Integrity kept in shuffle of energy & maintenance funds; but trust is another issue

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

When bids were opened, in November of 1990, for the new high school, many of the costs came in higher than the school had anticipated.

A second set of bids were taken and cutbacks were made in an effort to bring bids in line with the total budget. Assistant Superintendent Gary Kemp said the cutbacks totaled at least a half-million dollars.

One area where costs were higher than anticipated was with the mechanical/duct work.

It was something that could not just be cut out of the project, the issue was addressed through a meeting of the board committee, architects and engineers, the construction manager and administrators.

At that meeting, the decision was made to funnel funds from energy and maintenance so that the scope of the new high school project would not have to be diminished.

The mechanical/duct work for the existing high school and middle school totaled $499,000 (H&H Plumbing $286,000 and West Michigan Plumbing $213,000).

"It was a sensible solution, in that, had we not had a bond, this work would have been paid for through energy and maintenance," Kemp said.

Lowell School Board President Ray Quada said the integrity of the energy and maintenance fund has been protected by what the board has done with the funds.

John Clore, owner of LA Rent-All, asked if the bond money not used for mechanical/duct work was used for telecommunications? Kemp later stated that there was no one area where the money went, that it was used in the general scope of the high school and middle school projects.

"The money was assigned to all bid categories that had to be done to complete the project the way it was designed," Kemp said. "Part of which, was telecommunications. Projects at all the schools, except Bushnell, were designed with telecommunications."

Back at the August Board meeting, Owen Ames and Kimball Construction manager, Craig Willison, stated that the contingency funds for all the projects were healthy. Contingency funds are monies set aside in case of unforeseen problems once the project is started. Willison also said most of these type of problems are found by, or before, 65 percent of the work is completed.

This led Clore to ponder why those funds could not be funneled back into the energy and maintenance fund and used this year for operation, more specifically, reinstating a six-hour day.

Kemp said at first he did he did not believe the 1.4 mills collected specifically for energy and maintenance could be used for anything else. "However, it is possible, through a vote of the people, to get permission to use energy and maintenance funds for school operation," Kemp said. There are some complicated factors that would have to be met."

Lowell School Board President Ray Quada added that the idea of the fund was to invest money into energy and maintenance issues to save the district money. "We have a long time (15-20-30 years) to protect the buildings. New innovative, creative ways to maintain and up-keep the buildings," he said.

The factors that would have to be met would include vote would have to be conducted by a certain time, so the winter tax collection could be adjusted. An application would have to be applied for, and there would have to be a 45 day waiting period before an election could be held. The winter tax bills are due out by Dec. 1.

Kemp also pointed out, that half of the 1.4 (rolled back to 1.2918) energy and maintenance funds was collected in the summer. Thus, only half of those funds could be voted back for use in operation. Trust, cont'd., pg. 8

Commission to determine impact of rezoning; will delay construction of sewer line

By Marc Popielek
Contributing Writer

Construction of the new sewer line to serve the new high school and Eastgate Village has been put on hold once again.

Vergennes Township's Planning Commission delayed a decision on the rezoning of 97 acres of land from R1 to R2 until Oct. 12. The delay will let the planning commission determine what kind of impact rezoning might have on the townships future.

The land, owned by Richard Cooper, is key to Lowell Township officials who want to run a sewer line across the property.

The major concern of the planning commission is to determine if the Vergennes Masterplan, drawn up in 1988, allows for the kind of development Cooper wants, or allows for development under current standards.

According to Cooper, the master plan states the area would have residential development, but the planning commission feels the plan meant the area would be developed under R1 and then extended north, as opposed to south, as Cooper desires.

Cooper and Lowell Township feel the plan didn't take into consideration that a new High School would be built just north of the property.

According to Gary Voogt of Moore & Bruggink, a Lowell Township representative, the plan should reflect the new high school. "Now that the new high school is being built, the plan should reflect utilities, such as the sewer line, that will be needed to serve the school."

Safety issues to determine DNR's decision on Flat River no wake zone

By Marc Popielek
Contributing Writer

Concerns over water safety, wildlife preservation and the natural beauty of the Flat River brought 30 Lowell citizens to a public hearing in Vergennes Township. The meeting involved officials from the Department of Natural Resources to discuss installing a no wake zone for the Flat River.

Three representatives from the DNR listened to Lowell citizens describe numerous water hazards along the river during the low tide period. Those hazards include, tree stumps under water and floating logs. The officials also heard comments on preserving wildlife and the natural beauty of the river, but said they will have no influence on the DNR's decision.

"Hearing the concern over the beauty and wildlife was fine, but this department can only take safety issues into consideration," said DNR officer Mary Sherzer.

The no wake zone would establish restrictions reducing the maximum speed on the river to a slow no wake speed, and prohibits boats from having any water skis, water sleds, surfboards or any other device in tow.

Several citizens informed the officers of the dangers of boating on the Flat River.

Tammy Martin, a 12-year resident along the river, explained that debris and other materials are most dangerous Flat River, cont'd., pg. 8

Scarecrows on watch

The life size scarecrows Fallsburg Festival patrons saw over the weekend were the work of 140 kindergarten through eighth-grade students from St. Patrick's School. St. Patrick's Principal, Roberta Bonner, said every homeroom designed and made a scarecrow, each having its own personality. Bonner said she believes it is important that students be involved in community service projects. "The kids had a wonderful time with it," she said.

Sturgis has role in Agatha Christie's murder mystery, "The Mousetrap"

Trish Sturgis

Olivet College's theater department will be putting on a production of Agatha Christie's murder mystery, "The Mousetrap." Among the students cast in The Mouse-

When asked what she has added or changed about the character, Sturgis replied, "Beyond the obvious things such as changes to the reference of my character, Madame Paravicini developed into an extravagant, eccentric flirt. I researched Italian art and literature looking for things she would like. She's very observant and relishes in the fact that she is the unexpected, unknown guest. She has great fun playing the other characters off one another. She would also like to think she knows something about high society, but is quite glib. That's part of what makes her so funny."

Performance dates for The Mousetrap will be October 1, 2 and 7 at 8 p.m. A matinee will be held on October 3 at 2 p.m. All performances will be held at the Mainstage Theater (formerly the Oaks Theater) in downtown Olivet. General admission is $5. For information call 1-800-456-4189 or for directions call 897-8732.

trap is Lowell native Trish Sturgis, a freshman at the college and 1993 graduate of Lowell High School.

Sturgis will be enacting the part of Madame Paravicini in the comic production, about a young couple who start a guest house only to find that all their guests are either unpleasant or odd, and someone is hiding a deadly secret.

Sturgis says of her role, "Casting was great fun. They had me read the part of Madame Paravicini over and over trying out different accents. And, the part was originally written for a man, so I get to take great creative license with my role. I simply love my costumes."

Lowell Township says okay to selling liquor on Sundays

By Marc Popiolek
Contributing Writer

Lowell Township has agreed to adopt a Kent County Resolution allowing the sale of liquor for off site use on Sundays, starting Dec. 1.

Kent County passed the resolution earlier this month, but would allow for individual townships within the county to adopt an ordinance banning the sale of liquor on Sundays.

Although the board did not agree with the counties decision, it saw no reason to ban the sale in Lowell Township.

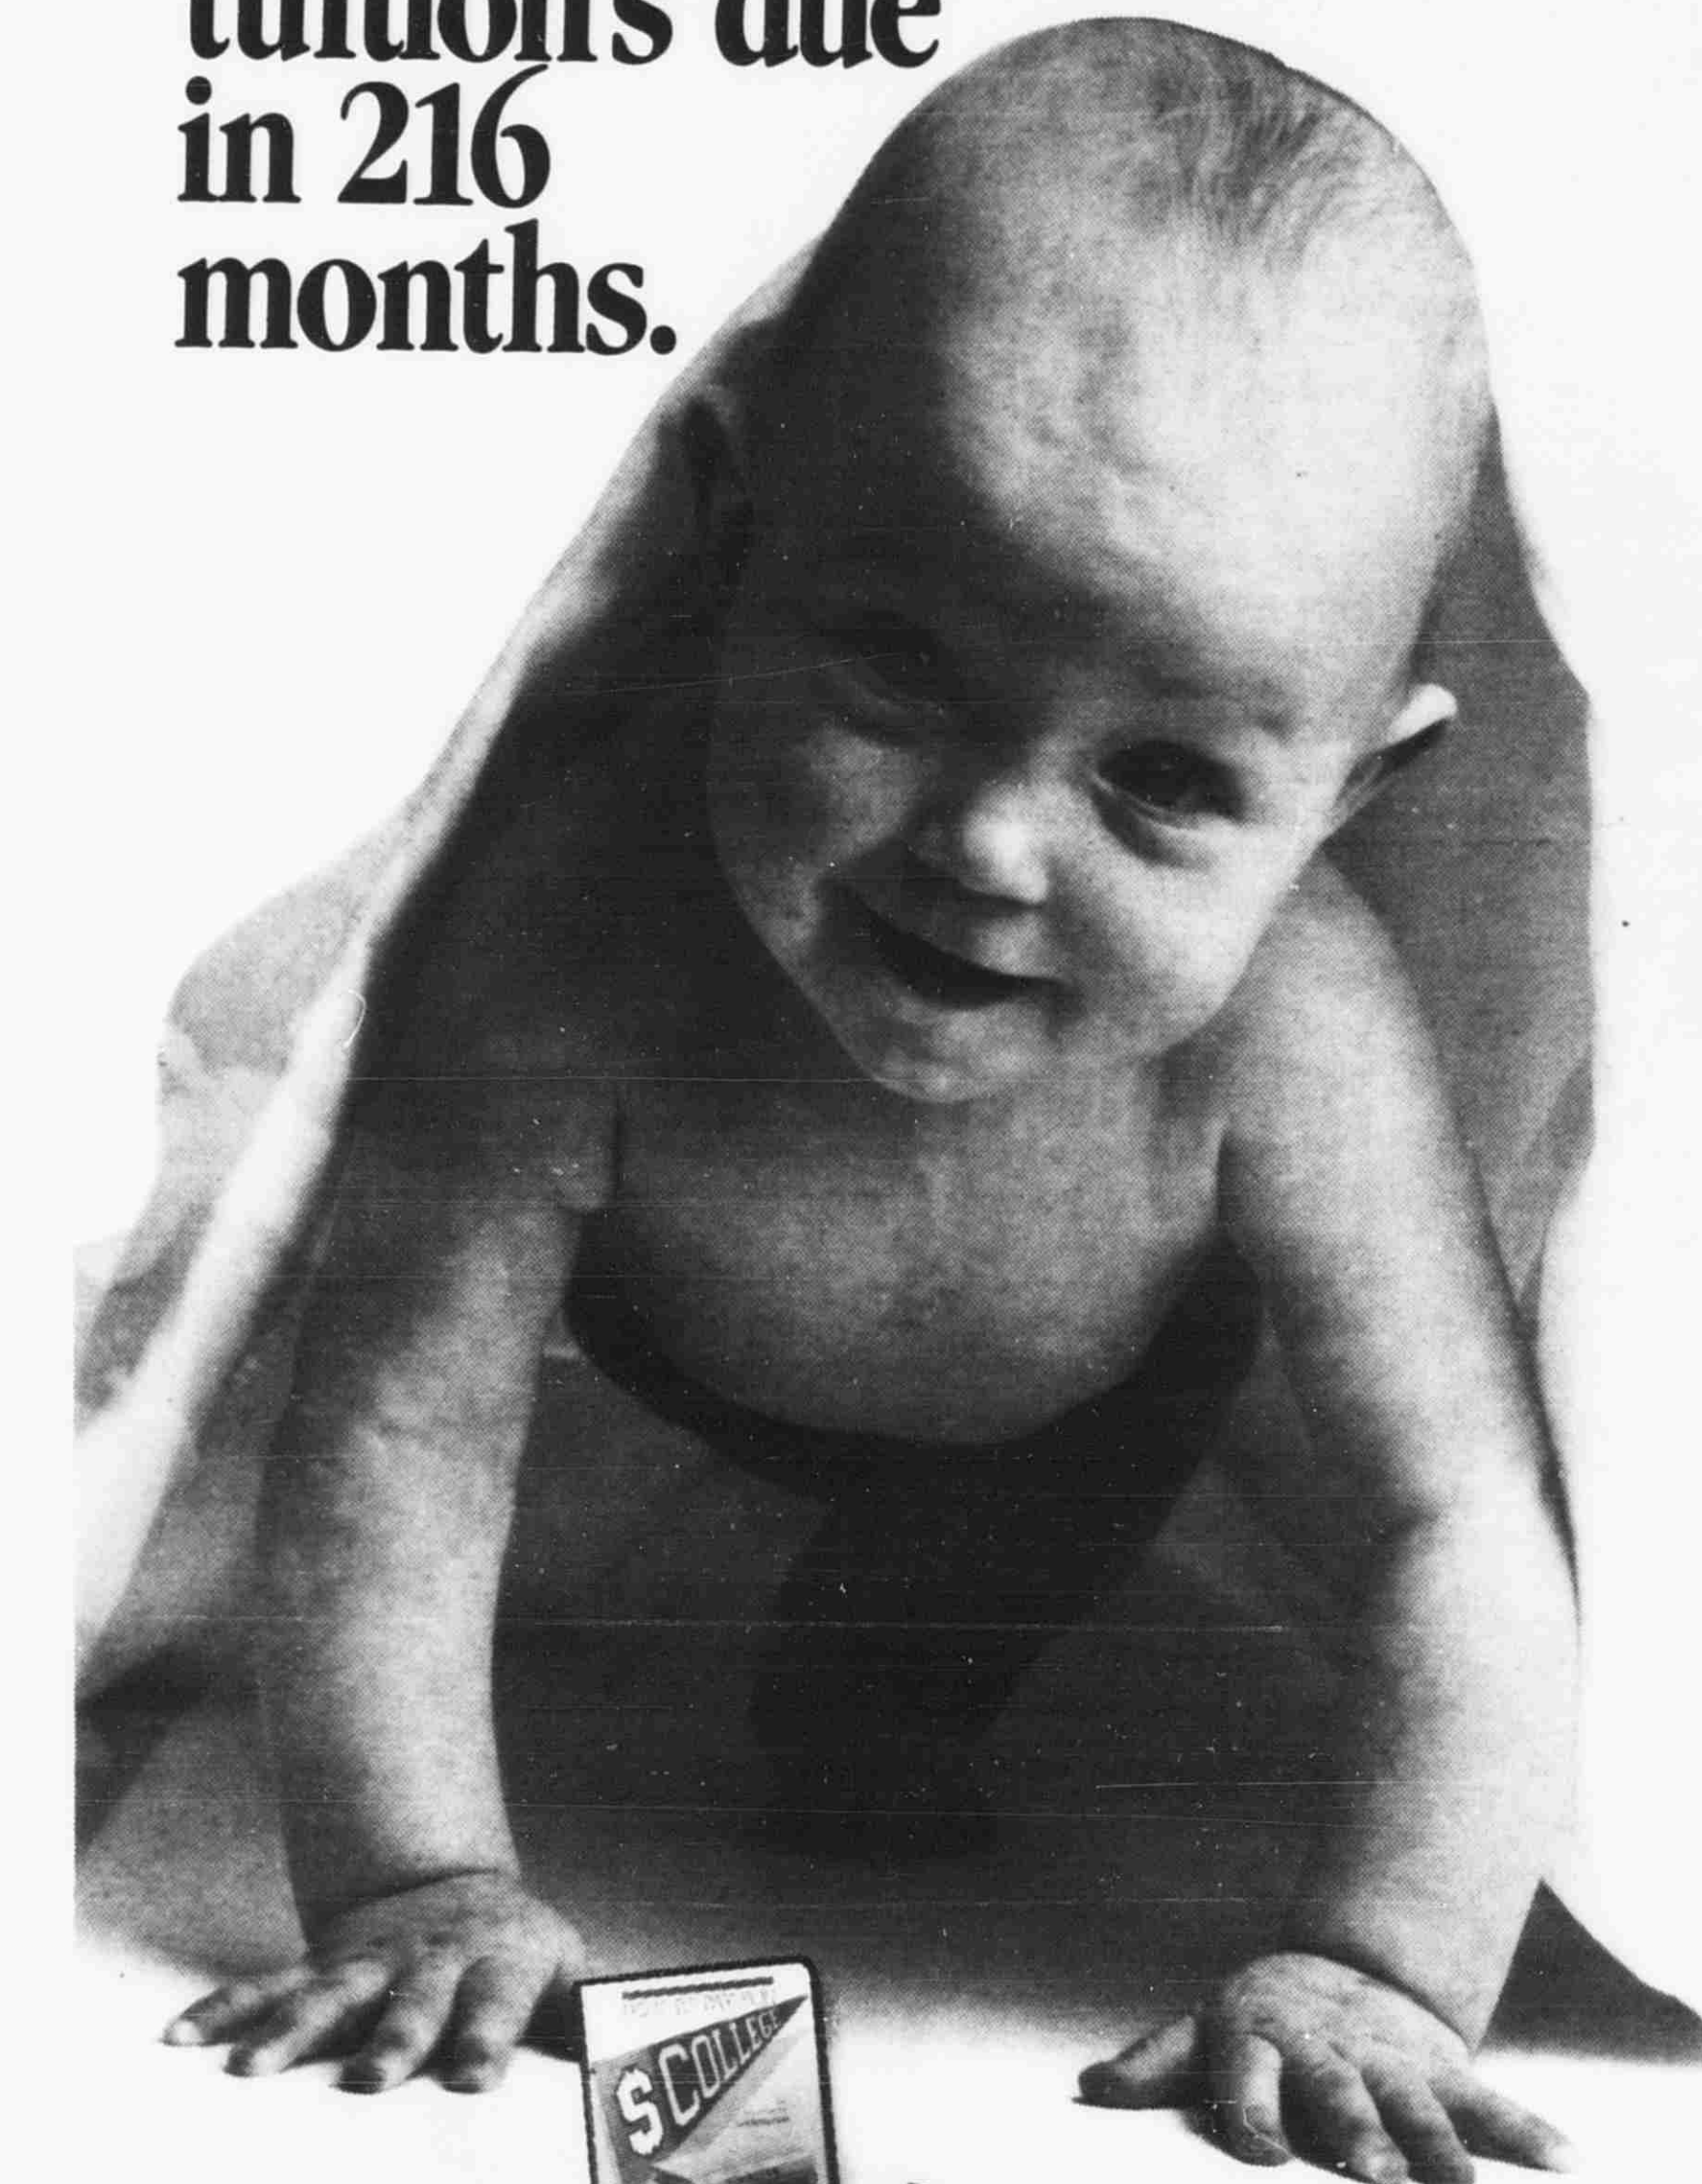

"I don't like the idea of selling liquor on Sundays, but if this township would not allow it, people would just go to another township and bring it back here," said Township Clerk Carol Wells. "We would just be hurting the small businesses in Lowell that sell liquor."

Township Supervisor John Timpson agreed with Wells that the resolution shouldn't have been passed, and also pointed out that enforcing an ordinance against the resolution would be extremely difficult.

"Policing the ordinance would be very difficult and the legal fees incurred on prosecuting individuals would be very high," said Timpson.

Homespun Devotions

By Pauline Spray

Ah Lord God! behold, thou hast made the heavens and the earth by thy great power and stretched out arm, and there is nothing too hard for thee (Jeremiah 32:17).

For years I've been making curtains out of unbleached muslin. I've been very pleased when guests have remarked about them and found it difficult to believe they were made from inexpensive material. True, plain strips of the cloth might look rather ordinary, but fringe trimming makes a vast difference. Herein lies the secret of the curtains' attractiveness.

What an individual thinks about, he tends to become. When a person allows negatives to master his thinking, he becomes a negative person. Life, to such a person, becomes a minus instead of a plus. However, when he ceases to be negative and begins to live optimistically, everything changes. The world takes on new color, and those things he had thought to be impossibilities become, not only possibilities, but realities.

Nothing is impossible with the Lord. When one truly believes this, one's whole outlook on life is changed. Christians, we can live lives that are attractive to others. Like the fringe on my curtains, "faith makes the difference."

Prayer:

"Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion." Thou art very great. Thy wisdom is beyond my comprehension. Thy power is unlimited. All things are possible with Thee. Impossibilities become possibilities and realities because I trust in Thy ability to answer my prayers. Amen.

Viewpoint

The worst part about serializing these stupid adventures of mine is bringing readers up to speed each week in case they haven't read the previous installments. The good part is, after several installments, the recap is nearly long enough to call a column on its own.

Here goes. A friend and I were stuck in Titusville, PA after my 1941 Stearman (an open cockpit, WWII biplane trainer) developed rather serious engine trouble on a trip out east. After working on the engine for two days, we were sure of just two things. One, the engine was trashed and would require a major overhaul. Two, we had no ride home. In a very small nutshell, that's basically what I devoted my last three columns to. If you want to know more than that, stop by the Ledger. We'd be glad to sell you some back issues.

We sat in the shade of a hangar door on a hot Saturday afternoon, contemplating our predicament. We had our back packs stuffed with our essentials and we were ready to go, but short of walking back to Michigan, we had no transportation. We'd checked with the airlines, Amtrak, Greyhound and rental car agencies. All of those options were either way too expensive, or simply not available. Besides, this trip had been quite an adventure to this point, and we agreed that we weren't going to spoil it by sticking our tails between our legs and heading home on some conventional mode of transportation. That philosophy definitely precluded any thought of having a friend or relative drive out after us. We settled on hitchhiking.

We thought about calling our buddies at the "Cop Shop" for a ride to the nearest highway, then remembered they would be busy with traffic control at the "Oil Festival" parade. About that time a guy and his daughter showed up at the airport. We chatted with him briefly about our problem. He told us he owned a share in a four place Cessna, had the plane signed out for the rest of the afternoon and was taking his daughter for a ride. The idea hit my buddy and I simultaneously. We'd hitchhike home from airport to airport.

In no time flat, we had this guy talked into flying us to Sandusky, OH, our last fuel stop on the way east. The airport at Sandusky is fairly busy because of the amusement park, and we figured we could likely hitch another ride toward home from there. A couple of hours later, we were lurking around the Sandusky airport, accosting unsuspecting pilots with our tale of woe and a plea for a ride toward Grand Rapids. I felt like I should shave my head and wear an orange robe.

We weren't on the ground fifteen minutes when my buddy had hooked a ride to Toledo. Only one small problem, he had a four place Cessna 210. My buddy and I made passengers five and six. The pilot did a quick weight and balance, decided he could carry the load and told his petite wife to get in the baggage compartment. Their friends were told to get in the back seat and my friend perched himself on their collective laps. I got in front with the pilot because I was the heaviest and needed to be there for weight and balance reasons. It doesn't happen very often, but every once in awhile being a fat slob pays off.

About a half hour later, we were on the ground in Toledo. We weren't there long before we discovered the reason for the Goodyear blimp and all the fancy private jets parked around. The PGA Tournament was being held at Inverness Gold Course near Toledo, and the fancy jets belonged to the big name golfers. Greg Norman's jet was parked right in front of the door. We flaked out on the couch in the office and made ourselves at home while waiting for unsuspecting transient pilots.

The place was deserted, with the exception of a couple guys who pumped fuel and worked out of a smaller office next door. There weren't many airplanes coming through Toledo, and those that did weren't heading in our direction. At least, they weren't telling a couple ratty old Stearman pilots they were headed toward Grand Rapids.

We watched TV, ordered a pizza and made ourselves at home. I even took to answering the phone. One call was from a Lear Jet captain who wanted his plane rolled out and readied for take off the next morning. I told him I'd leave a note for the line workers. He then wanted to know who I was, and I told him my story. He had a bunch of Stearman time, we got to yacking and he offered me a ride to Milwaukee in the Lear Jet the next morning. I told him if we were still there, we'd take him up on it. I told my friend, and we decided that next year on vacation we were just going to put together a cock and bull story about wrecking the Stearman, and just spend a few days hitching around the country.

As we were killing time in Toledo I noticed all kinds of rental car agreements and car keys laying around the counter. There was even a fancy key with a note that said, "Ray Floyd's Lexus, dealer will pick up tomorrow." All these cars were parked outside, there was nobody around to report us and it was only a three or four hour drive to Lowell. When I ran my idea past my partner, he reminded me that I was talkin' grand theft auto. I argued that we would just be borrowing. "Call it a Lexus test drive," I said. He wouldn't budge.

After a couple of hours, a guy showed up in a four place Cessna headed for Howell, MI. We bribed him with pizza and hooked a ride. He had just bought the plane in southern Florida for use in his flight school at the Howell airport. He and his young son had been flying about fourteen hours, and were eager to get home. That meant a ride on to Lowell was out. Our chances of getting an airplane ride out of Howell at 10:30 on a Saturday night were about as good as getting Bill Clinton to play his sax at my next birthday party.

Luck had been with us though, so we didn't give up hope. When we got to Howell, one of the instructors that worked for our pilot was hanging around the airport waiting for a look at the new tramer. He was eager to fly it, and offered to take us on to Lowell. About an hour later we were home. About eight hours earlier we were stranded in Titusville, with no idea how we were going to get home. I wonder how many of my friends will still want to come to my birthday party if they find out Bill Clinton is going to be there?

TOURISM THRIVES IN MICHIGAN AND KENT COUNTY

As the seasons change, one thing remains the same in Michigan, the vital importance of our multibillion dollar travel industry. Statewide, tourism is Michigan's second largest industry, bringing an estimated $6.7 billion a year directly into our economy. The U.S. Travel Data Center estimated in 1990 that more than $400 million in tourist dollars came to Kent County. That made us the third highest tourist county in Michigan and provided almost 8,000 jobs here.

CROUP

Croup is a viral disease of the upper airways which most commonly affects children ages six months to six years. It typically presents in the late fall or early winter, is often preceded by an upper respiratory infection and is characterized by a low grade fever, barking cough and a high pitched sound with breathing in (inspiratory stridor). Typically, the child will awaken from sleep with a persistent, dry, barking cough. This may worsen, causing difficult breathing and even panic as the child tries to breathe deeply.

The diagnosis of croup is made by history and physical examination. X-rays are rarely needed. Most cases of croup are managed effectively on an out patient basis. If breathing difficulties persist, however, admission to the hospital for further care may be warranted.

For the child with mild to moderate croup, management in the home setting is acceptable. Cool moist vaporization is extremely important. This helps to moisten the airways, making it easier for the child to breathe and to cough up secretions. Taking the child out into the cool night air for several minutes also seems to lessen the difficulty with breathing. Antibiotics play no role in croup management because it is a viral disease, not a bacterial one.

For the more resistant cases of croup, your doctor may elect to give the child a short course of cortisone. This reduces the swelling in airways, making it easier for the child to breathe. As noted earlier, if routine measures do not result in improved ability to breathe, admission to the hospital for further care is indicated.

VISION 2000

The spotlight has fallen squarely on the nation's schools as the last great hope for successfully dealing with a multitude of changes facing our nation. While education has been the democratic symbol of hope for thousands of Americans who have molded our country, the challenges facing public education go beyond the schools today. A comprehensive and pervasive collaboration between public schools and other community resources is absolutely necessary for the future success of our way of life.

Lowell Area Schools is not exempt from the general state of public education today across the country. Just outside the local issues, which seem to spotlight our district, are the grim realities. First, we are profoundly affected by changing social and economic conditions which directly affect our students. Second, the districts board, administration and staff cannot resolve the problems alone. It takes a community vision and commitment-A Vision 2000.

Vision 2000 is the title under which a community based group of leaders and stakeholders are assembling to plan for the future success of Lowell Area Schools. Planning strategies for success and improvement in the districts' future will be the objective of the approximately thirty-seven people accepting the challenge to develop and write a comprehensive plan as a guide into the foreseeable future.

The strategic planning process and Steering Committee, co-chaired by Jim and Jane Bosserd, will be composed of four sub-committees; governance, finance, curriculum, and community-school partnerships. The Steering Committee will coordinate, monitor, and facilitate the sub-committees, while functioning as a futures team by reviewing environmental research and demographic pattern and trends which may impact the future success of the school district.

Two major community forums are planned for the general public on October 12 and again on December 9. Both community forums will be held in the Middle School Cafeteria beginning at 7:30 p.m. Community members at large are invited and encouraged to meet with Steering Committee members to express their personal ideas and desires for the future direction of the school district.

In addition, selected interviews with major district stakeholders located within the school district will be conducted during the strategic planning process. Those will include individuals who run major business employing graduates and/or who are affected by the school district in their personal, professional, or vocational endeavors.

Phil Jenkins, President of Bryn Mawr Associates, Inc. has been working with the Board developing the framework for Vision 2000, which will be a revision of a 1988 plan entitled, A Step Into The Future. Jenkins will be facilitating the work of each sub-committee as well as the Steering Committee and will prepare the final report for presentation to the board and community. The Vision 2000 strategic planning process will begin in October and is scheduled for final presentation to the Lowell Board of Education and community at the regular meeting on February 14, 1994.

County, there has been a great effort to incorporate advanced technology in bringing more people to Michigan.

This year the Michigan Travel Bureau is offering a toll-free hotline pinpointing the best fall colors for tourists. The service is available throughout the season and offers callers tips on areas of the state that offer peak viewing, scenic areas and local festivals. Every two weeks the list will be updated. The number to call is 1-800-MI-4-FALL.

Starting in October, the bureau introduces the nation's most sophisticated state travel information system. The system will match potential visitors with an exact match to the area they would like to visit. According to the bureau, a complete library of Michigan attractions will be available over the next two years.

For example, if you're looking for the best place to catch small mouth bass as the leaves change color on a secluded stream near a small town with a bed and breakfast, the computer will juggle all of the data and provide you with a detailed list of suitable locations across the state.

Callers receive the information free of charge by dialing a toll-free travel information number, 1-800-543-2YES. The operator will be able to provide tourists with Michigan travel publications or use the database to find lodging, attractions and activities that fit the caller's needs. The Travel Bureau will also notify local convention and visitors bureaus so they can include brochures and other information about their area.

The key to success in Michigan's travel industry and increased economic development is making Michigan a fun and easy location to visit. The first-rate services available to tourists do just that. Many Michigan residents know what a great place our state is to explore, but this system will make it even easier for residents and non-residents alike to hunt down the areas they would most like to visit.

A program like this does not get front-page headlines, but it does show how innovative thinking should be encouraged throughout the state government. Part of making government more efficient is to make it easier for cutting-edge ideas to make their way through the numerous levels of bureaucracy. This is a success story because people get quicker access to state resources.

I hope you take advantage of these services and enjoy the full benefit of another autumn season upon us in Michigan.

TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,

I am writing this letter in regards to the article Sept. 15 on "Wet roads contribute to two-car accident on Alden Nash."

I was one of the drivers in this accident. I felt the news media and officer Crystal exaggerated excessive speed and more or less my poor judgement. I think this is an insult to injury.

At the time of this accident it had been raining hard and the pavement was wet. I was driving sensibly and looking to the right, watching for the oncoming traffic from the ramp to the road on which I was to pass. Hearing about the many accidents in the area, I did not want to become a victim. In front of me were three cars waiting to get on I-96. Slowing down more, I began to slide from side to side. In a split second I had to make a decision, to either hit the cars in the back and maybe throw them into the oncoming traffic, or hit the brakes hard to stop this unfortunate situation.

I picked the latter, hoping the oncoming traffic would see my dilemma and slow down. I hit the wall turning the car in the opposite direction and bringing the car to a stop. But, the van got clipped by the back side of my car.

I have taken care of brain injured people having their basic needs taken away in an accident. I was very aware of my actions. So be it. Maybe you need to walk in another persons shoes. I felt helpless.

I thank God for His mercy that I walked away without a scratch, could go to work and no one was seriously hurt. I believe the bottom line is that one can be in danger without warning. Be ready, wear your seat belt.

If this area is dangerous, with its many accidents, what is being done to help make our motorists safe? Maybe someone's loved one, friend or neighbor may get injured for life or worse, killed. Then it will be too late.

I want to thank the caring people who took time to stop and offer their help. It was greatly appreciated.

Joanne Seif

Dear Editor:

We have just gone through a traumatic Sunday and Monday. Three of our grandsons, ages two, three and six ate poison mushrooms late a Sunday afternoon. They were with their parents on the property they are buying.

The boys have a sandy play area with their toys. Daddy was building a deer blind, mommy was tending the two month old baby and starting supper. The two year old started stumbling and becoming incoherent.

In the race to the hospital, my son blew up the engine of his car. He flagged down the car behind him. That driver took Tim and Timothy to the Police department. The state police rushed them the rest of the way to Shelby Lakeshore Hospital, where they began emergency treatment. Other people took their mom, Amy, and the other three boys to the hospital. As the two year old was being loaded into the helicopter, we noticed the three year old becoming unable to sit and talk.

Emergency treatment was started on Mathew. Minutes later, while talking with six year old Shane, his head began wobbling. He too, was taken in to start stomach pumping. The decision was made to take Timothy by helicopter to Butterworth and come back for the other two. It is quite a procedure and by the time the helicopter returned, the other two were ready to go.

The boys have gone mushroom picking before with their parents, and you can buy them in the store. You never know when an activity can turn to tragedy. Please, be sure to teach your children not all mushrooms are for eating, or better yet, don't take them until they are old enough to learn the differences.

The boys are home and doing well, after their stay at Butterworth Pediatric Intensive Care Unit.

Residents to be served better by 6 inch main

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

An old two-inch High Street water main will be replaced with a six inch ductile iron water main by the City of Lowell Public Works Department in early October.

The cost for replacing 220 lineal feet of water main is estimated at $8,550. Lowell City Manager Dave Pasquale said money will be saved by the City using its own people to complete the project. However, it may also take longer to complete.

The old two-inch diameter line, that currently serves residents in the High Street area, does not suit the volume needs. "It's in the best interest of the community to put in a six-inch main," Pasquale said.

Putting in the larger main will provide a lead-in for the main so that it will reach Grove Street and then south, where it will meet Main Street. Pasquale said this would help with future expansion and with circulation of the water.

A hydrant will also be installed at the west end of the main.

The cost of the project would be paid through a loan from the general fund to the water fund. The loan would be repaid during the 1994-95 budget year.

Ambulance & City reach agreement

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Lowell Ambulance and the City of Lowell have renewed a new five-year ambulance service agreement.

Rockford Ambulance has done business with Lowell Ambulance since 1988. During that time, the City of Lowell contributed $3,000 per year.

Also, Lowell Ambulance pledged $35,000 toward the construction of the Look Memorial Fire Station.

In order to seek national accreditation and specify responsibilities, a new five-year agreement was approved.

The agreement states the City will continue to pay $3,000 per year over the five-year period.

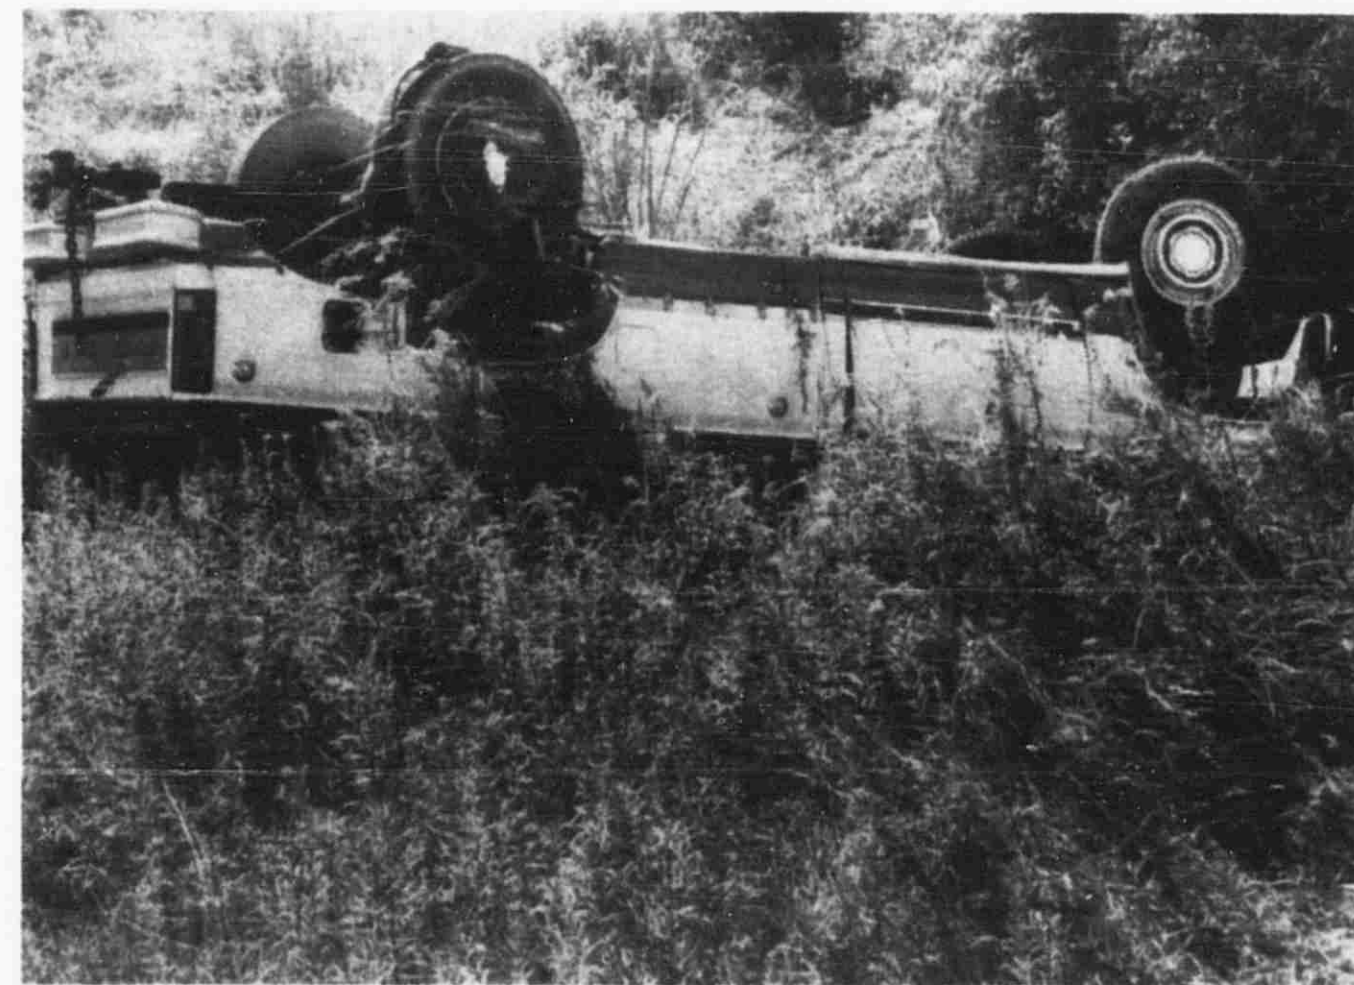

It also states that Lowell

Ambulance, owing $6,000 on the station, will pay $2,000 for each of the first three years.

The proper insurances are identified for the 24-hour, seven day a week service. An ambulance vehicle will be within one mile of the City at all times.

Blown tire causes truck to leave I96

A Holland man, George Loucks, escaped injury Friday after the back rear tire of his pick-up truck (pulling a trailer) blew. Loucks lost control of the vehicle as it went off the road and rolled down the embankment on Interstate 96, a couple miles east of the Alden Nash exit. No other vehicles were involved in the accident, according to Kent County Sheriff's Department Deputy Edward Knott.

LEGAL EASE

With
Jonathan J. David

DEAR JONATHAN: My husband and I are going on vacation in a few weeks and we are leaving our small children with my sister. In one of your past columns you discussed the benefits of a durable power of attorney for health care which allows a person to appoint another person to make medical decisions on his behalf in the event he is unable to do so for himself. Is it possible for my husband and I to execute one of these documents giving my sister the right to make medical decisions on behalf of any of our children if necessary while we are away?

JONATHAN SAYS: Yes. Although the document you would execute would not be the durable power of attorney for health care which I discussed in a previous column. The document you could execute, however, is a power of attorney which will allow you to delegate to your sister for a period not exceeding six months, any of your powers, as parents, regarding the care, custody or property of your minor children.

This means that not only can you give your sister the right to authorize medical treatment for any of your children, but you can also give your sister the right to make decisions covering all matters relating to the care, custody and property of your children.

Obviously, you hope that your sister will not need to act in any way while you are away. However, if the need arises, you will be prepared. Have a nice vacation.

FORD

DEAR JONATHAN: A couple of months ago I read in the paper that Governor Engler repealed Michigan's inheritance tax, which seemed to me like a great idea. Recently, however, my mother died and my brother, who she appointed to administer her estate, was told by her attorney that there may be some inheritance tax due and that a Michigan inheritance tax return would have to be filed. What gives?

JONATHAN SAYS: It is true that on June 3, 1993, the Governor signed into law the Michigan Estate Tax Act which replaces the current Michigan inheritance tax. However, this law does not take effect until October 1, 1993. As a result, all individuals, like your mother, who died prior to the new law going into effect, i.e., up through September 30, 1993, will still be subject to the current Michigan inheritance tax law.

Under the new Michigan Estate Tax Act, the tax is basically a "pick up" tax which is based on the credit which is allowed to an individual, against the federal estate tax due, for the amount of state death taxes due. In other words, the state "picks up" that amount which would otherwise go to the federal government.

Under this new act, there will be no Michigan tax due for most Michigan residents whose estates at the time of death are less than $600,000. This is because a federal estate tax return is not required for estates worth less than $600,000 and if there is no federal estate tax return required, then there will be no Michigan estate tax due and owing.

For those estates which are larger than $600,000, a federal estate tax return is required and the "pick-up" tax previously discussed becomes the amount of tax due and owing to the State of Michigan under the new Act.

DEAR JONATHAN: I opened my mail this morning and was shocked to find a legal document entitled "Summons and Complaint." Apparently my neighbor is suing me because my dog bit him. This was a surprise since the alleged bite amounted to nothing more than a scratch. In addition, my neighbor provoked my dog into attacking him. I do not know any lawyers and I do not want to spend the money on a lawyer to defend me. Consequently, I am going to represent myself. What do I need to do?

JONATHAN SAYS: The first thing you need to do is contact the agency who wrote your homeowner's insurance policy and let them know about the lawsuit. The dog bite should be a covered event under that policy. If so, then your insurance company will handle your defense in this matter, and you would not have to represent yourself.

In the unlikely scenario that you do not have a homeowner's insurance policy or you were not covered for some reason and you wanted to represent yourself, then you would have to respond to the complaint by filing an answer with the court and with the plaintiff (your neighbor) within 28 days of the date you received the complaint in the mail. Having said that, however, I would still recommend that you turn this matter over to an attorney.

Even if you feel you have a good defense, representing yourself in court is not easy, especially when the other side is represented by a lawyer. There are rules and procedures that need to be followed, deadlines which need to be kept, etc. Consequently, I would not recommend going into any type of litigation where you are not represented by an attorney.

Good luck.

LEGAL TIP: Make a list of where all of your important documents are located and then give that list to a trusted family member or friend. This will allow these documents to be readily located and retrieved in the event something happens to you.

The information contained in this column is not to be construed as legal advice or legal representation and should not be relied upon as such. If legal advice or legal representation is desired or required, then competent legal counsel should be consulted.

OFF THE BLOTTER

Stephen Grody, 27, of Belding, was involved in a property damage accident, Sept. 20, on Washington near Grant Street when he missed the curve, went over a lawn and struck a fence and two trees.

Frederick Probst, 24, of Lowell, was arrested Sept. 17 on a warrant out of a Grand Rapids court.

Larrie Tuomela, 21, of Lowell, was arrested Sept. 20 for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Michael Treglia, 32, of Lowell was arrested Sept. 23 for violation of probation by Lowell officers.

John Mullins, 25, of Lowell, was arrested on a warrant issued by 63rd District Court Sept. 24 for retail fraud, first degree, which occurred Sept. 15.

Two 16 year old juvenile drivers, both from Lowell, were involved in a property damage accident at Main and Hudson, Sept. 25, when the southbound vehicle failed to yield right-of-way at the blinking red light.

Akhter Husain, 51, of Grand Rapids, was involved in a property damage accident, Sept. 23, when he struck a parked car on East Main near James Street, owned by Marilyn Acheson, of Lowell. The impact sent Acheson's vehicle into the rear of a second parked vehicle owned by Vernice Denkema, 62, of Remus.

Donor found and funds arrive in time to help Lowell native in fight against Leukemia

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

You've been told your son has cancer (Leukemia) and his best chance for survival is a bone marrow transplant.

The hospital's business office states that treatment can be started just as soon as a positive match can be found and a payment of $225,000 is made.

That is what has happened to John and Alice Blanding's son, David.

David Blanding, a 1971 graduate of Lowell High School, found this out on a day that should have been a day (April 15) of rejoicing for both him and his wife, Janet. She gave birth to their first child, their daughter, Phoebe.

eration. The 6459 mills would total $190,000. As Kemp points out, that makes just a small dent in the $800,000 it would take to re-instate a six-hour day.

Kemp was asked if the $500,000 funneled from energy and maintenance could be funneled back, since the contingency funds are so healthy. "Yes, I think that is possible," he said.

Because of when that money was collected, Kemp said he did not know if that money then could be returned to the operational fund through a vote of the people. "I don't know the answer. That's a legal question," he said.

Assuming that all these steps can be taken, and within the time frame, it would be possible to return $740,000 to the operational fund, which would be more than a dent of the $800,000 needed to return to a six-hour day. The other $60,000 could be taken from $800,000 fund equity.

"Would we do it if we could, probably not. That bond money will help us complete the general scope of the project," Kemp said. "It will allow us to purchase computers and other classroom equipment (i.e. desk, chairs, tables). I don't think we want to move 30-year old equipment into a new high school."

The decision to return to a six-hour day is far more complicated than creating a mode for dollars. Lowell Superintendent Fritz Esch said there are several issues to consider in the evaluation of any decision to return to a six-hour day schedule in mid-year.

The issues were: educational value and quality of returned programs, the 1992-93 final district audit, final district enrollment figures, the state aid bill, the cost of the new teacher and support staff contracts, class scheduling at the high school for year long classes, cost of returning programs to six-hour schedule, compared to leaving them as they are, and the anticipated cost of running the school district next year, compared to the funding sources beginning July 1.

Quada said he believes what ever step is taken should be a comprehensive approach and not a stop-gap measure in any one specific area.

Asking the people to vote to have funds shifted from energy and maintenance to operation just further illuminates an existing problem.

"I believe if any government agency is going to establish trust with the public, it must abide by the terms of voter passed issues. If, as some might believe (I do not), there is no further need for the energy and maintenance fund or some part of that fund for its intended purpose, then before district voters are put through a shell game, it should first declare the funds unnecessary, abolish the energy and maintenance fund and related millage should be put back into the taxpayers' pockets," Quada said. "With a separate vote, the taxpayers should be asked to take the money from their pocket to support whatever it is the district is attempting to fund."

Quada believes this would result in true, truth and taxation, and would take school districts and governmental entities out of the business of shuffling money internally when voters fail to give them what they want.

Sewer, continued

According to Voegt, the reason why Cooper's property is ideal is because it provides a natural gravity flow for the line. The other options for Lowell township would have them using a pump, which would be very costly.

Cooper wants the land rezoned, because it would be more affordable to build a residential community.

According to Cooper under the current zoning the cost of the land for a house would be $30,000, as opposed to $14,000 under R2 zoning. This comes about because the land required for building on R2 is smaller than R1 land. Currently, R1 land requires one acre of land be used for each house. Under R2 zoning, the land would be cut more than half to 17,000 square feet. The land use reduction would allow Cook to build approximately 160 homes, instead of 80 homes, thus reducing the total cost of each house.

Lowell Township Supervisor, John Timpson, says the delays will not have too much affect on the construction of the line, but could end up costing the township more money. "We don't plan on constructing the line until spring, but we wanted to get the bidding started as soon as possible to save money. The longer we wait, the more it could cost us."

According to Vergennes Planning Commission Chairman Gil Wise, the re-zoning could not take place under the current Vergennes Township land use plan, because it would be considered spot re-zoning. "Spot re-zoning is something this commission will not start doing just to meet the needs of one person," he said "However, the commission will look into the effects of re-zoning the land, because of the new high school requires the sewer line."

after the winter months and this debris tends to change the make-up of the river. "I've been boating on this river for 12 years and every summer I have to re-acquaint myself because it is always changing," she said.

Lowell citizens got a vote of confidence from a surprise source, when Debbie Marshall, a representative from Senator Vern Ehlers office, asked the DNR to abide by the citizens' request. If the DNR decides to grant the no wake zone request, Alan Baird, a Vergennes Township Trustee, wants to know who will enforce the zone.

Officer Sherzer explained the law would be enforced by DNR agents and Sheriff officers. However, she stressed that the enforcement level would stay the way it is now because no extra officers would be hired to handle the situation.

DNR officer Robert Clark added that there are two DNR conservationist officers in the area and numerous sheriffs officers who could patrol the area efficiently.

Lowell citizens who wish to express their views, will have the next 15 days to submit their feelings in writing to the DNR before the facts are sent to their Marine Safety Division in Lansing.

After receiving the facts the division will make a recommendation to the Vergennes Township board, who then can either accept or reject the recommendation.

Officer Sherzer explained it would take approximately two months before the marine division will send back a recommendation.

Taking part in the art club service venture were junior rotarian, Liz Arnold, Sarah Hecksel and Cat Kilpatrick. Lowell High School art instructor, Robin White, said the three seniors had fun with the project, but wished they had far more time.

Red Arrow girls tested in league wins over Vikings & Spartans

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

For the better part of four quarters it looked as if the 1-5 Wyoming Park girls' basketball team would hand Lowell an unexpected early season

Lowell's Amy Stauffer led Lowell with 19 points against Park.

O-K White Conference loss. A relentless Red Arrow press, an intensified tempo, and poor Viking foul shooting, provided Lowell with enough impetus to chase down, catch and surpass Park an unexpected early season in the final three minutes of play.

Lowell, who trailed by as many as 11 points through the first three quarters, was able to recover in time to earn a 51-40 victory.

"Park played extremely well. They tested us," Lowell coach Ken Akers said. "They caused our girls to make mistakes."

The well coached Vikings passed themselves through and over the Red Arrow press in the first half. "We did a good job against Lowell's press," Park coach Rich Pullen said. "The girls were hurt by the press toward the end, because we threw the ball into areas we didn't want it."

Lowell trailed 40-35 with a little more than three minutes to play, but an Amy Stauffer foul shot, with 2:47 to go, gave Lowell a 41-40 advantage and started an 11-0 Red Arrow run.

Sophomore Tammy Stauffer hit a big three point shot, from just right of the key, to extend Lowell's precarious one-point lead to four at 44-40.

The sophomore followed 30 seconds later with a short 12 foot jumper from the right side, extending the lead to six at 46-40.

A bucket by Gowen and two foul shots by Amy Stauffer increased the lead to 50-40. Lowell's point came with 56 seconds to play, on a foul shot by Tammy Stauffer.

"We hustled, we rebounded, we played well offensively and we played well defensively, but we didn't hit our foul shots down the stretch," Pullen said.

Park was led in scoring by Susan Blok with 12 points.

The game's leading scorer was Red Arrow Amy Stauffer. She tallied 19 points. Courtney Arnett followed with 12 and Tammy Stauffer and Krista Posthumus each had eight points.

Lowell 44
Sparta 39

Lowell seemed to be in control throughout the high school girls' basketball game against Sparta.

Yet, Sparta never seemed to be out of it. It was a strange game, in that Lowell couldn't shake Sparta and the Spartans couldn't catch Lowell. In the end, the Red Arrows improved their O-K White league record to 3-0, putting them at the top of the conference.

"The girls need to realize that they have to be ready to play every night," Lowell coach Ken Akers said. "When you're at or near the top of the league, everybody is gunning for you."

Senior Amy Stauffer led the Red Arrow charge with 17 points. In the first three league games of the year, Stauffer has averaged 19 points a game. Krista Posthumus scored 11 points and Courtney Arnett added six.

"Amy is playing well right now. She's been consistent and she also sees the floor real well," Akers said.

Sara Hull led the Spartans with 13 points. She's been averaging 21 points per game.

Courtney Arnett goes strong to the basket against Wyoming Park.

"Arnett did an excellent job defensively against Hull," Akers said. Lowell led 22-17 at half. The two clubs traded buckets in the second half. Both clubs scored 22 points in half number two - eight in the third quarter and 14 in the fourth.

JV girls lose two

The Lowell junior varsity girls' basketball team was defeated by Wyoming Park 36-23.

Andrea Bishop led Lowell with 15 points. Cindy Cook led the club in rebounding with seven caroms.

"We are playing good at teh defensive end, but are really struggling to establish an offense," Lowell coach Wayne Townsend said.

Park jumped out to a six-point lead after one quarter and maintained a consistent lead throughout the game. The Red Arrows ran into a hot-shooting Sparta team on Thursday and were defeated, 50-20.

While Sparta scored a season-high 56 points, Lowell only managed six buckets. Cook was Lowell's leading scorer with five points. Jenny Borg and Andrea Bishop each scored four points. Karen Dykstra had a team-high seven rebounds.

Young Red Arrow linkster shines in league play

The coming of age of sophomore Scott Smith, and sparkling play of two freshmen, highlighted a 1-2 week run for the Red Arrow boys' golf team.

"Smith has stepped to the front," Lowell golf coach Jack Ogle said. "He's playing real well right now. Scott's been consistent."

Nick Kuzmin and Rob Cindric served notice that they will be the foundation from which Lowell's golf team is built over the next couple of years. Kuzmin shot a 48 at Deer Run against Zeeland and Northview. Cindric carded a 45 in an exhibition at Ironwood against Wyoming Park.

Wyoming Park 158

Sean Smith led the Red Arrows, with a team medalist score of 39 at the par-37 Ironwood course.

He was one shot in back of match medalist Jason Hartman of Wyoming Park, who fired a 38.

Hartman's teammate and brother, Eric Hartman, tied Smith at 39.

The Vikings, who are one of the quality teams in the O-K White, had just two strokes separate their top four golfers. Marc Drougal and Josh Mateer came home with rounds of 40.

Scott Smith was two shots in back of Sean Smith, with a 41. Jason Evans followed with a 42. Dustin VanStee came home with a 45.

"Park played well. They are a good team, especially on their home course," Ogle said.

Northview 172
Lowell 181
Zeeland 188

Lowell's Scott Smith and

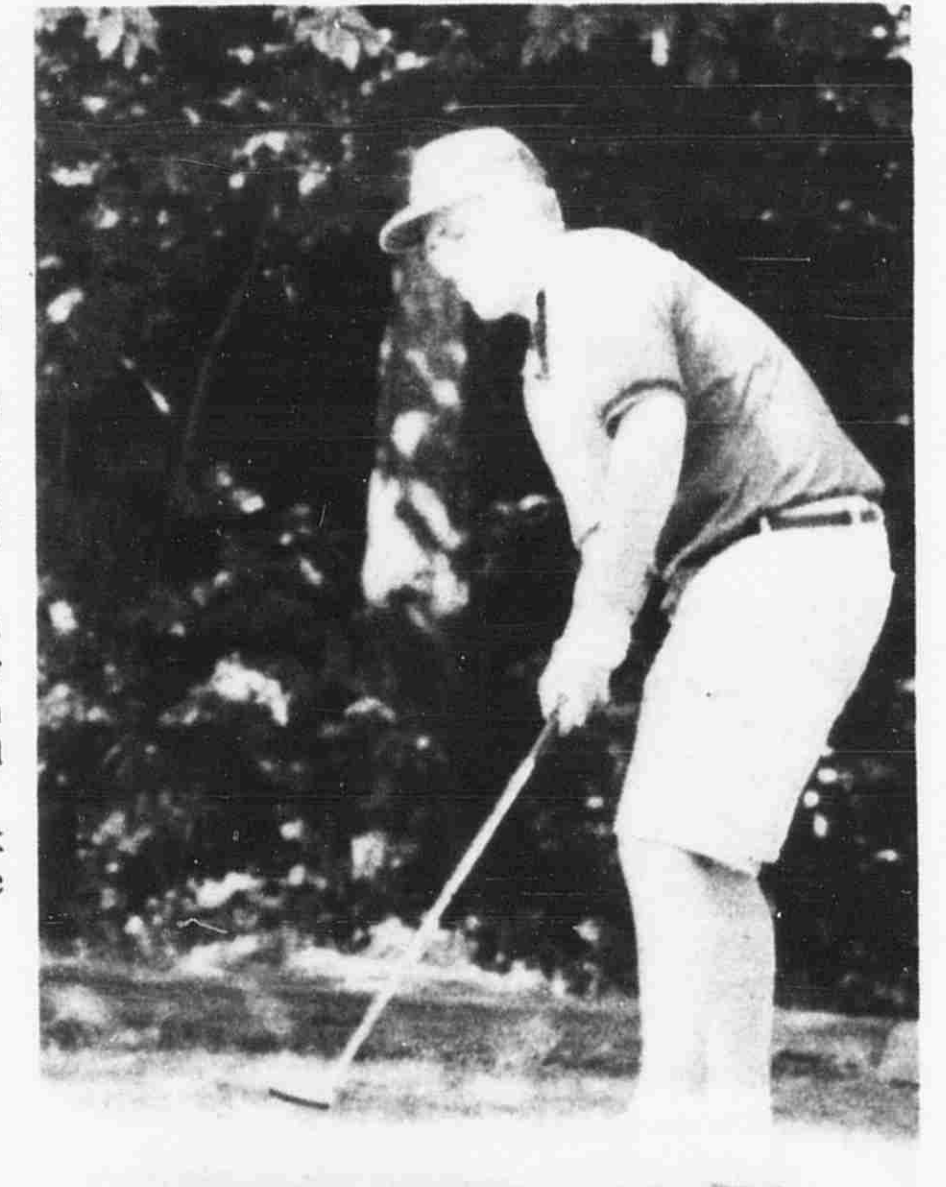

Northview's Adam Henkel were the match medalist with rounds of 41.

Northview's Nick LaCroix was one shot back at 42. Teammate Beau Verlin fired a 44. Andy Zbojniec finished with a 45.

Following Smith were Red Arrows Sean Smith and B.J. Barber, with nine-hole totals of 46. Nick Kuzmin finished with a 48.

Zeeland was led by Mitch Bos with a 45. Matt Yonker carded a 46 and Ben Laarman and Jason Holland tallied rounds of 48.

Lowell finished the week at 2-10 overall and 1-9 in the O-K White

One point wins over EGR & 'Cats improve soccer teams record to 8-2

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

In the midst of a tough four-game stretch, Lowell coach Dave Wydock said his club was sore, tired and glad to still be in the hunt for a league title.

Having played Forest Hills Central, Northview and East Grand Rapids in succession, with Sparta scheduled for this week, Wydock was pleased with his club's 2-1 O-K White record and 8-2 mark overall.

"This has been a tough stretch of games against quality competitive teams," Wydock said. "The boys have played well. This group has been on an even keel throughout. They continue to progress little by little."

With 2-1 wins over Northview and East Grand Rapids, Lowell finished the week at 2-1 and second to Central in the O-K White.

With literally 30 seconds to play in the first half, Eric Arnett took a crossing pass from Ryan White and drilled it home from six yards out.

The goal tied the game at half, 1-1, and gave the Red Arrows the spark it needed in the second half.

That spark was fanned when Paco Villafano took a corner kick from Jason Prescott and fed Arnett, who punched in his second goal of the game from six yards out. The goal gave Lowell a 2-1 lead and eventually, the victory.

"East is tough. They have the fastest forward line in the league," Wydock said. "We marked their top two scorers and did what we had to do to win."

Wydock praised the defensive play of Dan Huizenga and Jerry Winsor. "Their play has been exceptional. They both have improved immensely from a year ago."

Lowell's coach likes the way his club has been making the plays. "The boys are playing well and charged up about being in the hunt for the league title," Wydock said.

Northview 1

Paco Villafano's second half penalty kick gave Lowell a 2-0 lead, which later proved to be the winning score, as Northview bootied in its only goal with two minutes to play.

The Wildcats score also came on a penalty kick.

Lowell posted its first goal when Matt Carstens headed a corner kick past the Northview goalie.

"Our mid-field play against Northview was good. It enabled us to control the contest," Wydock said. "However, I think we played better overall against EGR."

The Red Arrow netters had their moments against Portland, but could not sustain them for long enough periods of time.

"We had good matches against Portland, we just couldn't finish them out strong," Ackermann said.

Lea Sterly, number one singles, was defeated by Becky Harrison, 6-2, 6-1.

Monica Jaarsma lost in straight sets to Sparta's Melanie Riendsleisch, 6-1, 6-4.

Sparta's Rachel Blaauw defeated Alethea Parmenter in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0.

In number one doubles play, Heather Houtman and Carrie Forbes straight set Stephanie Stormzand and Jamie Morlock, 6-0, 6-1.

Melissa Malone and Cheryl Anderson were 6-2, 6-1 victims to Nicole VanOefflen and Becky Bradford in number two doubles.

Laura Roth and Beth Pasquale lost 6-1, 6-0 to Sara Jantovsky and Jenny Anderson.

"I thought we could have scored a little better, but overall it was a good match," Ackermann said.

Angie Webert and Alli Gerkman straight set Laura Roth and Beth Pasquale, 6-0, 6-0.

"Parmenter played very well at fourth singles. She did a nice job of hustling on the court and getting to the ball," Ackermann said. "Morlock and Stormzand played a great first set at number one doubles, but just could not carry the momentum into the second set."

Beth Pasquale reaches for a return.

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Sponsored by Family Fare

Mandy Wills
The senior won a competitive three-set league match against Sparta. Wills has been the leader of the Lowell tennis team. Lowell tennis coach Wendy Ackermann calls Wills' play controlled. "Mandy works hard and never gives up," Ackermann said.

Eric Arnett
The sophomore soccer player scored Lowell's only two goals against Northview, to lead the Red Arrow soccer team to victory. The forward/halfback possesses good ball handling skills, is fast and has a nose for the goal. Lowell coach Dave Wydock said Arnett has been putting in his time and was due for a big game.

Courtney Arnett
The junior was recognized by her coach, Ken Akers, for her outstanding defensive play against Wyoming Park's Susan Bentley and Sparta's Sara Hull. She held Bentley to 12 points and Hull to 13 points. Akers said Arnett draws the opponents' top offensive player.

Lowell cross country teams suffer setbacks at Sparta

Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Sparta's 1-2 punch was more than Lowell boys' cross country team could recover from, as it fell 24-34 in a league meet at Sparta.

Spartans Chris Shellner and Tom Young came off the 3-2 mile terrain in first and second place, respectively.

Shellner stopped the clock at 18:32 and Young was three seconds behind at 18:35.

Lowell filled spots three through five. Matt Inman finished in a time of 19:05. John Wojcikowski came home in 19:09 and Matt Kirsch was fifth in 19:38.

"I like the fact that Kirsch moved up and ran with our top two runners," Lowell coach Tom Harper said. "That gives us three runners under 20 minutes. I really believe we have nine guys who can run under 20. If that happens, then we will be the team I think we can be."

Sparta claimed spots six through eight. Trumper was clocked at 19:48. Chris Farr came home in 19:56 and Ehrin Archer finished at 20:05.

Lowell's Rich Langridge was 10th in a time of 20:23 and Paul Pelon was 12th at 20:37.

Sparta 15
Lowell 50

Lowell's boys and girls lost to Sparta.

The Lowell girls were led by Anne Oesch (third), who posted a team best time of 23:13. Melissa Deeb (fifth) was clocked at 23:21. Diana Fick was 10th in a time of 26:59 and Anne Townsend was 11th at 27 minutes even.

"Oesch ran extremely well. Having her run with, or ahead of Deeb, is a good sign. It gives us a nice 1-2 punch," Harper said.

Sparta's Danielle Gleason and Cathy Gallop finished 1-2 for the Spartans. Gleason came home in 21:57. Gallop was clocked at 21:57. Tenths of a second separated the two Spartans.

Sparta's Mary Johnson was fourth at 23:16. Rachel Bays was sixth in a time of 24:08. Missy Bear was seventh in a time of 24:58.

Sean Saldivar exchanges some deep breaths with his Sparta counter part.

Powder Puff - Tough!

The annual "Powder Puff" girls' football game between the Lowell High School seniors and juniors, had a little more bite and crunch to it than what one might associate with a flag-football contest. However, a 22-0 halftime advantage was all the senior girls needed as they coasted to a 36-14 victory. The physical affair pushed both coaches to pontificate after the game on what took place.

"We took it easy on them. The juniors played well, but they too, will grow up to be seniors," said winning coach Jack Ogle.

"It was fun. The problem we had in the first half was the seniors outweighed us by 35 pounds per girl. In the second half, I think our speed wore them down and that's why we were able to score," said the junior's coach Keith Boeve.

The Story... Halloween Of The Past

Halloween was not always a holiday involving candy and trick-or-treating. Originally, it was a Celtic festival for the dead, which was celebrated on the last day of the Celtic year, October 31. Elements of that holiday were incorporated into the Christian holiday of All Hallow's Eve, the eve of All Saints' Day.

Until recently in some parts of Europe, it was believed that on this night witches and warlocks flew around. Huge bonfires were built to scare away these evil spirits. In the 19th century, witches' tricks were replaced with children's pranks. Most of the other Halloween customs were probably survivals from the Celtic festivals.

TOWN TALK

A county resolution pursuant to State law has been passed which allows for the sale of packaged liquor on Sunday, effective Dec. 1. Government entities can prohibit this resolution if so desired. Do you agree with the resolution?

Virginia Waltz
I don't think liquor should be sold on Sunday or at anytime. Too much time is spent drinking. Generally, people observe Sunday as the Lord's day.

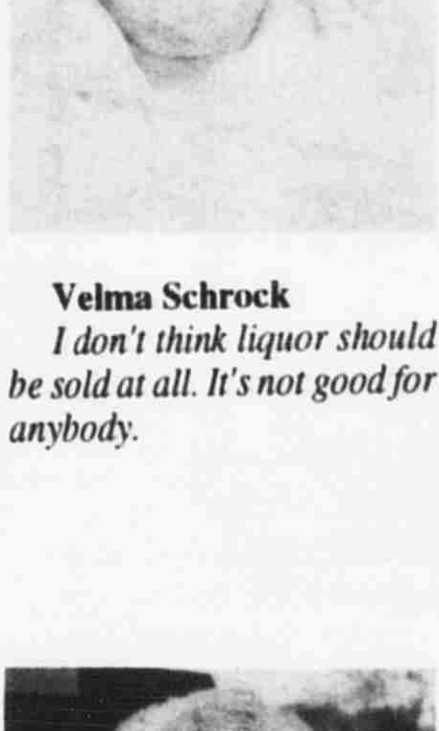

Betty Horstmanshof
I'm thoroughly against it. Society needs to cut down on drinking, especially for young people. Bad things happen when people drink.

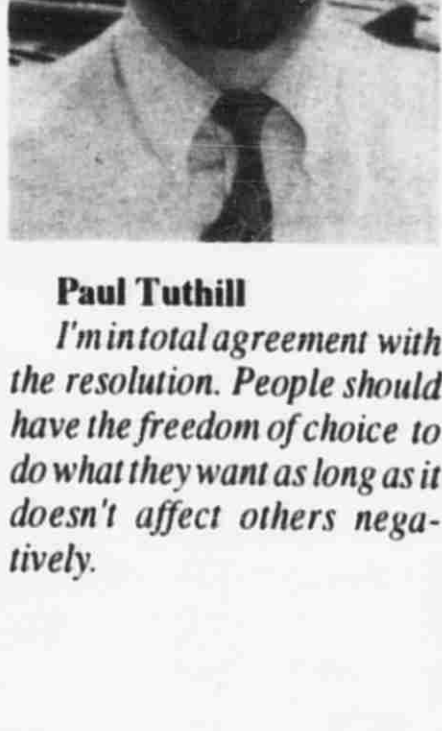

Bill Covell
If they sell beer and wine on Sunday, then, all things being equal, they should liquor too.

Clarence Sellers
No! It's not a good idea. Sunday is a day for worship. It's a day families should spend together.

Velma Schrock
I don't think liquor should be sold at all. It's not good for anybody.

Paul Tuthill
I'm in total agreement with the resolution. People should have the freedom of choice to do what they want as long as it doesn't affect others negatively.

Hans Fischer
I don't think they should allow liquor or alcohol. It's not good for people. It's the cause for too much trouble especially teenagers.

Danger Zone

Some motorists choosing to ignore yellow bus lights

By Marc Popiolek
Contributing Writer

Fall has arrived, and with it comes an assortment of bad weather conditions. That is a major concern to bus drivers who must deal with cars that ignore safety laws and pass the buses illegally.

According to Larry Mikulski, Superintendent of Transportation for Lowell Area Schools, the problem of cars ignoring the law is not going away. "I used to think people just didn't know or understand the law, now I know they choose to ignore it in most cases," he said.

Michigan law requires motorists to stop when a school bus is flashing its red lights and prepare to stop when its yellow lights are blinking.

Mikulski says a lot of motorists are trying to beat the yellow lights, and in some cases, are even running the red lights. However, he says this year bus drivers are better prepared to catch motorists and issue a ticket.

Mikulski and bus drivers, with the help of Michigan State Trooper Patrick Hill, are taking licenses of motorists breaking the law and submitting them to Hill, who issues a $60 ticket.

"This is the best way for us to remind people to respect the flashing lights," said Mikulski. "I get a lot of complaints from people who don't think they deserve a ticket, but I just ask them if they would want someone to pass that bus if their child was on it."

Mikulski says bus drivers don't always catch motorists, but if they don't, they have organized a system. The system has one driver alerting another driver ahead in the route to watch for a particular car, and when that car passes the driver he/she gets the license number. Sometimes the students will assist the driver and get the number themselves.

Mikulski says that bus drivers still can't catch everyone who ignores the law, so if citizens witness a car breaking this law they can call him at 897-9353 to report the incident. He requests citizens to get the license plate number and the street on which the incident took place before calling.

Donor, continued....

David, who would have given anything to be with Janet, instead, was being admitted into the St. Francis Hospital in New Jersey, diagnosed with Acute Myelocytic Leukemia.

Blanding had not felt well for a period of one to two weeks prior to being admitted. He didn't want to go to the doctor because his wife was pregnant with their first child and she needed his attention. Over that period of time he progressively felt worse. "He grew weaker and weaker. So weak he had trouble climbing the steps," his father said. Boils began to form on his face and neck.

Blanding went to a doctor. A blood test was taken. The white blood cell count was high and the red blood cell count was low.

The doctor admitted Blanding into the hospital where a specialist could treat him.

After tests, Blanding was told that he had Acute Myelocytic Leukemia. He was also told that had he waited another couple of weeks to seek medical care he would have died.

It was decided that while a search was taking place to find a bone marrow, six weeks of chemotherapy was needed to help send the cancer into remission.

The chemotherapy treatment was seven days a week, 24 hours a day. The chemo was fed into the body intravenously. The treatment left him just wanting to survive the next 10 minutes.

The treatment got the disease into remission and was followed by consolidation chemotherapy. This treatment started on July 12. It was five days a week, 24 hours a day for four weeks.

"Throughout all of this David never was concerned about whether he'd survive the cancer," John Blanding said. "He was more concerned about the hell he would have to go through to get through it."

On Sept. 13 he flew to Seattle on "Corp. Angels" to a cancer research center for evaluation.

Two days later they told him the cancer had returned and a bone marrow transplant was needed right away.

Tests revealed Friday evening that his brother Mark would be the bone marrow donor. "The difficult part was waiting to find out if anyone matched with David," Alice Blanding said.

If Mark didn't match, the alternative would have been to harvest David's bone marrow, purge it and then place the cleansed marrow back into his body. "This treatment would allow David to become his own donor," John Blanding said. "The cost would have been about the same."

However, before any of this could be done, $225,000 was needed. His family and friends managed to scrape up some of the funds.

His insurance which has a $100,000 cap, had already been tapped out by this point.

David and his family's prayers were answered when a family of one of David's friends came through with a loan.

That loan and other loan sources will provide Blanding the money needed for the treatment.

"Doctors have told David that it will be 1-1/2 years, after the bone marrow transplant is completed before he will be strong enough to return to work," John Blanding said. "The money that is being provided is through loans. Money that must be paid back."

Snow Church at 3189 Snow Ave. will be holding a benefit dinner at 5:30 p.m. on Oct. 23.

It will be a Bombay dinner with authentic Indian cuisine. Tickets for the dinner will be $10. Those interested may contact Richard Doezema at 897-9657 or Katherine Fox at 676-9458, or any member of

Lowell YMCA & McDonald's team up for Volunteer Partnership

The Lowell YMCA and the local McDonald's restaurant will team up to provide community members with information about volunteer opportunities in Lowell.

The one day event, called McDonald's Volunteer Partnership day, is scheduled to occur at McDonald's, on Tuesday, Oct. 5. The YMCA will set up information booths in McDonald's and provide customers with information on volunteering.

Developed to celebrate the birthday of McDonald's Founder Ray Kroc, McDonald's Volunteer Partnership day will be celebrated throughout the Michigan McDonald's outstate region.

Terri Blatter said: "Ray Kroc's philosophy was to give back to the communities where McDonald's does business, and one of the best ways to show our community support is to partner with The Lowell YMCA to provide our customers with information on how they can also get involved."

The YMCA will be selling "McBucks" the day of the event. All proceeds will go to the YMCA Leader's Club.

The Snow Church. There will also be a bake sale held in conjunction with the dinner, by the ladies of the church.

On Oct. 23 a barn sale is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. and run throughout the day. The barn sale will be at the Richard Doezema residence at 3231 Snow Ave.

On Nov. 13 a live auction will be held from 2 until 6 p.m. at the Snow Church. A second bake sale will also be held.

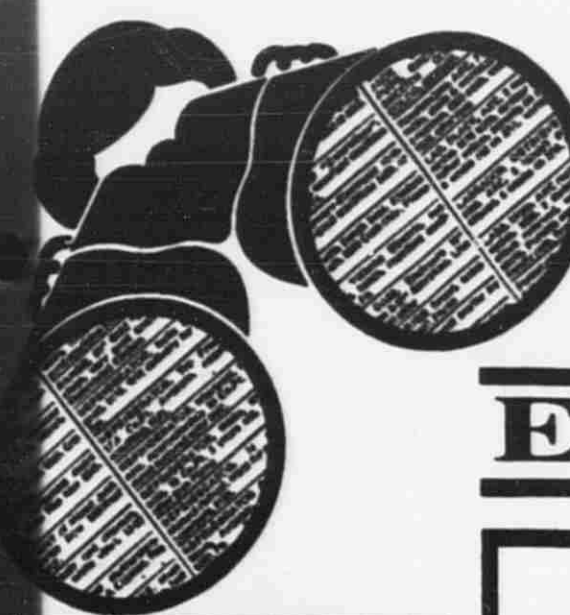

John Blanding said friends of David's will also be holding fund-raising events in New Jersey.

Months prior to David finding out he had leukemia, his father underwent surgery to remove a brain tumor from an auditory nerve.

The operation caused some damage to John Blanding's facial nerves.

Correction

The distance from the driveway currently used by the Boyds is 200 feet away from the property they own, not 200 yards. Also, the Boyds don't have to move their driveway to the property they own. Planning commission members say there is no written rule saying they must move, but it is an option they can look into.
