Vergennes residents feel left out after removal of annual meeting

By Marc Popiolek
Contributing Writer

Following the recommendation of the Michigan Township's Association, the Vergennes Township Board decided not to hold its annual meeting this year.

However, the decision was met with some resistance from Vergennes Township residents who felt the meeting was a good forum for citizens to interact with their elected officials.

The meeting, which is normally scheduled for the last Monday in March, used to be mandatory before the state legislature abolished the rule. Upon its ruling, the legislature said it was up to the individual townships to decide if they would hold a meeting. To do so, the township would have to draw up a resolution declaring the meeting.

Vergennes resident Roger O'Dell, 10999 Bailey Dr., voiced his complaint at the fact the township decided to drop the meeting without voting on it.

Despite a budget that operates in the black, Vergennes Township officials defend approval of raises

By Marc Popiolek
Contributing Writer

Vergennes Township will be operating in the black with its approval of the proposed 1994 budget.

The proposed budget calls for the township to bring in $211,052 for the year, while paying out $248,827. According to Vergennes Township treasurer Carol Nauta, the township will make up the difference of the bills with additional funds from their general fund, savings account and investment fund. The investment fund currently has $120,000 available to the township.

However, the budget hearing did not meet with total approval from citizens who attended the meeting. The citizens wanted to know how the township could justify the salary increases proposed for the upcoming year.

The budget gives a fourpercent raise to both the township treasurer, Nauta, and supervisor, Jim Cook, and a six-percent increase to the township's clerk, Jean Hoffman. The budget also shows an increase of $2,000 in the township assessor's fee. Currently, Jim Cook operates as Vergennes Township's assessor.

Roger Roberts, 433 Alden Nash, wanted the township board to explain what the township will receive from the salary increases.

"This township saw an increase of 22 percent last year in the operational cost of this township and is going to see an additional 15 percent increase for this year," said Roberts. "What I want to know is what will the township be getting for this increase?"

Nauta explained that the township's salaries are in line with what other organizations pay to employees, although they don't take into account all the extra work done by the officials.

"I couldn't even begin to tell you how many extra hours we put in. Whether in the work we take home or when the office is closed, we do more than anyone realizes," said Nauta.

Nauta's salary increase will go from $10,850 to $11,283; Cook's will rise from $12,000 to $12,480 and Hoffman's salary will increase from $10,650 to $11,284. Hoffman's increase of an extra two percent over the supervisor's and treasurer's salary is to bring it in line with the treasurer's salary.

When addressing the assessor's fee increase from $16,000 to $18,000, township trustee Mark Weber pointed

Questions on furniture bids may give school a lead on curbing future costs

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Questions surfaced at Monday night's Lowell School Board meeting as to whether the bids Lowell Schools awarded for the new high school media center and office furnishings were the best that were available.

Shawn Eshragh, Citizens for Quality Education, suggested that some of the four bids awarded in the area were extremely high.

"I know that furniture manufacturers like Haworth Manufacturing of Holland have educational marketing programs where discounts and sometimes donations are given to schools," Eshragh stated.

Estimates for the new high school media center and office furnishings were originally figured to be in the area of $300,000.

So when the bids were opened and the final cost of $176,685.15 was given, it was greeted with a welcomed surprise.

The four bids awarded were to Interphase Office Systems, a distributor for LaVene, Inc., $16,692.71;

Dew-El Corp. $13,692; and Valley School Supply, $69,941.

Liz Prosch, a regional territory manager for Haworth, said the manufacturer has provided discounts and donations to Rockford Schools, Holland Schools, the Grand Rapids Public Schools, Western Michigan University, the University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

The founder of Haworth Manufacturing, G.W. Haworth, was a shop teacher for Holland Schools for 40 years. He started building furniture for schools in his garage.

However, Prosch said that the size of the discount provided to Lowell Schools through its bid process with Interphase was as steep as anything she's seen in quite a while. "That is a by-product of the function of what's happening in the furniture industry today. It's a wonderful time to be bidding out for furniture."

Because the bid was over $50,000, Prosch said she did not believe Lowell Schools could have gotten a better price going through Haworth's educational marketing program.

"Had the bid been $50,000 or lower, then the use of the educational program could have provided the school with lower costs," Prosch said.

Eshragh asked White if the school tried dealing directly with Haworth Manufacturer instead of its distributor Interphase Office Systems, Inc. White said he was not aware of the program. "That is so basic that I will check with WBDC to see if that was done," White said.

The bid process for these items were coordinated by WBDC.

Eshragh felt strongly that

Homespun Devotions
By Pauline Spray

Even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister . . . (Matthew 20:28).

My mother just can't do enough for me when I go home to visit for a few days. She asks, "Pauline, what would you like to eat?" And if I don't stop her, she insists on waiting on me hand and foot.

"You don't have to wait on me," I told her one day.

"But I like to wait on people who don't want to be waited on. It is the people who want to be waited on that I don't like to wait on," she replied.

Those who seek the solicititudes of others, who want the attention of all about them, are selfish—and unhappy. And, they are of limited service in this world. We can be joyful only if we forget ourselves and concentrate on making others happy.

Jesus came, not to be waited on, but to give Himself without reserve. He is our example. We need to be on the alert for opportunities to do good unto all men. The smallest acts of kindness can bring joy both to those who receive and to the giver. We should never despise the worth of "little things."

Prayer: Dear Jesus, cause me to serve Thee in the little things. Make me alert to see the needs of others and eager to administer to them—even through the smallest acts of kindness. This Thou wilt not despise. Amen.

Often the most useful Christians are those who serve their Master in little things. He never despises the day of small things, or else He would not hide His oaks in tiny acorns, or the wealth of a wheat field in bags of little seeds.

There are certain aspects about being a male I just don't get. The longer I'm around, the more I wonder why we behave the way we do. Are women right about us? Are we really the low life, scum-of-the-Earth pigs they say we are? Time magazine did a cover story a few weeks ago entitled, "Men; are they really Pigs?" The cover photo was of a well dressed businessman with a pig's head superimposed on his shoulders. I didn't read it. I was afraid of what I might find out.

Recently read "The Book of Guys," a humorous collection of short stories about guys. It was written by Garrison Keillor. The stories depicted male characters in outrageous situations with their wives, kids, jobs, girlfriends, parents and male life in general. It's funny, but it made me stop and think more than once. The bottom line is, it ain't easy to live up to being a stupid, low life, scum-of-the-Earth pig! The stupid part may come easy for some of us, but we have to work at the rest of it.

The opening story in Keillor's collection is titled "The Sons of Bernie." (S.O.B.'s for short). The story sets the tone for the book. For fifteen years Bernie's buddies had taken a week off work for an ice fishing trip up north. Bernie's wife would never let him go. During a sidewalk meeting with one of his pals he was again invited to the annual excursion. In a fit of defiance, Bernie announced that his wife could go to Hell; he was going along. Bernie then triumphantly stepped off the curb and was run over by a bread truck.

After Bernie's death, his friends formed the S.O.B.'s. Belonging to the organization amounted to attending the annual meeting. Once a year the S.O.B.'s built a huge smoky campfire deep in the woods in the middle of the night. They'd stand around the fire drinking whiskey straight from the numerous bottles being passed and bad-mouth women. No problems were solved, but it was good therapy.

I mention all of this to lead up to a stupid thing I did a week or so ago that has no explanation other than the fact I had the misfortune of being born a male. A couple of years ago I bought an old single-shot-12 gauge shotgun at a yard sale for twenty bucks. That act alone would warrant considerable cajoling from most females. An attraction to useless old guns is peculiar to the male of our species. A female would have purchased something sensible, like an old Barbie doll.

The shotgun continued to rust away in the corner of my workshop until a Sunday afternoon when I had nothing better to do. I went after it with some steel wool and solvents. After oiling it up, I decided to see if it still worked. Since I was not at all sure if the thing would fire at all, fire properly or simply blow up, I held it next to my hip. Better to walk with a gimp the rest of my life than to have only one facial profile.

The old shotgun worked fine. It kicked like a mule though. Following the detonation I felt some pain at the base of my thumb where I'd gripped the small of the stock. On a single-shot shotgun, there is a lever located behind the hammer that opens the breach when moved to the side. It sticks up about a half inch and is machined round and smooth so as not to be dangerous. The recoil was so great, and my grip was such that the lever was driven into the crook of my hand where the thumb joins it. The wound looked like someone had stabbed me with a nickel or I had been bitten by a geriatric beaver with only one well-worn front tooth left.

I darned near fainted when I spread my thumb from my hand and peered down the gaping hole that seemed to go on forever. I'm sure it should have been stitched up, but I was too embarrassed to seek treatment. Another man thing I guess. Ten days later it is still suppurating. Since it's in a much used joint on my right hand, it will probably be weeks before it's healed. The manly ritual of a firm handshake has almost brought tears to my eyes on several occasions over the past few days.

To sum up this story of manly ignorance, I'll reiterate the stupidity of buying the shotgun in the first place. It was stupid to waste time cleaning it up when I could have been doing something productive, like wallpapering the bathroom. Finally, it was completely ignorant to shoot the thing for no good reason other than curiosity.

I'll close this with the following advertisement: "For Sale: used single 12-gauge shotgun. Somewhat worse for wear following incident with a vice and hammer welded in the left hand of a right-handed man. Will consider trade for old dolls, lace doilies, etc. Call Roger".

Where do I join "The Sons of Bernie?" I think I need some therapy!

How about that property tax vote - wasn't that something? It may have come down to who got the last ad on television before the polls closed. Both sides went at it head and toe, each giving 110 percent - Holy Cow! In a knee-knocking, finger-nail-biting contest like that, it was a shame either side had to lose. However, it's just one loss - one loss does not make a season. The two sides will meet again and it should be a war. Holy Cow! So thank you for your time, this time, until the next time. So long, everybody!

Just some trite sport axioms to lighten the tension created with the controversy on which proposal was better. What I found interesting is that when this all got started, it was to help improve how schools were financed. I may be wrong, but I would bet that most voters didn't vote based on what may be best for school finance reform; instead they voted on what was best for their pocket. Because of all the variables, that was difficult to determine.

It's now official. Actually it was official Friday at 3 a.m.;

FIFTH DISEASE

Fifth disease is a common viral infection affecting school age children that we have been seeing a lot of lately. The medical name for Fifth disease is erythema infectiosum. The disease is caused by a virus that is spread by the respiratory route. The incubation period is about one week and once the child develops the rash he or she is no longer infectious.

Fifth disease is easily diagnosed due to the presence of a characteristic rash. The rash usually starts as a redness of both cheeks, giving the child a "slapped cheek" appearance. Following this, the rash then affects the trunk and upper extremities. This rash appears as a red "splochy" discoloration fading to a firm lace-like pattern. The rash generally lasts from 10 - 14 days. Exercise, warm baths, or emotional upset may cause the rash to become more pronounced.

During the illness the affected child usually feels well. Fever is usually not present. Most children have no other symptoms, some may occasionally complain of headache or muscle aches.

No treatment is recommended for Fifth disease as the rash completely resolves on its own in a couple of weeks. It is not necessary to keep the child out of school or other activities because once the rash is evident the child is no longer infectious.

Exciting work life dulls in comparison to Kirkwood's soon-to-be family

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Between his work at a Cherry Street clinic in Grand Rapids, a practice in Caledonia, and his two-days-a-week with James Reagan DDS, a day in the life of Joe Kirkwood is pretty exciting.

Not so! Actually, compared to his family life, it's quite boring.

Not so! Actually, compared to his family life, it's quite boring.

"Susan, my wife of six years, is expecting triplets in July," Kirkwood said. "Compared to that, everything is quite boring."

However, the everyday challenge of different patients and different situations keeps the University of Michigan graduate intrigued with his work.

When he wants to escape the intrigue of the everyday workplace, he grabs himself an international suspense novel written by Tom Clancy.

"Clancy develops a story of international intrigue better than anyone," Kirkwood said.

The Catholic Central graduate earned his Bachelor of Science Degree from the U of M in 1987. He graduated from its dental school in 1992.

"I guess I first became interested in dentistry through our family orthodontist. He was a friend of my parents," Kirkwood said.

The Grand Rapids native says he has learned as much in his two years out of school as in the four-plus years in school.

"Michigan has a good dental school, but there isn't enough time for schools like it to delve into the business side of dentistry, the billing, working with assistants, and with dental procedures," Kirkwood said.

He is Jack and Rita Kirkwood's second of four children. They have another son named Jim and two girls Maureen (oldest) and Molly.

His father owns Bulman Products. It manufactures hand-held tape dispensers, paper cutters and other-like items.

"The field of dentistry is difficult but, more than that, it is challenging. It's a good feeling to learn something new every day," Kirkwood said.

The March 1994 FMB State Savings Bank "Employee of the Month" is Laurie Benjamin. Laurie has been a bank employee for almost 2 years and works as a Collateral Control Clerk. When asked about her job at the bank, she replied, "I'm very thankful for the opportunity to work so close to home and come to know more people in the community. Also, I've gained experience in many different departments of the bank that should make me a more valuable employee. What I like most about my job is the great variety of my responsibilities. I work in the Commercial and Consumer Loan Department, as well as for the Mortgage Department. There is never a dull moment. Most of all I enjoy my co-workers who made me feel very much at home from my first day on the job. There are a lot of special people here at FMB.

When not at work, Laurie spends her time with her husband, Scott. She enjoys reading, cross-stitching, hiking & canoeing. She's an active member of the Ada Bible Church."

Residents concerned over grant for mill sought by historical society

By Marc Popielek
Contributing Writer

The Fallasburg Historical Society was given approval by the Vergennes Township Board to request a grant from the Department of Natural Resources for the purchase and transportation of a mill to a four-acre site along the Flat River.

The Waterville Mill, currently located in Saranac, would be moved to the site near the river and opened to the public. The mill would be used to teach visitors old mill procedures.

The society was given approval by the Vergennes Township Board to request a grant from the Department of Natural Resources for the purchase and transportation of a mill to a four-acre site along the Flat River.

The grant sought by the society is a matching fund grant in the amount of $88,000. According to historical society president Priscilla Lussmeyer, it would cost $8,000 to purchase the mill and $80,000 to move it to the site and construct the mill's foundation.

However, that is not the total cost of the project. It is projected to cost $265,000 to complete the project, with the renovation of the inside of the mill absorbing the largest portion of the total cost.

The idea of relocating the mill, which stands 22 feet by 44 feet, was met with resistance by Vergennes residents Pat Ford and Mike Armstrong. Ford, 13835 Covered Bridge Rd., is worried the project may be started but not completed, leaving him and his wife with the view of this unfinished project outside their window. "I just want a guarantee from the township board that this project will not be left half finished until the society finds the remaining money," said Ford.

After listening to Ford's concerns, the board granted the society its approval to seek the grant, but if it is awarded the grant, the money will be kept by the township until all of the funds for the project are collected.

"Out of courtesy to the Ford's, it is best that the money is kept by the township until the full amount is raised," said Vergennes Township Supervisor Jim Cook. "If the remainder is not collected, the money will be returned to the county."

The concern raised by Armstrong was - is there any diversion of the Flat River into the mill and the possible zoning restrictions at the site?

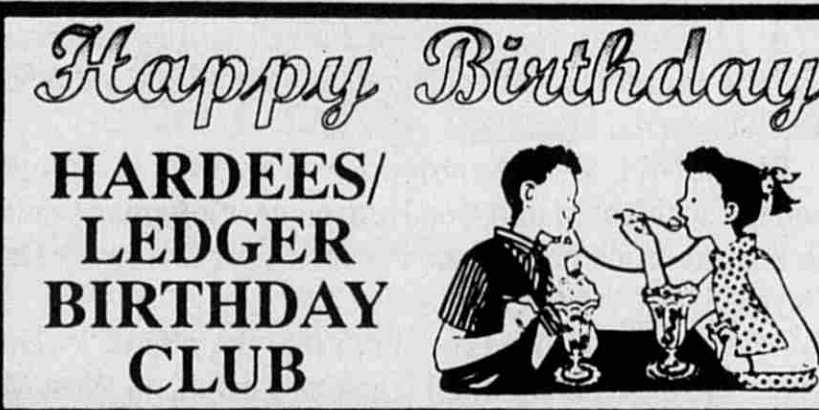

"I just want to know how much water will be diverted to the mill and if a commercial operation can be constructed in that area," said Armstrong.

Township officials said those two issues, and many others including how many trees will need to be removed, will be addressed before the project can go any further. They pointed out that the society must first receive the grant before any other action can be taken.

According to Lussmeyer, the society applied for a similar grant last year but was turned down because it had problems matching the $100,000 funds.

The application deadline for the society is April 1.

Films hoping for a nod from Oscar in the best picture category are "In the Name of the Father," "The Piano," "Schindler's List," "The Fugitive" and "The Remains of the Day" (clockwise from top). ABC broadcasts the 66th annual "Academy Awards" presentation on Monday.

clerk Jean Hoffman pointed out that the township is not required to vote on the matter if it does not want to hold the meeting.

"The only action this board has to take is to draw up a resolution declaring a meeting," said Hoffman. "If we don't see the need for a meeting, we can just choose not to hold one, but we don't have to put it to a vote."

O'Dell feels the annual meeting is an "excellent forum for residents to air a grievance or vote on a situation." He also said "unlike officials in Lansing or Washington D.C., the township level officials should remain as accessible to the public as possible and the meeting provides that access."

Vergennes Township Supervisor Jim Cook doesn't agree with O'Dell. He feels the meeting is "cumbersome and not an effective tool because it is not attended by many Vergennes residents."

Mark Weber, Vergennes Township trustee, agrees with Cook and feels the meeting is used as a contest among citizens to see who can get the most friends in the audience to vote on issues.

"I agree it is a great tool to discuss township matters, but when people start stacking the audience with their friends to influence a vote, then it isn't a prudent governmental tool," said Weber. Township officials said if citizens want to make their voices heard, then they can attend the monthly meetings or the annual budget meeting. "We hold a meeting on the second Monday of every month, and residents are welcome to voice their opinions or complaints at this time," said Township treasurer Carol Nauta. "You would be surprised how few people show up for the monthly meetings."

when it comes to making sure the best price is attained by the owner, in this case the school, the owner must be involved and an engineering firm cannot be depended on to ensure the best price.

"Engineering firms are there to ensure quality and warranties," Eshragh said. The type of involvement Eshragh called for in the bidding process of media center and office area equipment is exactly what Larry Mikulski, transportation supervisor, did in finding loose equipment prices.

"I contacted Irwin Allen looking to do what Eshragh asked about, but was unable to," Mikulski said.

out that Cook saves the township a substantial amount of money.

Weber explained that if Cook gave up his duties as the assessor, it could cost the township almost double the price.

"An outside assessor would charge us $18,000 with out going out to each property and talking to its owner. Our assessor (Cook) does this with out any compensation," said Weber. "When it comes time to hire an outside assessor, this township can expect to see a substantial increase in its cost."

Township officials also pointed out that the additional operational cost is due to the hiring of a deputy clerk. The clerk is supposed to work 15 to 20 hours a week at $6.50 an hour. The township board says the extra help is needed to keep up with the increasing paper work they face.

"We have more paper work around this office and we need to have someone come in and get it filed, so we hired a deputy clerk," said Hoffman.

The new budget, with its salary increases, takes affect April 1.

Council lends its support for Kent County Library System

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Shirley Bruursema, a member of the Kent County Library Board, was back before the Lowell City Council for a repeat performance, but this time with different numbers and in search of a council resolution to adopt a district library agreement.

The Kent County Board of Commissioners approved unanimously their support for the concept back on Feb. 24. If the system is adopted by the public in a November vote, the district will levy between .55 and .75 mills to operate the Kent County Library System.

Bruursema said the .55 mills would be the base amount required by the 1994 library budget to maintain the system. This would include a central service charge projected increase, an increase in existing staff, maintenance for the facilities, and rental revenue. The total cost for this would be $3,738,300. Bruursema broke that down to $15.29 a year for a $55,000 home owner with an SEV of $27,750.

If .75 mills is asked for, this would cover in addition to maintaining the current level, restoration of collection of development amounts, additional personnel, and a cushion for union negotiated salary increases with a contingency based on less than full participation.

The cost with this plan would be $20.81 a year for a $55,000 home owner.

The county agreed to participate in the concept of a district library but without funding.

Citizens of any municipality who wish not to participate will have to pay a service charge and a user fee. Bruursema said this will be controlled by issuing a card that will state the municipality the resident is from. "These cards would be updated on a yearly basis," she said.

This would prevent municipalities who do participate in the concept from absorbing the cost of those who don't.

"If the concept doesn't pass in November, we'd have to give it another shot by December of 1995," Bruursema said. "If it fails, then we'd have to revert back to the current system."

Both Bruursema and city manager Dave Pasquale said they thought the new concept is both equitable and fair. "A lot of work was put into it. What I like about it is that it eliminates going back over and over to look at appropriations from cities and townships," Pasquale said. "The millage is locked in - so funding is there. It's simpler and equitable."

The Lowell Public Library is the longest continuing library without breaks or stops in the county's history.

Of the 3,900 residents in Lowell, 34 percent of them are registered users of the library. "That is unbelievable. If all of the branches were like that, we'd need a lot more workers," Bruursema said.

The Lowell Public Library currently has 1,039 current borrowers from the Lowell city system.

The City Council was Bruursema's first stop in looking for local governmental support - support it gave for the new district library. If there is sufficient support, a November vote on the issue will take place.

For Your Information...

Kent County Library System CHALLENGES

1. Lack of stable funding
2. Lack of natural growth factor in the funding sources
3. Budget cuts of books and library materials
4. Reduction in branch hours
5. Increased use (circulation exceeds 2.5 million items)
6. Inadequate staffing levels
7. Increased population (particularly in senior citizens and school-age children)
8. Reduced programming for children, adults and senior citizens
9. Limited access to collections
10. Inability of board, administration and staff to formulate long-range plans for library service
11. Inability to compete with state and county mandated services (sheriff's dept., roads, social services, jails)
12. Increased pressure on general fund budgets of local govt. units to keep pace with rising demand for library services

Kent District Library SOLUTIONS/BENEFITS

- ✓ A millage-based funding would ensure more books, increased hours and greater accessibility to professional librarians.
- ✓ Millage-supported funding, based on the SEV, would change with the natural growth in population and increased market values.
- ✓ The restoration of previously cut funds for library materials and an increase of funding would provide an adequate collection for satisfying library user's demands.
- ✓ Adequate funding would allow the restoration and increase of open branch hours to meet library use needs within the District Library service area.
- ✓ Adequate funding would provide the means for developing adequate collections to meet increased demand.
- ✓ Increased staff would provide greater accessibility to professional librarians with various areas of expertise.
- ✓ Stable funding would ensure provision of adequate collections and services targeted for special age groups
- ✓ Adequate staff levels and materials will ensure the restoration of programming for special groups.
- ✓ Modern technology, e.g., public access catalog terminals increase accessibility of collections.
- ✓ Stable funding will ensure the ability to provide long-range planning for meeting minimal ALA library standards and providing quality library service.
- ✓ Millage-based funding will allow the District Library to grow with the community it serves.
- ✓ Elimination of library service payments will relieve pressure on local govt. units' general funds.

March is Parenting Awareness Month

The House Concurrent Resolution No. 456 designated March as Parenting Awareness Month in Michigan. The purpose of this designation is to draw public attention to the critical importance of effective parenting for creating children who grow up to be happy, healthy, independent adults.

While the Michigan legislature may have declared March 1994 as Parenting Awareness Month, there is parenting awareness every day at Lowell High School, says Marsha LaHaye, life management education teacher. That's because preparing youth for the adult role of parenthood is an integral part of the Life Management Education Program.

The goal of life management education is to prepare students for all adult roles, but parenting is a particularly critical focus. While career and workforce education get a lot of attention in public schools, preparing students for family roles is less often emphasized. House Resolution 456 claims that "informed parenting can help reduce social problems such as substance abuse, teenage pregnancy, unemployment, poverty and crime." With this potential impact in mind, students at Lowell High School are learning skills that will help them positively influence the children they care for.

The students in the parenting class at Lowell High School will organize and run a lab preschool to give the students actual hands-on experience in working with young children. They learn how to positively discipline young children along with learning about the physical, emotional, psychological and mental development that takes place in children birth through at least five-years-old. The students learn a little behind the history of parenting and how parenting has changed over the last century. When students finish with the parenting class, many of them will be qualified to work in local day-care facilities and several more will choose to further their education in the field of child development or early elementary education.

TOWN TALK

Do you believe the Whitewater Investigation will uncover some substantial or serious wrong-doing or is this all political?

Jim Merklinger
It's a combination of both, but if roles were turned around, the Democrats would be doing the same thing. If there's been wrong-doing, they should continue to investigate.

Burt Rood
It's just a big political blow-up. They're making a mountain out of a mole hill. One person can't be responsible for something like that. I think what Clinton is trying to do as President is okay and they ought to let him do his job.

C.W. Severance
I think there was substantial wrong-doing and it should be investigated.

Renee McAllister
I wouldn't be surprised if it's true. I think it should be looked into.

Jim Thompson
Yes, the Whitewater case should be investigated.

Deb Collins
I think there is something there and it should be looked into.

Dale Bergy
I think they ought to forget about it and get on with things. What's to be gained by it. No matter who's in there, they're always digging dirt. They never say anything good about what someone's done.

Ralph Howard
It's political. They're chasing a mouse around a mountain. They ought to let him get on with his work.

Pietrzak has poetry published in anthology

M. J. (Jill) Pietrzak, daughter of Thane and Glenda Young of Lowell, has just had original poetry published in "In The Desert Sun," a treasury of today's poetry compiled by The National Library of Poetry.

The poem is entitled "God Made Woman," and the main subject is "looking" at women and seeing the real her - on the inside. Any woman who has to go through changes in her life will enjoy this.

The National Library of Poetry seeks to discover and encourage poets like Pietrzak by sponsoring contests that are open to the public and by publishing poems in widely distributed hardback volumes.

Pietrzak has been writing for three to four years and her favorite subjects and ideas are family and friends, people and life situations in general, and animals and nature.

Poets interested in publication may send one original poem, any subject or style, 20 lines or less, to The National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Drive #10, P.O. Box 704NR, Owings Mills, MD 21117. Please be sure to include your name and address with your poem.

All poems received are also entered in The National Library of Poetry's North American Open Poetry Contest, which awards over $12,000 in prizes annually.

Lowell High School's model students come back with top honors from Hope's United Nations program

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

School social Studies teacher Steve Kampfschulte.

The Hope College Model United Nations program is the fourth largest of its kind in the world.

Of the 900 students who participated, Lowell had the largest contingent with 34 students.

Students started preparing for the program in January. Mock trials and senate settings were used as part of Kampfschulte's and Jack Ogle's teaching agendas.

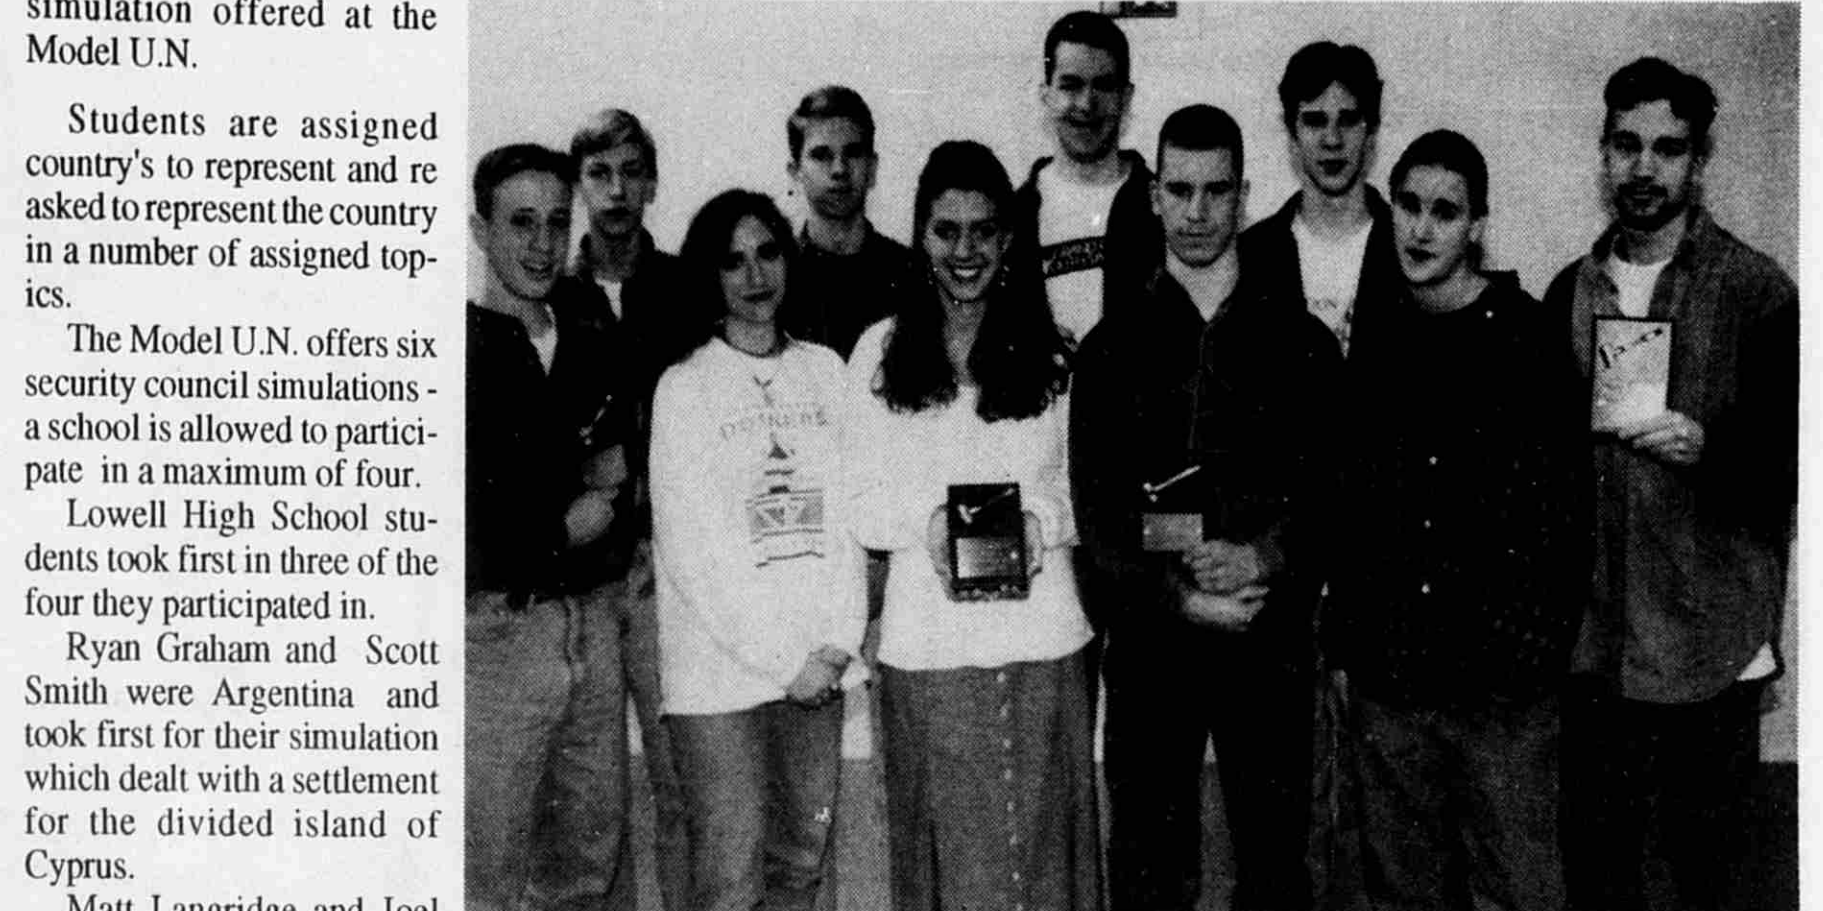

The turnover in students made Lowell's performance that much more exceptional according to Kampfschulte.

"This year was as much a challenge as last year," Kampfschulte said. "Of the 24 students who participated last year, 20 were seniors. With the exception of the four students who returned this year, we had to rebuild the program from the foundation up."

Micah Skidmore, Chrys Thaler, Shannon Bennett and Amy Teunis took first place for their efforts as the Russian Federation in the case before the International Court of Justice. Kampfschulte said this was the most prestigious

Three Red Arrows medal at individual state meet

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

In a year of exceeding expectations, members of the Red Arrow wrestling team added one final footnote as three Lowell grapplers came back home from the individual state meet with All-State honors.

Cory Kirkbride, wrestling 152 pounds, placed fourth in his first state meet. Rich Stouffer, 160 pounds, was fifth and Dan Spicer, 112 pounds, so finished fifth.

Scott Swanson, 103 pounds, was 1-2 and did not face.

"I'm very pleased with what the boys have done. It's an honor to just reach the state level," Lowell coach Gary Rivers said. "It's been a few years since we've had three wrestlers earn All-State honors."

Their performances may have surprised even their coach, but it was a perfect ending to a season filled with surprises.

After finishing second to Sparta in the O-K White, Lowell got off the mat and dispersed of Caledonia in the district finals, earning itself an invitation to the regional in Ionia.

At the regional, Lowell defeated a competitive Byron Center team in the semifinal and then ripped through Zealand for the regional title.

On Friday night of the team state meet, Lowell used a pin by Chris Nauta at heavyweight to edge Richmond 31-26, earning the school its first-ever trip to the state semifinal.

In heartbreaking fashion Lowell was defeated by the Class B State Champion, Fowlerville, 32-30.

At the individual state meet, Lowell wrestlers again showed the ability to pick themselves up off the mat.

Swanson, Stouffer and Kirkbride lost their first match, only to bounce back and win their second match.

The senior co-captains (Stouffer and Kirkbride) not only won their second match but four of their next five to earn All-State honors.

Kirkbride, after losing to Jason Holmes of Millington, 7-4, came back and defeated Jake Lockerby of Big Rapids, 12-6.

That was followed by wins against Lee James, Grosse Ile, 9-0; Mark Kruger, Alma, 10-3; and Jason Mathers, DeWitt, 10-3.

Both Kruger and Mathers had beaten Kirkbride earlier in the year. Kruger beat the Lowell senior at the Hemlock Invitational, and Mathers beat Kirkbride in the individual regional.

"Cory fell into a losing spell there for a couple of weeks, but he found himself and had a heck of a season," Rivers said.

Kirkbride was 43-10 his senior year. He finished his high school wrestling career with 107 wins.

Stouffer lost to Crosswell Lexington's Dan Garvie in his opening match, 8-5. He then strung together wins against Todd Driver, Mason, 3-1; Adam Beadenkopf, Edwardsburg, injury default; and Steve Barr, Yale, 13-1.

Stouffer was defeated by Jason Ziegler, Ogema Heights, 17-6, but battled back to take fifth with a 3-2 decision over Luke Branyon of Cedar Springs.

Stouffer finished the year at 44-7 and for his career, tallied 105 wins.

Spicer, unlike his teammates, won his first match, pinning Ron Kish of Melvindale at 4:43 of the third period.

The sophomore was then defeated by Steve Fry of Ogema Heights, 5-1. Fry entered the match at 54-0.

Spicer defeated Justin Hodson of Saginaw Buena Vista, 13-4. Chris Reagan of Ludington was a 4-2 overtime victim to Spicer. The Red Arrow was then defeated by Liley Webster of Middleville 4-0. He earned a fifth-place finish with a pin against Belding's Cliff Campbell at 2:54 of the second period.

"Dan performed above expectations. He just wrestled superbly for a sophomore," Rivers said. Spicer finished the season at 42-10.

Swanson was defeated in his opening match by Fowlerville's Chris Williams, 16-0. He came back in his second match to defeat Matt Krajniak of Imlay City, 6-0. He was then taken out of the tournament when Corey Holton, Ovid Elsie, pinned him at 4:30 of the third period.

Swanson finished the year at 39-6.

Cats all over Lowell in district semifinal

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

It may not have won the O-K White Conference in 1993-94 but, by year's end, Northview was playing the best ball of any team in the league.

Lowell became a believer in the second round of the Class B District at West Catholic Wednesday night as the Wildcats sprung a 30-6 first-quarter attack on the Red Arrows and then coasted to a 11-60 district semifinal win.

The 31-point victory put Northview (14-6) in the district final against East Grand Rapids.

The Wildcats were winners of nine of their last 10 regular season games.

"We're peaking at the right time," understated Northview coach Mike Diebold. "Our only loss during that stretch was to league champion Wyoming Park."

Northview opened the game with a 7-0 run. It followed that up with a 17-4 run to take a 24-4 lead. The Wildcats ended the first quarter with a 6-2 spurt to open a commanding 24-point lead.

"We beat Lowell up and down the floor and that provided us with some easy buckets," Diebold said. "The boys were very focused."

The Red Arrows' only bright spot came during a short four-minute stretch of the second quarter. Lowell outscored Northview 15-6 in the first four minutes of that period. The last eight of those points came as a result of the inside play of center Kristian Magro.

"Magro is a good player. He was a concern of ours coming into the game. We have a tough time matching up with him," Diebold said.

The Wildcat coach used a timeout to let his charges know that he wasn't happy with their defensive effort in denying Magro the ball underneath. "I just told them that Lowell was getting the ball to them much too easily," Diebold said.

His 'Cats responded as they picked up the defensive intensity and ended the half outscoring Lowell 10-4, earning a 46-25 half-time lead.

"Northview pushed the ball up the floor on us, penetrated and took it to the hoop. Northview has good athletes and played a good game," said a solemn Lowell coach, Phil Beachler. "We didn't play very well defensively."

There was a 180-degree difference in the way Lowell started the year and ended it.

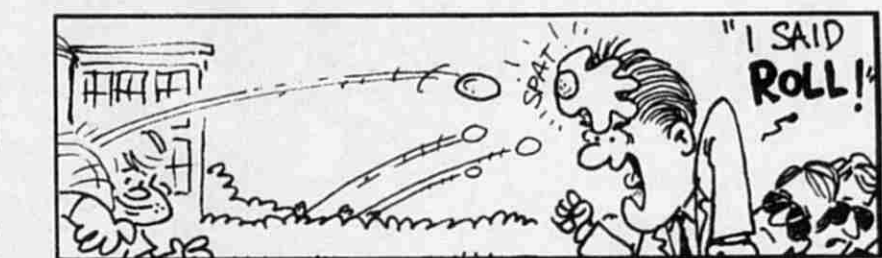

Early in the year, the Red Arrows came up short in the fourth quarter.

At year's end, the Red Arrows started slow and then played some of their best ball in the final quarter - coming back late from big deficits against Forest Hills Central and West Catholic.

However, a Northview-caliber club didn't leave any room for comebacks

Wednesday night. Brian Morrissey led the 'Cats with 24 points. Tim Lago added 15 and Bryan Armstrong tallied 12.

Scott LaHaie led Lowell with 26 and Magro added 17. Lowell finished the season at 7-14.

Since 1878, children in Washington, D.C. have been invited to roll eggs on the White House lawn at Easter time.

City to take closer look at sidewalk financing for April meeting

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Agreeing that there should be sidewalks in all areas of the city was the easy part - so the Lowell City Council has learned.

Deciding how it's going to pay for its portion of the sidewalk project is the difficult part.

After discussing the financial issue, the council directed city manager Dave Pasquale and public works director Art Gall to put some numbers to the few financial options available and then present their findings at the April 4 meeting.

Options would include using added millage so that the city could pay for the sidewalk project as it goes.

The amount of the millage would vary, depending on availability of general fund revenues. Pasquale said a mill currently generates about $67,000 a year. The improvements fund, approximately $25,000 (paid back to the city by prior sidewalk assessments) is also available.

A second option presented by city attorney Dick Wendt is to figure out how much money it would take to complete all of the city's share of the 12 separate areas and then borrow that amount. He added that the city would then levy the mill(s) that would be equal to what it would take to retire the debt service. A special assessment bond would be used so that the project could be completed all at one time.

Municipalities have a three-year period in which to spend special assessment bond revenues.

The cost for completing area one (the biggest of the 12) is estimated to be $360,000 for new and repair sidewalk.

Gall said the average yearly cost for completion of the 12 areas will be $95,000.

Gall said the area is more than three times the cost of each of the other areas because of the number of corners, the corner handicap ramps, and the replacement sidewalk leading up to the ramp that would be needed.

"The more corners an area has, the higher the cost," Gall said.

Mayor James Maatman

said he is sure funds to cover the cost of the sidewalk project (for area one) are not in the general fund.

Pasquale added that he thought the only real source other than Wendt's suggestion was millage.

On a practical matter, Gall said by trying to do the entire sidewalk project at once, it may serve to irritate everyone.

Loose equipment bids awarded

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Three recommendations for loose equipment were approved for the purchase of leg stacking chairs, chair/desk combination units and utility tables by the Lowell Board of Education.

The stacking chairs (2,700) and utility tables (170) were both low bids.

White said Lowell currently has some of the recommended stacking chairs in the district and have had good success with their quality.

White added that Ionia High School has had them for five years and has reported to have good success with their quality and comfort.

The utility tables are a standard construction (top and legs) used by several different manufacturers and have a stiffening bar to help prevent sagging.

Board member Norm Byrne said the chair/desk unit bid was not the lowest, but stated it was the first choice for a variety of reasons: 1. The manufacturer is Irwin Seating, a local Grand Rapids firm. The school has purchased many of its products in the past and have been pleased with the warranty work and response time to questions; 2. The unit was determined to be the most comfortable; 3. It had a clean appearance; and 4. The unit utilizes a square tube construction (added strength).

White said the lowest priced unit was from McDonald's, but the chair was not as comfortable as Irwin's.

"The committee felt our previous historical success with a proven local company outweighed the $4,300 total difference in price from the lowest bidder," White concluded.

The cost for the 2,700 leg stacking chairs was $39,906.

The 825 chair/desk combination units cost $53,774. The 170 utility tables were priced at $7,937.30.
