Hard Water Woes

•••• Are ahead for area residents as water treatment plant prepares to refurbish its filter room.

By J.N. BoorsmaContributing Writer

If you start seeing spots on your glassware or the soap just doesn't seem to lather, it isn't a figment of your imagination.

On March 9, Lowell's Water Treatment Plant will refurbish its filter room with new media and repaint its walls. This means the city of Lowell residents along with Lowell and Vergennes township residents will have hard water for awhile.

"This is the first time since the plant was built that we have done this," said plant superintendent, George Regan.

Several factors played in the decision to remove the media (sand, gravel and anthracite), through which the water is filtered to help condition it.

be conditioned. Residents can expect the hardness to increase almost three times.

"Currently, conditioned water is about 130 milligrams per liter," Regan said. "That will increase to about 320 to 330 milligrams per liter."

What can people expect?

"Spotting on glasses," Regan said. "When washing the car, the water won't have that sheen when it runs off ... things of that nature."

If all goes well, residents probably won't have to experience this inconvenience again for about 20 years, if ever.

"We are hoping to incorporate a new plant expansion, but a lot depends on how things go in the local area," Regan said. A plant expansion would mean the addition of Understanding that future commercial developers will use Meijer as a measuring stick, Lowell Charter Township's Planning Commission has moved slowly and carefully in reviewing plans for the 157,000 square foot store.

Secure in that it has set a standard that best serves the township, the planning com-and that the dedicated public road be aligned for the proposed development to the west of the Meijer site.

"I want to thank Meijer for understanding the . township's situation of not wanting to go from small to big in one project," said planning commissioner Mark Batchelor.

Lighting and signage are two key elements in which Meijer met the wishes of the back into the air. The height will range from 30-35 feet with some spots being less than that.

"It's not what we wanted. The observatory would have preferred low pressure sodium, but it is still much better than Lowell's city lights," said Evelyn Marron.

Meijer proposed some pylon signs but its final site plan calls for monument signs at the westerly-most drive, for

"Due to the shorter filter times along with when we backwashed the filter, it was not cleaning up as well as it used to," Regan explained. "Also, the walls need to be stripped and repainted, and to do that we need to take the media out."

At its regular council meeting last week, the Lowell City Council unanimously approved two businesses to do the paint removal via water blasting, and the media removal. The plant staff will repaint the walls. White Industrial Services, which bid $4,800 for four days of work, was awarded the contract for the paint removal. K & D Grand Rapids, Inc, which was the only bidder for the media removal, bid $2,210.

It will take about six weeks, or until the end of April, to complete the work. During that time, none of the water for the area will a filter to the waste program, making it easier for employees to clean the filters and change media without disturbing the normal plant operations. This, in turn, would eliminate a down time of about six weeks for such a project.

Of course, if all stays the same, meaning no plant expansion and no change in water usage, it would be another 20 years before the media would need to be changed, Regan explained, adding that an increase in water usage could make that time frame much less, like 10 to 15 years.

"Normally for something like this, if you last 10 to 15 years you're doing good," Regan said. "The fact that we haven't done it in 23 years means we have done very well." THE COMPLETE mission has approved a final site plan for Meijer.

The approval was contingent on final paper work agreement and certification from engineers for stormwater retention and drainage; also on any adjustment on the westerly drive township instead of its own.

Meijer will use high pressure sodium lights and bituminous dark asphalt to reduce refraction. The lights will have a 90 degree cutoff, limiting the amount of light and height which is thrown the gas station prices and at Alden Nash Avenue. It will be similar to that of the Meijer store on the East Beltline.

Meijer real estate manager Mike Kinstle said Meijer is hoping to begin construction the first part of April.

By nearly a 2-1 margin, residents of both Lowell and Vergennes townships approved a half mill increase over a three-year period for gypsy moth spraying

The spraying will commence in the spring (May).It will be carried out by Aquatic Consulting Service, the same company which did a survey for each of the townships.

Each township paid $3,000 for a survey and will pay $14-$15 per acre to have be sprayed." Vergennes Township clerk Mari Stone said.

Lowell Charter Township residents approved the half mill increase by a vote of 680-349.

Pennies for Patients

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

It's not how you start a race ... it's how you finish.

Mary Burton's Alto Elementary students are a prime example.

Burton's third-graders were the only class of 18 which did not bring in any change on day one of the student council's "Pennies for Patients" school project.

Three weeks later, however, at project's end, their class was the one which collected the most change.

"I think the kids were a little embarrassed they were the only class that didn't bring in any change on that first day," Burton said. On the bulletin board in the hallway where the running totals were kept, the piggy bank representing Burton's classroom read 0 (zero).

On the final day (Friday), their piggy bank read $311.04 which clearly was the most change collected by any one class.

For their efforts, Little Caesar's Pizza, the sponsor of the fundraiser, will throw the class a pizza party.

The 18 Alto classrooms (K-5) collected $1.835.37. With added donations from adults, the final total was $2,075.85. The proceeds were donated to the Leukemia Society.

In 1960 only four percent of children with childhood

Barrier-Free GOOD SHEPHERD

Last week's ever so boring column filled you in on the details of the partial sinking of my boat. If you couldn't force yourself to read all that garbage, then the bottom line is this... My older, "seen-better-days" 25' fishing boat sank at the dock during an extremely strong tide. One outboard was completely submerged, the other was partially under. I had a house full of company coming for the holidays in a matter of days. The boat is center to most activities here in the Keys. My mechanic was out of town on a ski vacation. I was in deep doo-doo.

With the boat hoisted and drained, I went to work trying to diagnose the damage and apply first aid where possible. I use the term "first aid" loosely. I really had no idea what I was looking for or what I should do to fix what I might find wrong. It was one of those situations where somebody had to do something, and the only "somebody" was me.

engines and hose them down with fresh water. Then I should have called a broker and bought shares of WD-40 - went through about a dozen cans of the stuff.

I sprayed WD-40 everywhere. I took out the spark plugs and liberally sprayed it in the cylinders. I sprayed it in the carburetors. I sprayed it into and onto anything that looked like it might move or conduct electricity. I even sprayed it into my eyes a couple of times. That's a little stunt that's highly overrated.

I think I was sick the day they taught us about electrolysis in high school chemistry. Gonsequently, I can't tell you what makes it happen. I can now tell you from experience that anywhere salt water comes in contact with electrical current, the copper connections dissolve almost immediately. I think this is a form of electrolysis. This fiasco produced several good examples that probably would have been great experiments in you've stumbled through life the way I have, there is a lot of that chemistry class. This should have happened back in high consolation in hearing something like that. school. Maybe I could have improved that "D" to a "C."

Fortunately, the way the boat sank, the battery compartment went under first. All my chemistry experiments were there, rather than at the engine end of the connections. The connectors were eaten away at the battery and there was no current in the wires by the time the engines went under. If the term "lucky" could be applied anywhere to this mess, that is about is. I stripped back wire and crimped on several new connectors.

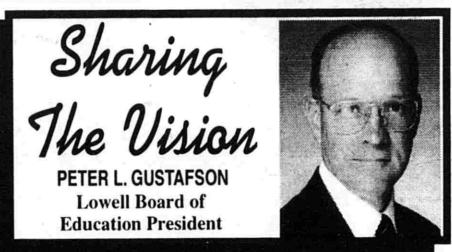

What does the guy who knows absolutely nothing about engines always do when faced with a problem? That's right, he puts in a new spark plug. In this case it was twelve of them. I should have bought some NGK stock as well.

I played around with the fuel system, pumping, draining and spilling gasoline until somehow I soaked a leg of my shorts. Of course, I left them on until the gasoline burned my leg. It just wouldn't be a project unless I hurt myself somehow. The really scary part had arrived. It was time to see if the engines would do anything, maybe actually start and run.

I began with the starboard engine that had been only partially submerged. A little throttle, some choke and a turn of the key. Unbelievable! It started right up and continued to run. Now for the real test, the completely submerged port engine. Throttle, choke, turn the key and ... "Barrroooooooomm!" It started. It ran. It ran strong. It continued to run. You think Mark The first thing I did was to take all the covers off the MacGuire was elated when he hit number 61 - that was nothing compared to this.

The school district's demographics study is moving to a conclusion, and it is apparent that new facilities will be required to accommodate actual and anticipated growth in our community. This two- year study process will soon culminate in a decision by the board of education about what new facilities will best meet the needs of Lowell area students and families. It is anticipated that the board will authorize a bond proposal, to be presented to the voters, in order to raise the revenue needed to construct new school buildings.

As a result of extensive studies, analysis by the demographics task force, and input from public forums, two basic educational needs of our growing community, by supporting alternatives have emerged regarding the new buildings needed the bond issue that will be presented to the voters later this year. for the district. The second alternative would involve construction of two new elementary buildings, strategically located in the district, along with the modest expansion of the high school. Again, some realignment of use would take place in our existing buildings.

Wells to resign from clerk's position before term expires

By Thaddeus J. Kraus

Lowell Ledger Editor

Lowell Charter Township clerk Carol Wells announced four years ago when she was elected to another term, it would be her last.

Well, the clerk's term is ending sooner than she thought. Wells recently announced she will be resigning from her post of nearly 34 years, effective May 15. If necessary, she has agreed to stay on until the end of the month.

"Since November, I have been thinking about leaving the area so I can be more centrally located among my children in Nebraska and Texas," Wells said.

Timpson recommends merging private road ordinances

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

If approved by its attorney, Lowell Charter Township may be adding language to its Private Road Ordinance.

Township supervisor John Timpson has asked the township's attorney to merge a portion of Cascade Township's ordinance with theirs and bring it back to the board for review.

Merging the two would allow the township under certain circumstances to change the minimum requirement for road grades from six to eight percent.

"There are certain situations when the topography is too severe, and changing the minimum grade requirement would enable us to save more trees on these sites," Timpson said. "Right now, we're decimating sites to meet the standards set in the ordinance."

Township clerk and board member Carol Wells said the township has a good ordinance which has been amended several times and has worked well. "I don't think it needs to be touched up," she concluded.

She had planned on serving her full term, but a knock on her door changed all of that. "I got a knock on my door from someone who wanted to buy my house," Wells explained. One of the stipulations was that Wells be out by May 15.

The clerk agreed and is now busy making plans for her May 16. relocation to York, Nebraska Wells' resignation means the township must appoint her replacement within 30 days prior to the effective date of resignation.

According to township supervisor John Timpson, the township is looking for someone to fill the post. "It's obviously an important position that we need to fill," Timpson said.

Board and planning commission (20 years) .

The township clerk was honored last April for her exemplary work over the last 33 years by the Michigan Clerks Association. She was named Township Clerk of the Year. Wells was first elected to the clerk's position in 1966. "It's going to be tough leaving the area," Wells says. "I am going to miss all the friends I have made."

Lowell Township extends deadline for Smith

•••• It will use the period to decide whether the home-based business ordinance needs amending.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

A time line for a Lowell Charter Township decision over whether Randy Smith and Melissa Bilski, who sell irrigation systems from their home at 3210 Kissing Rock can stay or need to relocate, has been extended to Nov. 1. Under the current ordinance, their business no longer qualifies as a home-based business occupation because it has outside employees.

planning commission and that decision was upheld by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

His attorney asked for an ordinance clarification and that it be amended to allow the business to stay. He added the township has things with more of an impact than

Smith's home-based business. The planning commission has indicated it is not interested in amending its home-based business ordinance and has requested that Smith relocate his business to a commercial zone. The township board disagreed, explaining it needs to look at the home-based business occupation and decide whether it should be amended. It has asked the township attorney to finalize his opinion on the matter and get back to the township board.

Because of this controversy, the township has extended Smith's deadline to run his business from his home until Nov. 1. The board's decision will determine if he can stay or must relocate.

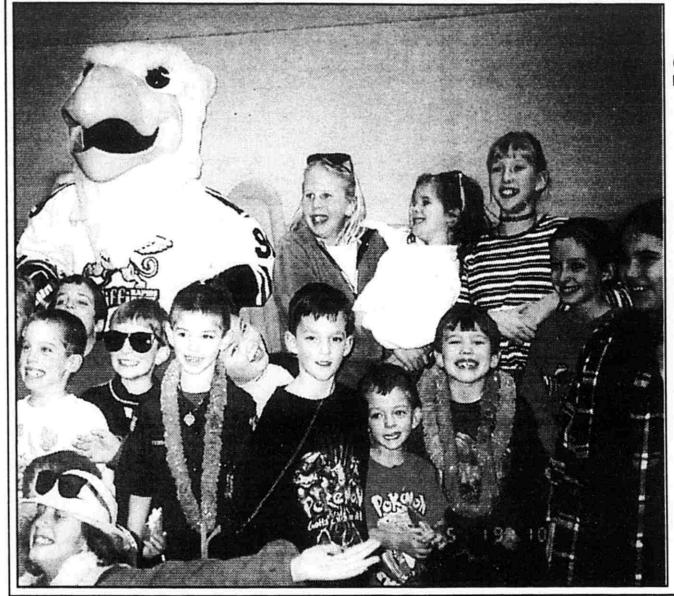

"We didn't think it would be fair to ask Smith to relocate in the middle of his season," said township clerk Smith's special use request was turned down by the Carol Wells. "A November deadline will allow him to finish his business season. We do not have a definite answer yet as to how we're going to solve this issue."

The situation came up for review last year because residents complained the business was operating in an area where agricultural zoning doesn't allow for it.

A township resident interested in discussing the position may call the township office at 897-7600. Wells' term ends in November at which time the clerk would have to run for a new term. The deadline to file for the clerk position is 4 p.m. on

Alsgaard's buzzer-beater all net

•••• Time ticked off the scoreboard clock as Aaron Alsgaard's game winning shot slipped through the net, giving Lowell a 52-50 win over Zeeland.

By Thaddeus J. Kraus Lowell Ledger Editor

Aaron Alsgaard has worked his whole life for that one big moment on the high school basketball court. In his final varsity home game Friday night, Alsgaard met up with that moment and knew exactly what to do.

The senior drained a three-point shot at the buzzer from the top of the key with two Chix draped all over him to give Lowell a dramatic 52-50 OK White win over co-conference leader Zeeland.

"Our seniors deserved that," said Lowell basketball coach Pete Bush. "Playing in this gym for the final time, this is something special they will be able to remember."

Zeeland's Paul Simon hit a short jumper in the lane to give the Chix a 50-49 lead seconds earlier.

Following a timeout, Lowell in-bounds the ball from in front of its own bench.

"The play was pretty simple. In-bounds, the ball set a pick for our best scorer and let him shoot," Bush explained Zeeland coach Mickey Cochran and his Chix knew what was coming but couldn't stop it.

"We tried to prevent Alsgaard from getting the ball. He got the ball, they set the pick, and we did a good job of switching off on the pick, but he buried the shot with two of our guys on him." Cochran explained. "Alsgaard's performance against us was as good as we've seen this year." The Lowell senior tallied a game-high 22 points including six 3s.

"It's the biggest shot of my life. I knew it was going in when it left my hand," Alsgaard said afterward. "I've worked the first quarter. my whole life for this."

Rottier's effort was symbolic of Lowell's performance in its 51-21 win over Caledonia in the regional semifinal. Every time it appeared the Red Arrows were being challenged, Lowell had an answer.

"Their tough guys matched up against our tough guys (at 130, 135 and 140)." Strejc explained. "Our tough kids were tougher tonight That's what I expected."

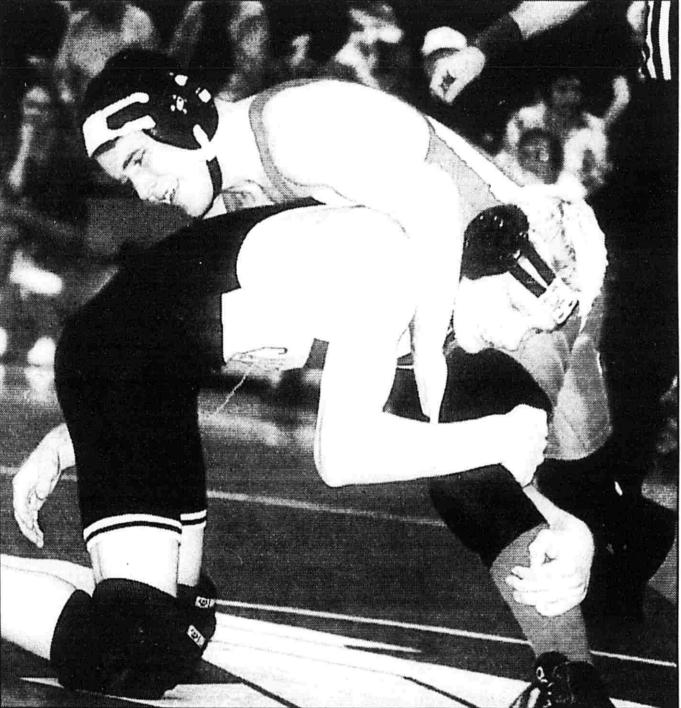

Lowell followed up its semifinal win with a 63-12 victory against Zeeland in the regional final, earning a third consecutive trip to the state team tournament in Battle Creek at the Kellogg Arena on March 3rd and 4th.

Lowell will wrestle against Portage Northern on Friday, March 3 in the quarterfinals at 7 p.m.

"I just told the girls their play was embarrassing and was not acceptable," Ference said.

The coach's words seemed to have an effect. The Red Arrows rallied and won the next two games 15-8, 15-4. "They hit better and were more aggressive defensively in the last two games against Hastings," Ference explained. "The day ended on a positive note ... that is good."

Jordan Schaefer scored from in front of the net on a beautiful pass from linemate Matt Horan. Lansing added an empty net goal late in the game to finish out the scoring. Lowell travels to lansing again this Saturday to take on the Falcons for the last time this season.

The Red Arrows' record now stands at 10-15 with four regular-season games remaining on the schedule. The Lowell junior varsity hockey team is a cooperative team with Caledonia.

"Holy cow, did the boys do well today. I didn't expect nine of our wrestlers to advance out of this regional. I didn't Finishing fourth were Dan Rottier (27-6), 135 pounds, and expect 12 to advance out of the district last week." Strejc said. Both (12 from district and nine from regional) are a new school record.
