CROP Walk a harvest of good will

... My mom told me about it. I enjoyed the walk and helping raise money for the hungry.

11-year-old Pete LaNore
 A participant in Sunday's CROP Walk

There were approximately 200 walkers that took the hunger challenge and raised money for the less fortunate.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
 Lowell Ledger Editor

"It doesn't matter if I suffer or not - just so I raise money for the hungry," said John Blanding, 9677 36th St. That was the passion behind approximately 200 people participating in the fourth annual Lowell Area CROP Walk. The walkers started at the Lowell First United Methodist Church and began with a stroll north to Oakwood Cemetery. Making their way to Main Street, they went west to Amity, working their way past the middle school and Cherry Creek Elementary to Creekside Kingdom. Winding their way through the Valley Vista subdivision and east on Sibley to Center Street, they walked along Main Street back to the Methodist Church. "The goal was to raise $25,000," said the CROP Walk treasurer Inge Whittemore. With approximately 300 pledge sheets out, Whittemore felt that was in line with meeting the goal, however, the final total would not be tallied for about a week. "Recruiters are what's important. If they get out and collect pledges, then the walk is successful," Whittemore explained. Blanding added that he has worked on registration all four years. "The need keeps me involved. Forty children die every minute due to hunger." The monies raised that stay in the community will be donated to the Senior Neighbors Center and toward the Flat River Outreach Center. The group of walkers were diversified. Steve Cesarz, 10 years old, of Alto, walked following encouragement from his 11-year-old friend Pete LaNore, 11. "My mom told me about it. I enjoyed the walk and helping raise money for the hungry," LaNore explained. "Steve and I were second to finish the walk (6.2 miles)." There were also people from outside the area who traveled to Lowell to join in the walk for hunger. Vickie Wilson, of Cannonsburg, and Nancy Grams, of Rockford, along with her dog Jonan used their footsteps to help raise money.

Lowell Community Fund receives 22 requests for Englehardt grant money

... Earned income from the $12 million bequest to the Lowell area will make between $500-$600,000 available to the community in year one.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
 Lowell Ledger Editor

Creative, stellar ideas is what the Harold Englehardt Lowell Community Fund advisory committee will have to choose from as it prepares to select from 22 grant request applications. The committee will announce on Monday, June 8, which grant requests will share in the $500-$600,000 of earned income from Englehardt's $12 million bequest to Lowell. The requests totaled $1.2 million, exceeding monies available. Diana Sieger, president of the Grand Rapids Foundation, said many of the requests have been well thought out. "That indicates that people are taking this real seriously," she said. "All the geographic areas in Lowell are represented in the proposals." The foundation president added that it is more important that the program cover the entire Lowell area than what part of the area the organization is located in. The requests range from $2,500 to $250,000. They deal with projects dealing with recreation to human needs. In making its decision, Sieger says the advisory committee will have to consider if a request is appropriate to what the organization is, or if the request is desired just because money is available. The advisory committee has already approved $169,500 to be spent in a variety of areas:

- $7,500 for planning costs for a swimming pool and recreation center;
- $25,000 for after-school and summer tutoring;
- $17,000 in college scholarships;
- $40,000 to the Englehardt Library to reduce its operating debt;
- $80,000 for new computers, software and training for Lowell Schools.

Because of the budget cycles, answers in some of these areas have been made prior to June 8. Focus groups in the areas of recreation, ecology, economic development, and health and human resources will be used to gather more specific data to help the advisory committee make its decision on the grants. "This way it is not just the advisory committee saying here is what's best for Lowell," said advisory committee member and Lowell Schools superintendent Bert Bleke. "This way the community is taking a look and sharing with us what it is interested in."

Currently, there are five positions on the advisory committee. Sieger indicated in the future persons may be added to the committee. The Grand Rapids Foundation president would also like to see grants on a quarterly or semi-annual basis. "The best idea is not always in the first go around," Sieger explains. While the Lowell Community Fund will make an impact, it won't answer the total need. "The Lowell community can't stop raising money for itself," Sieger said. "It is cruel to be kind sometimes. There is no sense of ownership if the Lowell Community Fund does it all."

City budget for 1998-99 fiscal year should have little impact on pocketbooks

By J.N. Boorsma
 Contributing Writer

To borrow a quote from Lowell city manager David Pasquale, "It's that time of year again." The city is in full swing preparing its budget for 1998-99, with Pasquale presenting a preliminary overview to the Lowell City Council Monday night. The council approved two public hearing dates, May 18 and June 1, for the budget.

The good news for residents is that they can expect little impact in the pocketbook from next year's budget. The city estimates that its general fund expenditures will be about $1,904,180. Pasquale said staff is recommending that the same millage of 13.85 be levied in 1998-99. The city has not changed its millage in five years. Pasquale said this would leave the city a fund balance of $339,429, which falls under the city policy of having a fund balance around $300,000. Items that Pasquale pointed out in his preliminary review included the police budget of $682,245 to include $20,000 for the purchase of a used vehicle and refurbishing two others; the cemetery budget of $92,750 to include $10,000 of road paving which should finish all required road work in the cemetery; and the library budget of $41,000 to be offset by a $7,741 contribution by the Kent District Library. In other notes... the Building Authority has a bond payment for the library of $125,000, which would be covered through contributions from the Look Fund of $40,000 and the Lowell Area Community Fund of

Renovation positions Greenridge to expand geographic area

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

The only thing that may move faster than land in the Lowell School District may be the available desks for realtors at Greenridge Realty.

Since the start of its 2,200-square foot renovations project last fall, and with renovation 90 percent finished, Lowell's Greenridge office now has room for five new realtor positions. "We finally have room to add more realtor positions without compromising their comfort and working environment," said Rick Seese, manager of the Lowell Greenridge branch.

The local branch currently has 23 realtors; with the new Rick Seese manages a staff of 23 realtors. With the renovation, there is space for 30.

The Lowell Greenridge office will host a "Career Night" on Tuesday, May 12. People from corporate marketing will be on hand to make a presentation on real estate as a career.

Many may ask, "Doesn't Lowell already have enough realtors?"

Seese responds by pointing out that the local Greenridge office also has substantial market shares in Ada, Saranac, Belding, Cannonsburg, Clarksville, Alto and Greenville.

"Because the business has grown, we've been able to regionalize the office so as to serve a larger geographic area," Seese explains.

The Greenridge branch in Lowell opened in December of 1989. It has closed over $200 million in transactions since then.

Greenridge's service has expanded to include:

- A partnership with Foremost Insurance Company to provide an avenue for discounted home and auto insurance.
- Its own Oakridge Mortgage Company with services from the Lowell office and will soon offer closing services in Lowell.
- A 24-hour "Smartline" telephone information system and an Internet web page.
- The installation of Centrex II wiring which allows for advanced communication and data systems.

"Greenridge is positioned to provide quality service to expand its geographic area for many years to come," concludes Seese.

MAIN STREET, LOWELL
between Lincoln Lake/Broadway Streets & by the East dam is under construction, but...
Downtown Lowell businesses are open to serve you!

You'll still be able to visit your favorite stores, restaurants & businesses.

Just call ahead if you have questions or for directions. We appreciate your patronage, and we'll be here to provide you with continued service throughout the street work.

Yes, Lowell is on a roll.

Who? The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), the city of Lowell, Rieth Riley Construction Company, and URS Greiner are planning to make several improvements to M-21 this season.

What? The $1.4 million project consists of removing and replacing the top layer of pavement, removing an old Flat River Bridge structure, upgrading the intersections at Hudson and Valley Vista; upgrading water mains and other utilities and landscaping the two block downtown area between Broadway and Lincoln Lake.

When? The weeks of April 27 through October, 1998.

Where? The 2.2 miles of improvements will extend from the Kent/Ionia County line through the city of Lowell, and end at the Valley Vista intersection.

How? In order to minimize the inconvenience to motorists and the Lowell community, most of this project's construction operations will be performed while still maintaining two-way traffic on M-21. Some lane closures are needed to accommodate paving work, curb and driveway reconstruction, plus utility relocations. Efforts will be made to provide reasonable access to all properties during construction. However, there are two major construction operations that will require special attention.

The removal of the Flat River bridge deck at Lafayette:

In order to remove this old bridge structure and still maintain traffic on M-21, the work will be performed in two stages. The first stage will reduce M-21 to a one-lane operation for about a five-week period. A temporary traffic signal will be installed to allow M-21 traffic to pass through this restricted width area while the contractor removes the north half of the old bridge. Once the north half has been replaced, traffic will be moved over and a two-way traffic operation (without the signal) will be restored through this work area. MDOT recognizes that this work will significantly impact the Lowell area. Therefore, the contractor is being placed on an expedited work schedule to insure that this bridge removal work is completed by July 2, 1998.

Reconstruction of the M-21/Hudson Street Intersection:

This intersection will be improved with a wider turning radius on three corners, new/relocated underground utilities, new pavement surface, and a new traffic signal. Because this improvement work involves such extensive pavement and utility work, a partial traffic detour will be needed. Hudson Street traffic will be detoured away from this intersection for a few days during the work week. M-21 traffic will also be detoured for one weekend in order to complete all of the utility relocation and paving work.

MDOT and the city of Lowell will be continually updating the community on the contractor's work schedule so that everyone is aware of events that may impact their travel plans.

The D.D.A. will be holding two block parties this summer with free food, entertainment & prizes. Dates will be announced, keep reading your Ledger & Buyers Guide for details. Shop in your hometown, the businesses need your patronage during this construction.

Sincerely, Lowell DDA & City of Lowell

Moving to the Next Level

••• Lowell High School will lose one of the state's finest English teachers this fall. Jill VanAntwerp announced that she will take a teaching position at Grand Valley State University.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Jill VanAntwerp can't imagine there is any job better for her.

"Teaching is what I am," said Lowell High School's English department chairperson. "I think I have the natural characteristics of a teacher. Parts of what go into teaching are part of my personality."

VanAntwerp began teaching at Lowell High School 22 years ago. This will be the final year for the English department dean. She has opted to complete her career as a college professor.

In the fall, Dr. Jill VanAntwerp will be a professor at Grand Valley State University. She earned her Ph.D. in English back in 1994.

After 22 years of teaching at the high school level, Jill VanAntwerp is going back to university life - this time as a professor.

"It wasn't as though not moving on to teach at a university would have been a waste of my Ph.D.," VanAntwerp explains. "The Ph.D. gave me an option."

What many may not know is VanAntwerp had an option between teaching algebra and English when she first started at Lowell High School. She actually taught both for a short time. The fact that she was an English major, and that classes opened up in that department, helped her in the decision.

At Grand Valley State University, she will be instructing students on how to teach English. "I'm going to help them take what they've learned and provide them with ways to teach it."

One major difference between teaching college and high school is student responsibility. "College students are more accountable for getting their education," VanAntwerp said. "High school teachers owe parents a lot. We're there to help students, provide them materials and to remind them of what needs to be done."

While there are differences in the instruction, the basic elements of teaching remain the same whether its high school or college. "The students are close to the same age. They will all strive to reach a goal in a subject matter I love."

In no small part, what has made VanAntwerp a successful teacher is her ability to motivate students in a subject that does not always lend itself to a high level of student interest.

"Because of the classes I teach, most of my students are already motivated," VanAntwerp said. "Students less sure of their goals are normally the ones not motivated."

VanAntwerp has had the ability to show them what they need and has always been willing to put in the time to help students see where it is they want to be.

The Lowell English teacher is respected by students because she keeps them busy minus the trivial work. "It's important that a student's time is well spent. It excites me to have them working on lessons that are interesting, but still bring out the skills I'm trying to teach."

VanAntwerp believes meaningful results are also more memorable.

While students have responded to VanAntwerp's teaching skills, the English teacher is thankful of the support she's received by the school and community.

TOWN TALK

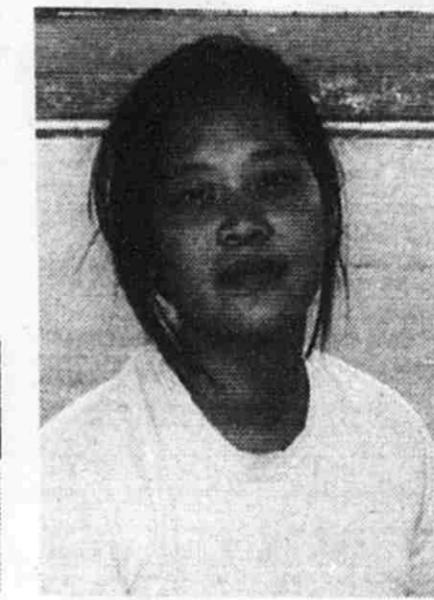

With increased stories of children shooting other children, do you have a thought as to what might be causing such disturbing behavior? And what if anything can be done to prevent or limit this from happening in the future?

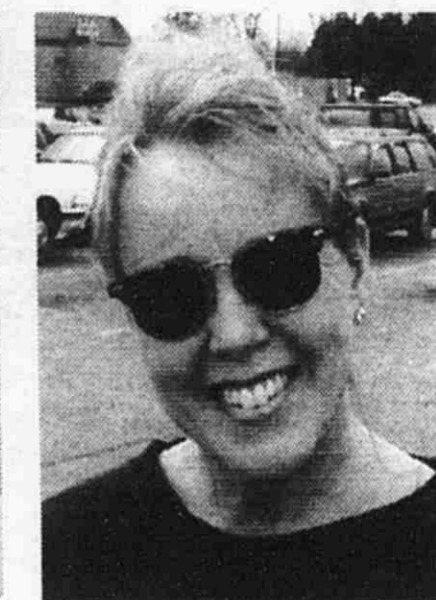

Mark Fiorenzo
It's human nature to do wacky things. I think children are exposed to more violence than in the past. It is different than "Leave It To Beaver" and "Happy Days."

Cathy Wilder
I think it's caused due to a lack of parent supervision. Both parents work. Kids are on their own. Parents aren't home to communicate with their children. They don't know what the kids are thinking.

Jasmine Tran
I think it is the copycat syndrome. They see others doing it and see the attention those kids get so they do it. I think children need more discipline from their parents and at school.

Kathy Leathers
I think it's all the violence. It's everywhere. Kids are exposed to it on television and at the movies. I also think it is due to a breakdown of the family unit and both parents working. There is a lack of supervision.

Doris Compton
A lot of it is children see violence on television. Parents should have a part in what their kids watch. I also think we need to get after the movie people.

Tracey Solomon
Parents aren't home taking care of their kids and taking time to listen to them. Parents need to spend more time with them.

"Lowell Schools has always been supportive of me teaching out to enhance myself as a teacher," VanAntwerp explains. She adds that the support the community has given the school has been tremendous. "Chris (her husband) and I raised a son here, and he was not hurt by his public school education," she says. "Any student who has goals for him/herself can achieve them in this district," concluded VanAntwerp.

Although Beethoven is now considered a classical composer, his earlier works were considered controversial when they were written. Many people found them difficult to understand.

Freshman girls step up at Lowell Invitational

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

A coach is never sure how well a freshman will do. The Red Arrow girls track team was well served by its freshmen Saturday at the Lowell Invitational.

That point was highlighted in the high jump event where freshmen Kristi Ford, Ashley Cunningham and Beth VanEn took first with a combined height of 13-8.

"I thought they'd place but I didn't anticipate them taking first," said Lowell girls' track coach Kathy Talus. "We had a number of freshmen place in this invitational. That bodes well for our future."

The field events, an area Talus promotes throughout the year, was a most advantageous one for Lowell.

The Red Arrow club claimed 3 firsts and 2 fifths. "A lot of schools just place three people in each of those events," Talus explains. "We run 6-7 people through some of those events."

The team of Celena Risner, Cunningham and Beth Larabee took top honors in the pole vault with a combined mark of 20 feet.

With a distance of 42-1/4, Lowell's Julie Wisner, Risner and Mindy Tarney took top honors in the long jump.

In the running events, Lowell stopped the clock in winning a time in the 1600-meter relay and placed second in both the 800-meter relay and the distance medley relay.

In the 1600, Wisner, Melissa Sobie, Andrea Baker and Christie Johnson raced home in 4:23. The time was five seconds faster than its nearest competitor.

Johnson, Wisner, Risner and Kelly O'Dell placed second in the 800 relay with a time of 1:53.20.

Larabee, O'Dell, Molly Debiak and Kaily Wittenbach completed the distance medley in 36:14.60, placing them second behind Kenowa Hills (33:32.90).

Muskegon Orchard View won the invitational with 108 points. Lowell was second with 77. They were followed by Kenowa Hills 56, Godwin Heights 56, Creston 51, Ottawa Hills 40, Forest Hills Northern 28, Northview 19, and East Grand Rapids 11.

"We had two goals coming into the invitational: to place in every event, which we did, and winning it - we were runner-up," Talus said.

Lowell's Julie Wisner races down the back stretch during the 800-meter relay. Lowell finished second.

Lowell's strong second-place showing at the Lowell Invitational was anchored by strong performances of its freshmen

The Red Arrows needed some events to go their way if they were to beat the Eagles. Some did; however, others didn't, and that proved costly in Lowell's defeat.

Lowell targeted winning the 400-meter relay and it did. The team of Abby Mathews, Celena Risner, Cindy Briggs and Kelly O'Dell raced home in 55.53.

Lowell also needed wins in the pole vault and 800-meter run. Ashley Cunningham won the pole vault with a height of 6-9.

Cunningham also won the 1600-meter run. The freshman team is given every opportunity to make it 3-out-of-3 and can't.

Lowell (221) defeated Hudsonville (236) and Zeeland (225) at the par 37 Crestview course and had a chance to upset a Greenville team at Deer Run.

"Greenville gave us every opportunity, we just didn't take advantage," Lowell girls' golf coach Rick White said.

Lowell shot a round of 228 at its home course. The Yellowjackets carded a 217.

"That's a score we can beat," White said.

The Lowell coach said the problem continues to be the consistency factor. "We're up and down," he explained.

Laura LaHaye led the Red Arrows against Greenville with a 54. Amber Kuipers fired a 55 with Elizabeth Baker and Jeannine Sayer shooting rounds of 57 and 62 respectively.

Greenville was led by Megan Cushman's 49. Ellie Saldin fired a 52. Hayley Gerbach and Jessica Burris finished with rounds of 57 and 59 respectively.

White points to blow-ups on a couple of holes. "For six or seven holes, the girls play pretty well, but then they blow-up on two or three holes," he explains. "They hit a bad shot and then they panic. The girls turn what might be a six or seven into a 12."

Lowell girls follow loss to Central with big win over league-leading Eagles

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Based on the timing of the victory and who they beat, the Red Arrows' 4-2 win over league-leading Hudsonville was Lowell girls' softball team's biggest win of the year. "We played tough against a good team," Lowell softball coach Bob Rodenhouse said. "Anything can happen in the league. Our defense came through for us today."

A three-run fourth inning propelled Lowell into the lead. Red Arrows' Lisa Posthumus and Amy Snell led-off the inning with singles.

An error on a ball hit by Laurie Barton drove home Posthumus from second. Andrea Rickert's fly ball then drove Snell home from third and sent Barton to third.

A one-out sacrifice fly by Rachael Fredline brought home Lowell's third run of the game.

Hudsonville grabbed the lead in the third inning with a pair of runs. The big hit was a two-run double by Marleen Stapt.

Lowell scored an insurance run in the fifth on an error, a ground ball, a sacrifice and a wild throw.

Rickert pitched a complete game for the Red Arrows, improving her record to 6-4 overall and 2-2 in the league.

The loss was only Renee Tigelaar's (10-2) second loss of the year.

The win over the Eagles was even more significant in that it followed a tough 3-0 loss to Forest Hills Central.

The Arrows were shut out on just one hit by Ranger hurler Sidney Walker.

Lowell's Rickert held Central to just three hits. The Rangers were able to break through with two runs in the fifth inning and one more in the sixth.

Lowell's only hit was produced by Rickert in the fifth inning.

"It was a pitcher's dual. Unfortunately, we made a mistake and Central made the most of it," Rodenhouse said.

Lowell finishes the week at 10-6 overall and 3-2 in the OK White.

Red Arrow soccer team plays well in loss to Zeeland

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Within a seven-day period, Lowell girls' soccer team played its best soccer of the year.

It also played some of its poorest and showed signs of being intimidated by one of the league's best.

Lowell soccer coach Ryan Conlan called his club's 2-1 loss to Zeeland its best played game of the year.

"The girls applied pressure from the start, communicated well and passed the ball well," Conlan said. "They did everything I could ask of them except win the game."

Lowell broke on the board first on a Sandy Spicer goal. The goal was set up on a pass by Julie Wisner to Jessica Winsor, who then hit Spicer for the assist.

"We controlled most of the first, then we had a let-down with about five minutes remaining in the half," Conlan said. "They scored and that seemed to change the est against Zeeland and Hudsonville, but it was enough to win.

Baker led the Arrows with a round of 52. LaHaye shot a 55, Sayer and Callie Boyce both carded 57s.

"The girls are turning 48 into 52 when we should be doing the opposite (turning 52s into 48s)," White explains. "That's the difference between being a middle of the road team and moving up to the next bracket."

Melissa Sneller led Zeeland with a 39. Teammates following her home were Barb Salinas, 57; Sarah Lamer, 60; and Kerri Piers, 69.

Jenny Brinks led Hudsonville with a 45. Ruth Groenink shot a 53. Courtney Thomson carded a 62 and Julia Gilbert finished with a 76.

Lowell finished the week 6-5 overall and 4-5 in the OK White.
