Academic Boosters Club formed to recognize L.H.S. achievers

Roger Wills, president of the Academic Boosters Club (ABC), sought official school board recognition and endorsement at the Monday, Nov. 12 school board meet-

Information, such as the minutes of past meetings, informed the board that the group's main purpose is to recognize academic achievement and improvement in stu- ing and Christmas. dents as well as staff.

The group was formed in the spring of 1990 under the direction of Donn Start. Officers elected were Carol Schuster, secretary; Sue Burt, treasurer; Sue Beute, vice president and Roger Wills, president. Two fundraisers and one very healthy donation put their treasury at about $1,600.

The group's method of implementing a recognition program will be through the Renaissance program. This program started by Jostens is really a concept and an attitude. The term Renaissance itself is in reference to a "rebirth" or pursuit of learning the group fees is needed today in the school.

Wills said, "There are many high schools throughout the United States which have proved that kids will respond positively when given an imminent tangible reward. These rewards are yet to be determined for Lowell High School. There could be rewards inside the school such as free reserved parking, discounts in the spirit store, free school lunch, student designed T-shirt with special school logo, reimbursement for ACT test costs. Out-ofschool rewards have not been offered as of yet."

On December 5, Wills will be making a presentation to the Rotary Club about the academic boosters and the basic concepts of the Renaissance program. He hopes to show them how the community will benefit from this type of closer relationship of student, staff, parents and business.

There are many details to work out, but the club is confident that they can put some incentives in place for the second semester and move forward.

One idea they are presently working on will be a surprise pizza party for all high school students who have received A's and B's only for the first marking period. This will likely be between Thanksgiv-

Willow Run High School in Willow Run, MI, has had great success with this program, increasing attendance, improving test scores, and increasing scholarships earned, to name just a few examples. One of the short term goals students are presently working on with Robin White is develop their own academic logo. She will be offering cash rewards to the top three finalists.

A great long term goal would be the establishment of an educational foundation whereby annual scholarships could be given to students and even staff.

"As we move toward the brick and mortar of a new high school, we would like to show kids, staff and the community that learning is fun, exciting and rewarding," Wills said. "I hope this is the start of the 'building' up of people at LHS," he adds.

Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said it would be up the the Lowell Cable Board as to whether it would write up the guidelines or if it would delegate the authority to an advisory committee. Haines said he did not know when guidelines would be set up."

The end resolve of the Linda Taber/Bayside tape controversy after Dick Wendt, the City Attorney, spent 10 days to two weeks reviewing the tape, Wendt said in his opinion there was nothing obscene or inappropriate on the tape. "The tape is not legally objectionable," Wendt said. "Therefore Lowell Cable cannot refuse to air it based on the content."

Taber was extremely happy with the verdict, but disappointed it took so long. "I really thought the City Attorney knew they were wrong for pulling the tape and it would only take a couple of days to get it back on the air. afterall the first ammendment supported me," she said.

Taber's tape is currently being aired three days a week at different times of the day. "This is one of roughly 58 tapes in a series," said Frank

"I don't mind, it's less work for me," laughs Taber. "Honestly though, I think it is something the at the community should pick up on. It's not the responsibility of the cable company to see that community events are aired. The access station is what the public makes it."

Taber said he is an advocate of getting the school involved and members of the community involved in taping community events and meetings. "Lowell Cable has the technology to broadcast live from the school and then send the signal back to the head end to redistribute it back to the channel," he said.

Such involvement would raise the need for VCR's edit machines, cameras and modulating equipment, all of which would require money. and all of which would better help serve the community and especially the students and elderly. Shut ins would be given an opportunity to view parades, plays and meetings they might not otherwise be able to attend.

A way to subsidize this cost according to Bernard's True Value Hardware owner, Charlie Bernard, would be through airing advertisements on the public access station. Neighboring communities, Greenville and Caledonia, both practice this. In both towns classifieds from the local newspapers are run over the public access sta-

Former Lowell Light and Power Board member Ray Quada said the late Ken Ayres, former Buyers Guide owner/publisher, at one time looked into the possibility of running classifieds on the public access station.

Superintendent Lowell Fritz Esch said instructional capabilities in telecommunications are there for the school in the future. Esch used a fifth-year french class as an example. "With the right technology we could link up through Wyoming with a teacher and that would allow us to offer the class." he said.

The possibilities for Loweil's cable access station are plenty-fold, currently they are are waiting to be implemented.

HEALTH Cleveland Clinic showed that feeding infants rice cereal

WILL CEREAL HELP YOUR BABY SLEEP?

There seems to be an age-old contention that early intro duction of cereal and/or other solid foods into an infant's diet will enhance the child's duration of uninterrupted sleep. The American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Nutrition has concluded otherwise. Until recently, much of the evidence that suggested a relationship between solid food and infant sleep patterns has been the product of uncontrolled studies. But now, a well controlled study conducted at the

from a bottle before bedtime does not appear to make much difference in sleep habits.

It may be that the observations that gave rise to bedtime cereal's reputation for increasing sleep time may simply coincide with the child's natural developmental process. A quote from a physician involved in the Cleveland Clinic Study states this: "About the time parents first feed their baby cereal is about the time infants, regardless of what you feed them, will start sleeping uninterrupted through the night." This study also concluded that the introduction of cereal has not related to total hours of sleep, number of sleepy periods, duration, or time intervals in which sleeping occurred. Sleeping patterns also seem unaffected by feeding method (bottle or breast).

Our conclusion from all this? While there is no proof that early feeding of cereal for your baby is harmful, there is also evidence to support its ability to induce better sleep patterns in your infant. What works best? Time.
