Alto Fourth-graders tune out T.V.

Gannett Outdoor Advertising donated a billboard just east of Ada to the Alto fourth graders. The billboard gave fourth-graders support for their "Television Busting" campaign. The 85 fourth-grade students took a pledge to go 20 school nights without watching television. The idea behind the campaign is to promote family oriented activities and reading. The project ran from Oct. 19 through Nov. 19. This is the second year Fillman has done the project. Over a $1,000 worth of prizes were donated by merchants.

School and Lowell Township sift through water agreement confusion

"We'll all be glad we did the right thing when we're done," said Lowell Township Supervisor John Timpson.

When projects as big as attaining a water agreement between the City and the Township, and constructing a new high school are undertaken, misunderstandings throughout the projects are commonplace.

An example of this is when the City and Lowell Township broke through years of miscommunication, and sifted through numerous numbers to form an agreement so that the new high school site could have water and so Lowell Township could provide its

Lowell Planning Commission puts sign request by Hardee's and Methodist Church on hold Hardee's Bill Kerr is alarmed by the length of the wait his restaurant may have to endure.

The Lowell City Council and the Planning Commission are alarmed by an endless parade of requests for sign variances.

At the November Planning Commission meeting, a subcommittee was formed to study the City sign ordinance and the variances that have been brought forward over the last two years. The subcommittee's findings will be presented at the January meeting.

Hardee's request was for sign location not sign frontage. The proposed ground sign (32 square feet) keeps Hardee's within the dimensional requirements of the ordinance. The allowable signage is 160 square feet. With the new ground sign, Hardee's would be at 156 square feet.

Hardee's was asking that it be allowed to put up the ground sign within five feet of the lot line. The ordinance states that a ground sign can be located within a required yard's first 25 feet only if approved by the Planning Commission. It's request was tabled until the study was completed by the sub committee.

"Hardee's is at a distinct disadvantage. We're trying hard to comply with the City," Kerr said. "Hardee's is undersigned and can't promote like our competitors can."

With the lack of signage, Kerr said Hardee's cannot absorb a four-five month wait. "It would make it difficult for us to survive," he said. "We cannot promote like our competitors"

McDonald's has received two variances within the last couple of years and Burger King was also a beneficiary of a variance.

Kerr said he felt the ground sign it wants to install is least offensive to its neighbors. The Hardee's owner said he believed a bigger reader board at least 10 feet off the ground would conflict with the Ridgeway Mall sign.

"The ground sign would be least offensive to our neighbors," Kerr explains.

Pasquale said while it is possible the Planning Commission could take action on the sub committee's finding, he would not say whether or not it is likely that the Planning Commission would take movement on Hardee's sign proposal.

The Lowell Methodist Church also had its request to install a 5' x 3.3' ground sign within 5' of the property line tabled until after the study.

After a hard morning's work in the kitchen, children sat down and enjoyed their feast.

Elementary students cook up Thanksgiving Day feast

For eight-year old Tara Bogandik preparing a Thanksgiving feast for administrators and teachers meant whipping up mashed potatoes and preparing the dressing to stuff into the turkey.

For five-year old Matthew Witherell it meant setting tables and whipping up some whip cream. "I got to lick the beater too," he explains.

Runciman Elementary teachers Brent Noskey and Cindy Donohues' classes, as an extension of their Native American unit (studying Pilgrims and Indians), worked cooperatively to prepare the feast that consisted of pumpkin pie, turkey, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetables, rolls and butter, apple crisp, whip cream and ice cream.

Noskey's students were attired as Indians, and Donohue's were attired as Pilgrims.

McGee Homestead and Alden Pines B & B to host 3rd annual Nationwide Bed & Breakfast Open House

The Lake to Lake Bed & Breakfast Association of Michigan announced that McGee Homestead as well as Alden Pines Bed & Breakfast will host an open house as part of the third annual Nationwide Bed & Breakfast Open House. "Everyone is welcome," said Ardie Barber, inkeeper at the McGee Homestead. "Everyone enjoys visiting neighbor's homes, especially when that home is an inn. This is a great opportunity to experience the wonderful hospitality for which Bed & Breakfasts are famous." The Nationwide Bed & Breakfast Open House takes place the first weekend in December. As part of that event, the McGee Homestead and Alden Pines Bed & Breakfast will be open on Dec. 5 and 6 from 12 until 5 p.m. For more information or directions to the Bed & Breakfast, call 897-8142 or 897-5655. Also, get a copy of "Lake to Lake Bed & Breakfast in Michigan," free at both inns.

IN THE SERVICE

On September 12, Midshipman Michael Craig Fosburg, of Mareno Valley, CA, participated in Acceptance Day ceremonies at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, NY.

The colorful event annually marks the official "acceptance" of the freshmen or plebe, class into the ranks of the Academies regiment of Midshipmen.

A graduate of Bolton High School in Alexandria, LA, Midshipman Fosburg, with some 246 plebes, was administered the Academy oath by U. S. Maritime administration Captain Warren Leback. They were later sworn in as U. S. Naval Reserve Midshipmen by Barbara S. Pope, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for manpower and reserve affairs.

Midshipman Fosburg was nominated to the academy by Congressman Clyde Hallaway of Louisiana.

The plebe class, which is operated by the Maritime Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation for training as future Merchant Marine officers. Their initial two months were spent in regimented academic training.

Midshipman Fosburg is the son of David and Norma Cooley. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wess Fosburg of Saranac and Mr. and Mrs. Thad Wigfield of rural Lowell.

Children get a rise out of Franciscan educational endeavor

It was through cooperative efforts that 16 Lowell students, grades three through five, were able to build on their cooperative learning skills Wednesday at the Franciscan Life Process 16 students spent a half day at the Franciscan Educational Center on Wednesday.

Child Development Center's Integrated Learning Experience Program.

With program director, Michael Distelrath as their guide and instructor, Pam Kinnucan and Wendy Kapolka's self contained (learning disabled) and resource students spent four hours Wednesday culminating a unit's activities on "Colonial Life."

"These students need hands on experiences to help them understand how things work," Kapolka said.

The afternoon was filled with hands-on activities, including using a two-man saw, making apple cider, hand-dipping candles, and baking bread. Actually, it involved much more than just baking bread. The process started with the children accenting the wheat, and was followed step-by-step until the finished product was produced.

Viewpoint . . .

It's time again for some safe driving tips from the guy who was once canceled by his insurance company because of an adverse loss history. Hey, how's a guy supposed to know what he's talkin' about unless he's speaking from experience? I'll bet Ralph Nader was never canceled by an insurance company! Where's his credibility? I put more stock in what those talking crash dummies tell me. They're more my style than a stuffed shirt like Ralph Nader. That's not to say I think of myself as a dummy. Of course, some people might call me a dummy. Come to think of it, a lot of people might think of me as a dummy. Whatever, I suggest you take heed of the following tips, as they are based on years and years of my meticulous scientific research which will be regurgitated in the next hour or so here at my word processor.

Watch out for that distraction: Just yesterday, I was zipping along on the expressway at my normal 10 miles per hour over the posted 65 m.p.h., when a guy in a little import blew my doors off. He had to have been doing at least 85. I've got no big problem with that. It was daytime, the roads were clear, the traffic was light. If he wants to chance a ticket at about 25 over, that's his gig. This old crash dummy has been that route. Those tickets are expensive, the points add up and the insurance company will add insult to injury by either upping your premium of canceling you completely. He'll learn. My problem with this particular driver was the fact that he was not only blowing my doors off, but he was reading a road map while doing it. No, he wasn't just glancing at a little pocket Atlas. This idiot had a full sized road map completely unfolded and sprawled across his steering wheel and dash panel. He was squinting at it like Mr. Magoo when he went past me at about 90! Need I say more?

Still on the subject of distractions, how about these cellular phone users? I've had these clowns zip past me with the phone cradled between their left shoulder and chin, steering with their left hand and get this, they're taking notes with their right hand. All of the above is fairly easy to accomplish by a person with reasonable dexterity, except for one very important thing; where the heck are those eyes? I don't know anyone who can read back notes taken without looking at the paper. I've always wondered how much of the crash the person on the other end of the conversation hears as these guys smack into bridge abutments, semis, etc. at about 80 m.p.h.

Almost every morning when I pull off my side street on to Hudson, I'm passed by young mothers rushing to work doing 50 or so in a 25 m.p.h. zone with a couple kids to be dropped off at school or daycare. This is understandable, except, they've invariably got the visor down and are putting their make-up on at the same time! One of these gals ended up in my neighbor's front yard the other day when she swerved to miss somebody turning into the high school, clipped a utility pole and came to rest in some shrubbery. She probably did a few thousand dollars damage to her vehicle, not to mention smearing her lipstick.

The ultimate distraction I've seen, happened on Hudson Street just a week or so ago. I pulled out into traffic, and was immediately passed on the right by a guy, obviously late for work, doing about 60 in a 25 m.p.h. zone. Again, this is understandable if you're paying attention, but I had to wonder about this clown. He had his phone cradled under his chin and was shaving, yes shaving, while doing about Mach II. For Pete's sake people, get your butts out of bed a few minutes earlier!

and five to 10 years from now reap the reward of my insight. I offered the gentleman 25 cents for the card. He didn't even lift his head from the table as he replied, "No, this is my card."

Okay, maybe that wasn't a legitimate offer, but he looked like a rookie. My second offer was 50 cents. I think he may have flinched, but he made no eye contact as he repeated "No, this is my card."

His attitude was beginning to bother me. He seemed arrogant and much too sure of himself. I wanted the card, so I offered him top dollar - "I'll give you $1 for the Reggie Sanders rookie card."

He lifted his head this time and made eye contact, as he answered, "No, this is my card. When I get home my Daddy put it on...." as he moved his hands as if to type, I said, "a computer." His eyes lit up as he answered "Yes."

As negotiations continued, I offered a $1 and one, two and three packs of baseball cards for Reggie Sanders. All I received in return was "No, this is my baseball card."

By then his mother had pulled into the driveway, the context of the relationship changed swiftly from dealer/buyer to four-year old Matthew (nephew) and Uncle Thad.

My brother-in-law Randy (from Anchorage, Alaska) sent one tested-tough baseball card guru to Edwardsburg.

I left the table with respect for the little baseball card rug rat. Matt left the table with cards in hand checking to see if Mommy got him anything.

To show my respect, Sunday before leaving to come back to Lowell, I gave Matt three dollars to purchase some more baseball cards. I got a handshake and a hug, but no Reggie Sanders rookie baseball card.

For the masses out there who collect baseball cards, you know how hard one must work to ensure he/she does not overpay for a specific card.

That's why you carry your price manual with you to every card show or sale.

Over the Thanksgiving Day weekend I had an opportunity (poor assumption) to purchase some baseball cards. I didn't have a price manual, but after a quick character profile of the prospective seller, I classified him as a rookie, someone I could take to school.

He was small in stature and rudely carried the stack of cards in his hand. Usually they are laid out on the table for card enthusiasts to look over. Not this time. This man, through his actions, made it clear those were his cards.

Your opportunity to look at each card came as he methodically dealt them out into a pile on the table.

One of the cards that caught my eye was a Reggie Sanders rookie card. He plays for Cincinnati. I think he is a promising super star of the future. My thoughts were, buy him cheap now Here I am, nearing the end of my allotted space, and I only got to one safe driving tip. I haven't even touched on "Winter and Adverse Condition Driving or, Auto Hockey," "Get Those Junkers Fixed or Crushed," "You Don't Look Handicapped to Me, Get Out of that Parking Space," "Hey, That's My Yellow Light," "Speed Kills, But Slow Drivers are Also Dangerous, Not to Mention Boring," "Drive Like an Idiot Legally, Get Emergency Volunteer Flashers and Sirens For Your Car."

My list goes on and on, but this column doesn't. You may be in for more safe driving tips from time to time. Oh yeah, I forgot one driving distraction I wanted to mention. A few days ago I saw a woman cruising along in heavy traffic with a dog hanging its head out the window. First off, I have to qualify the mutt. He was one of those little toy things. In my book, if a dog weighs less than twenty pounds, it's not really a dog. Anyway, a dog hanging its head out the window is nothing new, but this mutt was on the woman's left shoulder with his butt in her face. This is definitely not a safe driving practice. I'd like to see her try that trick with my dog Thor, who weighs about 90 pounds and is prone to passing gas.

With that thought, I'm outa here 'til next time.

Homespun Devotions
By Pauline Spray

Submit yourselves therefore to God... (James 4:7).

Lapidary work is intensely interesting. The majority of us look at stones and think of them as very ordinary. But the lapidist sees the possibilities secreted within the rough exterior; he knows the stone will be beautiful after it has been ground and polished.

So it is with the Lord. He looks at humanity far differently than most of us do. He sees beneath the exterior and knows what each individual can become with His help. He knows just what is needed to bring out the true soul-beauty of each of us, and He is no respecter of persons.

If an individual would have his life count for something, he must submit to God's polishing and grinding and go through experiences which knock off the rough places of his personality. Often such experiences lay bare the heart. The process is not pleasant; it is heart-breaking and humiliating. Becoming beautiful beneath the surface is not an easy matter, but great things lie in store for those who surrender to "God's workmanship."

Prayer: Heavenly Father, I submit myself to Thee and to Thy workmanship. Give me grace for the polishing and grinding processes. Provide faith when I must go through hard places. I place my life into Thy hands and trust Thee to do Thy perfect work through me. Amen.

HAZARDS OF THE HOLIDAY SEASON

The colorful trappings of the holiday season do much to promote good cheer, but these trappings may also contain hidden dangers. The accidental poisoning of children is common during the holiday season. Seasonal plants and bright trimmings attract their attention, and some children, especially the younger ones, may not understand that these delightful decorations are not meant to be played with or eaten. This does not mean that parents must endure a drab house during the holidays; it does mean that parents should take precautions to prevent accidents and know how to respond if accidental poisoning or injury does occur.

Plant poisoning:
Some common holiday plants may pose significant risk to children. Mistletoe and Jerusalem Cherry are very poisonous. Parents of young children are advised to buy artificial versions of these plants or do without them. If you must have them, put the plants where children absolutely cannot reach them. Mistletoe hung over doorways may drop leaves or berries on the floor—be sure to check these areas periodically. If you discover that a child has eaten any part of these plants, call your physician or local poison control center immediately. You will probably be advised to make the child vomit, but do not take any action until you have spoken to a professional.

Holly berries and poinsettia plants are much less dangerous, but they can cause problems when a child ingests a large amount of either plant. Again, call your physician or poison control center if a child has eaten holly or poinsettia, and watch the child for any signs of poisoning. It is usually not necessary to induce vomiting unless very large quantities of the plants have been eaten or the symptoms of poisoning are severe.

Christmas trees:
Christmas trees are almost universal during the holiday season. They are beautiful but can contain many tempting hazards. For instance, pine needles and pine sap may cause a rash when either comes into contact with the skin. If swallowed, the needles are not poisonous, but they can become lodged in the throat, and the same reaction that causes a rash on the skin may also occur in the throat, resulting in blocked air passages. Man-made tree ornaments and lights also pose a danger. Angel hair—the shiny strips that are hung on the tree are often made out of spun glass. Because it is glass, a child who swallows it may develop internal bleeding. Small tree ornaments, lights, ornament hangers, or any other small decorations should be kept away from children. If swallowed, these objects may cause choking or internal bleeding. Blinking tree lights contain the chemical methylene chloride, which causes dizziness and hallucinations if ingested or inhaled. Be sure to discard any broken lights or ornaments carefully.

Book Review by:
Joan Wittenbach

One of the most exciting things for me as a mother and grandmother is to find just the right present for birthdays and Christmas. And one of my favorite places to find a specialty gift is a bookstore. One of my preferred places that becomes an adventure is the BARGAIN BOOKS warehouse on 29th St. in Grand Rapids.

Several years ago I came across a book by Jan Pienkowski called CHRISTMAS. Hard covered and with exceptional artwork, the book was out of my price range at the time.

Two weeks ago, disappointment turned into joy, as I walked into BARGAIN BOOKS and saw this same book, only now in a smaller version and in paper cover for $2.99. The art work, though not traditional, is fascinating. The beauty of the black silhouettes and the brilliant gold and other bright colors grabs the imagination and adds beauty to the already loved story of the birth of Jesus Christ.

Other books for our youngsters included: CAN YOU FIND ME? (a Hide-and-Seek Book with Flaps, Tabs & Slots) by Donald Smith; MY FIRST STORYBOOK edited by Bellinda Gallagher (great for kindergarten through second grade); THE WISE WOMAN AND HER SECRET by Eve Merriam and the Frank Baum classic, THE WIZARD OF OZ. Baum's book is large and has print to match with illustrations by Charles Santore that I will never forget. The artwork alone is worth the incredible price of $9.99. I couldn't believe it.

At BARGAIN BOOKS there are literally "tons" more of almost any kind of book you'd want. I hope you will take advantage of the values this store makes available. And it's fun to go there besides.

Thinking about literature for adults as well as for children, I am reminded of a quote from THE CROCK OF GOLD by James Stephens in which a wise philosopher says, "I have ence a practical experience lab for schools. "These two classes are the first group of children to use the lab from Lowell Schools," Sister Dorothy said. "This program is open to all schools." Lowell Special Education Supervisor Pam Thomas became aware of what the program has to offer when she and a group of teachers took a tour last spring. She added that it was the teachers' motivation that was responsible for Lowell students using the facility. "Prior to the tour and special education board meeting we really didn't know what was available," Kinnucan explained. The afternoon trip to the center was funded through a gift from the Lowell Knights of Columbus. "I'm delighted that this type of program and center is so close to our own backyard (Lowell)," Kapolka says. The integrated learning experience is an educational and therapeutic program consisting of instruction, direct work experiences with animals and/or the land, coupled with group therapy and/or discussion. It also includes farm tours of the animals and various farm experiences as requested by various groups.

constituents with treated water. Craig Willison, superintendent/construction manager reported last week that construction at the new high school site is coming along smoothly.

While things were running smoothly on the front lines, Esch and Timpson dealt with another misunderstanding. It seems school officials believed that it would recoup its $500,000 it was paying Lowell Township for water, as people hooked up to the line that runs out to the new site. The Township didn't have that same belief. It concurred that the School would recoup its cost for sewers as customers hooked up, but nixed that idea for water.

The school, in the early stages of planning, identified in its budget that $500,000 would be set aside for water and sewer. As the project progressed, and the budget was refined, that number was reduced to $400,000.

In the end, the school, which budgeted $800,000 for water and sewer ($400,000 each), will end up spending $1.2 to $1.5 million dollars. The $800,000 alone is roughly $300,000 more than the school would have had to budget had it been successful in attaining the Qua-Ke-Zik property, according to Esch.

The Township has its own financial high wire to walk. The Township must pay $2.10 per thousand gallons to the City. It is expected to use a minimum 30 million gallons a year, that comes to roughly $60,000 a year in cost. The Lowell Township water project will cost the Township roughly $1.7 million.

"Give Me A Break...I'll Fix It!"

"I never had that understanding," Timpson said. "Because of the unique requirements of the school there can be no payback." Timpson identified the unique requirements as the height and size of the water tank, and that the water main has to be large enough to carry enough volume back to the school for fire control.

In addition to the $500,000, the school will also pay the hook up fee equivalent to 76 homes and monthly water rates. The hook-up charged by Lowell Township will be $1,000 per home. The Township needs this money, money from its bonds and the hook-up fees it will get from Eastgate residents, to help finance the water system.

Just as history has recorded, the Indians had to show the Pilgrims how to prepare food. So Noskey's class did the cooking. The setting of the table and the serving was handled by the Pilgrims (Donohue's class). The classes have studied and celebrated the feast for the past five years. It has been just over the last two years that the children have been given access to the Deer Run kitchen and dining area. The cooperative learning and hands-on experience that Deer Run provides is immeasurable. "We are very thankful to Deer Run for this reason," Donohue said. "I had a child say to me today that he hasn't cooked since we did this last year." Both Noskey and Donohue stress that the children do everything. They planned, prepped, set the tables, made the place mats, cleaned up and did the dishes. Donohue points out that the activity is integrated into many areas of the children's studies. "We relate it to counting, art work, and language. It also teaches them to share responsibilities, cooperate with one another and helps to build their self confidence." Maybe most importantly, each child left Deer Run with their very own Thanksgiving story they can share with Mom and Dad. "The children have been excited for weeks about this day," Noskey says. "These hands-on activities really stick with the kids. They learn and remember." For the teachers, administrators and reporter who were invited, they too will remember that wonderful turkey dinner.

Gooch receives Rite Aid's highest honor for customer service

Linda Gooch of Lowell recently received Rite Aid's highest honor for customer service under the "We Earned Our Stripes Serving Our Customers Right" program. The monthly incentive program honors employees who go out of their way to be friendly and helpful to customers. Gooch was one of 40 winners who received chain-wide recognition and a cash prize for making Rite Aid a pleasant place to shop.

Gooch joined Rite Aid in November 1990 as a cashier at the E. Main Street store. She resides in Lowell with her husband, John, and their two children, Angela, 8, and Joshua, 10. Rite Aid, the nation's largest drugstore chain, has served the pharmacy and personal care needs of customers for 30 years. Current operations include more than 2,500 drug stores in 23 Eastern states and more than 31,000 employees.

Ledger Entries of 100, 75, 50 and 25 Years Ago

100 YEARS AGO IN THE JOURNAL - NOV. 23, 1892
A balky horse on the street causes a crowd to collect and offer numerous remedies, enough "to fill a book."

100 YEARS AGO IN THE JOURNAL - NOV. 30, 1892
Mr. Dyrenforth's experiments with bombarding the sky for several hours, followed by exploding a 1000-cubic foot balloon in a rain cloud, results in a few minutes of hard rain in dry San Antonio, TX.

75 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 22, 1917
Lowell goes over the top with its share of the Army-Navy YMCA fund drive, raising $2,800 in pledges.

75 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 29, 1917
Lowell wins the Kent County football championship in a game with Rockford, with "all kinds of trick plays, forward passes and odd formations."

The first municipal university in the United States was the University of Cincinnati in Ohio.

learned... that the head does not hear anything until the heart has listened, and what the heart knows today the head will understand tomorrow.

Your new neighbors just moved in...

Did you meet them yet? Almost 1 of every 5 Americans moves each year, and wherever Americans move, Getting To Know You welcomes them.

27 area men are called for physical exams. President Wilson denies the exemption claims of four British general-Haig pierces the Hindenburg Line, but 17 British ships are sunk in one week by German U-Boats.

The U. S. Government has started to fire all German, pro-German, anti-war employees in the effort to control spying.

50 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 26, 1942
Kent County and Lowell pledges for the War Chest campaign exceed quotas by a large amount.

Cats over 3 1/2 pounds in weight are urgently needed for training doctors and nurses. The article says cats will be painlessly killed and embalmed.

50 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - DEC. 3, 1942
Lowell's own Inez cole appears in the movie "Gallant Lady" playing at the Strand this week.

The "Jalopy Roundup" takes place this month. If it doesn't run, scrap it, or report where the jalopy may be found.

25 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 23, 1967
Showboat turns a profit of almost $4,000 even after building a new boat.

New state laws regarding ambulance service mean Roth's Ambulance will cease operations Jan. 1. It's possible new services may not be stationed in Lowell.

Italians open flood gates to keep Germans from overrunning Venice. The U. S. secret service reports uncovering many hoarded food supplies in New York City and will extend the search to other cities.

75 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 29, 1917
Lowell wins the Kent County football championship in a game with Rockford, with "all kinds of trick plays, forward passes and odd formations."

The Cloverleaf Club adds five war certificates for its treasury. The program consists of musical numbers by members, quizzes on old sayings and paintings, and Edison music.

Shoplifting, mostly by junior high student males, continues to be a problem; henceforth they may be turned over to the police instead of to school and parents.

Ralph Lawrence is the first of only two hunters to bring a deer into the Ledger on opening day.

25 YEARS AGO IN THE LEDGER - NOV. 30, 1967
The Lowell Woman's Club traces its lineage to the Old Shakespear Club of Civil War times, to the 1896 Every Other Thursday Club; 1904, the Lowell Literary Club, and 1928 the present name.

Lowell's application for Urban Renewal has been turned down; the city must first adopt fire prevention, building, housing, plumbing and electric codes.

Alcohol: Curious children may finish alcoholic drinks left on low tables following a party. In addition, alcohol-based colognes and perfumes left under the tree may be consumed by children.

Precautions for a safe holiday: Never leave small children unsupervised. Make it clear to children that the Christmas tree and other decorations are to be looked at and not played with.

Keep your poisonous plants, small decorations or ornaments, or other hazardous substances out of children's reach. If you suspect a poisoning, call your physician or poison control center immediately.

OFF THE BLOTTER

A vehicle owned by Polly McCaul, of Lowell, was backed into while in a private parking lot on West Main by a vehicle driven by Renae Hardy, 37, of Saranac on Nov. 23. No one was injured.

A vehicle owned by Patricia Moskowitz, 38, of Grand Rapids was reported to Lowell officers as being hit by a hit and run driver Nov. 23 while parked in a private lot on West Main Street.

Arrested Nov. 23 on a warrant issued by the Friend of the Court in Montcalm County was Robert Vaughn, 29, of Lowell.

Mark DeGrote, 32, of Ada was involved in a property damage accident Nov. 25. DeGrote switched lanes and struck a car driven by Janelle Tichelaar, 38, of Ada on West Main Street near Ridgeview Drive.

Arrested by Lowell officers on a warrant issued by an Ionia County court, Nov. 26, was John Beimers, 22, of Lowell.

A 16 year old juvenile from Ada was involved in a minor personal injury accident, Nov. 30, on West Main near Ridgeview Drive when the vehicle he was driving struck the rear of a car driven by Terri Anstett, 32, of Lowell. Anstett was injured.

Lowell officers investigated 21 accident complaints in the month of November, four of which resulted in injuries to the occupants of the vehicles. The total for the year this far is 234, compared to 218 the same time last year.

15 at the High School. Hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Thanksgiving drive fills pantry

It was quite a Thanksgiving feast.

Its belly was near empty before the feast began. The feast has now passed, and it is now pleasantly full.

The Thanksgiving food drive, held each year before the holiday, brought in $3,335.49 worth of canned and boxed food.

"The pantry is full," said a thankful Rev. Bill Amundsen of the Lowell First United Methodist Church. "I'd like to extend a word of appreciation from those in need for all who helped."

The Lowell First United Methodist Church is a home of one of six ACCESS Six pantries in the southeastern township of Kent County.

Again this year the Lowell

High School Student Council sponsored a food drive. It raised $2,092.95 in canned and boxed food items.

Area churches and the Lowell Rotary brought in food items totaling $1,242.52. Access Six provides food supplies two-three times a week for families from a six township area.

"It should be noted that organizations and residents bring in food for the pantry on a weekly basis throughout the year," Amundsen said.

The Access Six food pantry at the Lowell First United Methodist Church was filled with $3,335 worth of canned and boxed food items.

It's still a go for condo project

Public hearing set for Jan. 25

The Lowell Planning Commission set a public hearing for preliminary Planned Unit Development (PUD) approval on Jan. 25 for the Highland Hills Condominium project.

If preliminary PUD is approved, it would then go to final PUD approval.

There was some question as to whether a public hearing on PUD was necessary since one was held on April 22, 1991. Chairman Mike Blough said "yes," it was, since no action was taken by the Planning Commission at that time.

Both commissioners Dean Lonick and Brian Brown stated they were in favor of a public hearing so that residents who thought the Highland Hills Project was a dead issue would be notified.

"The project hasn't been completed procedurally yet, and if I'm not up to speed on the procedure the public probably isn't either," Lonick said. Brown added that the Commission owes it to the residents to make sure they are aware of what is happening.

"The Planned Unit Approval is a contract with the developers on the project," Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said. "It's a document of requirements. An exhibit of the agreement."

In reviewing the Highland Hills Condominium updated site plan and memorandum, the Commission noted that the list of recommendation changes had been made, and that the plan was substantially the same.

"The issues have been addressed and the developers know the requirements," Chairman Blough said.

Following final PUD approval it would then go to final engineering. Final engineering plans will cost the developers (Gary Glowina and Dick Bryan) $10,000. The developers don't want to spend the money until they are sure of approval.

The Lowell City Council will decide whether the project goes through after the January hearing.

The Commission did raise a question in regards to the water system. Glowina assured the Commission that the water main system would be looped. "It will come in off of Grindle and be looped in the other way," Glowina said.

There was also a question as to the location of the sidewalk on High Street. If the street is on the north side it will be adjusted to avoid trees. The original site plan called for it to be on the south side.

TOWN TALK

Do you do any or all of your Christmas shopping the day after Thanksgiving.

When do you usually complete your Christmas shopping?

Betty Morris
I use to do all my shopping the day before Thanksgiving. Now that I'm an Avon representative, all my shopping was done three months back.

Mary Kramer
I do some shopping the day after Thanksgiving. But, I shop right til the day before Christmas.

Phyllis McAvoy
None. I wouldn't get into those large crowds for anything. I'll finish up my Christmas shopping within the next week.

Pam Batey
No, most of my shopping was already done. I don't go Christmas shopping the day after Thanksgiving because our family goes deer hunting.

Jennifer Tate
I started before Thanksgiving, but did not shop the day after. Most of my shopping is done. I'll finish up this weekend.

Michelle Murphy
Some of it. I also do some before Thanksgiving. I'm usually done like a couple of weeks before Christmas.

Don Silvis
I don't go out of the house the day after Thanksgiving. I do my Christmas shopping when it's convenient. I usually finish up three days before Christmas.

Donna Ford
Yes, I went the day after and did some Christmas shopping before Thanksgiving. I'll probably finish up my shopping a week or two before Christmas.
