vidual franchise is to do what is needed to assure that the sales for each franchise exceeds its fixed and national costs.

A survey is done to determine the area's economy, the traffic count and if the market is large enough for an Arby's to make money.

Jamison works for RTM, a franchise based out of Atlanta. RTM owns all the Arby stores in West Michigan. It also owns markets in Fort Wayne and Indianapolis.

Recently RTM purchased Hardee' stores Coopersville, Holland and Lowell. It has reopened the stores in Holland and Coopersville as Arby's. A decision as to whether the Lowell store will be turned into an His charge for each indi- Arby's store has not been made yet. That decision will not be made until later this summer.

> The options for the vacant store are threefold. RTM can open it up as an Arby's franchise, rent the building out or continue to pay the lease cost on the building.

> "We're in the business to make money. We lose money with the building sitting empty," said Jamison. "We have to decide whether it is in our best interest to rent it out or to turn it into an Arby's."

> Jamison said the Lowell store is located in a smaller market than what RTM likes to open up in. "We opened an Arby's up in Coopersville because it sits right off a major highway," Jamison said. "We tend to stay away from small towns. That is no slight against small towns. Customers in small towns tend to be very loyal."

The other factor in the decision is the store's reputation. Previous franchises who have not faired well can give a store a bad reputation. Jamison said that is difficult for a new owner to overcome.

Often we're unable to keep the promises we make in good faith. Conditions prove impossible to bring them into fulfillment. Situations prevent us from doing those things which we had hoped to do.

However, God is able to keep His promises. And He does. We can rest assured that if we trust in Him we shall abide with Him throughout eternity. We will want to listen to His instructions and seek to please Him with our whole heart. Physical life may cease, but eternal bliss will go on forever-because "He

Gleason accepted as member of the U.S. Marine Band

By Thad Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Lowell High School senior Jesse Gleason is the first area Marine Band.

Gleason was one of 60 students who auditioned, but he was just one of two invited to play with the band.

"You can be accepted, but that doesn't mean you get to play," Gleason explained. "You only get to join the band if there is a seat available; otherwise you have to wait."

Gleason auditioned in Lansing back in April of 1994 and was accepted. He decided to audition again in April of this year. By auditioning a second time, he was confident he would be placed into a higher level U. S. Marine band.

Jesse Gleason

Gleason first started playing the baritone in the sixth grade In his four years at the high school level, he has achieved district all-star honors, has been named to the GVSU honor band, and has earned numerous state solo and ensemble awards. The Lowell senior has also played in the Lowell High School jazz band.

"I enjoy music because it shows in depth what it does to people and it helps to express emotion," Gleason said.

In the fall Gleason will attend the school of music Virginia for six months before being stationed in either North Carolina or Hawaii. During his four-year stay in the Marines he will study marine biology.

His hopes are not only to continue playing but to someday write his own music.

Fluorescent light was invented about 1935.

I recently experienced the revision to that proverb, "A man's standing in the community is no better than his reception at a formal city dinner."

As has been the custom the previous eight years, I attended the annual Mayor Exchange dinner at the Deer Run Golf Club.

As you may or may not be aware, Mayor Exchange Day is an opportunity for officials of cities relatively the same size to visit one another and see how others are dealing with similar problems. It also gives officials possible ideas they may want to take back with them and use to improve the city in which they live. Last but not least, it serves as an informative way to brush up on your Michigan cities history.

When an individual is convicted of a felony in the United States, he or she is usually sent to prison. By putting an offender behind bars, out intentions as a society are threefold: to punish, to reform and to protect the innocent. However, many would argue that our prison system fails to reform the majority of criminals and sometimes lets dangerous ones out too early. But perhaps the most poignant argument is that our prisons really don't punish.

ATTOCA TARABOO

By: Dick Posthumus

In many cases, prisoners live more comfortably and are afforded greater opportunities than many hardworking Michigan families. Prisoners are provided three square meals a day, free health care, access to fitness equipment and extensive library collections, as well as free high school and college educations. And while convicted criminals play baseball in the prison yard, many Michigan residents are putting their time in on a clock trying to make a living for their families.

Well, I am pleased to announce the Michigan Senate passed a bill last week that aims to inject some fairness into our system. Under Senate Bill 262, which passed overwhelmingly and was supported by both Republicans and Democrats, prisoners would no longer be able to take college classes for More specifically, the legislation prohibits the Michigan Department of Corrections from providing college-level classes o prisoners unless directed to do so by federal court order.

It's a shame we even need to pass a bill like this one. In my mind, it makes absolutely no sense to provide convicted criminals with a benefit like higher education. In my column last week, I wrote about how the rising cost of higher education has either financially strapped families and students or it has completely barred others from pursuing their dreams. also explained how terribly important some form of further education is in today's global economy. Without question, a college or vocational education or some form of job training is crucial to land a well-paying, secure job.

So how fair is it that those who break the law are granted access to the very education that many law-abiding citizens are denied because of cost? How fair is it that more than half of Michigan's college students rely on some form of financial assistance to cover the cost of tuition, books and room & board, yet convicted criminals can pursue the same education on the taxpayers' dime? It isn't. If you ask me, we should take the $2 million we spend on prisoners' college educations and funnel that money to financial aid or adult education pro-Those opposed to the bill—although they are few—argue that by providing prisoners with access to education, they'll be better citizens when they are released. Well, I could argue that every graduating high school student in Michigan would be better equipped for the challenges of life if given the opportunity to pursue a college degree or vocational training, but we can't provide that for everyone. Still, I'm certain most taxpayers would rather help fund the educations of our lawabiding citizens than those of convicted felons. And what about the criminals who are serving life sentences without

If we truly want to provide opportunities for prisoners, we should focus on funding basic adult education instead. Making sure all prisoners can read and write would be money much better spent.

parole? They aren't denied access, yet they'll never leave

The Lowell Ledger-Wednesday, May 31, 1995-Page 7

The fact is, unlike a high school education, a college education is not a right granted to every American citizen. And if the men and women who follow the law and contribute positively to society aren't granted an automatic right to higher education, a convicted criminal should not be treated

While a lot of youngsters might say school is punishment us older folks know it is a tremendous benefit and one that prisoners don't deserve.

Fibrocystic breast disorder is the most common benign fibrocystic changes occur in 53 percent of normal breasts of women in childbearing age.

Normal breast tissue is composed of mammary glands, ducts, fibrous tissue and fatty tissue. In fibrocystic breast there may be one or more cysts and an increase in fibrous tissue. These fibrocystic changes can cause pain or aching pain, that is often more prominent just before the onset of the menstrual period. The breast feels "lumpy-bumpy," with nodules or masses felt on examination. These lumps are movable, rubbery feeling, tender, and usually felt in the upper outer area of

To determine if the lump is benign or malignant, a needle aspiration or needle biopsy may be performed by your doctor. If a cyst is present the fluid will be aspirated and the cyst will resolve. If the lump is solid, a sampling of the cells can be (noncancerous) breast disorder. Fibrocystic breast or removed and analyzed for abnormal cells. Sometimes an excision of the lump may be necessary to determine if the lump is noncancerous.

What can be done to eliminate monthly fibrocystic breast discomfort? Initial management can be as easy as a good support bra, local heat, and aspirin or tylenol or ibuprofen.

Some women experience decreased symptoms when caffeine and chemicals called methylxanthenes are eliminated from their diets. Examples of beverages, food and drugs containing methylxanthenes are chocolate, cocoa, coffee, colas, soft drinks and tea.

Other treatments have been suggested in treating symptoms such as using water pills, vitamin B6, vitamin E, stopping cigarette smoking, and relieving stress. There is no magical cure and some treatment can be better than others.

A breast lump can be very frustrating and anxiety provoking and should be evaluated by your doctor.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes .04% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing. If the proposed additional millage rate is not approved the operating revenue will increase by 1.5% over the preceding year's operating revenue.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate. The current millage of 13.85 will remain the same for the 1995-96 fiscal year.

Neighbors remain pessimistic, even with announced improvements

By Thad Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Donald Fizer, owner of Michigan Wire Processing/D&D Trucking site, has proposed investing approximately $25,000 into public improvements at the 2485 W. Main site.

The improvements are aimed at screening the business site from area residents and deadening the sound coming from the site.

While Fizer has demonstrated an effort to accommodate residents bordering to the north, questions remain as to just how effective the planting of trees would be in deadening the sound.

After a Saturday visit, commissioner Clark Jahnke stated the Michigan Wire site is a far cry from what it was. " Michigan Wire has demonstrated a reasonable effort to accommodate those residents to the north," he said, "although I doubt that the trees will provide a reasonable deadening of the sound. I think a fence has a better shot of breaking down the noise."

Jahnke visited the properties of Anna Jankowski, 315 Alden Nash, and Sharon Potter, 320 Alden Nash. "You hear better what's going on at the site by standing on the residents' properties to the north than you do by standing at Michigan Wire's back door."

The landscaping plans for the site include but are not limited to:

- 18 white pines (6-10 feet in height).
- 12 black-eyed Susan Goldstrums.
- Four blue rug junipers.
- Five day lilies.
- · One sargent cherry
- Nine candytuits
- 11 garden phlox
- 11 forsythia northern golds.
- 27 dames rocket.

· Seeding - peat and topsoil.

The berm will be 12 feet high. The pines will be planted on the berm.

There is an existing 140 feet of pine screening along the back lot. Michigan Wire proposed that the next 250 feet be covered with berm and pines. Jankowski asked that it extend the berm into the existing 140 feet of pines.

"That would block the truck well where most of the noise

besides the pines."

Fizer said he is in the process of contracting out for more soil so the berm can be extended.

Jankowski said she felt a fence along the back property line rezoned the site industrial. would better block the noise.

"If a fence is the answer, I'd be more than happy to do that. It could be done in two weeks," Fizer said. He added that the treated wooden fence would be put on the residents' property

Potter questioned whether the compressor room has been located elsewhere.

Fizer said it has been closed. "We changed the air intake to the west portion of the building."

Potter then asked if the compressor room had been insulated. "We can do that," Fizer said. "We have already sealed it off. However, there has to be a hole in the room for air intake."

Fizer noted that Michigan Wire has been in Lowell 19 years is coming from," Jankowski said. "Something is still needed and that it serves 123 employees. "I think we've been an asset to the community and we've tried to be a good neighbor. But it is an industrial site and will remain an industrial site," he said.

Jankowski said she felt the city made a mistake when it

Along with the improvements, Fizer and Steven Donker, of Steadfast Construction, proposed a 5,680-foot addition to D&D Trucking encompassing shop and office uses.

The proposal includes exterior lighting, curb and gutter with asphalt for lane change, concrete the first 60 feet of the drive, and asphalt for parking and the rest of the drive.

By a vote of 5-2, the Lowell Planning Commission decided to hold back its recommendation until MDOT noted where its entrance preference would be.

Donker questioned why the location of the drive should hold up the recommendation. "It is either going to be on the west side or east side. Nothing else will change."

Accident on Bailey .

A vehicle eastbound on Bailey Drive left the roadway and hit a tree Thursday.

The cause of the accident has not been determined. Minor injuries were incurred.
