Change order of technical matter precipitates discussion on its overall value tag of $26,460

The thought process behind a change order for the new high school site was clear. The value attached to the change order was not so clear to a number of school board members.

By the narrowest of margins, 4-3, with Norm Byrne casting the decisive yes vote, the school board approved a change order from Burggrabe Masonry, Inc. in the amount of $26,460.

The recommendation from Owen Ames and Kimball Co. dealt with a technical aspect of filling the top level of each cement block wall around both floors of the entire building with a different material than was originally designed.

This was brought forth by O.A.K. in an effort to insure that no moisture can efflorescence through the exterior brick and cause a chalking appearance.

Jim White said there was a concern on behalf of the administration prior to the beginning of the project about not having an ugly chalk appearance on its brick.

WBDC's design called for a 10-inch space on top of each wall, under the I-beam. This space was originally designed to be taken up with the spaced metal studs. The change would replace the metal studs with another row of cement blocks and subsequent damproofing.

WBDC's Tom Mathison, project manager, stated that it had not had any previous problems with the original design in any of its other projects. Board member Jack Lane followed up by asking if WBDC would alter its designs for future projects to compensate for that. Mathison said "No, 95 percent of the schools never get into this question," Mathison explained.

Board president Ray Quada, who voted against the change order, stated that, down the line near the project's completion, if $26,000 was left in the contingency fund, that money could be used to reinstate some of the things the board had to cut from the project within the last couple of weeks.

Quada nodded his head in agreement with Mathison's comment that the contingency fund is meant for construction use first and is not there for computer room financing.

"The best way to explain this change order, is that by taking this additional step we are taking out "insurance" against a problem we asked our contractor and architects to be wary of -- the future chalky appearance which can occur with a moisture problem," White said. "It will provide a better seal and filler than the original design."

The complete cost for the change order would be $26,460.

Showboat Board works to increase community awareness through fund-raising activities

It is generally agreed upon by the members of the Lowell Showboat executive board and its board of directors that the Showboat needs to be more active throughout the year and not just for a weekend in June.

It is also generally agreed upon that the activities coordinated by the Showboat need to be financially successful.

Over the years the Showboat has come upon some rough waters. However, in 1991, a bright light did shine as the Showboat showed $9,500 in the black after all show expenses were paid.

The profit enabled the Showboat to erase a deficit that it carried into 1991.

Brought on by a small Thursday night crowd, profitability was again in question after the first night of shows in 1992.

A small Thursday night crowd has brought to the forefront the viability of continuing entertainment on that evening.

Board member, Dick Korb said he believes that with Thursday being a work night, out of town support for the show is diminished. "Each night there is a set production cost above and beyond the entertainment cost," Korb said. "The production cost is consistent for each of the three shows."

The loss accumulated on Thursday night was greater than the profit brought in on Friday and Saturday night.

In order to retire the deficit, the Lowell Showboat held a "Las Vegas Night" on Saturday and will hold its first auction this coming Saturday (Nov. 14) at 9 a.m. at Larkin's Other Place.

The Board anticipated that these type of events will help retire the deficit before the start of the 1993 shows.

Members of the Showboat Board approached area businesses about donating prizes toward the auction.

The Lowell Area Car Dealers Association (Harold Zeigler Ford; Thomel Chevrolet; Vennen Chrysler, Dodge, Plymouth, Dodge Truck and Jeep Eagle; and Wittenbach Olds, Pontiac and GMC), did not believe donating a used car toward the auction was a viable option, instead the Association donated $2,000 to the Showboat.

"The Lowell Showboat is extremely grateful for the Car Dealers Association's generosity and their commitment to the community," Lowell Showboat President Gordon Gould said.

Korb added that the Showboat is fortunate to have the support local businesses have

Re-bid of television saves school $3,000

If at first you don't like the bids, bid out the project again. Lowell Schools re-bid the television component of the Alto Elementary telecommunication project due to the first television bids being too high. The end result is a second bid that will save the school $3,000.

After consulting with its telecommunications consultant (Jeff Wale) who reviewed the second round of four bids, it was recommended that the bid be awarded to Highland Superstores, Inc., at a price of $9,843.32, contingent on a proper contract being executed and signed. The bid was just $36 lower than the next lowest bid (Videoland - $9,879).

Due to recent disclosures about Highland filing for Chapter 11 (reorganization), Wale was asked to secure a letter from Highland and/or Zenith (brand of televisions) indicating that they would honor the one year warranty should there be a need to do so.

Jim White stated Highland has sent a letter indicating they have taken out a third-party repair "Insurance policy" for the remaining nine months.

The total cost includes 22 27-inch units and one 13 inch unit.

Calleja commences with extended hours practice at the office of Clark Vredenburg Sheri D. Calleja D.D.S., has come to the rural community of Lowell to cultivate her practice.

Calleja will use the extended hours practice program at the office of D.D.S. Clark Vredenburg. Calleja notes that while she will be using Vredenburg's facility, it will be her own practice.

To start, Calleja's hours will be on evenings and every other Saturday.

The St. Clair Shores native says she is committed to quality care and is a strong advocate of updated sterilization procedures.

"I was drawn to dentistry because of the art aspect, the everyday working with people and because it allows you to help people care about their health," Calleja said.

Calleja moved into the area over a year ago after her husband's job transferred him to Plainfield Township.

Through a high school co-op program Calleja was introduced to work as a dental assistant. From that experience she moved on to dental hygiene before returning to school to become a dentist.

"At times school was difficult, but the camaraderie of students helped make things easier to get through," the 1991 University of Detroit graduate said. She points to commitment as a key to getting through eight years of dental school.

Calleja hopes that in five years she will have cultivated a successful practice in the area.

"I like Lowell for its calming, slow pace," she explains. "The people in this area are friendly."

The St. Clair Shores native met Vredenburg through his daughter Michelle, who Calleja went to school with.

Calleja is married to Michael Martin.

About 95 percent of all Americans marry at least once by the time they are forty years old.

Sheri Calleja is scheduled to begin her own practice in Lowell this week.

Homespun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

...Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee... (Mark 5:19).

"Thickened milk!" Mom made it for us by the gallons; we never tired of it. The favorite concoction was made by simply adding flour and salt to hot milk. Over this thickened pudding-like substance we poured rich chocolate syrup.

It was while we were visiting Grandma Mellish that we learned about this strange dish. At mealtime she provided for us youngsters something which she thought we would prefer, and then she cooked this unfamiliar pudding for herself. When we returned home, we told Mom about it.

"Oh, I think I know what it was," she said brightly. "Thickened milk. It's strange she didn't offer you any, but perhaps she thought you wouldn't care for it." After that, Mom made it often. Are Christians sometimes like Grandma Mellish? Do they fail to share their "good things" with others? People everywhere are longing to know the peace and contentment we experience. It is up to us to share with them the secret of our happiness, to tell them of God's great goodness. They, too, can enjoy His blessings and "the good things" He has provided for all.

Prayer: Lord Jesus, Thou hast given me joy and peace. Help me to tell others about Thy plan of salvation. Make me eager to share "the good things" Thou hast prepared for all who seek Thee. Amen.

Diane Blain, author, to be featured at Lowell Library on Saturday, Nov. 21

The Kent County Library System is celebrating National Children's Book Week with a series of special programs called "Let's Talk About It: West Michigan Authors for Young Readers." Children in grades one through six are invited to meet two local authors in separate programs scheduled at all 17 Kent County Library System branches. The authors will discuss their lives and work, answer children's questions, and interact with children in these entertaining and informative sessions.

"Let's Talk About It: West Michigan Authors for Young Readers" is underwritten by a grant from the Michigan Humanities Council. Pamela VanderPloeg, youth services coordinator for the Kent County Library System, is excited about providing area children the opportunity to meet local authors, celebrate the community's diverse cultures, and explore the process of writing, illustrating and publishing. "We're able to present outstanding programs, and enrich children's lives by focusing on the human experience as related by authors from our own community." The first featured author is Diane Blain, a teacher at Kettle Lake Elementary School in Caledonia and author of the Box Car Children Cookbook. Blain compiled and adapted recipes of meals eaten by the characters in the multi-volume series The Box Car Children by Gertrude Warner, a favorite of Kent County readers. The author will demonstrate, with audience participation, the preparation of some of the recipes.

Viewpoint . . .

cozy corner by Roger Brown

Even though I once nearly stabbed the dog to death, I now have enough compassion for him that I felt concern for the stupid jerk's eye. I might add that, nursemaiding the eye of a dog that just took it point blank in the face from a skunk, takes a whole heap of compassion. We're talkin' 'mounds of compassion. We're talkin' groups of compassion. We're talkin' in the realm of Mother Teresa and Albert Schweitzer here folks. Thank goodness for my stuffed up nose, or I'd have probably thrown up on the poor dog to boot.

Like I said, I've got lots of stuff at the hangar to clean out my car. But, I passed up the Windex and Armor All as cleansers for Thor's eye. I spotted a bottle of hydrogen peroxide and despite a pretty good struggle on Thor's part, I managed to get his eye rinsed out with the stuff. I didn't know what it might do to his eye, but I figured it had to be better than skunk juice or Wheel Brite. At least he seems to still have his vision in that eye.

This all happened at about 10:30. By the time I finished up my sweeping and buttoned the place up, it was probably after 11:00. With no other reasonable way to get Thor home, I loaded the smelly thing into my car. I bought a couple cans of tomato juice at a convenience store for the traditional folklore skunk bath. It was crowding 1:00 by the time I got Thor bathed, me showered and off to bed. My wife came home just as I was nodding off to sleep and demanded at the bedroom door, "What's that skunk smell!". I mumbled a terse reply, "Your dog!"

Time for another dog story. Of course, I'm talking about Thor, my big yellow Labrador retriever. You'll notice I referred to him as mine. After nearly three years, I've resolved myself to the fact that he is indeed my dog. This is despite the fact he was purchased by my family with total disregard to the "over my dead body" threats from me. This is despite the fact I came within a heartbeat of stabbing him with a kitchen knife. (I'd come home to find he'd once again done his beaver routine on the woodwork in the kitchen. Not finding a newspaper, broom or other suitable weapon within my grasp, I found myself reaching for a butcher knife from the rack on the counter.) Wait 'til the people at the Humane Society read that. They got after me when I wrote about shocking him with electrical current by holding the phone wires he'd chewed to his tongue. Yes, and even despite the fact I have earnestly tried to give him away, good home or bad, on numerous occasions, I guess I've finally resigned myself to once again being a dog owner.

Thor loves me over the rest of the family because I'm the only one who ever does anything with him. My daughter was a whirling dervish, with school, sports and friends when she was home. Now she's off to college and completely out of Thor's picture. My son is also busy, but when he is home, he's a couch potato to rival Dagwood Bumstead. About the only interest Thor has in that activity is snagging a stray snack through his way from the eating machine. My wife's life-style of work, shopping, browsing through home and glamour magazines, doing her nails and watching an occasional romantic movie on TV just isn't the kinda' stuff a healthy, young retriever is interested in. That leaves me.

I go to the airport at every opportunity, mostly to just putz around. My plane is there. I have a few tools there. I have stuff to clean my car there. I can cut the grass or sweep out the hangar and be completely happy. I always take Thor along, and he loves it. He can run and sniff and explore the place 'til his heart's content. If I say, "Thor, wanna go to the airport?", he'll dam near tear the house down if I don't get up off my butt and take him there. It's a hekuva thing when you gotta' be careful what you say around a dog.

So, one night last week, Thor and I were at the airport just putzing around. I was sweeping out my hangar and he was off doing his dog thing. I was then, and still am, sporting a cold that has my sinuses clogged like a fat man's arteries. Despite the cold, I still smelled Thor before I saw him.

He came slinking into the hangar, tail drooped, head drooped and had a stagger to his walk. A closer look revealed a runny nose, drooping and a watery left eye that was nearly swollen shut. My thirty foot diagnosis told me he'd taken a direct hit to the left eye from a skunk. Unfortunately, I couldn't do anything to help the poor guy from thirty feet.

with the virus it does not mean you must discontinue living. Johnson would use his status to talk to children, young adults and adults about taking responsibility for safe sex. The basketball great would become idolized not only for his basketball talents but also for his fight against AIDS.

From the outset there was an outpouring of love, admiration and support for this giant of a man.

In steps the confusion. Shortly after being named to the national committee on AIDS, Johnson stepped down, stating he was displeased with the President's commitment toward fighting the disease. Some accounts that I have read also questioned Johnson's commitment to the committee.

No matter which accounts you read or believed it was still believed with Johnson's stature he could make a difference going around the country talking to kids. He did a special on Nickelodeon, with Linda Ellerbee, talking with kids about AIDS and safe sex.

He went to Barcelona and received an outpouring of world affection the likes of which another athlete may never know. He played remarkably well. He may also have posed for more pictures than points scored by him or the USA team.

After returning home from the Olympics, a book on Magic Johnson came out detailing his Casanova type lifestyle after entering into the NBA. Recently he's been on "PrimeTime Live" and the "Oprah Winfrey Show" recanting what was written in the book.

I watched just a small clip from "PrimeTime Live" in which he talked about (at times I sensed a boasting) his sex life as an NBA player. He recalled his sexual promiscuity in an elevator with another woman, the night he had sex with six women and there were others....

I'm not writing to condemn his sexual promiscuity. I just question why the need to tell everyone. I've heard reports he did so to deny rumors that he participated in homosexual acts. For me, a simple "no, I did not" would have sufficed. While Magic's intentions in coming out with all the details may very well be good, I believe it is not being interpreted by many of his fans the same way.

It's almost as if his message is "don't be careless practice safe sex, but did you hear about the three women...."

Magic Johnson faced and broke many presses during his NBA playing days. I hope he doesn't let this press trap him in the backcourt. There's more on the line than just a game.

After returning home from the Olympics, a book on Magic Johnson came out detailing his Casanova type lifestyle after entering into the NBA. Recently he's been on "PrimeTime Live" and the "Oprah Winfrey Show" recanting what was written in the book.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

Athlete's foot is the most common fungal infection seen in the physicians office. Athlete's foot is caused by the ringworm fungus living on the dead protein-rich skin found on the surface of the foot. This condition is seen mostly in adolescent and adult males. It is seen most frequently in the warmer months because of increased perspiration. Fungi grow best in warm moist dark regions, this is why the foot is an ideal habitat.

The clinical manifestations of athlete's foot can vary depending on the severity of the case. Mild cases present with peeling, cracking or maceration of the skin in the toe webs, especially the last toe web. More severe cases present as scaling, redness or small water filled blisters along the sides and soles of the foot. Most cases involve some degree of itching. Occasionally an allergic reaction can occur called an "id" phenomenon, leading to involvement of the hands with peeling, small blisters and intense itching.

Athlete's foot can be confused with psoriasis, eczema or contact dermatitis as in poison ivy, so your doctor may take a small skin scraping and examine it under a microscope to confirm the diagnosis.

THE ABC'S OF REPORT CARDS

It's November and students are almost half way through the first semester for this year. It's also a period of great anticipation for students and parents alike. While the kids are hoping their report cards will please their parents, many parents are anxious to see if their efforts of encouragement have paid off. To be sure, report card day can be one of the most difficult times for some students and their parents. While most educators today emphasize that the grade is not as important as how much effort a student puts into his work or how much he learns, kids know that A's are highly prized and C's or D's are looked upon with some disapproval.

Grades are a necessary fact of school life, from the first grade through 12th grade. Putting a grade on a term's worth of school papers, homework, tests and class participation can be a difficult and sometimes flawed process, but they do serve as a measure of achievement and academic performance and also serve to motivate many students to study harder.

Grades are a kind of shorthand that help teachers and counselors understand what a student has done so far in his school career. Colleges, of course, also look at high school grades when determining whether an applicant should be accepted.

Most cases of athlete's foot can be treated by applying a topical medication to the affected area twice daily for a couple of weeks. More severe cases are treated with oral medication in addition to the topical agents.

To prevent athlete's foot, it is important to wash the feet at least once daily and to thoroughly dry the feet including the web spaces. Wear cotton socks and avoid wearing occlusive shoes which retain moisture. If the web spaces become involved you can separate the toes by placing small pieces of lamb's wool between the toes which will inhibit moisture retention. During warm weather wear sandals allowing moisture to evaporate. Dusting an antifungal powder in the shoes may also aid in prevention of recurrent fungal infection of the feet.

We send grades home to parents as one communication about how students are doing, but they are not meant to be regarded as the sole judge of a student's performance. Isolated from other factors - such as a student's ability; effort and behavior; the difficulty of the course work; personal problems or illnesses the student may have endured during the term - grades have little meaning.

How parents react to a child's grades can either help or hurt him/her, no matter how old he/she is. Grades can be an emotional issue between parents and their kids (who doesn't want an all "A" child?), but the emotion can be diffused and grades used as a basis for open communication between parents, teachers and students.

There is no substitute for an on-going, day-by-day awareness of what and how your child is doing in school. By charting progress regularly, you will eliminate unpleasant surprises on report card day.

For example, you would understand that a "B" in spelling might be a victory because it represented a rise in spelling test grades from C's in the beginning of the year to the A's by mid-semester. On the other hand, an "A" in Math, while commendable, would not have as much meaning if the student earned it with little effort. (Perhaps a more challenging class would be needed here.)

Daily monitoring allows the parent to intervene before report card grades are issued. If you spot a problem, call the teacher. Find out: Is he/she careless with his/her work? Late with homework assignments? Are there social or health problems which are hampering school efforts?

Keep in mind that everyone has an off day; don't be overly concerned about an occasional poor grade, but if you see a trend, step in before your child falls too far behind.

When report cards come home, discuss any seeming disappointments as calmly as possible. Ask your child what he/she thinks of his/her grades. Is he/she satisfied with them? Do they represent his/her best effort? Is there room for improvement? Together, you can map strategy to deal with disappointing grades. Perhaps your child needs some after school help, or a restriction on television time, or guidance in developing better study skills.

Each child is an individual. Childhood and adolescent development happen in spurts rather than in a smooth line. Academic achievement should be regarded as part of your child's growth as a happy, functioning person. A child or teenager who does not feel good about himself/herself has a more difficult time performing well in school. It is best to be sensitive and reasonable when discussing grades.

It is possible to demand the best from your child while understanding that not every child's best is all "A's".

Flat River Players to present a "Christmas Carol"

A Christmas Carol, the enduring classic by Charles Dickens with John Bean in the role of Ebenezer Scrooge, opens the Flat River Community Players season with performances scheduled for Nov.

27, 28 and 29 and Dec. 3, 4 and 5 at the Greenville Area Community Center. Evening performances are at 8 and the Sunday matinee begins at 2 p.m.

Adapted from the original Dickens novel by Israel Horowitz, A Christmas Carol relates the often bizarre yet ultimately heart-warming story of miserly old Ebenezer Scrooge and his Christmas Eve encounters with ghosts of the past, present and future. Each reveals to Scrooge the wrongdoings of his life and what will happen if he continues in his evil ways.

Wracked with fear and remorse, Scrooge sets out on Christmas morning to bless with his newfound generosity all those whom he has neglected and abused.

The timelessness of such supporting characters as Bob Cratchit, Tiny Tim, Jacob Marley, and others help deliver a production which is at once true to the classic and inventive in its theatricality.

Letters

Dear Editor,
Thanks to you and all the others that supported me in my campaign for County Commissioner. Although I was not successful in my bid for this office, our democratic elective process is still one of the best in the world.
One thing I did gain in meeting new people and discussing the various issues that we all care about. To me, running for office is like a romance, it is better to have run and lost than not to have run at all. Again, I appreciate your support. Thank you.
Sincerely,
Charlie Doyle

Lowell High School recognizes November Students-of-the-Month

Four students have been selected as November Students-of-the-month at Lowell High School. They are senior, Joshua Andrews; junior, Shannon Danyl Bennett; sophomore, Kyle Triplett and Freshman Tom Roudabush.

Joshua Andrews is the son of Elizabeth Johnson of Lowell and Scott Andrews of Hudsonville. He has had an exciting fall term since his favorite classes are anything involving politics. He was actively involved in election activities. He is also a member of the Young Republicans. Other clubs he has joined are TEAM and Close-Up. He is a member of the National Honor Society.

Last year Andrews served as Vice President of the band, of which he has been a member for four years. He played soccer for two years and earned a letter. Outside of school he works at Crystal Flash as a stock person.

Andrews nominators praise his ability and understanding as he works with and for people, adding that he upholds the standards of pride and respect in school and out. He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Lowell and hopes to major in education at Grand Rapids Bible College.

Bennett is the daughter of Keith and Diane Bennett of Lowell. She is very busy this year as she serves as Vice-President of the band, President of the junior class and representative for her class to the International Club. To balance these activities, Bennett gets her exercise in softball, cheerleading, and dancing.

Her teacher nominator commends her for the attention she gives in class and her pleasant attitude. Bennett's favorite classes are Annual and Spanish. Her hard work in class has resulted in her recent selection to the National Honor Society and a Scholar-

Athlete Award. When she isn't busy with all of these school activities, Shannon attends Methodist Church Youth Group and enjoys going to movies or simply being with her friends.

Triplett is the son of Dale Triplett and Cindy Triplett, both of Lowell. Triplett's teacher nominator was impressed by his positive attitude and enthusiasm for learning, feeling Kyle treats each assignment as a challenge. He would like a career in political science or law. His favorite class this semester is U. S. Exploration. He is a member of the tennis team and the Youth Group at First Congregational Church. When relaxing, Triplett likes to spend time with friends.

Roudabush is the son of Sam and Bonnie Roudabush of Lowell. He is enjoying his first year at Lowell High School. He has competed on the golf team and will play basketball in the winter. His hobbies include golf, bowling and photography. Math is Roudabush's favorite class, and he also enjoys computers.

His teacher nominator describes him as polite and conscientious. When given an assignment for which he can make charts or graphs on the computer, he goes all out. His teachers are impressed with his attention to detail and desire to do extra.

These four students represent the pride and respect which is encouraged at Lowell High School. They are to be commended for their good attitudes and hard work. The faculty and staff at LHS ask the community to join in honoring them this month.

No man is useless while he has a friend.

PREGNANCY GINGIVITIS
Question: I am pregnant and have recently noticed that my gums are red and tender and tend to bleed when I brush them. What is this and can it be helped?

Answer: This condition is called gingivitis. It can lead to a more serious problem of the gums and bone that anchor your teeth in place.

During pregnancy, a rise in hormone levels exaggerates the reaction of the gums to the irritants in plaque; as a consequence, gingivitis may occur more frequently. However, it is plaque that is the major cause of the condition rather than pregnancy. Despite hormonal changes, you can prevent gingivitis by keeping your teeth really clean. If you are already experiencing sore, bleeding gums, you should consult your dentist as soon as possible before it gets more serious.

HOROSCOPE

November 15 through 21
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
There is an indication of great happiness and joy in your future. There are things happening under the surface of which you are not aware.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
You may experience a sense of loss or separation. It is time to take stock of things before making another major decision. The damage has been done.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
It is time to analyze your goals. You may be involved in a difficult situation, and it is important that you do not make any rash decisions.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
You may receive wise counsel from a sympathetic person. If you really believe you are right, be firm but don't cause distress to others.
PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Don't waste time and energy on useless arguments. Jealousy is an ugly emotion; try not to let it get the better of you.
ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Don't feel sorry for yourself; new opportunities are on the way. You must be strong in your convictions concerning a specific situation.

Lowell's Lesky runs in her 4th straight state meet

An expression of relief for Lowell's Sara Lesky after completing the race.

Lowell's Sara Lesky turns the corner on the final mile at the State Cross Country Meet at the Grand Rapids Golf Club on Saturday.

"This meet never ceases to amaze me," said Sara Lesky in between deep breaths at her fourth and final state cross country meet. Lesky finished the meet in a time of 22:10. She was the 59th runner home out of 89 that ran in the state individual meet.

"This race is always so fast," Lesky explains. "It's the best."

Lesky's times over the last four years may not go down as the fastest ran at Lowell High School, but her mental approach was top line. "Sara's always had a good positive approach to running," Lowell coach Tom Harper said. "She feels good about her running and she like to run. Her attitude has been a big part of her success."

In Saturday's state meet at the Grand Rapids Golf Club, Lesky strated slow, but over the last two miles picked up a lot of ground. "When there was a mile to go, I told myself to give it my all right here," Lesky said afterward. "It's easy to catch people when there are a million people running." Other O-K White runners who participated in the individual meet included Becky Gemmen, Zealand, 29th, 21:06; Courtney Hartman, Northview, 49th, 21:59; Sharon Everding, Zealand, 72nd, 22:26; Stefani Sarvadi, East Grand Rapids, 73rd, 22:29; and Erika Oberle, East Grand Rapids, 88th, 23:35. "Sara qualifying for in the state meet four years in a row (two with the team, two indi-

Red Arrow girls split with Trojans and Pioneers

Lowell girls' basketball coach Ken Akers didn't think his club's offensive performance could get any worse than its 10 point first half. That was until he witnessed the third quarter. The Red Arrows failed to connect on all 24 shots they took from the floor. The one point Lowell did score came from the foul line.

"Right now the girls (the whole team) can't shoot the ball," Akers explained. "We're in a terrible shooting slump." Lowell's coach felt his club played well enough defensively to beat Middleville, but could not overcome its shooting slump in losing 42-32 to the Trojans Tuesday night. Despite its shooting woes, Lowell trailed by only nine, 19-10 at halftime.

Middleville increased its lead to 33-11 at the end of three quarters. Lowell outscored Middleville 21-9 in the final stanza. "In fairness to Middleville, many of those points did not come against their starting five," Akers said. Middleville was led by Laura Donaker with 17 points. Kortney Gowen led Lowell with 11 points. The loss dropped Lowell to 6-11 overall. The Red Arrows are 4-7 in O-K White League play.

Losers of six of its last seven games, a game against the league cellar dwelling Pioneers from East Grand Rapids, is just what the young Red Arrows needed. Lowell coach Ken Akers added a few different wrinkles to the Red offense and Lowell responded with a 13-point victory, improving its league record to 5-7. Overall, Lowell is now 7-11. An offense which at times has sputtered itself to silence over the last couple of weeks, was recharged with a 15 point effort by Amy Stauffer and 11 point performances by Jodi Bishop and Krista Posthumus. FAMILY FARE Athletes of the Week

Melissa Beute
The sophomore year for this Red Arrow forward has been a learning process. While her offensive skills continue to mature, Lowell coach Ken Akers applauds Beute's defensive work and her work on the boards. "Melissa is still learning at the offensive end, but she has been a steady defensive player for a year.

Kris Hutfilz
Lowell varsity football cheerleading coach Bette Phillips described Hutfilz as a dedicated, committed, dependable member of the 1992 squad. "She's always striving for the best. She's been a great girl to coach," Phillips said.

Lowell's Mike Horian rolled only the second 800 in West Michigan at Lowell Lanes.

Horian records and 808 series at Lowell Lanes

Lowell's Mike Horian accomplished at Lowell Lanes Monday night (Oct. 26), what had only been done one other time in the Grand Rapids area this year - he rolled an 800 series.

GRCC increases class offerings at Lowell High School for '93

Grand Rapids Community College's first year of offering off-campus classes at Lowell High School was such a success, it has decided to increase the number of classes in 1993.

Lowell Director of School and Community Services, Dick Korb and Community Education Supervisor, Marge Rehl, announced that class offerings at LHS during the 1993 spring semester will jump from four to nine.

"Lowell has been a very successful site for Grand Rapids Community College," Korb said.

Korb and Rehl say there are four reasons for this:

Horian, who's been bowling for nine years, rolled his first 800 series while bowling in the Monday Men's Classic. He rolled a 268, a 255 and finished the evening with a 285 for a total of 808. "I missed the pocket twice all night," Horian said.

Of the 32 rolls Horian made, 27 of them were for strikes. "Lanes three and four are my new favorite lanes," laughed Horian.

The Lowell man has carried a 210 average this season. Over the nine years he has one 300 game to his credit.

The 808 series beat his previous series high (760) by 48 pins.

lowing the college to find out which classes have the interest of the community.

Last Fall English Comp 1, Introduction to Business, American Government and General Psychology were offered. Classes added to that list for Spring of 1993 are Child Psychology, English Comp 2, Introduction to Computer Application, Med Terminol 1 and Interpersonal Communication.

Akers has stressed to his young players to take good shots and not force up reckless shots.

"I thought we played well tonight. The girls moved the ball better, shot the ball well and more importantly were knocking down some shots," Akers said.

TOWN TALK

Did you like the new Optech voting method used for this Presidential Election compared to the old lever method?

Jamie Frain
Yes. I liked the new method. It allows for faster tabulating of votes.

Karen DeBold
No, it threw me off. I'm a traditionalist. It also lacks privacy.

Kelly Mahrenholz
I didn't like the new method. It lacked privacy.

Norma Gardner
No, I felt it took away a voter's privacy. It was probably as fast as the old style.

JV girls' basketball team defeats Pioneers, loses to Middleville

The girls' JV's traveled to Middleville Tuesday, Nov. 3, and lost a very close game. The final score saw Middleville coming out on top by a score of 40 to 38.

Alison Kissinger and Elena Richmond each scored 22 points to lead scoring. Free throw shooting was the difference in the game as Middleville made nine of 11 free throws, while Lowell managed to only make five of 16. The Red Arrows held the lead for almost the entire game. Middleville grabbed its first lead with 28 seconds to play and held on for the win. On Thursday, Nov. 5, the JV's defeated East Grand Rapids for the second time this season. The final score was 50 to 33. Kerry Nugent had 15 points, Tammy Stauffer had 12 points and Alison Kissinger had 11. "Our defense and full court pressure were better tonight. I was very pleased with how we played after losing a tough ball game on Tuesday," said Coach Wayne Townsend.

The JV's are now 13 wins and five losses for the season and own a nine and three record in league play.

Earlena Eldersma
Yes, I liked it and it was easier to understand and as fast as the old method.

Jane DeVries
Yes, I liked it. I like the fact that the absentee ballot can be processed at the same time and in the same way. It made it easier for me to understand.

Harold Simpson
It was great. It saved time.

Diane Birtles
It didn't bother me. It was easy to use. It just wasn't as confidential.

GVSU water resources institute receives $25,000 EPA grant

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Office of Wetlands, Oceans and Watersheds (OWOW) has awarded a $25,000 grant to the Water Resources Institute at Grand Valley State University (GVSU).

The annual renewable grant will fund the first year of a stream restoration project on Bear Creek in Northeast Kent County. The project is expected to take at least three years.

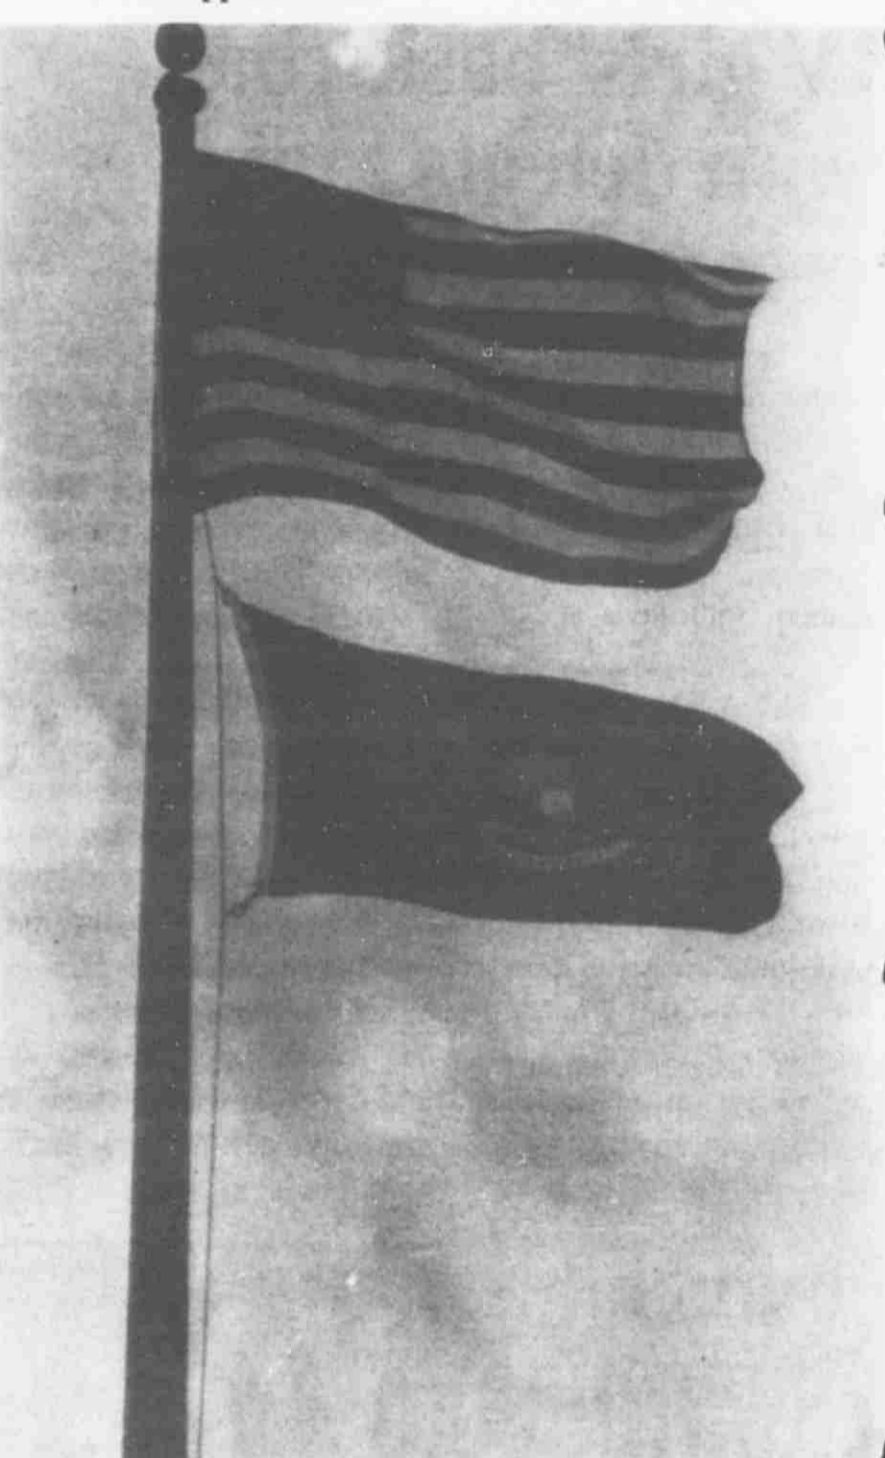

According to Ronald W. Ward, Director of the Water Resources Institute (WRI) at GVSU, the overall objective of the project is to explore the relationship between ecological restoration and water quality. In addition, the Bear Creek project will demonstrate how improved water quality resulting from restoration efforts may create educational and recreational opportunities.

Ramon David, WRI research assistant and laboratory manager, and Mark Luttenon, WRI research associate and professor of biology, will head the Bear Creek restoration effort. David notes that the specific goals of the project include restoring the physical condition of the creek by stabilizing eroding stream banks and removing sediment from the creek.

The project will also affect chemical changes in the water and improvements in habitat, which are intended to help restore the trout population. The project also includes re-establishing wetland areas adjacent to the stream, and in nearby areas, to create wildlife habitat.

The half-day program provided area residents with information as to how they can help improve family lifestyles.

Together Lowell Cares originally started out three years ago as the Red Ribbon committee. In the first year, the half day family workshop drew 100-150 people. Last year, because of conflicting schedules, 50-75 people attended. Saturday's workshop only drew 22 people.

Lowell woman injured following a three car accident

A Lowell woman suffered from spinal soreness following a three car collision on M-21.

A Saranac man was cited for being unable to stop in an assured clear distance following a three-car accident on M-21 in front of Family Fare Thursday evening.

Kevin Paul McKivitz, 19, Saranac, was eastbound on M-21 when he failed to observe the vehicle in front of him. That vehicle, driven by Kristi Stremler, 19, of Lowell was stopped, waiting to turn left into Family Fare.

McKivitz's vehicle collided with the back of Stremler's car forcing it into the westbound traffic lane where she collided with a westbound car driven by Mary Jo Smith, 28, of Lowell.

Stremler was transported to Metropolitan Hospital by Lowell Ambulance. She com-

Did You Know?
Not all trolls are created equal! The impish nymphs from the 60's are more popular than ever, but they're not all the same...

Here are some surprising facts about trolls:
• The original trolls, so popular in the 1960's, were designed by the Danish artist Thomas Dam, who carved his first troll as a gift for his daughter.
• Norfins are the second generation of the original trolls with faces designed by troll creator Thomas Dam. Because Norfins are original designs, they are preferred by collectors.
• There are over 200 Norfin characters with more than 30 different faces.
• Trolls are among the hottest toys in the industry and are expected to be one of the best selling toys this holiday season, according to the Toy Manufacturers of America.
• One ardent fan, smitten by troll love, has 1800 trolls in her troll family.
• Each Norfin has a unique personality and expression.
• It's even possible to join a Norfin Troll Fan Club. For a membership application, write: Norfin Fan Club, Dept. L, 164 Central Avenue, Farmingdale, NY 11735. Indicate where you read this article and get $1.00 off the $12 annual membership fee.

Middle School students speak loudly: "Ross is my Boss"

When sporadic electrical outages erased the presidential election results compiled throughout the day by the Harper-Tech voting system, the old paper voting method had to be called on to record and chart the voting results.

When all the tabulations were complete, Lowell Middle School sixth, seventh and eighth graders gave their overwhelming support to the Texan billionaire Ross Perot. He garnered 321 electoral college votes and 244 of the popular vote. Presidential incumbent George Bush was a distant second with 108 electoral college votes and he finished with 177 of the popular vote. Democrat Bill Clinton had a poor showing, taking in just 65 electoral college votes and 133 popular votes.

The election process was a part of an inter-disciplinary unit discussed by eighth-graders over a six-week period in English, math, science and social studies.

The math and science departments took polls and charted the results.

The English department held debates and wrote poems, while the social studies department talked about issues, voting qualifications and how the voting system has changed over the years.

The contact rooms (homerooms) were broken down into 33 states, covering all states except those with five or less electoral college votes.

Perot got 321 of the 484 electoral votes.

Students had to register prior to voting. Students had to take their registration forms with them to the polls. Those who failed to register were not allowed to vote.

"We kept it as simple and realistic as possible," said

Lowell Middle School social studies teacher Art Bieri. "It was a great experience for the students. They were enthusiastic and I believe they learned a lot."

Bieri, reflecting on the results, said he felt the students voted for Perot because he did the least amount of back-biting, referred to the young kids in the country when he spoke and Perot talked on a more personal level.

"We will definitely do this inter-disciplinary unit again," Bieri said. "Levi Harper, from the high school, should also be thanked for providing us with an election computer program."
