Espinoza works in organized effort through church to get emergency relief to native land

If I was there, I'd just be in the way. Here, I can work to see that baby cereal, oatmeal, canned goods, baby diapers and powdered milk are collected and shipped over there.

- Dinorah Espinoza

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

The world knows about the Honduras tragedy, but few can truly imagine what's happened to the country.

Lowell's Calvary Christian Reformed Church pastor Bill Renkema, and Family Fare pharmacist, Dinorah Espinoza, may be better able to imagine than most.

Renkema and his family lived in Honduras for 12 years. Espinoza grew up there. In fact, her parents still live there.

So when Renkema received a letter via e-mail from a friend in Tegucigalpa, Honduras' capital city, one can imagine the reservation and trepidation with which he read it.

"She wrote how there are still corpses rotting in the streets of the capital and that there are not many bridges left," Renkema explains. "Irene and her family, however, are okay."

Dinorah Espinoza has been a Family Fare pharmacist for three years. She was recently transferred to the Lowell store when its pharmaceutical department was opened.

In Olancho, a city of valleys and mountains, where Renkema lived for five years, there is no news. "My family has friends who live there, but the government hasn't been able to make contact with the city. All the lines and bridges going into the town are down and out."

Espinoza, able to contact her parents after Hurricane Mitch first hit, was comforted knowing that they and their house were okay.

"The government gave drills on how to safely leave and what necessary things to take before the hurricane hit," Espinoza said. "Many people, however, decided not to leave their homes."

The Family Fare pharmacist's friends were not so lucky. "They lost their home and are now staying at a seminary. Because of the cost of insurance, many Honduras residents do not have it. It is more expensive than paying the damages," she explains.

The people of Honduras have suffered great losses. "It is hard for people to grasp, but Honduras is a farming country. It depends on agriculture. The hurricane destroyed all of that," Espinoza said.

Honduras is a country, when all is well, second only to Haiti in terms of poverty.

Eight days of Hurricane Mitch battering the republic in Central America have also brought death and dismay.

Hurricane Mitch along with the devastating winds brought deadly floods and mud slides.

"Honduras was just starting to grow. Many bridges had been built and electricity was available to some. The goal was to make it available to all by the year 2000," Espinoza explained. "Now it is going to be a long haul. Honduras will need help for quite some time."

Most of the country received 25 inches of rain in six hours. Some parts got deluged with four feet of rain in a 4-5 day period.

The river which flooded and caused a great deal of damage, Espinoza said, was a "stinky little creek more than a river, but when you get four feet of rain over a few days..."

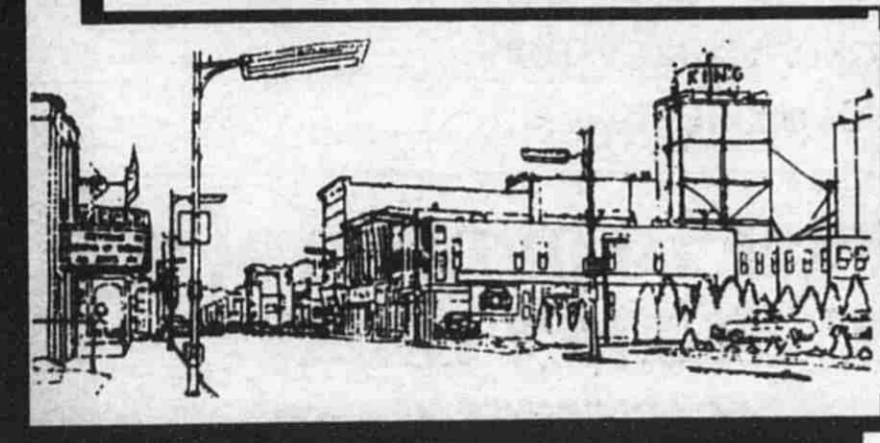

The numbers are horrific. The official Honduras (population 6 million) statistics as of Friday are:

- Deaths: 7,000
- Homeless: 1,932,000
- People Missing: 12,000
- Injured Inhabitants: 11,000
- Economic Loss: $2 billion
- Banana Plantation: $850 million
- Coffee: 800,000 kilograms
- 70 percent of crops destroyed.

"People in Lowell cannot identify with the hopelessness and fatalistic view on life that people have in Honduras," Renkema explains. "When you are truly

Smoke-free policy should not be confused with heightening security

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Lowell High School principal Scott Vashaw assured the board and those at the school board meeting Monday night that Lowell's smoke free environment issue is meant to be a school policy and not the creation of a cigarette security.

The proposal, which was supported unanimously by the board, says that Lowell Area Schools' facilities and grounds will be tobacco and smoke-free beginning July, 1999.

"Any policy that can impact a student's decision to not smoke I support," said Mark Blanding, school board vice president.

Current state laws mandate that the inside of a school building be smoke free.

Board secretary Ann Mulder said while she does not support smoking, possibly the school district should provide an area on school grounds where smoking is allowed for those who attend events.

"Whether it's a policy or not, some are going to try to find a place to smoke," Mulder said. "This policy backs smokers into a corner."

Blanding agreed that it does but felt, more importantly, it helps kids.

Lowell School Board treasurer, Jack Lane, didn't think it was too much to ask that people not smoke for a couple of hours while on school grounds.

Vashaw said the majority of parents he spoke to about the policy were in favor of it. They warned, however, not to send a "you're not welcome" message.

"We are not creating a cigarette security so we can go around throwing people out of their seats," Vashaw said. "This will be handled in a manner respectful to adults. There will be no 'in your face' situations."

Local woodworker prepares for his sixth Christmas Through Lowell

Bill Collins' tables and end tables will be available in a variety of wood styles. His house is one of 16 different stops set up for the three-day event.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

The joy of the holiday season arrives for Bill Collins when he observes the look on a customer's face after they see what they have ordered.

"They are amazed just how beautiful natural wood can look when you don't mess with it," says Bill Collins.

The Lowell woodworker has been making bedside, coffee and end tables out of walnut, cherry, maple and oak for 15 years.

What started as a hobby has now turned into a job. "Actually it's a half-time job. I also drive school bus for Lowell and I do maintenance and grounds work at Fallsburg Park," Collins explains.

is remembering where I need to be. The nice thing about it is I enjoy doing them all."

Collins' enjoyment for woodworking has been passed on to him by his father and grandfather.

"My father used to make 'tater' and 'onion' boxes and other specialty things," Collins said.

This year, Collins will offer holiday paper towel holders, and barnwood nativity scenes along with his popular tables.

The nice thing about "Christmas Through Lowell" is the crafters don't have to pack things up and travel.

This year the three-day event (Nov. 20-22) will have 16 different stops featuring handcrafted items made by over 50 different local artists.

Bill Collins is busy constructing barnwood nativity scenes for the seventh annual Christmas Through Lowell Nov. 20-22.

IN THE SERVICE

Marine Pfc. Joshua W. Price, of Lowell, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Price successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Price and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m. by running three miles and performing calisthenics.

Price spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training.

Price and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values-honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

The Marine Corps was created on November 10, 1775, in Philadelphia by a Continental Congress resolution raising two battalions of Marines. Since then, the Corps has served the nation from the Revolutionary War to Desert Storm.

Price joins 41,000 men and women who will enter the Marine Corps this year from all over the country.

He is a graduate of Lowell High School. Price is the son of William and Diane Price, also of Lowell.

Marine Cpl. John B. Sterzick, son of John L. Sterzick of Lowell, is one of more than 170,000 active duty Marines celebrating the Marine Corps' 223rd birthday in November.

Sterzick is a 1995 graduate of Saranac High School.

Lowell's ability to execute suffers setback in losses to FHN and Hudsonville

Sometimes the game of basketball is as simple as the numbers it renders. Unfortunately, for Red Arrow basketball coach Ken Akers, his club's performance against Forest Hills Northern and Hudsonville made things real simple. Lowell lost to the Huskies 44-32 and to the Eagles, Friday night, 50-25.

Lowell lost to the Huskies 44-32 and to the Eagles, Friday night, 50-25. "The girls played lousy at both ends of the floor," Akers said. "We're going to continue to work hard and try to correct one problem at a time." The remaining schedule makes that task even more difficult. Lowell closes the season with a game against OK White Conference champions East Grand Rapids, and a home game against Zeeland (second in the league). Making matters even worse, the Red Arrows drew defending state champion Grand Rapids Christian in the first round of the districts on Tuesday (Nov. 17). The Eagles are currently ranked fifth in the state in Class A.

Kirsch and Rottier run strong state races at Brooklyn

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Frank Kirsch's school record time of 16:34 placed him in a rare time zone where no other Red Arrow has been. It even allowed him to lead for a short time over the first 200 meters. "Frank led the whole state for a short time," said Lowell cross country coach Mike Mull. "He spent the whole race passing someone or being passed."

Kirsch's teammate Dan Rottier (215th), who started in the second row, zigzagged his way toward the front enroute to a time of 17:17. "Both Frank and Dan ran tough races. Both gave a little more of themselves. Frank set a school record and Dan posted the third best time of his life," Mull said. The state medalist was Rockford's Jason Hartman with a time of 14:51. Editor's Note: Molly Kirsch missed qualifying for the Class A state meet by four places. In the Nov. 4 edition of the Lowell Ledger, it was reported that Kirsch qualified for the state meet. The Ledger apologizes for the misinformation.

Lowell School Board adopts weighted grade concept

By Thaddeus J. Kraus
Lowell Ledger Editor

Seeing it as an incentive for students to push themselves academically, Board of Education voted to implement the weighted grade concept beginning with the second semester of the 1998-99 school year.

There was some tweaking. Seniors taking college credit courses will have their grades weighted by a factor of 1.25. Acknowledgment of the weighted grade will show up on the students' college transcripts. For the 1998-99 school year, however, it will not be figured into class ranking. Instead, it will reflect a 4.0 grade scale. That step will be deferred until the 1999-2000 school year.

"The weighted grade will be used in production of transcripts, but will not impact the Top 10 ranking of seniors this year," Lowell High School principal Scott Vashaw said. "I did not want students leap frogging other students because the rules have changed half way through their senior year."

The insertion of weighted grades is also expected to help eliminate some of the risk of taking classes that challenge a student's ability.

"The AP classes are strenuous and demanding. The weighted grade provides a fair and equitable means to acknowledge students who challenge themselves and work hard," Vashaw added.

Board trustee Pat Nugent said changing for this year after students have already scheduled their classes makes it a bonus for some and not for others.

Nugent and trustee James Reagan both voted down the motion. Both felt the weighted grade concept was a great thing to implement, but should have been held off until the beginning of next year.

Three-car accident delays drive-home traffic on Lincoln Lake Road

A Belding woman suffered a compound fracture of her right ankle following a three-car collision at the intersection of Vergennes and Lincoln Lake Road Monday afternoon.

Lisa Marhofer, of Belding, was southbound on Lincoln Lake Road when a Cavalier, driven by Jaime Sheppard, of Lowell started across the intersection and into the path of a northbound pickup truck driven by Samuel Mata, of Lowell, according to Kent County Sheriff Department Deputy Gary Vickery.

Mata's truck hit the Cavalier and then spun into the path of Marhofer. The mini-van struck the truck in the back end and then rolled over.

Mata suffered some minor scrapes and bruises.

Marhofer and her three passengers (children) were transported to Spectrum Hospital. The children escaped with minor injuries.

Sheppard, who incurred no injuries, was cited with failing to yield the right of way, according to Vickery.
