George and Dolores Dey honored for their 33-year commitment to Lowell

When asked what it was about Lowell that makes them smile? George and Dolores "Dode" Dey responded "It's home. It's family."

The response was somewhat ironic, for it was the couple's family type contribution to the community of Lowell over the past 33 years that helped earn them the Fifth Annual Chamber of Commerce "Person of the Year" award.

"This award is given to the person(s) who have helped the growth and development of the community to become a better place. It's for those who give to the community whether through business, service clubs or volunteerism," said the initial recipient of the award, Chris VanAntwerp. "No matter what it was, George and Dolores Dey have always said 'yes' to the Lowell community."

Deys are charter members of various Lowell organizations, and last Thursday night, they became charter members of an elite list of winners - Chris VanAntwerp, King Doyle, Ivan Blough, Orval McKay and now, George and Dolores Dey.

George Dey said, after the presentation made by VanAntwerp, he was surprised and wasn't sure what to say. After a moment's thought though he quipped to the 140-plus business dignitaries, "Ho! Ho! Ho!" For the past 30 years Dey has been Santa Claus for community events sometimes for children of parents who sat on his knee when they were children.

The Deys came to Lowell in 1966 and have played an active and leading role in the community since their arrival.

In 1975, they were responsible for the organization of Lowell's first Fourth of July Celebration at Richard's Park. In 1981, they organized the Fourth of July sesquicentennial celebration in Lowell.

The Deys were charter members of the Lowell Area Arts Council in 1979. They also began their involvement with the Lowell Chamber of Commerce in 1966.

Dolores has co-produced and starred in many of the Lowell Area Arts Council winter plays, as has George.

Individually their list of credits are as remarkable.

George has been a Lowell School Bus driver for 27 years. He has been a member of the Lowell Lion's Club for 34 years, 20 years as a secretary and he spent two years as a Deputy District Governor for two years. Dey is also an active member of the Lowell Knights of Columbus.

Dode has been a Camp Fire leader; volunteered her time to help set up the St. Mary's Library; She has been the voice behind the phone at the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce, she has been the chairman of the Fallasburg Quilt Committee for the past seven years and worked on three of them before that time.

The Deys also expressed how important it is that the school bond issue pass. "A quality school system is what has brought new people into the school area. It is also what resells homes," George Dey said. "Good schools make for good selling points for homes."

Both George and Dolores said they are proud to live in the Lowell community and are appreciative of the award bestowed upon them by the community.

Linda Moon School of Dance twirls into Lowell

Judy Serba, Linda Moon dance instructor, peeks to see how her young dancing partners are doing.

Dance - is movement created by the music in an individual's heart.

These days, all the movement has been in the direction of the newly opened Linda Moon School of Dance Arts at 505 W. Main in the Lowell Plaza.

"The response we've received from the Lowell area has been unbelievable," said Linda Moon. The owner, instructor and artistic director says the dance studio has been inundated with calls.

Moon drove through communities, stopping and talking to children and adults, in her search for a fifth dance studio. "It was just a gut feeling I had after coming to Lowell, seeing the children and talking to people of the community," she says.

Besides Lowell, the lady who has been in the administrative end of the School of Dance Arts for 18 years also has schools in Grand Rapids, Wyoming, Standale and Sparta.

"I stopped teaching dance about seven years ago," Moon explains. "I think in order to give teaching or administrative work justification, a person must choose one. You can't do both."

Most of the instructors at the Linda Moon School of Dance Arts have been with Moon since their youth.

"They've been trained and progressed through the school." The member of the National Association of Dance and Affiliated Artists believes dance instructors should be licensed. "Unfortunately, many dance studios are owned by housewives who've studied for a couple of years, and that shows."

The Linda Moon School of Dance has opened its doors to Lowell and to tomorrow's dancers.

She says a person must know dance to teach it. "The way a person gets to know dance is by studying it. Although, just because you've studied dance it does not mean you will be a good teacher or administrator."

Moon believes a good dance teacher has a good eye for errors, can describe a movement in many ways and years for leadership. "Being a good teacher is born in you," she adds.

Moon has studied in various cities, keeping up on the new dance styles and staying progressive.

The Alyce Hogan Dance Studio pupil says her classes help their students with more than just dance. "It helps to develop grace, poise, timing, coordination, self-expression, mental and physical discipline and, most importantly, self confidence."

The Lowell dance school offers instruction on six different types of dance: tap, ballet, jazz, pointe, acrobatics and baton. Moon says the three most popular classes are tap, ballet and jazz.

The classes are broken down into seven different age groups - 2 & 3 year olds; 4 & 5 year olds; 6 & 7 year olds; 8, 9 & 10 year olds; 11 & 12 year olds; 13 & 16 year olds (teens); and 17 & up (adults).

The dance season extends from September to June. The basic tuition is $20 a month. For more information, those interested should call 897-9494 or 245-4990.

Homespun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

Show me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths (Psalm 25:4).

September is here again. School bells are ringing. The sound of children's voices fills the air. Little girls in bright gingham dresses giggle excitedly as they walk arm in arm toward the schoolhouse. The boys, less enthusiastic, trudge along behind, kicking the toes out of their newly acquired shoes. After the summer rest period, the teachers are eager to begin helping their pupils develop intellectually once again.

There are many lessons to be learned in God's schoolroom, too. If we are eager to learn, we can profit from the experiences and advice of others, but there are some things only God himself can teach us. However, we do not grasp all His precepts in a moment of time. We learn them as we sit in His classroom day after day, year after year. The Great Schoolmaster demands strict obedience and attention, but He teaches with compassion and graciousness. He speaks His truths with clarity and wisdom. He deals with understanding. All who sit "in His schoolroom" are instructed with infinite patience.

Prayer: O Lord, I seek to know more of Thy ways, to be taught by Thee. I sit at Thy feet. I accept Thy discipline. I submit to Thy instruction. Amen.

More about Jesus let me learn. More of His holy will discern; Spirit of God, my Teacher be, Showing the things of Christ to me.

Viewpoint . . .

Cozy Corner by Roger Brown

We had another one of those weeks with the Ledger photography department. You'll notice that there is no "Town Talk" column in this issue. Thad Kraus, one half of our photo department, grabbed his camera and hit the streets last Friday to do the leg work for "Town Talk". As usual, he was able to beg, plead with or threaten eight people into having their picture taken for the paper and offer their opinion on this, that or the other thing.

Speaking of "Town Talk" . . . I've been asked why we don't ask more controversial questions. The answer is, it's tough enough to get eight people per week to stand up, have their picture taken and publicly proclaim how they feel about the Detroit Lions 1990 season. Just try to pin somebody down on something like the abortion issue and see how fast they can duck out of the camera's viewfinder.

Back to our photo problems. Monday morning rolled around and it was time to develop our rolls of film for the week. Cheryl Lilley, our darkroom technician, and the other half of our photo department, came to me with a developed roll of film and an ominous, "Thad's not gonna be happy about this". The first half of the exposures were just fine. The first two mug shots for "Town Talk" were just fine. The other six heads were drastically under exposed and nothing more than ghosts in reverse. Cheryl was right. Thad was not happy.

We haven't yet determined what happened. Thad has one of these new fangled, computerized, auto-everything cameras. Basically, if you load the film correctly, and the batteries aren't dead, a chimpanzee could be an Ansel Adams if he had an eye for composition. Our first hunch is that the camera's little onboard computer malfunctioned. But, I learned a long time ago that problems are very seldom the fault of a computer. Around here we call it "pilot error". We'll have to run a roll through the camera to check it out. But for now we're giving Thad the benefit of the doubt.

So, what to do about "Town Talk". We discussed using the two photos we had, and simply putting blank spots above the comments from the others with captions that read something like, "Too ugly for photo", "Broke the camera", "Hair in curlers", "Had a zit on his nose", "Eyes were closed", etc., etc., etc. But, in the spirit of responsible journalism we opted to just scratch "Town Talk" for a week. Ain't responsibility a bore?

A little later on that morning Thad collared me and said, "Hey, didn't you take a roll of film at the girls basketball game?" "Oh yeh, that's right. I forgot all about it", I said.

Thad's Thoughts

Way back in May, the Centrum Management Corporation, owners of Lowell One Apartments, sent me a letter, asking that I recertify in order to determine my eligibility and rental rate.

With my lease not being up until October and being a "True American" I put off that May day for what I could do four months down the road.

So last Friday on my lunch hour I went to visit my resident manager so that I could be recertified and then after all the papers were shuffled - have another one-year lease reinstated.

My resident manager reminded me that I was late and that I'd probably receive a nasty letter from the corporate office, but maybe she could push it through fast enough to spare me the condemnation.

Good effort, but it didn't work. On Saturday, prior to leaving for the Alto Fall Festival to judge the Talent Search competition, I pulled out the only piece of mail in my mailbox. The return address was 49770 Northland Drive, East Lansing. I've received letters from this address before, so I knew it was management.

So I opened up the letter and began reading. Basically, it stated that because I failed to recertify within the time frame they set my rent would be raised to $445.00 a month. Secondly, if I did not agree to pay this amount I would be asked to vacate the apartment complex within 30 days.

First, I chuckled, then I read it again and then my German blood began to warm up. I've been renting for nearly six years. Three years in Greenville at Century Place Apartments and nearly three here in Lowell at Lowell One Apartments. By coincidence, both apartments are owned by the same management. I guess somewhere in those six years the apartments were sold. Nonetheless, I've been someone's meal ticket for 60 months.

Yes, I've been a good tenant. Only once in those six years have I been asked by my resident manager to turn the music down because it was after hours. If there is a need for a party, I pack my bags and go to Churubusco, IN, Kalamazoo or Battle Creek. Furthermore, I've only been late a couple of times with my rent payment.

Because I'm late recertifying once, management wants to raise my rent by some $90 or evict me.

Now to reveal the real culprit behind all of this! It's not that I was late recertifying, nor that management has no loyalty, it has everything to do with with a bleep'n computer. In this day of the computer age, a human touch is still needed, such as writing eviction notices.

I found out later that I was not the only one to receive a letter, tenants that have been at the apartment complex longer than I have also received them. The computer must have put in a full eight hours' work someday spitting out copies of this letter.

I'm not sure how many letters were sent out, but my guess is that a lot of stamps were wasted. A lot of resident managers are calling and asking why management is trying to evict some of its better tenants? Because it has given the computer a task that should be handled by a real person.

One of the fallouts from this incident is that after reading the letter I went to Food City. Upon arriving I noticed that a stack of last week's edition of the Ledger was pushed behind some display. Papers don't sell well when the public has to search to find them. So I told one of the cashiers of my displeasure with this recurring problem. I probably wasn't as cordial as I should have been, and I blame that on that bleep'n computer. So, if you're reading my column this week, I'm sorry!

I haven't been told that everything is okay and that I'll be able to stay, so in case, I've come up with a Plan B. Is there anybody out there that wants to rent out some room to a homeless reporter - are there any young females . . . Mom, if you're reading this, "It's just a stupid joke?"

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Read recent column. As one who has lived in other areas besides the Lowell community, I am constantly bemused by what people term a "terrible" traffic problem. Perhaps I have just lived too long. To be blunt, with a scanning electron microscope I could not find the terrors you discuss. Stray thoughts: A final solution would be to pull down one side of the Main Street CBD. This action would I give us the capabilities for a five-lane including a turn lane, and 2. it would eliminate half of downtown's trip generation. The City of Lowell can thus disincorporate. I often find myself walking the length of the business district for one reason or another.

To get Brazil nuts out of their shells unbroken, freeze them until the shells crack.

Michicard approved for Kent County

At their regularly scheduled meeting of Aug. 15, the Kent County Library System Board approved the use of Michicard for all qualified patrons of the Library System.

The Michicard will give Kent County Library System users borrowing privileges at hundreds of other participating libraries throughout the State of Michigan. Other qualified residents of the State of Michigan may also borrow materials from the Kent County Library System.

Certain restrictions apply in the use of the card. The rules of the lending library will apply to all loans made through Michicard. Residents outside of the Kent County Library system must comply with Kent County Library System procedures and requirements for borrowing materials.

This special Michicard is limited to print materials only. For more information call the Lowell Library at 897-9596 or the Alto branch at 868-6038.

City Council hears study results on Cable TV

I guess it could be said that the Lowell City Council got what it paid for and a little more last Tuesday night at its September meeting.

Otis L. Jones, a partner and manager of R.W. Beck and Associates, made a presentation to the Lowell City Council and the Light and Power Board concerning the future options involving cable television in Lowell. The presentation encompassed the evaluation of the city system, regulations and the

Carol Sue Wesenberg
I believe it's a good idea. I think the young people are anxious to get back to school. Kids have done everything they need to do. By starting earlier they will get out earlier.

Bonnie Bruce
It seems silly to me to start school, then stop and then start school back up again. Summer isn't over until after Labor Day.

NOTICE
The Board of Education will receive letters of interest from citizens interested in filling the Board seat vacated by David Hagens for the 1990-91 school year. Letters should be sent to the Superintendent's office and be received by 12 o'clock noon on September 17, 1990.

advantages and disadvantages of ownerships to a franchise.

Back in July, the Council voted 3-2 to hire the engineering service for a fee of $2,500 to provide it with background information so it could make an informed decision on whether it wants to pursue future purchasing inquiries by other franchises.

"Jones has provided the Council with background information so it can make an informed decision," Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said. "I'm not sure there is a next step. The City has never been presented a monetary offer for the Cable system."

The little bit extra that Jones' presentation provided the Council was a third option. The option includes increasing the subscriber rate to the average market rate and then taking the revenue generated by this and putting it back into the general fund for public service.

"I think putting profit back into the general fund is a viable alternative," Lowell council member, Jim Hodges said.

Lowell has provided a cable service since 1984. It currently serves 1800 customers. It has invested $600 per customer. Its basic rate is $14 per month. The average general market rate of other cable services in West Michigan is $17.95 a month. Each franchise rate is made up of three things: programming, operation and debt service.

Jones said Lowell's rate actually serves to help keep other systems' rates down. "If Lowell would increase its rate to the average, the other area rates would no longer be considered high and I guarantee their rates would increase," he said.

The advantages to owning the Lowell franchise, according to Jones, are controlling the rate, the quality of service, it serves as a source of funds, and it serves as an example in that it helps keep other franchise rates down. "I haven't ever made a presentation where a City was interested in selling its franchise. Today, more and more cities are trying to build their own cable franchises," Jones explains.

What would the City of Lowell be looking at if it did decide to sell the franchise? Jones says that the average market price is $2-$2,500 a subscriber. At 1,800 customers, if Lowell was to sell at $2,000 per customer, it would get $3.6 million. It currently owes $800,000. The sale would turn out a profit of $2.8 million.

What are the disadvantages of not owning a franchise? According to the R.W. Beck and Associates partner and manager, they are losing control of the service rate, future competition, and being accountable for future technology.

As an example of technology, Jones says he sees fiber optics replacing the current system. "I believe an outdated system is something that must be considered," Councilman Bill Thompson said.

Hodges had a different perspective. "Touchtone phones first came out 20 years ago. It was not available to the Lowell area until just three years ago. If this new improved fiber system becomes available in 5-10 years, it may be 15-20 years before it is available to the small town of Lowell."

Councilman Jack Fonger said his view on the Lowell

Cable System wasn't changed by the presentation. He, however, did not think it was appropriate to discontinue that view at this time.

"I think the presentation showed us that if the City owns the franchise the cable service is better and less expensive," Lowell Mayor, James Maatman said.

Lowell Light and Power Supervisor Herb Haines, who was in attendance, said any questions concerning the presentation and Lowell Cable should be referred to the City Manager.

OUR KIDS OUR SCHOOLS OUR COMMUNITY GROWING TOGETHER

"Did You Know??"

...that student enrollment projections by an independent study group from Michigan State University indicate that the Lowell Area Schools will grow an additional 500 students over the next five years?

...that shower rooms and teacher lounges in three of our school buildings have already been converted into classrooms to accommodate increased student growth?

...that the Lowell Board of Education and administrative offices were relocated from the Middle School into "portable trailer units" in order to make room for two new fifth grade classrooms?

...that the last time the Lowell Area Schools requested bond money for a "Bricks and Mortar" building issue was in 1975 when they added an addition to Alto and Bushnell Schools?

...that the payment schedule for the proposed bond issue will spread the "mortgage" payments for this project evenly over 30 years? This process will allow new residents moving into our schools and community to equally share in the financial responsibility.

...that the increased enrollment projections for this year showed 95 new students in our district? To date, actual enrollment figures show 105 new students—10 more than the experts predicted for the 1990-91 school year.

This information is brought to you by the "Growing Together Citizens Committee" for the September 25 school bond issue election.

Lowell students, grades 1-8, test above the average on MAT

Lowell Curriculum Director Jim White, had a chance to tell the Lowell School Board Monday night that it "just isn't so."

"People read a lot in the papers that students are testing low in math, science and social studies," said White. "Results from the MAT show that Lowell students in grades 1-8 are testing above the average in these areas."

The results also show that Lowell students are above the average in many of the other 11 areas in which they were tested.

Lowell's School Board approved the use of this test 3 1/2 years ago. The test is given each spring. The results are compared with other schools' results from around the country.

"The information gained from this test is used to help staff planning, for grouping of students and for school improvement," White said.

Grades 1-8 are tested in areas of reading, math, science, social studies, spelling, language and research skills.

Students are tested in multiple areas in both math and reading. In math, students are tested for concept skills, problem solving skills and computation. In math concepts Lowell students test above the norm in all grades except third which tested out as being on norm with the rest of the third grades across the country. In problem solving, Lowell was above average in all grades except first and eighth-grades, in which Lowell students were average.

Lowell tested on the average with other schools in computation. "We're more concerned that students understand the concepts and are able to use them to solve problems," White said.

In fifth-grade social studies and fourth-grade research Lowell students were well above the national average.

In science, Lowell students at all eight grade levels tested above the norm. Lowell students were above average in social studies at all levels except seventh grade which was on par with the rest of seventh graders throughout the country.

"What this widely used test tells us is that our students are doing very good compared to others throughout the country," White said.

In the Otis Lennon portion of the test (the ability portion), was above the national average score of 100 at all eight grade levels.

"Overall our students are at the norm in spelling and math computation," White said. Only at grades three, four and five did Lowell students test above the norm in spelling.

"However, they test above the norm in vocabulary, word recognition, reading comprehension, math concepts, problem solving, science, social studies and research skills," White added.

According to the Lowell curriculum director, the difference between the Metropolitan Achievement Test and MEAP is the MAT is a comparison test and the MEAP is a criteria test. MEAP is also given to students in the fall of the year.

Red Arrow harriers fine tuning for conference run; Boys take 2nd, girls 3rd at Bath Inv.

Clay VanderWarf earned top honors in Lowell's meet with Wyoming Park.

Hillari Kirsch ran away from the field at Johnson Park on Wednesday.

It was a meet the Red Arrow girls were supposed to win. They did, 26-30. It was closer than Lowell Coach Tom Harper would have liked. But, considering the hot, muggy day, and with it being the first race of the year at Johnson Park, Harper was pleased to have a victory.

"The conditions, and with it being the first conference meet of the season, times were about a minute slow," Harper said. "You never know what's going to happen in the first race. It's kind of a 'wait and see' game."

Well, if the heat and muggy conditions bothered Hillari Kirsch, then it bothered her less than the rest of the field. The Lowell senior ran away from the field as she took top honors in a time of 21:05. "Kirsch ran a good, strong race," Harper says.

While Kirsch's early season strong performance is expected, Harper is tickled with the running of freshman, Michelle Oliver. "I'm surprised at how well she is running. Her time of 23:33 is good."

Fonger Memorial Fund donates sweats

Harper realizes though, that if his girls are going to make a run at the O-K White Conference title, he needs help from Rhea Bundy, Sara Lesky, Chris Decke and Kristen Shuster.

"Lesky's time was better than a year ago," Harper said. The Red Arrow came home in fifth at 24:19. Oliver finished ahead of her in fourth.

Rhea Bundy, who had a slow start, placed seventh in a time of 25:10. Lowell's fifth runner home was Kristen Shuster, ninth, at 27:02. Chris Decke followed her teammate home at 27:45.

"Bundy started off slow last year," Harper said. "I expect her times will improve quite a bit as the season progresses."

Wyoming Park's Jodi Hurley was second at 23:10. Viking teammate Amanda Alexander was third at 23:22. Jenny Buist placed sixth at 24:24; Cindy Butler was eighth in 26:28 and Liz Shafer was 11th in 28:47.

The Red Arrow boys handed in an impressive performance in running all over Wyoming Park second behind Clay with a fourth at 19:15. Stouffer time of 18:25. Jesse Davidson placed fifth with a time of 19:39. "Davidson is definitely going to help us," Harper smiled. The Lowell coach is also getting some strong help from runners six, seven and eight. Sergio Saldivar came home in 20:17; James Chertos finished at 20:21; and Pete Willis stopped the clock at 20:31.

"Those are good times and that provides strong competition," Harper said. "We need that in case one of our top five runners gets hurt, so we have someone that can step in."

Park's top five runners were Brian Jirousi, sixth, 19:58; Jeremy Hurley, seventh, 20:14; Steve Quilan, 13th, 21:26; Shawn Carr, 15th, 23:04 and Todd Peterson finished 16th at 23:22.

BATH INVITATIONAL
It marked the first time in eight years that the Lowell Boys' cross country team has come home from an invitational with a trophy.

More important than Lowell's second-place finish at the Bath Invitational was the combined times of the Arrows' top five runners. All five of the harriers finished with times under 18 minutes. The times served as five pretty good reasons for coach Tom Harper's smile. "It was a super effort by the whole team," Harper said. "Our conditioning is beginning to show. All of our top five individual's posted better times than they did a year ago."

Harper was also pleased that the club's six, seven and eight runners. "They are really pushing and providing us with some depth," he said. Lowell's 91 points was second to Beaverton, who finished in first with 69. Onstead was third with 112. Williamson was fourth at 133 and Marshall was fifth at 153.

The Red Arrow's top runner was Clay VanderWarf, who placed fifth in a time of 17:03.7, six seconds faster than a year ago.

Jason VanderWarf was the second Arrow home, placing 14th overall. His time of 17:27.3 was a little more than a minute better than a year ago.

Jesse Davidson placed 18th with a time of 17:33.6.

Tom Mull, the fourth Arrow home, placed 24th, stopping the clock at 17:54.5. His time was a little more than two minutes better than a year ago.

Lowell's David Stouffer was 30th at 17:56.5. In '89 he was clocked at 20:15 at the Bath Invitational.

Sergio Saldivar followed at 19:16.1, Eric Shelby stopped the clock at 19:29; Pete Willis broke the string at 19:38 and James Chertos finished in 20:12.4.

"The boys are working hard and we're showing improvement," Harper said.

The Lowell girl harriers gave nearly an identical performance as they also showed marked improvements in their times in placing third at the Bath Invitational.

Harper was so impressed with the top four Red Arrow times he exuded a little optimism about its race with East Grand Rapids on Wednesday (Sept. 12 at Johnson Park).

"This course is a little faster than Johnson Park, but the girls still ran extremely well," Harper said. By finishing third, the girls also carried home a trophy for the Red Arrow trophy case.

Lowell was third with 98 points. Chelsea took top honors with 33; Marshall was second at 87; Beaverton followed Lowell with 132 and Eaton Rapids was fifth at 141.

Hillari Kirsch was second overall with a time of 19:50.3, nearly 20 seconds off last year's time.

Rhea Bundy gave her strongest performance of the year, coming home in 21:42.8 bettering last year's mark of 24:20. She placed 10th overall. "This was Bundy's best race so far this year," said a happy Lowell coach.

Freshman Michelle Oliver continued to impress the Harper as she finished 13th at 22:02.41.

Sara Lesky was 21st overall, coming off the course in 22:30.5. She easily outdistanced her mark of 24:06 of a year ago.

Lowell's fifth and sixth runners were Kristen Shuster and Chris Decke with times of 25:04.2 and 26:13.9 respectively.

Lowell rebounds against Middleville; but loses nail-biter to Huskies

With its big front line, it was not a big secret that Lowell would see a lot of sagging zone defenses in 1990.

How does a team beat a sagging zone defense? By throwing in a few jump shots. The Red Arrows were unable to do that in its home opener against Lakewood. However, Lowell Coach Ken Akers learned in a make-up game against Middleville that rain isn't the only thing that falls in Spain.

Lowell senior exchange student, Estrella Calvo, poured in eight of 14 shots from the floor, a 52 percent clip, leading Lowell past Middleville 50-48.

"Calvo has a hard time understanding me if I'm talking too fast, but once she's told something she remembers," Akers said.

Coming over from Spain, Calvo's game included a lot of offense. But Akers told her she had to work on her defense. She has, and because of that, she found herself in a situation where she could help out the club offensively against the Trojans.

"Calvo is a shooter. She also drives and penetrates real well," Akers said. "If she continues to hit from outside she will help us all year. She will also open things up for us underneath."

The Spain transfer netted a three-point shot midway through the fourth quarter that gave Lowell its only lead of the game. One it never re-inquired. "We'd gotten as close as 1-2 points but could never pull ahead until Estrella hit that three pointer.

Calvo led Lowell with 18 points and five rebounds. Erica Hackenbruch added six points and six caroms. Junior Angie Brown also tallied six points. Senior Angie Arnett chipped in with four points and four rebounds.

"Arnett continues to give us consistent play. She has been our most consistent player thus far," Akers said.

Akers was also happy with Lowell's improved play against the press. "Middleville's press didn't bother us," he said. "Our biggest concern is getting the offense on track, so we can score inside and outside."

Lowell Coach Ken Akers was all smiles following his club's 48-46 loss to Forest Hills Northern on Saturday night.

"You're not going to see a better girls' high school basketball game than what was played tonight," Akers said. "We're 1-2, and our losses have come against two opponents with combined records of 6-0. I've left both contests with a good feeling about this ballclub."

The Red Arrows outshot

the Huskies from the floor 17-10. However, FHN got the better of Lowell at the foul line connecting on 28 of 38 from the stripe. Lowell was 11 of 18.

The Red Arrows trailed 48-46 and had the ball with six seconds remaining. Akers decided to go for the victory as he set up a three-point play in the huddle. After receiving the inbound pass, junior, Angie Brown fed Estrella Calvo, the Spanish exchange student's shot went in, jiggled around and then came out.

Defensively, Lowell held FHN to just two field goals in the second half. "Defensively, we played real well. It's the best defensive effort we've had this year," Akers said. "Our offense is still coming. It was better tonight. We increased our shot output to 67. We've been averaging right around 40."

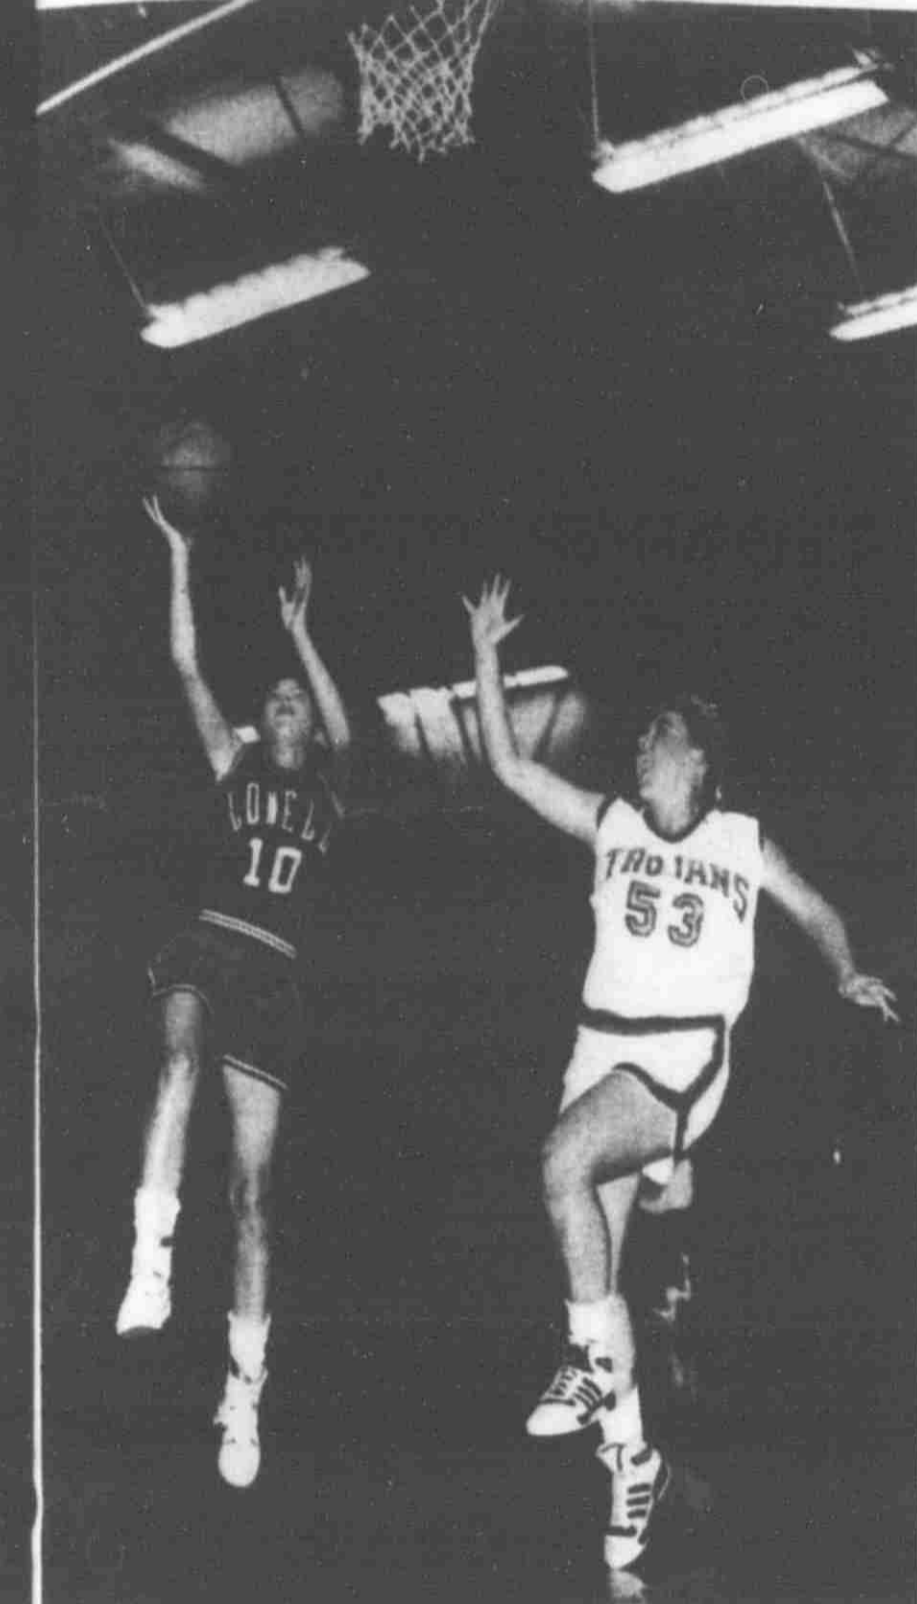

Most of that can be attributed to the improved wing play of Angie Brown, Amy Stauffer, Calvo and Angie Arnett, according to Akers. "Czarnopis got in early foul trouble, but Stauffer came in and played well at the point," Akers explained.

The Lowell Coach also got his best performance of the year from center, Erica Hackenbruch. The Arrow tallied a team-high 16 points and nine rebounds. Calvo netted 11, Brown, Renee Nugent, Arnett and Stauffer all added four points apiece.

Nugent and Arnett each added nine rebounds. "Anytime our front line tallies 27 rebounds, they're doing a good job on the boards," Akers explains. "Hackenbruch played a good game at both ends of the floor."

Lowell trailed at the end of one period, 12-11. FHN increased its advantage to 29-22 at halftime. A stringent Lowell defense enabled the Red Arrows to tie the game at 38-38 at the end of three quarters. FHN outscored Lowell 10-8 in the final period.

Following a steal, Lowell's Tonya Czarnopis drives the length of the court for a layup in action against Middleville.

Lowell's Renee Nugent battles inside for position in action against Middleville.

Lowell's soccer team improves to 5-0, EGR awaits

In its two non-conference shutouts against Forest Hills Northern and Creston, Lowell's play resembled a Hallmark greeting card - it cared enough to be the very best.

The Red Arrows opened up the week with a 4-0 shellacking of the outmanned Huskies. Knowing the score, you won't be surprised to hear that Lowell outshot Forest Hills Northern 31 shots on goal to 11.

"The boys played well and we had many close misses," Lowell coach John Turkal said.

Manning goal was Red Arrow Aaron Snell. He recorded seven saves. The Huskies had just 11 shots on goal.

Lowell's Tim Thuston with an assist from Jon Kohler opened up the scoring for the Red Arrows. Brian Ray increased Lowell's lead to 2-0 with an unassisted goal.

Red Arrows fight back for a 7-6 home-opening win

Knoop rushes for Lowell's only touchdown, carries ball 16 times for 90 yards

The 1990 High School Football season is still young, but in just the second week of the season the destiny of two O-K White teams may have been decided on one play.

Both Lowell and Wyoming Park came into Friday night's contest with non-conference season opening losses. Both teams lost their games in the same manner - mistakes, mistakes, mistakes.

The Red Arrow defense, poised, proud and pliable, turned back a Ross Bush led Viking squad on fourth and three at the Lowell 12 with 4:10 to play. The defensive gem keyed a Lowell comeback behind 7-6 O-K White Conference victory.

"We grew a lot as a team tonight," said Lowell coach Phil Christensen. "That defensive stop late in the game was a team effort. Park's first option on that play was giving the ball to Roelofs, but we plugged the middle. That forced Bush to come around the end. Our defensive players stayed in their positions and stopped him."

That play and the victory gives Lowell a much brighter outlook on the 1990 season. On the other side of the page, Park drops to 0-2 and could do a slow downward spiral the rest of the season. Although with Jack VerDuin back at the helm, don't bet on it. VerDuin who spent the last two years in Florida, but before that, spent 26 years coaching at Park and did not have one losing season.

"The same things that cost us against Grandville hurt us again tonight - mistakes, fumbles and missed opportunities," VerDuin said. "I thought our defense played great. Our offense moved the ball but we aren't scoring."

Lowell not only ended the fourth quarter with a big defensive stop, but a big interception by junior Chad Lyon to end the third quarter set the table for the Red Arrow's first score.

For Lyon it was his second interception of the evening. His first interception came midway through the second quarter.

Following Lyon's second INT, it took just two Brett Knoop carries to get the ball in the endzone from 18 yards out.

Knoop finished the evening with 90 yards on 16 carries. Lowell rushed for 137 yards in 27 attempts.

The Vikings picked up 166 yards in 44 attempts on the ground. Much of that work was done by Jason Roelofs. The fullback gained 143 yards, carrying the ball 25 times.

For both clubs the game was besieged with missed opportunities. Lowell had the ball inside the Viking 20 three times and scored just once. Wyoming Park moved the ball inside the Lowell 30 three times, with its only score coming in the first quarter on its opening drive.

"In traditional Lowell style our defense bent but did not break," Christensen said. "We still have to work on our pass defense. We're covering the receivers, but we are not getting to the ball."

Lowell quarterback, junior, Mark Lyon, was 4-7 for 96 yards. "Lyon did a good job reading a few passes. He looked off the receiver and then went back to him," Christensen said. "We want to throw more and open it up, but we don't want to take ourselves out of the game doing it."

Bush was 5-for-12 for 99 yards and two interceptions. "It wasn't pretty, but it was a victory," Christensen said. "It doesn't get easier, Friday. Lowell plays host to East Grand Rapids. We'll suit up," smiles Christensen.

West Michigan baseball applying for franchise

West Michigan Baseball Development, Inc. announced that it is applying for one of two Triple-A expansion franchises to be awarded next summer.

Lew Chamberlin, vice president of West Michigan Baseball, explained that the Triple-A application is the next logical step in the group's quest to bring professional baseball to West Michigan.

"First, we assembled a strong group of local investors," Chamberlin said. "Then, we became co-owners of the Single-A Wausau (WI) Timbers and secured expansion rights in the Midwest League. Now, we're exploring Triple-A possibilities as well."

Brett Knoop (33), takes the handoff from Lowell quarterback, Mark Lyon in action against Wyoming Park. Lowell won the contest 7-6.

Williamson kicked home Lowell's third goal of the game. The assist went to Jason White. White ended Lowell's scoring parade as he paced a shot through the Huskie defensive wall.

In their game against the Polar Bears of Creston, the Red Arrows overcame a narrow field and the rough play tactics of Creston in their 3-0 victory.

"I wasn't pleased that the game did not have better match control," Turkal said. "I think Creston attempted to use rough play to try to equalize the disparity of talent."

Lowell, again, outshot its opponent on shots-on-goal 20-3.

Two of Lowell's three goals came in the first half. Williamson opened up the scoring with an assist by Andy Quada. Ray tallied goal number two on a breakaway. In the second half Williamson kicked home his second goal of the game and the team's third and final goal on an assist by Kohler.

Snell was credited as the winning goalie.

In junior varsity action, Lowell tied FHN 1-1.

Lowell continued its non-conference dominance with a 3-0 win over Caledonia.

The Red Arrows controlled the offensive action in the first half, but early threats turned into missed opportunities as a stubborn Fighting Scot defense kept Lowell out of their net.

"Caledonia did a good job of adjusting its defense to hold us back from scoring," Turkal said.

It was a different story in the second half as Lowell turned opportunities into goals.

The Red Arrows struck early with two goals. The second goal came on a Mike Wolbers' one-on-one passing shot. The play was set up by the good defensive play of Troy Addington. "Addington played good defense and then made a good pass to set Wolbers up," Turkal said.

Lowell's final goal was the result of a hard throw-in by Ryan Peel to the front of the goal, which assisted Ray in placing a header into the Caledonia net. "There was enough spin that the Caledonia goalie lost control allowing the ball to get by him," Turkal explains.

In the junior varsity game, Lowell won 1-0.

Lowell matched its point production on Saturday against Tri-Unity with a 3-0 shutout. The Red Arrows kicked 21 shots on goal compared to nine for its opponent.

Twice in the first half Tri-Unity was called for tripping in the penalty box as the Arrows were going one-on-one with the goal. "White made Tri-Unity pay twice with successful penalty kicks," Turkal said.

Lowell pretty much dominated play throughout, threatened several times in the second half with strong attacks from the right half position to force Tri-Unity to open up its middle defense.

Eventually that left White alone with the sweep and the Red Arrow netted his third goal of the day for his first hat trick of the season.

Lowell's junior varsity was also successful, as it won 2-1.

"We got some strong play by our powerbacks Andy Quada and Tim Thuston," Turkal said. "Jason Spoor, Travis Briggs and Jud Van-Stee are coming in at midfield to give us a rest and are able to keep up the pressure on the opposition."

Junior varsity standouts this past week, according to Turkal, were goalie Chris Scoles; attacker/strikers Jim Young, Eric Claypool; midfielders John Roudabush, Ryan White. Chris Geisert, Scott MacNaughton, Jason Grabbers; fullbacks Rick Wissman, Jason Sayer, and Mark Briggs.

A KEEPING WORD

When I got the letter from them and even later, when I heard her voice on the telephone saying that they would love to come for supper, I had no way of knowing that they would bring such joy with them. Joy seems to have its own way of surprising us.

Actually, the joy was in themselves and in their love for one another. Margarite and Gerald live in the state of Washington. It has been two years since we've seen them, and yet, as it often happens, when we did come together, it was like only yesterday that we had said hello.

Gerald lived in our home as a hired hand for the previous owner, many years ago, and when he does come into this area for a family reunion, he tries to come back to the farm and to us. Although everything has changed from so many years ago, he still loves to go around the farm and see what has been done and then, of course, remembers "when."

Gerald has always been quite special to my husband, and I enjoy watching them talk together and smile at each other in recognition of certain events in the past. They are alike in so many ways, that I wonder if my Gerald will be like our friend when he is 70.

When we finished our meal, Margarite handed me a little gift-wrapped package. "From the two of us," she said, "with love." I opened it to find the lovely book, "For All My Special Days." It was right up "my alley"--a book of important dates and people to remember. But the unexpected joy was, when Margarite smiled and said, "It's a JBILY (Ja-bily) gift. At that she looked lovingly at her husband and told us of the times when he would surprise her with a thoughtful little gift. "He will quietly smile," she said, "and then say, 'It's a 'JBILY' gift--(Just Because I Love You)."

BINGO!! What a word. I bubbled excitedly and began mentally to think of all the people that I wanted to share this "keeping word" with--and especially to those who read my column. I know that it is just a simple way to say an old meaningful phrase, but just in case it brings joy to you, or you, or even you, here it is. And do you know what? It's even fun to say. Wrap the word around a little inexpensive gift or a bigger surprise, and the word "JBILY" becomes beautiful. Try it--you just might like it!

CARPAL TUNNEL SYNDROME

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome is one of the most common ailments seen in the family physician's office. It is caused by entrapment of a large nerve (the median nerve) in the area of the wrist. The median nerve supplies areas of the hand and fingers with much of its sensation. Accordingly, when it becomes entrapped, abnormal or painful sensations may affect the hand, wrist or forearm in the area served by this large nerve.

The patient with carpal tunnel most commonly presents with tingling or numbness of the first three fingers. Quite frequently, the discomfort may awaken the patient at night or bothers him or her while driving or performing a function which requires repeated flexion or extension of the wrist. These abnormal sensations are typically not relieved by shaking of the hand, usage of medicines or application of heat or ice. If carpal tunnel syndrome is present long enough, one may appreciate some wasting of the major muscles of the palm of the hand.

If your doctor is suspicious enough of carpal tunnel, he or she will probably order special tests (EMG and nerve conduction studies) to confirm the presence of median nerve entrapment. It tests these establish the diagnosis, then a trial of conservative therapy is warranted. This conservative therapy begins with neutral splinting of the wrist at nighttime. This, continued with anti-inflammatory medicine use may help up to 25 percent of the people with carpal tunnel. For those it does not help, surgery is the only viable alternative. Fortunately, the surgery is performed on an out-patient basis and is usually very successful. Successful surgery means restoration of total hand and wrist function along with absence of painful and/or abnormal sensations in the same areas. Carpal tunnel syndrome is very common and fortunately, very treatable.

sion rights in the Midwest League. Now, we're exploring Triple-A possibilities as well."

West Michigan Baseball is applying for an expansion franchise through the Triple-A Alliance, which comprises the International League and American Association, two of the three Triple-A leagues.

In July, the Triple-A Alliance announced that two expansion franchises will be awarded by Sept. 1991. The announcement was triggered by Major League Baseball's decision to add two National League teams in 1993, providing a short window of opportunity for cities interested in hosting professional baseball. Major League Baseball last expanded in 1977.

Randy Mobley, commissioner of the Triple-A Alliance, visited Grand Rapids recently to familiarize himself with the area and to outline criteria for evaluating prospective Triple-A markets. Mobley indicates that those criteria include the availability of a 10,000 seat stadium, the strength and local ties of proposed ownership groups, the size and location of proposed markets, and the ability of those markets to support Triple-A baseball. Twenty cities have requested applications for Triple-A expansion facilities. Applicants include Ottawa, Ontario; Birmingham, AL; South Bend, IN and Tulsa, OK.

"We will launch a campaign to tangibly demonstrate this community's eagerness to support Triple-A baseball," Chamberlin said.

Lack of a stadium, however, is by far the largest obstacle to minor league baseball in West Michigan.

"I feel strongly that a plan can be devised that will, through a combination of public and private financing, meet this community's convention needs, as well as allow for construction of a baseball stadium," Chamberlin said. "Without a stadium at least on the drawing board. I don't think we'll get much consideration for a franchise."

Mobley said a prospective market's stadium need not be built until 1993. But funding for a stadium must be set aside so that construction can proceed if a franchise is granted.

50 area residents learn CPR skills through class

According to the most recent 1989 American Heart Association statistics, 81,155 Michigan residents were certified to perform CPR on people that suffer from cardiac arrest. The association also states that 1-1/2 million people will have a heart attack and more than 1/2 million will die. Of those half-million 300,000 will die before ever reaching the hospital.

What's even more alarming, is that 40 percent of the people that suffer out-of-hospital heart attacks can be successfully resuscitated if CPR is promptly provided and is followed up by advanced CPR at the hospital.

"I have yet to arrive on a scene where someone is suffering from cardiac arrest, and civilians have started CPR," said Rick Roderick, of the Lowell Fire Department. "A victim's chances are improved greatly if CPR can be started right away."

Sponsored through the American Heart Association, the Lowell Fire and Ambulance Departments held an adult CPR certification class at the Look Memorial Fire Station last Thursday.

Class instructors Tony McCaul and Polly French were slightly encouraged by the turnout. "We're ecstatic about the number of people that came to the class," French said. Approximately 50 people were in attendance at the CPR class. It was the first one held at the new fire station.

"I love teaching the class," McCaul explains. "It's a thrill knowing that your teaching may help save someone's life."

The Lowell Fire Department member and certified nurse went on to explain: "There is a lady in Lowell who saved her child's life shortly after taking the class," McCaul said. "The lady and her husband were concerned about their child and the medical problems it was having. The couple decided to take a CPR class. A week after taking the class their child quit breathing and turned blue. They knew what to do, and they remained calm. By the time emergency personnel were on the scene, the child was breathing and its color was pink."

The 50 people in attendance at 6 p.m. last Wednesday night, left at 10 p.m., feeling confident and certified that in an emergency situation they could perform CPR on an adult who was not breathing.

That, however, is only half the battle. They were all encouraged to follow the class up with a CPR child/infant course. "There has to be two separate courses since there are modifications on the child and infant procedures," McCaul said.

He explained that the compressions for adults are two inches deep; one inch for children; and a half-inch for infants. Both hands are used while administering compressions on adults; the heel of one hand for children; and two fingers for infants.

HELP WANTED R.N.'s or L.P.N.'s LOWELL MEDICAL CARE CENTER

Position available for full or part time afternoons. Starting wages for R.N.'s - $11.75. L.P.N.'s - $9.05, plus experience differential and a good benefit package. Please apply at 350 N. Center St., Lowell, MI 49331. 897-8473. E.O.E.

Amendments to the downtown parking and left turn lanes have provided some area merchants more store front parking and have helped calm the waters that were roughed up a few weeks ago at a public hearing.

In response to comments received during the public hearing, the City staff and Ed Swanson (traffic engineer) reviewed the Main Street downtown parking and left turn lanes layout. The two amendments were then approved by the City Council last Tuesday night.

It was determined that approximately five additional parking spaces could be gained on the north side of Main Street east of Riverside by eliminating left turns onto Water Street.

The City staff reviewed the proposal with King Milling (Jim Doyle), Michigan Wire (Don Fizer), Flat River Antique Mall (Laura McCollum), Gail Ayres (Puppy Tub) as well as Mike Jones of the Michigan Department of transportation. All parties agreed to the change.

Merriman guesses 23rd Mystery Farm

The Lowell Ledger's 23rd Mystery Farm this week includes property owned by three different parties. They are Tom Rozema, Herm Goldner and Allan and Bruce Baird. The farm land is located at 2942 Fallasburg Park NE. The winning entry in the 23rd week of the Mystery Farm contest was turned in by Karen Merriman, 3825 Ashley.

Merriman will receive dinner for two from Sneaker's, a free car wash from Lowell Auto Wash, a free gallon of Devoe Flat White Latex paint from Lowell Paint and Wallpaper, and a year's subscription to The Lowell Ledger for correctly identifying the farm.

"These changes just didn't happen. It took a lot of work from Barry Emmons, Dave Clark and Dave Pasquale," Lambert Variety owner Duane Lambert said. "I'm very pleased with the change and my customers will be too."

The other amendment to the downtown parking and left turn stalls will give additional parking space near or at Ball Floral on East Main with a loading zone sign installed. This will leave about three spaces between the Floral Shop and Ball Softee Cream.

"The City did what it could and made adjustments," Lambert said. "This is how a City government is supposed to work."

Dave Clark suggested that the turning lane at Monroe and Main Street be continued without moving north. He said that this would allow a better turning lane for trucks going north onto Jefferson. Additional parking would be provided on the north side of Main Street east of Jefferson.

The parking spaces lost would not affect businesses and residences on the south side since they have their own off-street parking. A net loss of 10 spaces would result.

"I never thought I'd get back any of the store-front parking that was taken away at Softee Cream," said a happy Rose Ball. "I'm ecstatic. This is a whole lot better."

Ball said Clark showed her the new proposals he was going to present to City officials. "I did not think the City would ever agree to the prop-

Honey Creek Country Fair, Saturday

Honey Creek Christian Homes will hold its 13th Annual Country Fair on Saturday, Sept. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Honey Creek is located at 11652 Grand River Ave. (Cascade Road), south of Lowell.

This fun-filled family event features activities for all ages: The Butterworth Aero-Med helicopter, firemen's waterball fight, the Aero-Bats, flying model airplanes, Grand Rapids Antique Cars, a flea market, crafts, baked goods, children's petting zoo and pony rides, silent auction, Art Fair '90 and much, much more.

All the proceeds from the event will benefit Honey Creek, a Christian, non-profit child care agency which provides residential and foster care treatment for neglected, abused and emotionally disturbed boys and girls.

But the City did listen, and that makes me very happy." Councilman Jim Hodges suggested that side street parking stalls on Jefferson and Monroe Streets be better identified for customers, City Manager, Dave Pasquale concurred.

"Whenever changes like this are made, you are going to have problems," Pasquale said. "We are trying to lessen problems as much as possible and to help look for alternative parking."

CPR continued...

An infant is defined as one-year old or younger; a child is defined between the ages one and eight. McCaul says any child over the age of eight is treated as an adult. "In an emergency situation, there isn't time to hunt around for an age, so a person has to use his/her own judgment, based on body size," he says.

The mannequins used to teach the course were purchased by the Lowell Township residents and donated to the Lowell Fire and Ambulance departments.

Mary Roth and Karen Ford, who work for Felix VanSlooten, D.D.S., were requested by their employer to take the course. "I think it's a good idea. I think I would have taken a CPR course anyway. I have a pool and live out in the country. That's a long way for an emergency unit to come," Roth said.

McCaul says Lowell Fire and Ambulance plan to alternate First Aid and CPR classes on a monthly basis.

"I was impressed with the staff and the presentation," said Bob Reagan, Lowell D.D.S. "It's been six years since members of my office had taken a CPR course and I felt there was a need for a refresher. I think it's a good idea for everyone to become familiar with the CPR procedure."

Approximately 70,000 people walked the 5 1/2 miles across the Mackinac Bridge on Labor Day. Some people made the journey for the first time. Some people made the journey because they were on vacation. Frank Miller made the stroll, his 20th consecutive walk, because he still enjoys it and it allows him to return to the land he loves - Northern Michigan.

"That's beautiful country up there. Northern Michigan is where men are men and ladies are glad of it," Miller says.

Raised in Alanson (10 miles north of Petoskey), Miller wishes he could still be up there, but says financial reasons and having family in West Michigan keep him here in Lowell.

At 91 years of age, a hip nagged by arthritis is the only health perplexity that Miller battles. Not even that could keep him off the Mackinac Bridge.

"People are always asking me if I will walk the bridge again next year, and I tell them no, this will probably be my last time," Miller explains. "But as long as I am living and able, I will. Not only that, but each time you walk across the Mackinac Bridge you see something you didn't notice the last time."

He has certificates dating back to 1970 marking each year he's made the journey. He walked the bridge several years before that, and he was in Mackinaw City the day the bridge was opened.

"I was working for the Pennsylvania Railroad, formerly the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad (the 'Old Go Ragged and Independent') putting in a long stretch of track," Miller says. Miller worked on the railroad for 41-1/2 years.

The 91-year old Lowell man stepped off the 5-1/8 miles in 1-1/2 hours. "I walked with my Pastor (Missionary Church), Glen Marks. We started at 8:15 a.m. and finished at 9:45," Miller explains. "My number was 18,000 and something." Only once has Miller walked the distance by himself. Throughout the year, Miller walks the length of Valley Vista Trailer Park and he also strolls to the Post Office and back with his dog, Chem.

"When I was a little healthier I used to walk a couple to three miles a day," he adds. Miller claims his good health has come through the grace of God and not getting stuck on smoking and booze.

"Next year I'll take a bottle of Tylenol with me and give the Mackinac Bridge another try," he smiles.

Frank Miller holds the 21 certificates that verify he walked across the Mackinac Bridge each year since 1970.

Felonious assault charges await Saranac's Hauter

Thomas Dale Hauter Jr., 20, of Saranac was found guilty of a felonious assault in Circuit Court in connection with his April assault on Lowell Police Officer Brian VanderHock.

Hauter was originally charged with assault to do bodily harm, but the jury lessened the offense to felonious assault. It carries a four-year maximum imprisonment term.

The Saranac man was also found guilty of fleeing and eluding; driving with a suspended license - second offense; and driving while visibly impaired - second offense.

Hauter's lawyer tried to get Judge Soet to lower the cash bond from $20,000, but the Circuit Court Judge denied his request.

Hauter's sentencing will be Oct. 17.
