General election to decide three seats on the Lowell City Council

Two incumbents and four candidates await Nov. 7 decision of electorate; polls are open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Don Green (I)

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Two Lowell City Council incumbents will be met by the challenge of four candidates in the race for three city council seats on Tuesday, Nov. 7. The general election will determine two four-year seats and one two-year seat. The two candidates with the most votes will get four-year terms and the third highest vote-getter will get a two-year term.

Incumbents running to retain their seats are councilmen Bill Thompson and Donald Green.

Elsie Copron

The third seat up for election is being vacated by James Maatman. He decided earlier in the year that he would step down from the council after 16 years of service.

Challenging the incumbents for a spot on the council will be George Blocher, Elsie Copron, Jim Hall and Chuck Myers.

Residents in Precinct I will vote at Runciman Elementary. Voters in Precinct II will cast their ballots at Bushnell Elementary.

George Blocher

Thompson is completing his 12th year as a member of the Lowell City Council.

"I've enjoyed serving on the council. I want my children to grow up in a good, safe environment," Thompson said. "Serving on the council allows me to play a part in that and enables me to help keep the progress going that's being made in Lowell."

Thompson believes the renovation of the downtown will attract more business. "I believe with the help of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce, we need to do what we can to promote and market the downtown for potential business. I think the owners also need to get involved and make sure that their buildings fit into the downtown."

The 12-year city council veteran says there are other issues the council will face over the next four years. These include freezing water lines, roadway repair, and extending water lines.

"We're not going to have the federal funds so we're going to have to do more with less," Thompson said. "We're going to have to prioritize projects."

Thompson is the chairman of the zoning board of appeals and he is also the council liaison between the school and council.

Green is completing his first four-year term.

"I don't know that the work is ever done," he says in response to why he is running again. "I offer experience. I love Lowell, so why not run again."

Along with serving on the council, Green has served six years on the parks and recreation board; eight years on the Jaycees; three years on the YMCA Board and four years on the Showboat Board.

"Serving on the council gives you a great responsibility, one which I've enjoyed," Green says.

He also eagerly anticipates the downtown renovation and the construction of the new library. "I think the council's responsible for how the DDA money is spent," Green said. "I'm not really sure DDA money should be used to promote bringing business into the downtown; however, I'm not against it. I do think we have the responsibility to provide an infrastructure and a place for residents and business."

He adds that through matching grants and loans, businesses should be given an opportunity to spruce up their buildings.

Green says during the next four years, work is needed to improve roadways and if possible, to replace an antiquated and cramped City Hall and police station.

The incumbent says he believes members of the council have to be willing to listen, take a stand, and have a conviction for what is right and wrong and for what is good for the city.

Myers defines a good council person as someone who has a vision as to where the city is going in the future and who is knowledgeable, decisive and involved in the community.

"I bring a local business background and have management and committee leadership experience," Myers said. "I believe I am able to see the whole picture and how it may affect the community rather than just a segment of the community."

Myers is currently serving his second term on the planning commission; is chairman of the Lowell Library Building campaign; is a board of director on the Lowell Area Arts Council for its fund drive; is a member of the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce; Lowell Rotary and has served on the Showboat Board.

He is a believer in mission statements and thinks the city should have one.

Myers would also like to see a decision made on the direction of the Showboat. "We also need to continue to work to better our partnerships with the school and townships," he says. "I think Bert Bleke is doing a great job in this area."

The 12-year resident of Lowell applauds the fiscal responsibility the city has shown. "The city faces tough decisions all the time and I think it's done a good job," Myers said.

The FMB vice president said that parking will continue to be an issue over the next four years.

In regards to the DDA project, Myers said that while people involved in the project are closer to it than the council, the council should have the final say. "It is nice to have groups within the community do the research and then present the findings."

Copron has lived in Lowell since 1970.

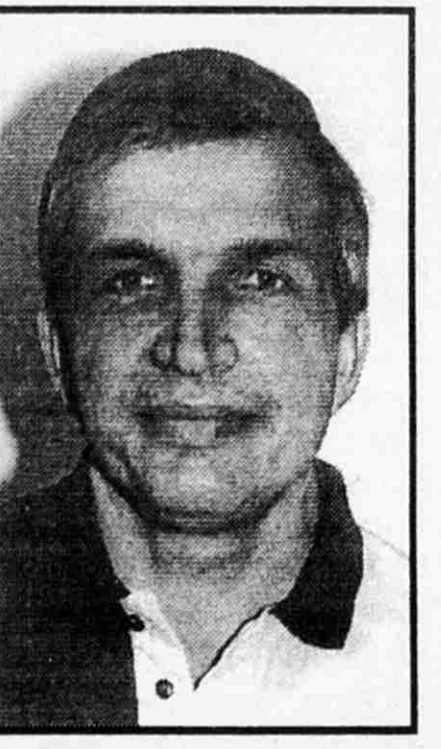

She was a friendly and familiar employee at Lowell Light and Power for 27 years.

"I'm running for a council seat because I was asked to," Copron said. "I think someone who is honest and aware of what Lowell's needs are makes for good council members."

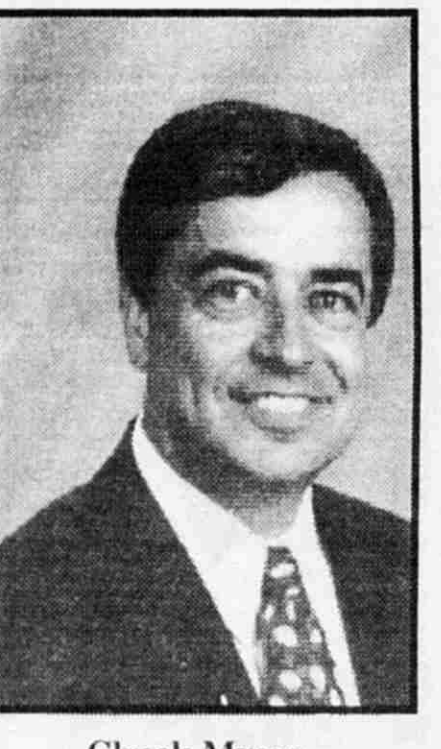

She identifies some of the city's needs as something in the city to occupy the time of teenagers; and promoting and marketing the downtown for more business.

"I think the DDA project and the new library will help that," she says.

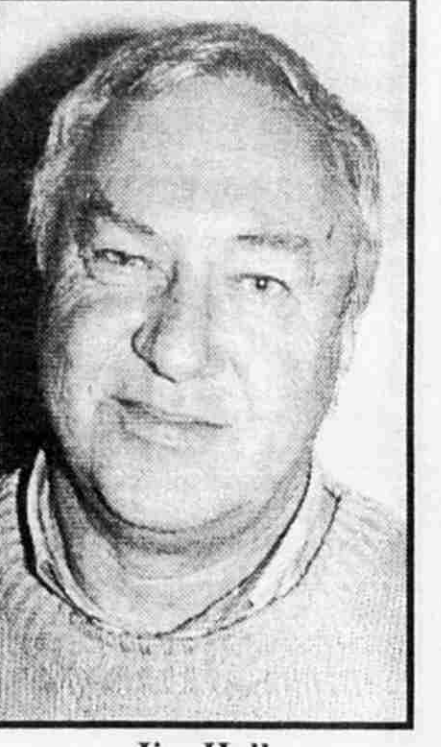

While she is nervous about the possibility of sitting on the council, she adds that she has kept herself aware of

Minus pole sign, Lowell businessman losing money

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Jim Fizer, owner of J & S Blimpie, rents three quarters of the business space located at 2001 W. Main.

However, his businesses are not represented on the pole sign in front of the building.

"I can't put anything else up because all the signage is used up," Fizer said. "I have three quarters of the building space and Admiral has 100 percent of the pole signage."

Admiral Petroleum, the lessor, currently is represented on 126 square feet of signage in front of the building. That exceeds the current allowable total (120 square feet maximum for a shopping center).

Admiral has been advised by the city to come in alignment with the allowable pole signage ordinance.

Until about two months ago, Fizer had a 4 by 9 foot Blimpie sign located under the Admiral cigarette sign. He, too, was instructed to remove the sign.

He did and says he has begun to see the effects. Fizer said business has dropped by about 22 percent per day. Blimpie's is currently bringing in about $500 a day.

"Approximately one third of my customers are commuters. Without this sign up for the commuters to see, I lose a large percent of their business," Fizer said.

Planning commissioner Clark Jahnke said he was not inclined to recommend the variance Fizer was proposing.

"The pole signage dispute is something that needs to be resolved between the lessee and lessor," Jahnke said.

Lowell city manager Dave Pasquale said Fizer might want to consider a ground sign which is set apart from the pole sign maximum. "It requires that the ground sign be set back 25 feet from the street right of way. It can be located within that 25 feet if okayed by the planning commission."

Pasquale added that 100 square feet is the maximum for a ground sign. "However, it must be looked at in context of the entire allowable signage," he said.

Lowell's city manager said he would work with Fizer and Admiral's Pat Hudson to verify the current square footage and then a proposal could be worked on and presented to the planning commission.

Planning commission chairman Mike Blough said a hearing would be delayed until the pertinent information is available.

DeHaan started Machinist Mate school on October 30. After Machinist Mate school DeHaan will follow in his dad's footsteps and go on to Navy Seal Training in California.

Marine Sgt. Randy W. Wright, son of Richard and Rosalyn Wright of Saranac, recently reported for duty at Army Infantry School, Fort Leonard Wood, MO. Wright's new assignment is an example of how Navy and Marine Corps men and women are assigned to ships, squadrons and shore commands around the world. Whether serving in the Persian Gulf near Iraq or in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia, people like Wright are making a difference as they work to improve their knowledge and skill as part of the most highly technical naval force in history. The 1983 graduate of Saranac High School joined the Marine Corps in January 1984.

Through the process of elimination I was recently "volunteered" for a project I wasn't overly thrilled about taking on. I was reminded of my time spent in the Army. Try as I might to be small and inconspicuous, there I was six feet tall, over two hundred pounds standing at attention in the ranks with a last name that began with a letter way down at the beginning of the alphabet. I was "volunteered" a lot.

This assignment involved the Cessna 180 Skywagon I have a partial interest in. In case you hadn't guessed, that's an airplane. This particular airplane is equipped with floats. Since the lakes around here have a nasty habit of becoming solid several months of the year, it is necessary for us to convert our plane back to its conventional landing gear each fall. Either that, or leave a considerable investment frozen into the lake as the most expensive ice fishing shanty in these parts.

To make the fall transition from floats to wheels and the spring switch back to floats, we use a seaplane service center in Cadillac. They have a nice setup as far as a hangar, tools, equipment and experience go. However, there is one slight drawback. They're based at the Cadillac airport. This should leave you wondering, how does one land a floatplane at an airport? And, while we're on the subject, how does one take a floatplane off from an airport? Good questions.

In the case of landing, you simply skid it in on the grass.

That was the way it was described to me. And yes, the word "simply" was part of the description. I was told wet grass is good. Grass with an early morning frost on it is better. And grass covered with a couple inches of snow is better yet. The trouble with the latter two options is, in order to wait until those are available, there's a good chance your plane is already frozen into the lake. In that case, you're out of options until spring and you'll be fishing bluegills through the ice from your airplane.

One of the partners in our club has several thousands hours of flying time in virtually every type of aircraft you can imagine. With all his ratings I think he could legally fly skydivers whose chutes he'd rigged, while doing aerobatics in a thunderstorm with a turbine powered, float-equipped helicopter he'd performed all the maintenance on. He's the guy we tap when we make the spring and fall transitions with our floatplane. Nice guy to have around.

Trouble is, he's not around. He's out of town on business in Caracas, Venezuela. When I said, "he's not around", I meant, "he's not around"! There I was, standing at attention in the ranks again, six feet tall, over two hundred pounds, a last name at the beginning of the alphabet and more floatplane hours than the other club members. I was "volunteered!"

My schedule dictated the job be done last weekend. Saturday turned lousy with gusty winds, low ceilings and rain. I called a buddy who was following me in his plane and giving me a ride home. I told him we were on for Sunday morning...early, while the grass was still wet from Saturday's rain. I wanted at least that much in my favor.

We were airborne by about nine o'clock. I would have liked to have started earlier, but the time change goofed up our communications on just exactly what eight o'clock was. I didn't want the sun drying that grass.

After a very nice flight of about 45 minutes, we were over the Cadillac Airport. The winds were light and out of the west. I overflew the airport and selected a grassy apron on the south side of runway 25. I flew my approach pattern while cinching up my lap belt and shoulder harness. I didn't want to eat the instrument panel for breakfast just in case this didn't turn out as "simply" as advertised.

As I came around on final I double and triple checked everything. Mixture rich...check. Carburettor heat on...check. Fuel selector on both...check. Prop full flat...check. Flaps 20 degrees...check. Float rudders retracted...check. Underwear still clean...check.

My instructions were: "Use 20 degrees of flap, keep some power in, don't flare to land, just fly it on." That's what I did, and as advertised, it worked. Once I felt I was on the ground and skidding along, I came back with the power and hopped back on the yoke as she wanted to nose over a little. Next thing I knew, I was stopped and sitting in the plane way up there atop those floats in the grass at Cadillac. Weird feeling.

I let out a big sigh of relief and reached to shut things down. I really didn't think I'd been that nervous, but my hand was trembling so badly I had to give a few shakes before I could manipulate the switches, unfasten my restraint belts and open the door. There were people watching, so I didn't make like the Pope and kiss the grass, but I did give it a thought.

I hope this volunteerism doesn't get to be a habit. I'm not real interested in flying the plane off the Mickey Mouse cart contraption they use in the spring. I will definitely need an underwear check if my partner happens to be in Timbuktu come April.

PROPER TREATMENT OF BURNS

We characterize burns in three categories:
(1) First Degree - burns which turn the skin red and painful.
(2) Second Degree - burns which cause pain and blistering of the skin.
(3) Third Degree - a very serious burn which causes the skin to turn white or black, and extends so deep that it destroys the neurological supply (thus, loss of sensation) in the area of the burn.

Generally speaking, first degree burns can be managed very well in the home setting. Apply cool compresses immediately to the burn site. Then wash the area gently with soap and water. Apply antibiotic cream with a gauze dressing and change it once or twice a day. See your doctor if the burn appears infected.

Second degree burns should be seen by your physician. When blisters form in a burned area, we feel it is important to have the extent and severity of the burn evaluated right away. This burn is better treated with prescription antibiotic ointment and should be re-evaluated until the blisters rupture. When the blisters do break down, it is important to remove the dead skin and allow the emerging, maturing skin below to flourish.

Having your doctor examine second degree burns also allows for a full evaluation to rule out any third degree burning of the area. If you do indeed suffer a third degree burn, a referral will be made to a plastic surgeon, who may recommend skin grafting.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:
Last Friday night the Lowell Red Arrows varsity football team visited Greenville to play the last game of 1995. Lowell was victorious in this effort, winning 20-0. In the Grand Rapids paper the next day, the results of the game appeared with fictitious names of Lowell players. This misinformation was given to the paper by an assistant Greenville coach and was done so in poor judgement.

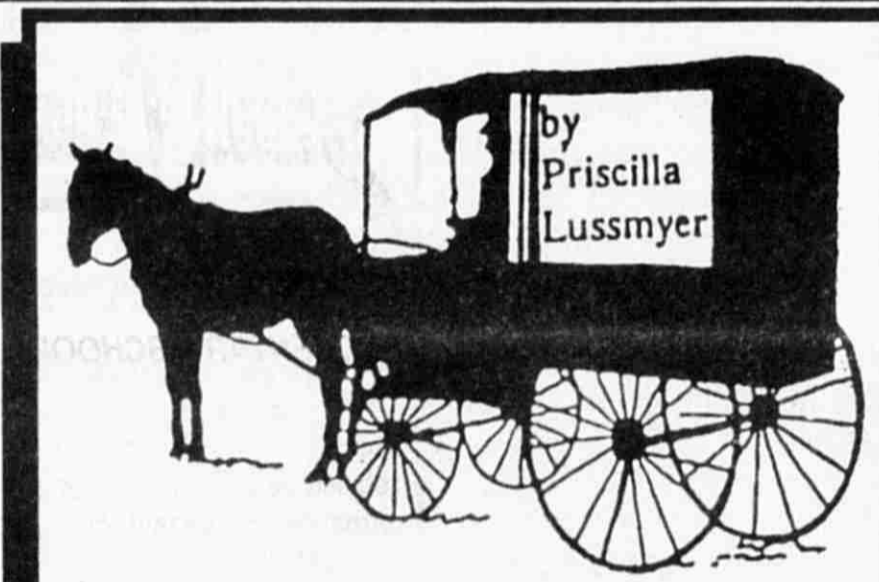

In addition to apologizing to the players involved and coaching staff, we would like to apologize to the fans of Lowell for our inappropriate actions.

Our athletic relationship between Lowell and Greenville over the last several years has been excellent. We hope this will not affect that relationship.

Creating While Waiting

You know the grocery store check-out routine. If you have kids, they ask for a roll, stick or bag of something displayed there. You're glad if they're too little to read the headlines in the sensational tabloids about aliens, O.J., and other attention-grabbers. If you don't have kids, you either fidget, quickly calculate the cost of your groceries in your head, or you glance around at people and displays.

Down on a bottom shelf of the magazine display rack, I spotted a publication called Learning Fun. Being a grandmother and a school board member, I bought the last copy in hopes of finding something good, positive, and valuable in its pages. I was delighted at what I found.

The main article was entitled, "How Can I Help My Child In School?" To summarize for you, the article was about parents and grandparents who tried to set good examples themselves. They told about helping children feel confident in what they did, about emphasizing the importance of reading (new books were rewards), about taking classes in computer use, family math, and time management, and then passing the skills on in practical, innovative, reinforcing ways to their children right at home.

The article on "The Power of Problem-Solving" said that one hallmark of problem-solving in the classroom is that it downplays right and wrong answers in favor of sharing ideas. Take-home lessons for families are: Encourage kids to look, listen, observe; create an atmosphere in which children feel free to take risks ("Kids should feel free to noodle with ideas"); emphasize teamwork which encourages communication skills.

Dear Editor:

Thank you for taking care of my Ledger subscription. I can't believe I forgot one of my most important ties with Lowell before I left for California.

I'm enclosing a copy of the front page banner headline of The Orange County Register - "Library Fights for Life as Cities Check Out." Thought you might find it interesting to compare California's local government attitude toward the city-county library system with that of Lowell and Kent County. Both systems are in their 75th year but there the similarity ends. We are about to build a fantastic new library building that will enhance the service we give to all Lowell residents from our children to our senior citizens...and nobody is quibbling about that.

As a matter of fact just before I left I heard that Chuck Myers has already come up with $800,000 of the building cost by contacting the right sources. It's a good thing they made him chairman of the building fund. The fact he is also running for a seat on the Lowell City Council in this November election also made me remember to send for my absentee ballot.

One more thing-I am very proud of Lowell and of the people in Lowell who make it work. It's unbelievable the things that have been accomplished within the past few years plus the plans that are still on the drawing board.

I think of Lowell a great deal - particularly when California mailmen are delivering Christmas cards in their shorts. Have a safe winter - all of you.

a crucial part of learning. "Ask any employer what they want from people they hire, and they'll tell you the ability to communicate, the ability to think and reason for themselves, and the ability to adapt, to make choices, to learn new things."

Rather than criticizing television, one article gave guidance by saying "That electronic box that sits in your house can either confine a child's intellect or expand it." In the accompanying stories, the kids actually got along fine during the TV-free week. It was the parents who suffered from TV withdrawal! There followed a day-by-day guide to making TV viewing both educational and entertaining. Parental intervention made the positive difference.

In addition, there were thoughtful and informed articles on travel, fund-raising, teacher science tricks, a read-aloud story, software reviews, and craft projects.

So, from a $2.50 magazine picked up at the grocery check-out, I realized that bright ideas for learning are coming from everywhere. Every teaching tool from the TV to the field trip can and should be used to educate and to reinforce learning. Families and teachers in every part of the world are using creative thinking to produce an environment where learning is fun and effective. The ideas, the co-operation, and the synergy can produce a real class act for kids!

appetizing and satisfying. One lady who has compiled a small library of cookbooks admitted this inability to a hard working mother of a large family. "I couldn't put on a regular dinner like you do," she said.

Man can make great claims to faith, but if he does not accompany his faith with works, it profits him little. In fact, Jesus tells us that faith without works is dead. Faith and works go together. Faith will not walk alone. Works will not walk alone, either. They walk hand in hand and are inseparable. "Faith and works are as necessary to our spiritual life as Christians, as soul and body are to our life as men; for faith is the soul of religion, and works, the body" -Arthur W. Colton.

Prayer: O God, help me to prove my faith by my works. Open my eyes that I can see the whitened harvest field. Strengthen my hands that I can work for Thee. Amen.

Hark! the voice of Jesus calling. "Who will go and work today? Fields are white, the harvests waiting. Who will bear the sheaves away?"

Lower The Hot Water Temperature To Lower Your Electricity Bills

You may be using water that's hotter than it needs to be. Lowering your hot water heater temperature means less energy is needed to heat the water in the tank. That means you save money.

Adjust your water heater's temperature setting as low as you can, but high enough to have adequate hot water for cleanliness and comfort. Usually, this is at about 120 degrees F, or the "Low," "Medium," or "Normal" settings. You can use a meat thermometer to check the hot water temperature.

Call us if you have questions about setting your water heater temperature.

Cutting corners takes Wingeier to semifinals of championship

By Marc Popielek
Contributing Writer

When Sarah Wingeier was a little girl, her sister Carrie used to put her on a horse and have her ride around some barrels.

"My sister competed in barrel-racing and used to take me around the course when I was growing up," she said.

Since then, Wingeier has been hooked and recently displayed her skills at the National Barrel Horse Association's World Championship.

Wingeier may not have won the event, bowing out in the semifinals, but it was enough of a thrill to have her dedicate this year as a warm-up for next year's event.

"I qualified for the event in less than a month and against people who had been running all year," said Wingeier. "I've already started running for next year and I hope to do a lot better."

Wingeier said in order to qualify for the world championship, riders must accumulate 15 points at NBHA events. Barrel-racing consists of a rider and her horse racing against the clock in a clover leaf pattern around three barrels.

The fastest time wins and contestants are penalized or disqualified for hitting a barrel.

"It's more exciting than just jumping and a lot more dangerous," said the 18-year-old Lowell High School senior.

Dangerous in this case means many injuries and in some extreme cases even death.

"I've gotten many injuries. My knee cap has been dislocated. I have permanent lumps on my shinbone and a bunch of other injuries," she said. "I've even known somebody who was killed during an event."

This is the first year Wingeier and Lightly Whipped, her 6-year-old Quarter horse, have per-

FRIENDSHIP COUNTRY CHAPEL PAYS TRIBUTE TO PASTOR BOB ROUSH

We, at the Chapel, invite you to join us on Sunday, Nov. 5, at 10:30 a.m., as we honor Pastor Bob for his tireless commitment to our "Chapel Family" and community. We also honor his wife of 36 years, Kathy.

The Chapel began as a group Bible Study, held in the basement of Bob and Kathy's home on Peck Lake Road. It became Friendship Country Chapel in October of 1981. As well as leading this flock, he also served the first eight years of the Chapel while maintaining a full-time position at the well known Radio Bible Class. In 1988, sensing the direction of God, he and Kathy made a commitment to give their lives to lead and minister to the flock full time. He is a faithful follower of the Lord God as a servant himself, creating an atmosphere that makes one feel wanted and part of the family. His servant's attitude has allowed him to help at the Chapel doing everything from repair and maintenance, building, yardwork, cleaning, teaching, encouraging, visiting, singing - to name a few, as well as preaching. Pastor Bob faithfully preaches and teaches from the word of God, encouraging and challenging his flock.

His wonderful wife, Kathy, is also loved by all. She has faithfully taught Sunday School for as many years as the Chapel has been in existence. She has also been behind most of those notes, flowers or plants sent on behalf of the Chapel.

Pastor Bob and Kathy have 4 grown children - Bob, Bonny, Becky and Brian. Three are married, giving them a total of seven grandchildren.

Pastor Roush presently serves as president of the Men's Brotherhood of the Michigan Baptist General Conference. He has written two powerful tracts entitled, "How to Get Out of Debt" and "The Gift." We believe I Corinthians 2:4 & 5 best describe Pastor Roush as he preaches: "My speech and my preaching were not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."

Please join us as we show appreciation for our pastor and Kathy. We do not in any way seek to glorify the pastor or Kathy, but believe it is biblical to recognize and encourage those whom God has called to proclaim His message and to lead His people.

what's going on.
"I am an honest and quiet person," Copron said. "Maybe it's time that I'm not so quiet anymore."

A more aesthetic eye and approach is what Jim Hall is promising if elected to the city council.

"I am interested in seeing the city develop its river fronts," Hall said. "The Lowell Planning Commission survey indicated people of this community would like for that to happen. I think the city should utilize whatever federal and state dollars are available to do this."

Hall has served four years on the planning commission. "I've learned a lot from my experience with the planning commission. It is not as substantive as the council. Serving on the council involves more facts and figures and more of the city's long-range goals."

Hall believes the DDA project gives opportunity to start in the development of a portion of the Flat River to the east and to the west by the treatment plant.

He favors helping to promote the downtown business area. "I want to promote not only the business area but also the residential areas," Hall said.

Hall called the current council well-intentioned. "It has done a lot with the infrastructure. It is also to be commended for the excellent shape the city is in financially," he said.

Hall also serves on the Showboat Garden Club.

He concludes by saying that the city, townships and school have to work together. "There has to be a cooperative effort. We all stand to gain on anything substantive. The city has the water and sewer, and the townships have the property."

Blocher has lived in Lowell for 20 years and continues to carry a torch for the political arena.

"I've always been interested in politics. I ran for the school board in 1982 and 1984. I've also run for the council," Blocher said.

He refers to himself as someone who is decisive. "I wouldn't vote a certain way because everybody else does. I have a mind of my own," Blocher said.

He says he is interested in seeing the old part of town fixed up and business brought in.

"I have attended most of the city council meetings over the last couple of years. I know what's going on," Blocher says.

He equates improvements to the city of Lowell with a plate filled with a lot of good food. "You can only eat so much so you must prioritize. You can't eat all the food at once and you can't do all the improvements at once."

Elementary students cash-in on banking FMB opportunity

Jim Bosserd, FMB State Savings Bank president, joins Alto Elementary fifth-graders in their ribbon-cutting ceremony. Alto students opened their school bank on Wednesday Oct. 25.

Fifth-grade students at Cherry Creek and Alto elementary schools opened their FMB branch banks last week. The purpose of these banks is to help teach students responsibility, math, leadership, and introduce them to a possible career.

be put in the roles of bank tellers and managers," bank program coordinator Marj Harding said. Cherry Creek opened its "Kash-4-Kids" branch on Tuesday, Oct. 24. Alto opened its branch ("Learning with Interest") on Wednesday, Oct. 25. This is Cherry Creek's fourth year of participation and Alto's second. "Students who don't have a bank account will be allowed to open one up on site," Harding said. "The program has had excellent parent participation. There is a parent that sits along side each student teller in case there is a question." Students interested in becoming tellers or managers had to fill out applications and go through job interviews. "There were 68 applicants at Cherry Creek - 24 were hired," Harding said. "We hired 12 at Alto."

Those who were hired were put through a half-day training program. Harding said a Teacher Tollar program is being offered. Tollars (representative of a dollar) are awarded to a class when a teacher brings his/her class to a bank to do math questions, or if a teacher comes and does his/her personal banking. "When any teacher collects 12 teacher tollars, the whole class will receive a treat," Harding said.

Inman leads Lowell boy harriers to a second-place finish at Class B Regional; Oesch finishes 12th in girls' race

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Lowell's second-place finish at the Class B regional cross country race seemed somewhat unusual to most of the teams entered in the field. Lowell was the only team to finish in the top eight that didn't have at least one runner in the top 15.

Lowell was also the only team in the top 10 to have all five of its runners finish within 15 seconds of one another.

The Red Arrows' top runner was senior Matt Inman (17:54) who finished 20th. Its fifth runner was freshman Jon Mull (18:09) who placed 28th.

"Yes, I'd say that is unusual. But it shows that we ran a strong team race," Lowell cross country coach Tom Harper said. "We've run as a strong group all year."

Lowell's reward is a second straight invitation to the state tournament. The Class B tournament will be held at the Grand Rapids Country Club on Saturday.

"Our goal for Saturday is to have all five runners come in under 18 minutes," Harper said.

Between Inman and Mull were freshman Frank Kirsch, 23rd, 18:00; junior John Wojciakowski, 24th, 18:02; and sophomore Ryan Wittenbach, 27th, 18:09.

Caledonia's boys won the regional with a team score of 73. Lowell placed second with 122. Wyoming Park was third with 123. The top three teams qualified for the state tournament.

Other O-K White schools competing were Hudsonville, sixth, 182; and East Grand Rapids, 13th, 314.

Earning top honors were Hudsonville's John Hazebrook with a time of 16:44. Wyoming Park's Russ Gerbers was fifth, stopping the clock at 17:02. His teammate David VanderMeer placed 15th in a time of 17:35. Other Vikings to come off the Rolling Hills terrain in Hudsonville were Ben Rawson, 29th, 18:10; Brian Gorman, 34th, 18:16; and Witbrodt, 40th, 18:27.

Other Hudsonville times and places were Chris Wiggers, 35th, 18:19; Andy X-C, cont'd, pg. 19

PUBLIC NOTICE

Date: November 1, 1995

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality proposes to issue a ground water discharge permit variance pursuant to Part 31 of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, Act 451 of the Public Acts of 1994, as amended (Act 451), being Sections 324.3101 through 324.3119 of the Compiled Laws of Michigan, and the administrative rules promulgated thereunder, to:

Grattan Township/Vergennes Township
5001 Murray Lake Avenue
Lowell, Michigan 49331

The applicant proposes to discharge treated sanitary waste water to the ground via a four lagoon and subsurface irrigation system at a facility located in the NW 1/4 of Section 28, T8N, R9W, Grattan Township, Kent County.

Staff received a written request on March 29, 1995 from Grattan Township for a variance from the chloride limit. A permit variance is required because chloride levels (297 to 316 mg/l) in the effluent exceed the non-degradation standard of 250 mg/l.

Comments or objections to the draft received by November 30, 1995 will be considered in the final decision to issue the discharge permit. Persons desiring information regarding the draft, procedures for commenting, or requesting a hearing should contact: Ground water Program Section, Waste Management Division, Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 30241, Lansing, Michigan 48909, Telephone: (517) 373-8148.

Copies of the public notice, fact sheet, and draft may be obtained at the Waste Management Division Grand Rapids District Office located at 350 Ottawa Ave., N.W., Grand Rapids, Michigan 49503, Telephone: 616-456-5071.

Mention to Lowell girls' basketball coach Ken Akers that his club is 7-4 in the O-K White and just one game in back of second-place Northview.

They are playing smart. If the outside shot is there, they are taking it; if not, they are looking inside," Akers said.

"That's all great, but what really has me excited is the way the girls are playing right now," Akers said.

Lowell defeated Zeeland by three points back in September. Last week the Red Arrows traveled to Zeeland and dismantled the Chix 56-35.

"It was our best game of the year at both ends of the floor,"

Akers said. "Our execution was near perfection."

Zeeland was coming off a 20-point win over Northview.

Two days later Lowell entertained Hastings, a club which beat Lowell by a point back in September. The Red Arrows pounded the Saxons 55-38.

The inside game was noteworthy against the Saxons. Forward Emily Dunn netted a team-high 20 points. Lowell center Elena Richmond tallied 10.

More importantly, Dunn and Richmond owned the offensive and defensive boards. Richmond snared 13 rebounds and Dunn pulled down 10 caroms against the Saxons.

Lowell led 26-20 at halftime. "We did not box out well and Lowell rebounded real well," Hastings basketball coach Katie Kowalczyk said. "You can't give a team two and three shots at the basket every time down the floor."

Kowalczyk also credited Lowell's defense with shutting down Saxon point guard Janette Jennings. "Lowell took away her three-point shot."

Lowell used balanced scoring in its impressive win over Zeeland. Three players tallied 10 points - Dunn, Stauffer and Lisa Murphy. Jenny Borg netted eight points and Richmond chipped in with six.

On the boards, both Dunn and Richmond grabbed eight rebounds apiece.

Lowell jumped out to a 19-8 first-quarter lead, and increased it to 28-14 at halftime. The Red Arrows outscored Zeeland 28-19 in the second half.

As a team Lowell shot 47 percent from the floor against Hastings and 45 percent against Zeeland.

Heart and hard work - trademarks of soccer seniors

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

They are the few; they are the proud; they are the players who start from the lower ranks and through heart, hard work and improved skills gradually work their way to the top.

They are the players coaches hate to see leave their program. They are the players that are easiest for coaches to bond with emotionally.

Lowell soccer coach Dave Wydock considers himself lucky to have watched and coached a core of seniors who worked their way up through the ranks over the last four years.

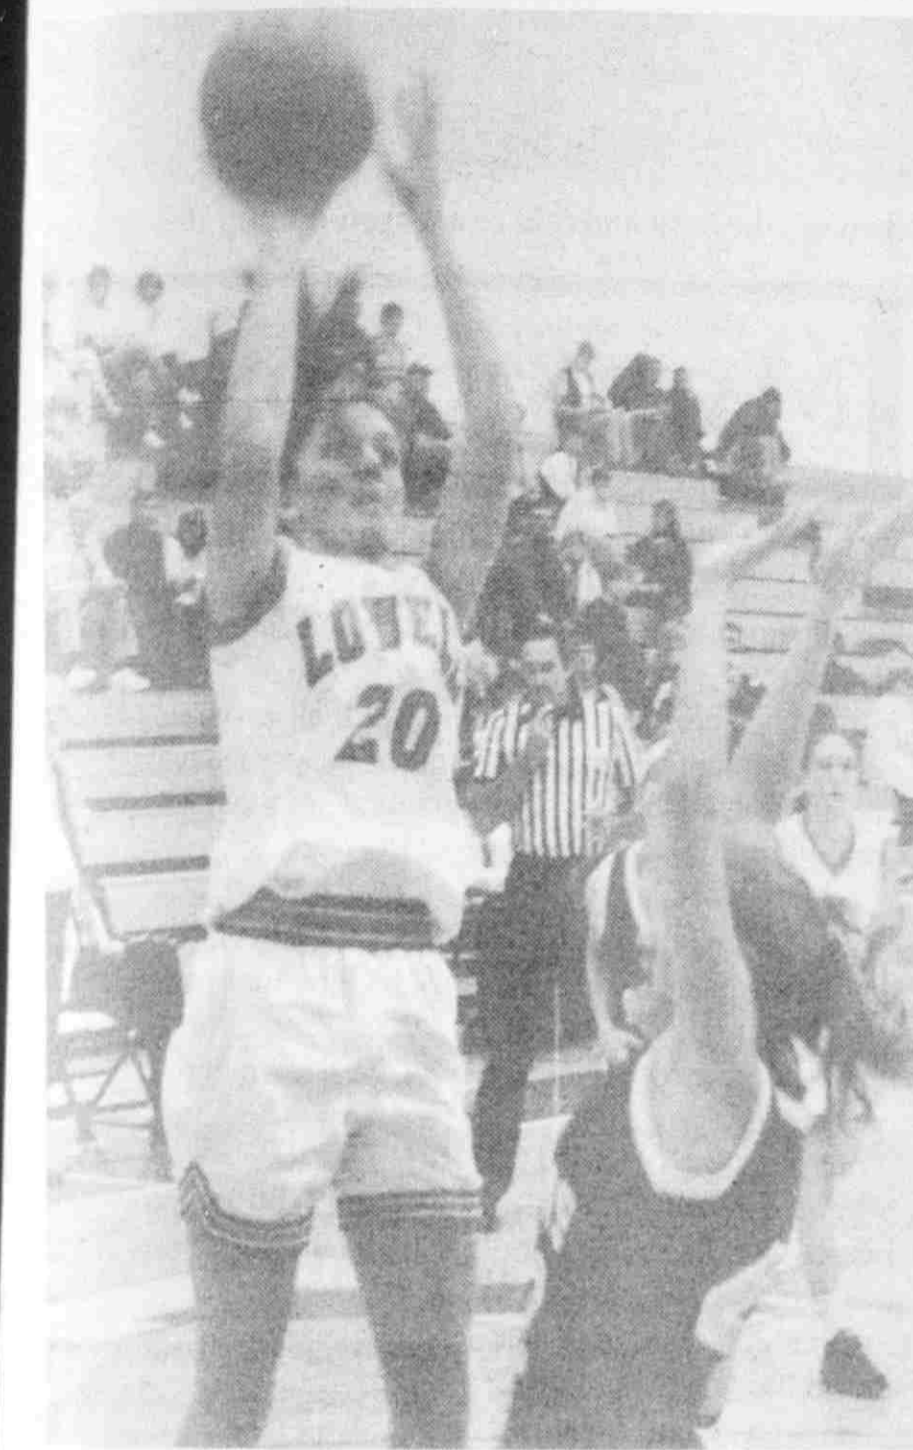

"They have been just fantastic players to coach," Wydock said in reference to this year's seniors Matt Carstens, Brandon Hamilton, Ryan O'Dell, Dan Spicer, Ben Kohler, Mark Schutte, Chris Wilcox and Chris Petrovich.

Carstens was moved from his forward position to center midfielder in 1995. "He was an excellent forward for us as a junior. I liked his ability to attack through the air," Wydock said. "But he had the leadership and skills to play center midfielder for us this year."

As a freshman Carstens worked hard, showed a lot of heart, and had natural athletic ability.

"He still has all of those qualities. The difference is as a freshman Carstens had limited ball skills. Today his ball skills are much better," Wydock said. "He's an excellent kid. He's Emily Dunn releases a short jumper in the lane in action against Hastings.

"I cannot say enough about the great job Dunn does on the offensive boards. She gets great position," Akers said. "Elena has just been great on the defensive boards."

Good screens and patience have also given Lowell point guard Tammy Stauffer good looks at the basket.

Stauffer scored 17 points against Hastings. She hit a three-point shot to end the third quarter, ballooning Lowell's lead to 15 at 45-30.

Lowell led 26-20 at halftime. "We did not box out well and Lowell rebounded real well," Hastings basketball coach Katie Kowalczyk said. "You can't give a team two and three shots at the basket every time down the floor."

Quarter horse, have performed together, but Wingeier is banking on additional practice to breed success.

"It was some of the best corners we've taken, but it wasn't my best time," she said.

Wingeier finished with a top time of 16 seconds. The world champion won the event with a 15.3.

"If my horse is running properly, we can get a 15.6. But it was hard on her with the travel and everything," said Wingeier. "She wasn't running at her fullest, but I am hoping next year she will."

Her practice with Lightly Whipped comes from her involvement in local 4-H fairs and Lowell High School's Equestrian team.

Barrel-racing is a popular sport among Michigan's youth. Wingeier estimates that out of 1,600 competitors from around the world, 70 called Michigan home.

With her goal within sight, Wingeier has set her mind to being the best, but also realizes an education is just as important.

"I'm already running at the professional level and I want to become one of the best, but I'm also thinking about going to college and becoming a certified public accountant," she said. "It's not like you can go out and make a living at this."

Lowell ends season with a 20-0 victory over Greenville

Christensen ends coaching tenure with win over alma mater

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Phil Christensen's coaching days ended where his playing days began at Black Field in Greenville Friday night.

Christensen played high school football for the Yellowjackets, and Friday night he returned to Black Field to coach his final Red Arrow high school football game for Lowell.

The Red Arrows made Christensen's trip home a memorable one, as Lowell ended the 1995 season the way it began - with a shutout against a non-conference rival. Lowell blanked Greenville 20-0.

With the victory, Lowell finished the season at 3-6 and winners of its final two games.

Greenville ended the '95 season with a record of 0-9.

"I won't lie to ya, my adrenalin was up and down the whole game. I am proud of these kids," Christensen said. "I just want to thank the community of Lowell for the opportunity it has given me over the past 16 years. I also want to thank it for the young men sent my way."

Friday night the Red Arrows did what many other Greenville opponents have done - shut down the Yellowjackets' offense. Greenville was held to just 45 yards rushing in 22 attempts. It threw for 34 yards on five of 16 passing and two interceptions.

"We just could not get our running game going or anything else for that matter," Greenville coach Paul Engel said. "Our kids battled and played hard. Our defense gave up a few big plays but battled back and played tough."

Lowell rolled up 231 yards in 47 carries on a field that had been beaten up by the weather.

Lowell quarterbacks were three-of-four through the air for 105 yards and one touchdown.

"In looking at the film, we felt coming in we should be able to shut them down and move the football against Greenville," Christensen said.

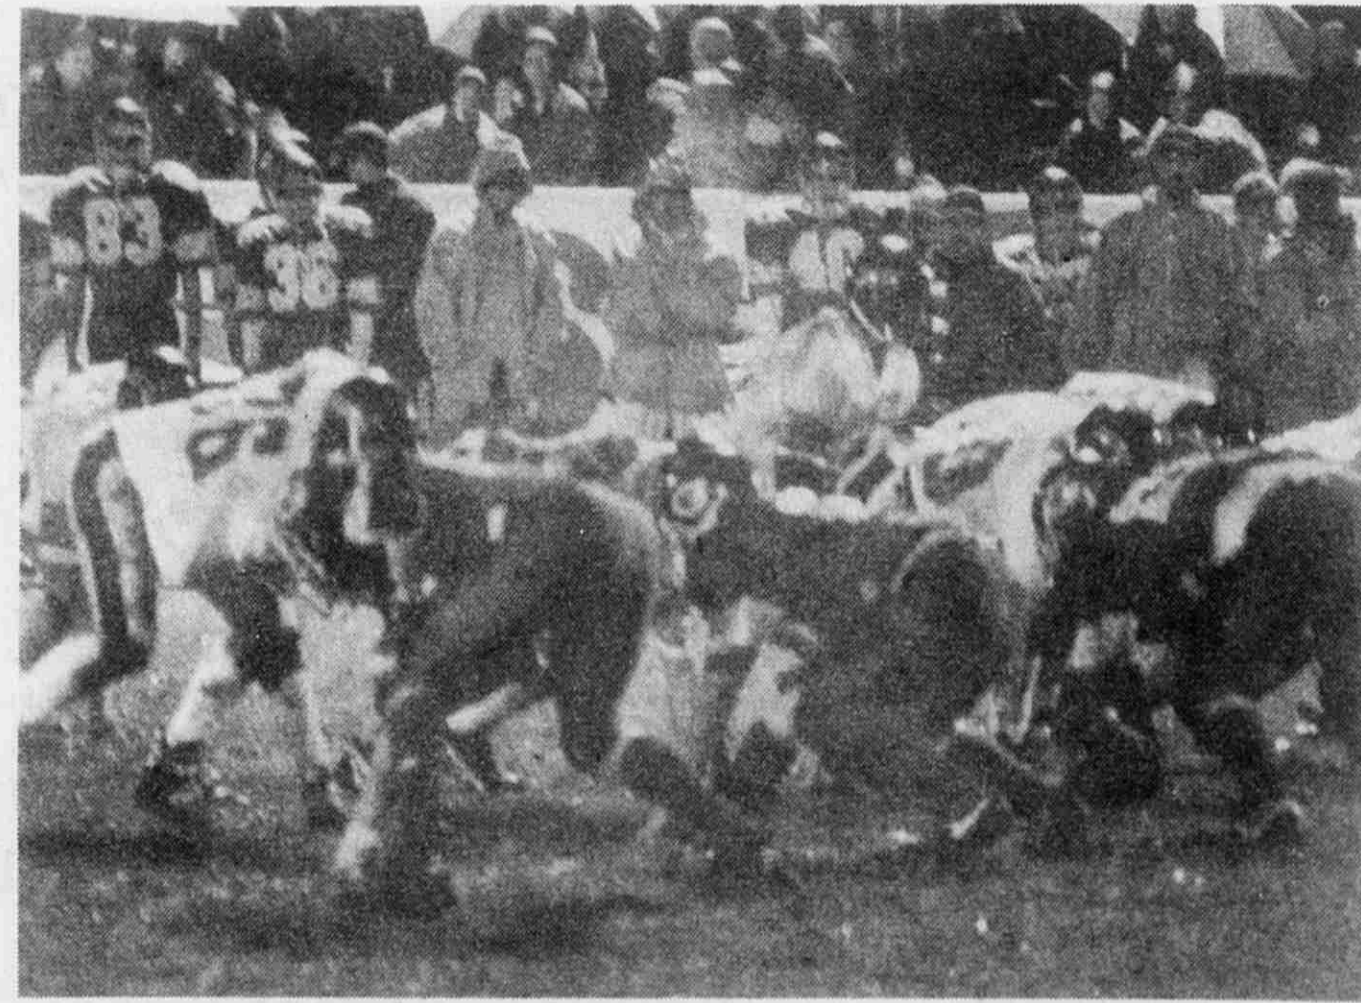

On the Red Arrows' second possession of the game, Mike Curtis broke through the left side of the line and raced 57 yards for a touchdown. The two-point conversion was good and Lowell led 8-0.

Curtis finished the game with 85 yards in eight carries. Lowell made it 14-0 right before the half when Jeff Catlin pitched to Steve Bosserd who then threw the ball 31 yards to a wide open Blaine Hayward standing in the end zone.

The only score of the second half came early in the fourth quarter when Catlin capped a 10-play 65-yard drive with a 10-yard touchdown run around the right end. He went into the Greenville end zone untouched.

"I also want to thank the coaching staff that has worked with me over the years and Bob Perry and Gary Kemp for giving me this coaching opportunity," Christensen concluded.

JV girls split a pair

The JV basketball team hosted Hastings on Thursday, Oct. 26, and were able to pull out a 42-40 win.

Lisa Posthumus led scoring with 15 points, while Angela Young added 12 points. Susan Rozman eight points and a game high seven rebounds, and Melissa Sobie contributed 6 assists to the offense. A fast start on offense and a consistent defensive effort throughout the game were the keys to victory.

The JV's had traveled to Zeeland on Tuesday, the 24th, and were defeated 56-54 in an exciting overtime game. Young and Rozman led a balanced scoring attack with 12 points each, while Posthumus added 10 and Sobie contributed seven. Rozman and Liz Rooker were leading rebounders with nine and seven respectively.

Council asks for another plan from Bowes Road realignment engineer

By Thad Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Councilman Jim Hodges said he is sympathetic to the situation Kent County Road Commission engineer Dave Groenleer is facing.

"However, I am also sympathetic to Jim and Barb Barber and how close the original Bowes Road realignment design comes to their rental property's front door," Hodges said.

Councilman Bill Thompson noted the city setback ordinance is 20 feet, yet the initial proposal for the Bowes Road realignment project would leave Jim Barber's rental property with a setback of 13 feet from the street right of way. "If the city were to do this, it would not be following its own ordinance," Thompson said.

There was another pitfall with the original realignment proposal - the hole that sits to the southwest of Barber's property. It was left by Grand Rapids Gravel.

"The original design calls for the corner of that pit to be filled in and secured," said

Lowell city manager Dave Pasquale. "The city would like to avoid that if possible because of the cost."

Hodges said he'd like the project to be moved a smidgen to the north in an effort to protect as much of Barber's property as possible.

Thompson asked Groenleer if it was possible to have a 30-foot setback and avoid the pit and all of Barber's property. Groenleer said he didn't think that could be done.

Thompson also took note of Barber's unwillingness to depart with any of his property. "I don't think this council wants to get into condemning residential property. I can't remember the council ever doing that," he said.

Groenleer will present another realignment plan to the council at its Nov. 6 meeting.

Pasquale said he would like Groenleer to see how far back the road can be moved and still make it work - avoiding the pit and as much of Barber's property as possible.

Councilmember Jeanne Shores said she sees why Barbers were upset with the original plan. "The council needs to do all it can to solve the problem," Shores said.

never had a bad thing to say and he's always worked hard." Carstens led the Red Arrows in goals with 11 and in assists with eight.

Hamilton was second in assists with seven. Wydock said no one played the game with a bigger heart. "Brandon played every position for us but goalie I think," he explained. "This year he stepped up and was team leader out on the field."

If it wasn't Hamilton or Carstens displaying team leadership, Ryan O'Dell was. "Of all the players, he probably had the most skill. However, he also had to overcome a hurt knee," Wydock said. O'Dell finished his senior year with five goals and five assists.

For the past two seasons Mark Schutte and Chris Wilcox have alternated as goalkeepers. Both seniors served the Red Arrows well.

"They did an excellent job for us. I don't think there was a goalie we faced that was any better than Schutte or Wilcox. Actually, I think they were the two best goalies in the conference."

If Wydock wanted to check a player from the opposing team, no one did it better in '95 than Spicer.

"Dan has quick feet and he never backed down from anyone. He's a tough kid," Wydock explains.

The senior who provided the biggest surprise in '95 was Chris Petrovich.

"He really stepped up and we needed him because of all the injuries," Wydock said. "Chris contributed big time."

Ben Kohler tallied four goals and three assists this year. The senior is one of Wydock's favorites. "Ben's a good kid and he's been a good player for me. He has the heart and work ethic that I talked about earlier."

Wydock knows, and underclassmen understand, they too will have to work hard and step up if they are to fill the shoes left by the '95 seniors.

Future of proposed light industrial development hinges on Bowne Township's commitment

By Marc Popiolek
Contributing Writer

Plans to develop on Lowell Charter Township likes the idea." said Timpson. "If Township's light industrial land, located on they don't, then it most likely will be a dead Alden Nash and Cascade, continue to be pre- issue."

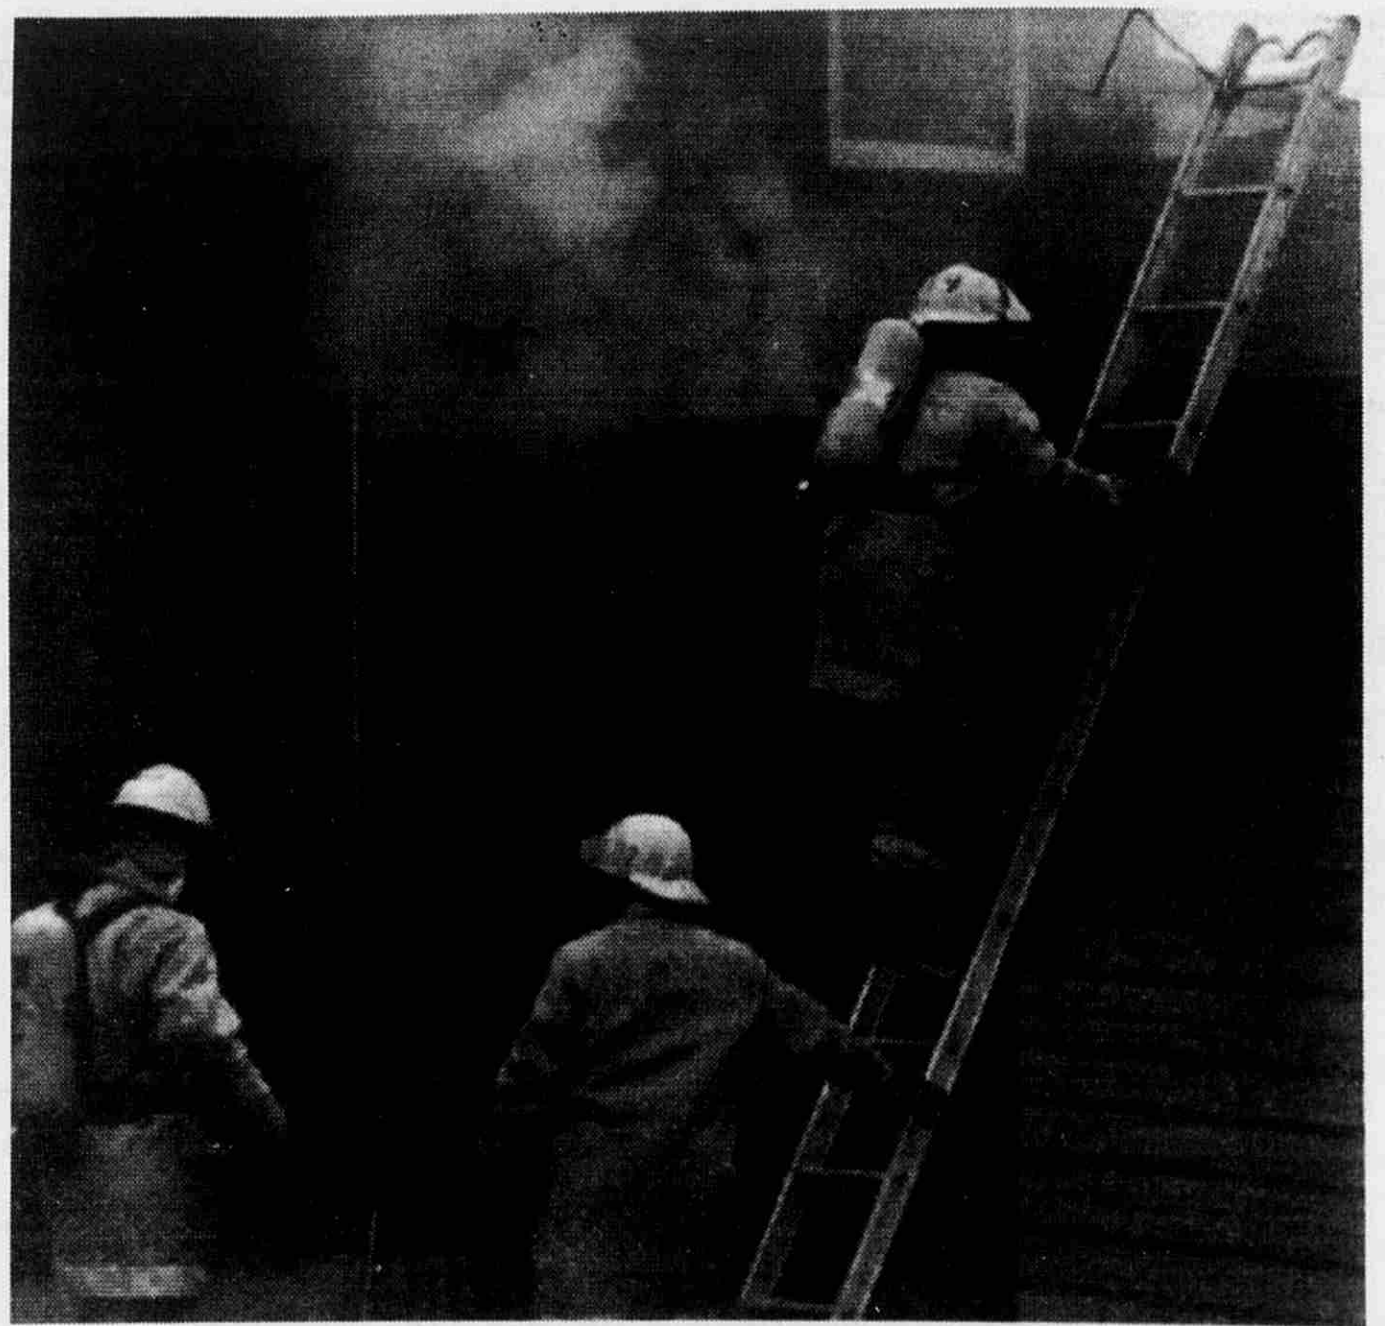

Under the proposal property owners, such as developers, would pay off the bond because it benefits them the most.

The township board is willing to look into the proposal, but isn't ready to jump in and commit.

"We don't want to be in the position where the township puts funds into the project," said trustee Carol Wieland. "They'll need clients who are willing to come up and pledge cash or assets to cover the cost of this. The township doesn't want to enter into the real estate business."

The township is waiting for Bowne Township officials to talk to them and will have attorneys look over the proposal before making a decision.

Timpson said the logical choice is Bowne

Kitchen lost in Tuesday afternoon fire

Lowell fire fighters were called to a house fire at 931 Monroe on Tuesday about 12:30 p.m. Lowell fire chief Frank Martin said the fire started in the kitchen of Lesa Corwin's home. "We were able to contain the fire to the kitchen area," Martin said. No one was home at the time of the fire. Corwin was contacted at her work place. No injuries were reported.

State motorists car/deer crashes on the rise as herds increase

The good news for deer hunters is that the state's whitetail population is near a record level.

And the bad news? Vehicle-deer crashes are on the rise as herds increase.

The state's herd - estimated at between 1.8 million and 2 million - probably hasn't been this big since 1989, when hunters enjoyed a record harvest of 452,490.

While hunting promises to be golden, AAA Michigan says vehicle-deer crashes remain a big-bucks expense in the state (pun intended) with the Auto Club paying out some $10.4 million in property damage claims last year.

Numbers tell the story:

- A record number of accidents involving vehicles and deer occurred last year, with every county showing an increase.

- In 1994, there were 56,666 vehicle/deer crashes in Michigan, a 19 percent increase over the 47,813 reported in 1993.

- Five people died in such accidents in 1994, the same as a year earlier.

- There were 2,040 injuries reported in 1994, up from 1,712 the previous year - a 19 percent increase.

- The average repair bill for a vehicle involved in a crash with a deer was $1,400 last year, up from $1,350 in 1993.

- Of the 398,050 total car crashes in the state last year, 56,666 (or 14 percent) involved deer.

While vehicle/deer crashes are reported in each of Michigan's 83 counties and occur throughout the year, most happen during the fall and early winter months, says

AAA Michigan Community Safety Services Manager Jerry Basch.

Breeding and feeding practices find deer on the move during these months. "The addition of close to 800,000 firearm deer hunters in the woods between Nov. 15 and 30 adds to normal traffic volumes," Basch added.

Last year, the top five counties in the number of vehicle/deer crashes reported were Kent with 1,805; Jackson, 1,695; Calhoun, 1,553;

Kalamazoo, 1,336; and Oakland, 1,297.

The fewest number were recorded in the Upper Peninsula counties of Keweenaw with 35; Luce, 156; Gogebic, 198 and in the eastern Lower Peninsula counties of Bay, 196 and Montmorency, 227. However, this can be misleading with comparatively low volumes of traffic in each of these counties.

CITY OF LOWELL

FALL LEAF PICKUP PROGRAM

Starting the first week of October, leaves will be picked up by Denny's Disposal. You must purchase leaf bags at the same locations as the trash bags:

- City Hall
- Hahn's Hardware
- Family Fare Supermarket
- Phillips 66 (Third Base)

These bags are sold in lots of 20 for $5.00. They hold 30 gallons and are made of a paper, biodegradable material. The leaves are taken to a compost area.

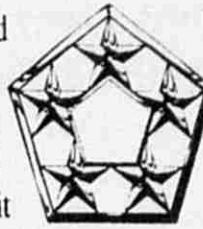

This is a leaf composting program. Leaves, yard waste and twigs up to 2" in diameter may be placed in the leaf bags. The composting operation cannot accept leaves in plastic bags.

If your trash pickup is Monday or Tuesday, your leaf pickup day is Tuesday. If your pickup for trash is Wednesday or Thursday, your leaf pickup is Wednesday. This program will continue until Thanksgiving.

If there are any questions, please contact Denny's Disposal (691-8530) or City Hall (897-8457).
