "Yeah, I had someone waiting for me," he smiles. "We were married 54 years."

The Saranac couple raised three boys, Roger, Bernard and Loren.

Bernard has carried on Adgate, cont'd., pg. 19 where his father left off. He currently runs Adgate stores in Ada and Saranac. Following a puff on the cigar, a habit Adgate took up after the war, he muses, "I 'tired in 1957 and I guess I'm still tired yet."

John Adgate and his partner, Lyle Benjamin, closest to you, look to even a score against June Benjamin, to Adgate's left, and Maryon Grieves to Adgate's right.

John Adgate, Mr. Saranac, still enjoys a tasty stogie, Tiger baseball and a competitive game of euchre.

Fritts and Vinton work to enhance bait shop's future

Bennie Vinton needed something to do. Gladys Fritts needed someone to run Fritts' Bait Shop.

So when the two began talking last November, it became apparent they could help one another.

"I couldn't have found a better guy to run it," says Fritts. "Bennie has really helped to increase sales."

Increased sales has meant increased inventory which in turn has accelerated the need for more shop space. Neither Vinton nor Fritts has been overly pleased with the long, drawn-out process it takes to get the okay for constructing an addition. "We started in May, and the City Council's approval of the side-yard variance Monday night was the final item needed before I could obtain a builder's permit," Vinton said. "Once I got the permit, it was all worth the wait. However, the wheels of justice roll real slow."

Vinton's plans are to construct a 364 square foot addition onto Fritts' Bait Shop. The plan complied with the zoning ordinance in all but two areas. First, the addition will be within four feet of the west side yard lot line where a 10-foot setback is required. A variance was required.

Second, five parking spaces have been shown. According to the ordinance, 10 spaces were required.

The addition will expand 24-by-14 feet to the west end of the building. It will be two stories with the upstairs used for storage and the lower section used for guns, ammunition and archery.

Vinton, who was a licensed contractor for many years, will be doing the construction work.

"In order to have what people want, you have to have a big inventory," Vinton says. "When I started in November we had $4,000 worth of inventory. Now, we have $60,000 worth of inventory. Because of the lack of space, a lot of it isn't out on display. Sales are restricted

Vinton, who was hired by Gladys Fritts within the last year to run the bait shop, has plenty of growth planned for its future.

gate smiles, "I've been a cooking man all my life."

These days Adgate can be found at 45 Mill St. where he enjoys playing euchre and watching Tiger baseball. "I enjoy euchre, especially, when you get a couple of wild women to play," he says, as he glances at June Benjamin. "I had to take out a big mortgage, but this is where I stay."

Seniors celebrate summer with a picnic

The smells, sounds, sites and summer sunshine were all there for the very first Lowell Senior Neighbor Center picnic - the aroma of the pork and sausage, the clanging of horseshoes against the steel post, and the display of the newly finished quilt completed by the Senior Neighbor ladies.

The summer get-together was organized by Center Coordinator for the Lowell Senior Neighbors Center, Donna Boelema. "The picnic serves as a social event that brings the senior citizens of the area together for food and fun," she said.

The picnic started at 11 a.m. and continued on through 3 p.m. It was attended by 40-plus area senior citizens. Each member of the picnic gathering brought a favorite dish for the potluck. That included baked hens, sausage, salads, cake, pork, sweet breads, and brownies. The center provided lemonade and coffee.

Many of the Senior Neighbor's Center ladies had a helping hand in the completion of the quilt. "Many of the ladies took home 10-by-10 inch squares and embroidered a pattern of their choice on the squares."

When the squares were completed, Laura Wheeler put the quilt together and Marie Thiel, Pauline Wittenbach and Helen Kwant put it on the frame and tied it. "It took two months to complete the quilt," Kwant said.

The quilt is being raffled off by the Senior Neighbors Center. The Center is asking for a $1 donation. The raffle drawing will take place on Monday, Aug. 13 at the Senior Neighbor's Center home on the corner of South Hudson Street and Bowes Road.

Stephanie DeGreen's turn is up in a friendly game of croquet.

Thank you just the same. We will remain seated here in the shade.

Lowell Lion's Club donates a second Ram to the Lowell Fire Department

Following the presentation by Lowell Lion's Club Treasurer, Kelly Holst, Lowell Fire Chief, Frank Martin, can now boast that the Lowell Fire Department has a matching set of ram tools.

The funds for the ram tool were provided through the Ron Holst Memorial Fund. Holst was active as a Lion's Club treasurer for many years. "I'm sure Dad would have wanted the money from the Fund to benefit those within the community. This certainly does that."

The Hurst Ram Tool, which was purchased and then donated to the Lowell Fire Department, is used to remove the steering wheel and dash from victims of head-on vehicle accidents.

"It sure beats the old chain method we've been using," Martin said. "The old method meant breaking through the windshield and wrapping a chain around the steering column. A second chain was hooked under the frame of the car. The 'jaws of life' were then used to pull the steering wheel and dash up off the victim."

Martin said the ram tool was purchased through West Shore Services out of Allendale. The cost was $1358.

The Lowell Fire Department received its first ram tool back in March from the King Milling Company. The cost of the longer ram was $1,500.

Lowell Fire Chief displays how the Hurst Ram Tool would be used.

Vinton adds that since November, Fritts' Bait Shop has benefited from a 30 percent sales increase.

He says the addition should be completed no later than the 30th of August.

Gladys' husband, Carlton, who passed away two years ago, started selling worms as a hobby back in 1980. "His hobby ended up being something he did 365 days a year," Fritts said. "But I've enjoyed it too. Sportsmen and fishermen are compulsive buyers."

He says the addition should be completed no later than the 30th of August.

Lowell FFA's Nugent and Kaeb attend Washington conference

Renee Nugent and Melanie Kaeb of the Lowell FFA Chapter attended the 1990 Washington Conference Program in the nation's capitol. The week-long program helps FFA members improve leadership skills, develop an understanding of national heritage and prepare for more effective leadership roles in their chapters and communities. Sessions on human relations, goal setting, and personal communications develop these skills. Personal outlook, motivation and pride are also discussed. Visits to Mount Vernon, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson Memorial and other historic sites in Washington were included in the conference. A highlight of the week is a visit to the office of Congressman Senator Robert Dole of Kansas. The FFA members also had an opportunity to visit both the House of Representatives and Senate chambers while Congress was in session. The chapter's FFA advisor is Pete Siler.

TOWN TALK

The movie rating system has come under scrutiny for its ineffectiveness. Do you think it's effective or does it need to be revamped?

Jody Spillane

I think the rating system is pretty effective. More ratings are not going to help. Kids that want to see violence and sex are going to get into the movie anyway. There isn't much of a selection for young kids to choose from.

Jim Nauta

I believe the ratings need to be broken down a lot more. I think there is too much violence especially in PG movies. There is also a lot of sex scenes in many of the movies.

Dan Rudman

To add more ratings would just be putting the horse after the cart. The rating of movies is not the problem. The design of the movies is the problem. Today, you take a wonderful movie and they have to add a sex scene. This is done because it draws more people to the theatre. So, I guess it's a good marketing strategy.

Alisa Noll

I think R movies are awfully explicit. They show everything and that's not necessary. Movies used to leave things for the imagination. If a person takes a child to a movie today, they become embarrassed. I definitely think something needs to be done with the ratings. There aren't enough good PG movies anymore.

Tom Estes

I believe the ratings need to be revamped for violence mainly. I took some children to see Ninja Turtles and that movie was awfully violent. I rent movies and there are still some quality movies out there, but they don't make anything like they used to.

Steven Copron

The ratings could stand to be revamped a little. The X-rating takes away the value of a movie. There have been some very good and powerful movies that have been shunned by movie goers. An example of this is the Mickey Roarke movie, "Wild Orchid." The same thing has almost happened to Jack Nicholson's new movie. As for the PG/PG-13 movies, I think it's up to the parents to draw a distinction.

Laraine Facca

I believe movies need to be broken down more, according to violence, sex and profanity. If a person reads reviews then you can get a pretty good idea, but if you depend on the ratings, it's not enough. Teen movies are real bad, but so are Madonna videos.

Patti Comp

I think the rating needs to be more specific especially for the younger kids. I believe the movies should be broken down into ages. It's really difficult to take a child to a movie without hearing slang language.
