Educational opportunity splits Albanian family

••• To insure their daughters' safety and a brighter future, Qerim and Aneta Vrioni, of Tirana, Albania, spent their life's savings to get their daughters in a high school student exchange program which brought them to the United States. The love and generosity of a Lowell family has enabled Sheriana and Elona Vrioni to pursue a college education at Grand Rapids Community College.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

A conservative estimate of yearly college costs for a fulltime U.S. student runs from $10-$30,000; high cost colleges can run from $40-$100,000.

The sacrifice Qerim and Aneta Vrioni are paying to provide their daughters with a college education, by most parents' standards, make those prices sound quite reasonable.

It has been nearly three years since the Albanian parents have seen their oldest daughter Sheriana and nearly two years since they have seen the younger, Elona.

Political instability and unrest, and the desire to remove their children from harm's way motivated Vrioni's decision.

"My mom was looking for any way to get us out of the country," Sheriana explains. "The fighting made it unsafe and because there was no infrastructure to support the economy, there's no opportunity for people."

Vrionis, like many other parents in Tirana, sought the one opportunity that was available to their children... student exchange programs.

"Almost all of my friends went abroad, and hope to come back and do good for our country," Sheriana explains from the kitchen table of sponsor family, Don and Brenda Clark, during a break from her college studies.

After seven attempts, Sheriana received approval for her VISA. It allowed her to participate in the student exchange program run by the Council for Educational Travel.

Sheriana and Elona Vrioni study together after classes at GRCC's library.

"I had to keep going back because the embassy found many reasons not to grant VISAs," Sheriana explained. "I had to keep trying."

Her persistence paid off, but the opportunity would not come without a price.

The student exchange program required that her parents pay $7,000 in advance for their daughter to go abroad.

The cost to send Elona abroad just one short year later, through a different exchange program, would also cost their parroughly ents $7,000.

"Our parents had been saving in advance for our education," Elona says.

Their father was earning what would be equivalent to $200 a month in the United States. With the unrest and failing economy. their mother was unable to work:

The cost absorbed all of their savings. It forced their parents to sell the family car, and ask for money from relatives so their daughters could go to school in the United States.

Sheriana was originally told she would be staying with a host family in Huntington, IN. That was later changed to Salt Lake City, Utah, before the final location of Lowell was decided Elona's host family was located in Malvern, Ark.

Clarks agreed to be a host family just two days before Sheriana arrived in the U.S.

"A friend of a friend of a friend told the student exchange agency that Don and I might be interested," Brenda Clark said. "We initially told the woman representative, in a phone conversation, that we were not interested."

Because the representative was in the Lowell area, Clarks agreed to talk to her later that evening despite having already said no.

The result of that meeting at the Clark home was Brenda agreeing to be a host family:

Sheriana arrived the following Monday. "Don was not in favor of it in the beginning," Brenda explains. "Three weeks after Sheriana was here, he told me it was the best thing that we'd ever done."

Some might reserve that comment for what the Clarks would do over the next two years.

After Sheriana completed her senior year of high school at Lowell, she was given the task of finding a sponsor so that she could attend college in the U.S. If not, her VISA would expire and Sheriana would have to return home.

The fighting that had taken place in her homeland closed the airport in Albania. Therefore, if unable to find a sponsor, Sheriana would be flown to Turkey or Greece and would go from being an exchange student in the U.S. to being a refugee.

Forums to provide more opportunity for citizens to speak out on district's growth

•••• Committee to weigh district's building options and financial data.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Building options and financial data will be the topic of discussion at a meeting of the Lowell Demographics Committee on Monday at the Runciman Board of Education office.

School officials will spell out district building options with financial data. Input and opinions from demographics' committee members will then be received.

"We will ask the committee to discuss the pros and cons of three options," Lowell superintendent Bert Bleke said. "The discussion will also be open to other options."

The input and thoughts from the Demographics committee will be shared with the community during four community forums held in the month of February.

The purpose of the forums will be to discuss options that Accountable - Financial professionals should make suitable recommendations based on their knowledge of the investment world and on the information they've gathered about your financial needs and goals. Furthermore, your financial consultant should suggest ways you can adjust your portfolio in response to changes in the financial markets and in your personal situation.

Dependable - A financial professional should provide advice based on the knowledge and judgment that result from training and experience. Professionals' skills should also be supported by current technology.

Valuable - Your financial consultant should add value by providing information and expertise that you might otherwise not have access to.

Individualized - All recommendations coming from a financial professional should be tailored to your individual circumstances. Your financial consultant should recommend only those products and services that fit within your tolerance for risk, your investment preferences and your time horizon

Caring - A financial professional must be sensitive to your family situation, your investment personality and your preferred methods of interaction.

Educational - A financial professional should provide you with clear, comprehensive, objective and timely information to help you understand your investment choices. And your financial consultant should be able — and willing — to take the time necessary to explain anything that is unclear to you.

Becky VanVleck's first grade class presented 25 coloring books and crayons to the children of Mel Trotter Ministries. Rev. Bob Evans, Mel Trotter Ministries church relations, traveled to Bushnell Elementary on Friday to pick up the books. They will be distributed to less fortunate children. Unused pages from old coloring books brought in by the first graders were used to create 25 new coloring books. Each student colored the back page of a book and wrote a short message to the child who would be receiving the book and crayons. The idea was that of first-grade parent Dawn Crook. The activity fit in with the classroom's compassion theme. Also helping to oversee the project was class parapro, Jodi Schaefer.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor.

I read with great interest your editorial and the following letters to the editor in last week's Ledger. I am sure the church leaders are sincere and hold true Christian beliefs. I also believe they have a firm grasp on what they feel our community values should be.

heaven. But if there were only one true way, we would only pornography. need one church. There are obviously many views on eternity.

I am sure many clergy and their followers would agree on what is pornography but not everyone in our community would agree with them. Activities which are completely acceptable between married couples in their own homes should not be construed as betraying community values.

We all pay taxes which are used for activities we detest. The National Endowment for the Arts comes to mind and is paid for by my taxes. Their pornographic art, which is only art to sickos, is shown in museums supported by my taxes. Our libraries contain much offensive material. Our freedoms are supposed to be assured by our Constitution.

These freedoms, especially on the first and second amendment issues, are continually under attack. I personally detest the TV shows in question and many others. With all due respect But I am not sure that our community values should be set to the fine people of the cloth in our community, I believe we only by people of the cloth. We have many churches in our should all support our freedom under the first amendment. Any community that have diverse ways of telling us how to get to tyranny, even by a majority, should be as unacceptable as Upon entering the new century, what ought to be the purpose of education? Is it to train for work, gain knowledge, develop skills, instill character, prepare for college, learn the three R's, practice teamwork, or improve social awareness? It is, no doubt, all of these things and more. But to me, the core purpose of education should be to develop reason among young people, as they depart school to become full-fledged members of society.

This past century has been one of unparalleled advances in science, technology and healthcare. Yes, there have been achievements in music, art, literature, law, business and theology, but they do not loom so largely over the great accomplishments of past centuries in these fields. It is in science, technology and medicine that the most recent generations have truly excelled. At the bottom of these advances is the pursuit of the scientific method - the willingness to experiment and to test each hypothesis. In a broader sense, the advance in human thought is characterized by openness to new ideas, the power of observation, and careful, principled analysis. This is the essence of reason. It cannot be taught in any one course, but it should be the implicit objective of every class. It cannot be developed quickly or by rote, but must be nurtured over many years of exposure to new ideas, maturation of thought and refinement of intellect.

Reason is central to the fate of humankind. Humans have what has been described as "a tenacious ability to shut out what they do not want to know: the novel, the uncomfortable. We all suffer from deafness of the mind." The impact of reason, or its the fourth Lowell boy to receive it, after Sam Yeiter, Kenneth absence, has defined the past 100 years. For each great scientific achievement, we have witnessed the offsetting horrors of our base human instincts at their worst. From Nazi Germany. to Cambodia, to Rwanda, to Bosnia; from the assassinations of presidents' McKinley and Kennedy to Columbine.

In the new century, will reason enable us to deal with the looming threats to mankind, from global warming, to population growth, to moral decay, to damage to the ocean, the air and the land? Or will we fall victim to the ideology of self-interest that typifies the stance of those who want us to ignore the evidence, provide for their short-term gratification, and stand mindlessly by?

It is the responsibility of our educational system to cultivate reason among all students, so that they can help advance thought, resist evil, preserve democracy, and enhance civilization. We can all help by keeping open minds in our daily lives. and by recognizing the vital importance of rational thought in our dealings with young people. Those of us who grew up during the Cold War learned to fear "brainwashing." An open. Fifteen mobile radio units have been installed in school questioning, and thoughtful intellect provides the greatest buses and are proving themselves in both safety and efficiency. defense against mindless obedience to foolish ideas.

DIABETES - PART 11

Last week we discussed diabetes, a common disorder leading to an elevated blood sugar. Without proper care diabetes can cause vision loss, kidney failure, nerve damage and increase your risk of cardiovascular disease.

Research has shown that diabetics who control their blood sugars closely have fewer complications associated with the disease. If you have been diagnosed with diabetes, your physician will want you to monitor your blood sugar from one to four times daily. This can easily be done with a home

Diet is an important factor in controlling diabetes. Your physician may recommend consultation with a dietician well versed in diabetes to help you achieve excellent glucose control. A diabetic diet will emphasize healthy foods like fruits, vegetables and grains, while limiting foods that are high in sugar and fat. If you are overweight you will need to reduce your total calorie intake to achieve your ideal weight. Many type 2 diabetics can be treated with diet only.

Exercise will help you lose weight and use insulin more effectively. Aerobic exercise is usually recommended for 30-50 minutes, 3-5 times per week.

Insulin will be needed by all type 1 diabetics and a good portion of those with type 2 diabetes. Insulin may be given 1 to 4 times a day. There are several oral medications that can be used to control your diabetes. These medicines help the body utilize the insulin it produces more effectively. Sometimes a combination of 2 or 3 different oral medications are used. Most type 2 diabetics are started on oral medications if diet and exercise do not adequately control the blood sugar.

It is important to watch for complications of diabetes. Your physician will recommend routine examinations to check your blood pressure, review your sugar diary, assess your vision, kidney functions and cardiovascular system. As we stated last week, proper diabetes management will significantly reduce the occurance of diabetes complications allowing diabetics to live full, active lives.

For more information on diabetes, see your physician or contact the American Diabetes Association at 1660 Duke St. Alexandria, VA 22314 (phone 800-232-3472).

Baker's role with Chamber shifts to executive director

•••• One of her immediate charges will be marketing the Lowell community.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Population, commercial business, and Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce's activities have all increased in the recent past.

The decision to expand Liz Baker's role to executive director of the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce, comes as a surprise to no one, especially Baker.

"Because there are many more things to do that can't be done in a part-time position, my role has been expanded to full time," Baker

The Chamber's executive irector is in the middle of her fifth year. Much of her first four years were spent encouraging Chamber membership and promoting goodwill as well as coordinating the Lowell Expo and the Riverwalk Festival.

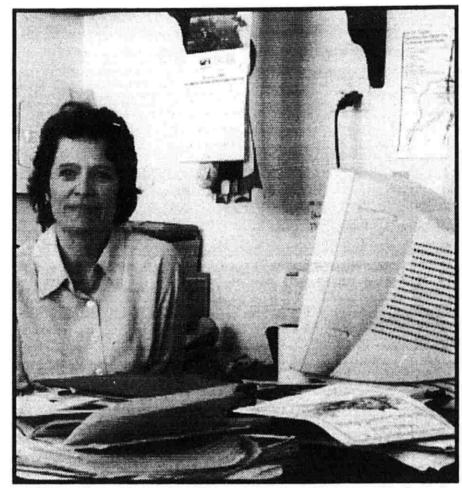

In order to fill her newly formed full-time role, Baker has vacated her part-time work with the Lowell Area Arts Council. She was employed there for three years.
