LAMBERTS SAY "GOODBYE"

Lowell businessman, of 13 years, comfortable in knowing it was time

By Thad Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

It's startling for Duane Lambert to the wholesale and retail business.

"I've enjoyed it, but when I think about the number of years, it's staggering," Lam- bies - golf, antique cars and antique lamps. bert says.

The Lowell businessman was born on a dairy farm in Evart, MI. "It was common back then for children growing up on a farm to eventually take it over from their parents," he says. "However, I knew at a young age that I didn't want to be a farmer."

For the past 13 years, Lambert has owned and operated Lambert Variety, a throwback in concept to the "five and dime" stores of pany. 30, 40 and 50 years ago.

Lambert decided to name his store Lambert Variety and not Lambert Five and Dime business," Lambert said. since many of the same items are now $1 or less and no longer a dime or less.

Lambert and his wife, Arlene, announced recently that because of health reasons they would be selling the store to Mike Springer.

"Arlene and I will still spend a couple time, but looking back, she was right." months of the summer in Lowell," Lambert says. "However, the rest of the year we will spend in our home in Florida. I wake up at 3 o'clock in the morning and think about how much I am going to miss it, but I feel comfortable in knowing it was time."

Lambert plans on working part time (2-3 days a week) while down in Florida. "Maybe reflect back on the 43 years he has spent in I can hook up with another variety-type store,"

He will also spend more time on his hob-

As a 15-year-old in Evart, Lambert knew it was time to find a way of living different from farming. "I worked at a gas station, movie theatre, and a dime store. I remember liking them all, but I stuck with the dime store.

In the mid-1950's, Lambert worked for G.C. Murphy. Prior to purchasing the defunct Ben Franklin Store in Lowell, he worked 27 years for the C.B. Meyers wholesale com-

It left Lambert without a job. However, it also led him to the closed Ben Franklin store in "I believe the value in relationship to the Lowell. In 1981 he purchased the store and opened Lambert Variety. It has been a popular

"I also had an opportunity to open up a five and dime-type store in Ionia. However, Arlene thought that it was better to take care of one business," Lambert said. "I didn't agree at the Five and dime stores are as much a part of Americana as apple pie. "I think they have been important because of the need they serve," Lambert said.

Review of Lowell's MEAP scores leaves many with the same old questions

By Thad Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Just as sure as winter brings snow, debate as to whether or not a school's MEAP scores should be compared to other school districts occurs every year.

The temptation is great and is given in to by many newspapers, parents and even some school officials. This is done despite the recommendation of the MEAP handbook.

It states: Schools or districts in general should not be ranked on the basis of MEAP results. Such ranking may result in persons drawing conclusions that are inappropriate to the data on which the rankings are based. School districts and the people they serve are quite diverse, so if MEAP results are not carefully interpreted, uninformed persons may draw erroneous conclusions from rankings based on the MEAP results alone.

It also suggests that the MEAP should not be used to evaluate teachers. Skills and knowledge tested by MEAP are acquired by students over time. A student's performance on the MEAP is not the responsibility of one teacher at one point in time.

What then should the MEAP results be used for?

 MEAP test results should be used to evaluate programs - provided the objectives are relative to the program.

· It can be used to spot strengths and weaknesses in the essential skill-areas tested.

• It can be used to indicate what students know about the selected objectives tested.

• It can be used as a tool to help measure a school's curriculum.

Studies and research over the years have documented there is a direct correlation toward the socio-economic status of a community and how well kids score on the MEAP test.

However, when parents see that their school's MEAP test scores are lower than neighboring schools and that their school's class scores are moderate with room for improvement, they wonder why.

Schools where test scres might be considered low, officials (off the record) will tell you some of the schools with high MEAP scores teach from the MEAP, helping to insure high grades. Schools with high MEAP scores deny that. Jim White, Lowell's director of curriculum and instruction, says those wanting to make comparisons should

... whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water . . . shall in no wise lose his reward (Matthew 10:42).

Small potatoes could be purchased inexpensively several years ago, and many families derived much nourishment from them. We often ate "little 'taters." Perhaps some of you have eaten them, too.

Mom used to scrub them thoroughly and cook them with their "jackets" on. They tasted delicious with rich, creamy milk gravy. We really enjoyed them. They were tiny, but the matter of size did not lessen their flavor.

It is not necessarily the big things in life that give us the most enjoyment. Neither is it always the big gifts we give that bring the greatest blessings.

We can give smiles to all we meet. Prayers are always welcomed. We can pray regularly for our friends and loved ones. We can look for the best in others and do acts of kindness when opportunity is given.

Do not wait until you can make a great contribution to the Lord's cause, but give what you have—today, even if it is only "cup of cold water" or a few "little 'taters."

Prayer: Dear Jesus, accept my gratitude for Thy gifts to me. Help me to give what I have to others. My gifts are not great, but Thou hast promised that the smallest shall not go unnoticed nor unrewarded. Amen.

"Go break to the needy sweet charity's bread, For giving is living," the angel said. "And must I be giving again and again?" My peevish and pitiless answer ran. "Oh, no," said the angel, piercing me through, "Just give till the Master stops giving to you."

As usual, I was gone for the holidays. The Brown's got into originated when we used to close the Ledger down and not publish a paper the week between the holidays. It was the only from them yet, but I know it's coming. time of the year we could get away for more than a long weekend. Things have changed around here, but old habits die seem natural to me now.

published for me in the Ledger and Buyers Guide. My birthday is December 15th. I was still around then, so they had my staff sneak it into the papers the following week. You may have noticed it, but if you were as busy as most people are during the we only used the cards from the Genus boxes. Even with that holidays, you probably used your Ledger for packing around some tacky shake-up snowstorm thing you bought for your aunt in Arizona. I know, I know... those old aunts are tough to I felt older than Gabby Hayes when I rattled off an answer to buy for. But really... a shake-up snowstorm figure?

years old, I recognized myself right off. I still have the same round face, ski-jump nose, heavy-duty ear lobes, droopy eyelids, nearly nonexistent eyebrows and a stupid grin. The freckles are gone now. Other changes include a few sags, wrinkles and my hair is gray instead of brown. Other than that, made some improvements in the old mug over 38 years.

I turned forty-five this last time around. Everybody always makes a big deal over 30, 40 and 50. Hallmark prints special cards for these milestone birthdays and gift shops are loaded with gag items for those occasions. I'm here to tell you, 45 ain't the habit of vacationing down in the sunshine over Christmas no piece of cake. For one thing, I'm now closer to fifty than and the New Year about fifteen years ago. This scenario forty. That means the folks at A.A.R.P. probably have me in their computer at the very least. I haven't received any mail

Over the holidays I spent a lot of time with my kids, some man... he's a funny guy... a regular barrel of laughs. of their friends, and the kids of some friends who were hard. As much as I hate to admit it, palm trees strung with lights vacationing with us. In the evening we often played Trivia Pursuit. The rest of the crowd from my generation doesn't While I was gone, my parents had a little birthday message seem to be too keen on the game, so it was mostly just me in there mixing it up with eight to ten young people ranging in age from 19 to 23. They wouldn't let me play out of the Baby Boomers edition. They said it gave me an unfair advantage, so limitation, a lot of the questions come from the fifties, sixties and seventies - stuff that happened before they were even born. a question about Roy Rogers and my son's girlfriend said she'd In the birthday message, they used my second-grade school never heard of him. New Year's Eve made me feel pretty much like Gabby Hayes too. We had a big seafood dinner for everyone. After the meal, the kids all loaded up and headed for Key West to ring in the "New Year" with all the crazies there. When I was 19, a buddy and I got on a train in Lake Odessa the day after I look pretty much the same. Damn! Seems like I could have Christmas and headed for New York City with $350 between us. We were there ten days and rang in 1969 with the masses in Times Square. I was sound asleep by 10:30 this year. There is a big difference between 19 and 45. Birthdays and New Year celebrations just don't seem to have the same old zing they used to have. The only alternative is to not be around for them. I guess us older folks are just satisfied with that.

On my birthday, my old man reminded me that they, whoever "they" are, classify people my age as "middle-aged." He followed that up with, "Plan on livin' to 90, do ya?" My old

So, like it or not, I'm faced with the fact I'm on the downhill side of the rest of my life. With each successive birthday and New Year I'll look less and less like I did in that second-grade picture of me. My hair will get whiter and thinner. There will be more sags and wrinkles. I'll have to trim the hair growing from my oversized ears with the industrial lobes and from my ski jump nose. The thin eyebrows and saggy eyelids will probably be hidden behind bifocal glasses. But, one feature I'm determined to hang on to is that stupid grin. As long as I've got that, I'll know the years haven't gotten the best of me. Keep smilin' everybody and Happy New Year!

As many of "Thad's Thoughts" readers are aware of, in last week's edition of the Ledger, I ran the second annual Thad's Thoughts most happening and influential "Lowell Lives" of 1994. This list was started a year ago as a light-hearted attempt to pay tribute to some members of the community who, at least in my eyes, made a difference over the past year.

However, because of the misplacement of the adjective unpopular, the meaning and thought of point number two that you read in my column was not what I had intended for it to

It read: If MacDonald was the most popular man to ask questions of, then Sean Eshragh was the most unpopular man asking the questions. In 1994 he came up with more questions than panels of Jeopardy contestants.

It was supposed to suggest that the questions asked by Shawn Eshragh were not always popular with some. Instead, it read "Shawn Eshragh was the most unpopular person asking the questions." That was wrong and obviously was not in the spirit I had intended for this column. For that, I apologize. The title of the column, "The Most Happening and Most Influential Lowell Lives of 1994," I would hope supports what the true intentions of the column were.

How many tuned in Dick Clark and watched the ball drop means that I wasn't a very good "Thad" in '94?

I will use that thought to start my list of New Year's

• To treat people with kindness and respect - so to ensure an invitation to a 1995 New Year's Eve Party.

• To do whatever I can to ensure that school board meetings don't continue to run three hours. • To watch carefully what I say on the speaker phone (when I call home). I will explain later. · To continue my string of non-tardies at Lowell City Council meetings.

To become a better listener.

• To be a more relaxed, less stressed person on Tuesday (the day the Ledger is laid out).

• To take that extra step to try to understand those who I may not always agree with.

• To be less defensive when receiving criticism (hopefully constructive) about the Ledger.

• To make one more, in a long list of attempts, at being more organized.

Back to point number three (about the speaker phone at home). Prior to leaving for home on Saturday, I called home to see what was happening. Not a whole lot. My father answered Near Year's Eve? I did. However, on a sad note, I didn't have from his shop in the basement - where he was working. My a party to go to this year. Not one invitation. Suppose this mother was upstairs doing something (I'm sure it was very important). My two brothers (Nick and Chris) were helping my father. They were stripping and winding alternator stators . After a few moments on the phone with my father, he asked if I wanted to say a few words to my mother. I said yes, but first I had a few words for my brothers. So that both my brothers could hear my message, I would have to be put on the speakerphone. I cannot print what the message was, but it was a male-bonding, shop-type message. What I didn't account for was that upstairs, my mother heard I wanted to speak to her. However, she didn't hear that before speaking to her, I had a message for my brothers. So she went into the kitchen and picked up the phone, just as I began to deliver my message to my brothers. Her timing was phenominal! By picking up the phone upstairs, it automatically disconnected me from the speakerphone. In short, she heard my message, my brothers didn't. Two roses and a tail between my legs smoothed things over, or so it seemed to.

Happy New Year, Everybody!

Ostcopath Gauthier's letter of complaint was entertaining. Unfortunately it contained no illuminating facts, studies or supporting evidence.

Fact: The new government report clearly states that low back pain is the leading cause of temporary disability in adults under forty-five, costing patients over $20 billion.

Fact: Chiropractic care is documented to be more effective, more cost effective and safer than medical or osteopathic regimens.

Fact: Patients and employers desiring more complete medical and government studies on effectiveness of low back pain treatment may contact this office at 897-4999.

Yours for truth, health, safety and effectiveness,

Dear Editor.

Does this teacher know how to teach responsibility? And to the principal who wrote about me and didn't tell the truth

My son's teacher said she was trying something new, a homework folder. She asked parents to help remind our kids to bring them back. My son said the next day that she gave everyone at his table a treat except him, so he figured she forgot to give him one. He went up and asked her for his treat. She said, "No, you forgot to bring your folder back."

This teacher admits this and doesn't see anything wrong with not telling the kids the consequences for not returning the folders. Another child brought his folder the next day and asked for a treat and she said, "No, you were supposed to bring it vesterday." She is not teaching responsibility like she claims

People are responsible for things that have consequences. Example for the teacher: Your boss says he is trying something new. If you are late tomorrow, you're fired. I'll bet you wouldn't be late. Let's say you didn't know the consequences and you woke up late, couldn't find your keys and you waited for the train to go by. You are five minutes late and he says you're fired. And the teachers who were on time were treated to a $5 an hour raise. Would you feel it was fair? Would you have learned responsibility? Or that people have no heart?

To the principal who stated that I didn't feel it was important to return homework - Don't ever lie about me; I won't stand for it. I said I didn't like the teacher's method of responsibility

You also lied when you said I was concerned to find that kids were given a reward of a piece of candy. I never said that either. I said the teacher should have told them the consequences, then my son would not have thought she forgot him and he wouldn't have felt hurt and humiliated. If anyone has an opinion on this, please write in.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Let's not just clean off a little spot in the window fog and peek out at the world through it. Let's not just look out from our comfortable places through the window and observe what is in Fact: I would gladly examine and discuss any studies to the that limited view. Let's walk boldly out the front door and climb to the highest vantage point we can to get the broadest view of the world.

We can look at our schools as windows. Picture windows, perhaps. Nicely framed. Triple insulated. Squeaky clean; the view is clear. But the view is confined and narrow.

Or, we can look at our schools as doors. Open wide. For everyone. Sending forth people who have skills for climbing Dr. Paul Tuthill to those high points, and who have skills for any other journey now unknown and unpredictable. A recent Bill Moyers interview points out that knowledge and information keep piling up inside and outside our doors. Did you know that one edition of a metropolitan newspaper now contains more information than a 17th century man of woman had to process in his or her entire life?

Technology is taking over more and more work that humans have always done. Computers record and process information that changes and multiplies momentarily. What will be left once all information is networked, programmed and Franklin-planned? Only the creativity of the human mind and life's interaction of one person with others who are also seeking broader horizons.

We must not limit anyone's education to the view from a window or a computer screen. Little kids still need to play in mud puddles. Students need to appreciate their own creative works. Big people still need to practice random acts of kindness. Never having stepped outside the door is like having read only one page of a book. Learning to learn needs to be a lifetime activity, and the only creative endeavors still must come from minds which have grown up learning to be creative once that door on the world opens.

Frostbite and cold injury can be prevented by wearing warm layers of loose fitting clothing. Layering of clothing helps trap air between the layers which acts as better insulation. Always wear a hat and mittens if you're outside for any length of time. Once your hands or feet become wet, further exposure to the cold increases your chances of frostbite. Use common sense and avoid prolonged outdoor activity in exremely cold weather.

Eddington's presence at a research center in Antarctica is a focal point for Vicky, but until that comes to pass, she is thrust from hot to icy weather patterns and from familiar people security to dangerous and mysterious encounters with strangers who share the voyage with her.

L'Engle does a splendid character setup with all those on the trip, and yet keeps the reader involved with a mysterious king of canopy over them. Not until the last few pages does it all come together. I did find myself becoming impatient at times with this, because I kept asking myself, "What is going on here, anyway?" The author knows just how to still that impatience with just a little bit of information, but not the whole picture. It is just that little series of mystery that keeps you turning the pages and wondering.

Troubling A Star is written for the young adult/adult reader and is available at bookstores for $16 or at local libraries.

Uzarski and Young to sit in on Lowell Township meetings

By Marc Popiolek

Contributing Writer

Lowell Township will soon add two new faces to their decision- making units.

Those faces will belong to Joel Uzarski and Heather Young, the latest high school students to participate in the township's student representative program. Beginning in January Uzarski, a 17-year-old junior, will sit in on township board meetings while Young, a 16-year-old junior, will attend planning commission meetings.

Neither student will be allowed to cast a vote, but their opinions will be sought by their respective boards.

Young replaces Dena Beers, who participated in the program last year and became the township's first student representative.

Young, who is currently a member of the student council, has a real interest in leadership roles and enjoys that understand what goes on and county Cooperative Extenhow things operate," said Young. "I also believe every group should be represented in government."

Her future plans don't include government, as she hopes to become a biologist and attend either Grand Valley State University or Northern Michigan University.

kind of atmosphere.

Uzarski sees his stint on the township board as a good way to gain some perspective for real-life situations.

"I want to get some experience with public life and I felt this was a great opportunity," said Uzarski.

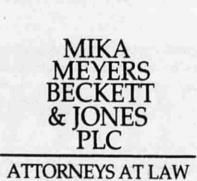

Like Young, Uzarski doesn't have plans to pursue a career in politics, but he enjoys it just the same.

"I hope to attend the naval academy and serve on a nuclear submarine or go to Michigan and receive an engineering degree," he said.

The program is sponsored by the Kent County "I think it's important to Board of Commissioners and sion Service in an effort to teach students how local governments operate. Uzarski and Young will both serve one-year terms.

Verg. Twp. approves permit for first apartment building in area

By Marc Popiolek Contributing Writer

The building boom continues in Vergennes Township and its latest construction will be a six -unit apartment building.

Last month Court Nederveld, owner of Nederveld Construction and Finance Co., was granted a special use permit from Vergennes Township for the construction of an apartment building. It is to be located on a 6.25-acre sight on Flat River Court, just off of Flat River Drive.

This will be the first apartment building for the township and Nederveld sees a definite need for a complex of this nature.

"I've seen a lot of construction work go in Vergennes, Ada, and Lowell, and with the new high school in Vergennes I saw a need for a higher income apartment complex," said Nederveld.

Nederveld, who plans to live at the complex, said rent would average between $500 and $800 a month

Construction of the building is expected to begin in the spring, but Nederveld must meet several township guidelines before breaking ground.

 Nederveld must have the well water tested and sewage system inspected by the Kent County Health Department.

 The complex must have its well and sewage available from the east side of the building in case municipal water becomes available in the fu-

 All paving, parking and landscaping which includes a 6-foot fence along the property line must be completed before the complex is occu-

 A road maintenance agreement must be provided; also two 1,000 gallon propane storage tanks are to be

Nederveld doesn't plan on adding new buildings to the site and said apartments will be ideal for parents because the building is less than two miles from the new high

Road Commission says "no" to financial assistance on M-21/Bowes Road project but lends engineering and agency help

By Marc Popiolek Contributing Writer

Lowell Township's efforts to obtain funding from the Kent County Road Commission for the M-21/Bowes Road project have not panned out. However, it has agreed to prepare an engineering study and act as the acquisition agent for the project.

The township had hoped to receive financial help from the road commission to restructure Bowes Road into a 90-degree angle thorough fare. Instead the commission will engineer the project and provide both the township and the city with cost estimates.

Those estimates will include the cost of reconstructing Bowes Road and the possibility of acquiring land.

The land acquisition portion of the project has yet to be determined because the route of the reconstruction project is not finalized.

"The commission is currently drawing up engineering plans which should be presented to us sometime in January," said Lowell City Manager David Pasquale.

Pasquale added that copies of the engineering plan would be made available to the township and city. After receiving the study both municipalities will have to determine which course of action to follow. "Once we decide on which direction to take, we will have to sit down with the township and determine the funding ratio," said Pasquale. Lowell Township Supervisor John Timpson is aware of the township's fiscal responsibility and said the township board will have to decide what comes next. "We'll look over the cost estimates for the project and determine if this is something we want to pursue now or wait until a later date," said Timpson. "If the cost is too high, we may have to step back and save our pennies."

The commission denied the funding for the project because Bowes Road is considered a city street and they will only fund projects for

The township and Lowell School District want to install a light at the intersection to help alleviate traffic concerns regarding school buses.

The Michigan Department of Transportation has granted the request for a light, but will not install it until the intersection is turned into a 90 -degree angle (it is currently at a 45-degree angle.)

Despite the commission denial Timpson said the township has not given up on receiving financial help from

"If we do the project right and meet all of their requirements, the commission may pay for the light," said Timpson. "The cost of purchasing and installing a traffic light is considerable and any help we get from the commission will be great."

Bulldogs persevere in close matches; Lowell falls, 39-15

By Thad Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Grandville coach Tom Krepps pointed to matches with Fowlerville, Sparta, Constantine and Eaton Rapids as four pretty good reasons why his young persistent Bulldogs were able to hold off the challenge of the Red Arrows, 39-15, in the Grandville Invitational.

"We've wrestled some quality opponents early on," Krepps said. "I think that has helped us. I think we were in a little better shape than Lowell was."

The Bulldogs' persistance and toughness surfaced in three key matches that could have gone either way.

"The three matches at 126, 151 and 160 were the difference," Krepps said. "Our boys showed a great work ethic in sticking with it and pulling the matches out."

All three Grandville wrestlers trailed throughout the first two periods before battling back in the final two minutes to win their matches. Lowell's Matt Osmolinski seemd in control, taking a 7-4 lead into the final period However, Grandville's Kaleb Matulaitus battled back and used a take down in the final seconds to pull out an 8-7

Todd Lyonnais, wrestling at 151 pounds, suffered the same type of defeat.

Grandville's Kelly Krepps took him down in the final seconds for an 11-9 win.

At 160 pounds, Shane Risner lost a 7-4 decision to Bulldog Joe Sperring. Risner was also in control throughout much of the first two pe- pound division. "Give the Grandville kids credit - they kept at us and took those matches from us," Lowell coach Gary Rivers said. "If we hold on and win those three matches, we're tied at 24-24 going into the heavyweight match."

Grandville jumped out to a quick 12-0 lead with wins at 100, 106 and 112.
