Farewell to Sizzlin' Summer Concerts

n the last concert of the Sizzlin' Summer series on the Riverwalk, rock country band Branded bid farewell to summer and Lowell.

Hundreds of music lovers and dancers took to the Riverwalk to take in fun and rhythm. Country line dancers showed off their skill. Vessels of different sorts floated on the Flat River to look at the last spectacle.

Officials behind backwards billboard expect to generate chatter

By Emma Palova

Lowell Area Chamber Commerce officials are hoping to stir some chatter with the new backwards billboard by Exit 52.

If you drive by it west on I-96 toward Grand Rapids, in your rear view mirror you will be able to read that "Lowell is the next place to be."

However, if you do not have a rear view mirror or if you are heading east, you will get puzzled.

"Don't blame the billboard company," said chamber director Liz Baker. "We told them to do it that way."

Baker explained that backwards message was the marketing committee responsible for the trying to generate some chatter in the community.

A couple of years ago, the chamber put up its first billboard past the Lowell exit to promote Lowell and the re-vamped website.

"Our group wanted to do something different to residents talking," said Baker. " By putting the lettering backwards on billboard, the thought it might do the trick."

As a tie to the billboard, the marketing group will be holding a contest for the best explanation for the lettering on the board. Shop Lowell gift certificates in the amount of $500, $300, and $200 will be given for the best three answers.

"Lowell is truly the get Lowell next place to be," Baker said. "We have an excellent school system, a good variety of shops, restaurants, and services."

Unique two-toned zinnia

That remains the question in case of the perfectly divided half-yellow and half-red zinnia found in the garden of Helen Grant. According to Kent County MSU Extension horticultural educator Rebecca Finneran, the cause could be a genetic mutation in the form of a chimera or a mutation caused by a virus. "The real question is if Helen saved the seed and planted it next year, would it come out back again with that mutation or none?" she said. "It's pretty cool."

> Any pollination would have occurred in the flower last year, and would be dependent on the quality of the seed, according to Finneran.

Former director of the Wege Wittenbach Center Steve Mueller said the showing is fairly rare and unusual. "I do believe it is a genetic mutation," he said.

Lowell Middle School gets $3.4 million facelift

by Emma Palova

Fresh paint, bright red lockers and a steel beam overhang to the entrance will give a new look to the Lowell Middle School.

A $3.4 million upgrade including technology was completed this summer.

"The translucent top over the original overhang and the new windows will let in a greater amount of light," said superintendent Greg Pratt.

Older trees were also removed and new ones planted. The front facade is partially decorated with brick and brand new storefront doors. The roof and ceiling tiles have been replaced, while the administrative offices have new carpeting. Tiles in the classrooms have been replaced.

All the classrooms are now outfitted with overhead projectors to a multi-media

"It allows interaction with i-pods, projectors and other computers," said Pratt.

On top of the improvements at the middle school, the entire school district received a $1.5 million technology upgrade. Fiber optics are now all the way Chalkboards have been replaced with white marker boards. Heating and cooling has been renovated for energy savings. The building has white roofs for the conservation of energy.

REMINDER

Get out and enjoy the exceptionally fine summer weather while it lasts, because the end is near. Subtle signs of the coming fall season are beginning to appear. Retailers are advertising back to school sales, catalogs from hunting outfitters are turning up in the mail, and a few yellow popular leaves flutter in the cool evening breeze.

It may seem a bit early, but now is the time to prepare everyone. for the fall hunting and fishing seasons. Out on the marsh or in the woods is not the place to be distracted by missing or broken equipment. Check out gear and make repairs or replacements while there is ample time to do it. Locating critical items or scheduling repair service in the few days before an opener could prove difficult.

If you have been fishing for panfish or bass all summer, start rigging for the great fall salmon run. River and offshore coho and king salmon fishing require specialized tackle and equipment which have probably spent a year in storage.

Although it is best to do it year-round, sight-in firearms and practice shooting with guns and bows now. I started shooting a bow right after the snow melted this year to avoid playing catch-up after a year layoff. Besides, it is more fun when there is no pressure.

Even with the two-year apprentice hunter option, a hunter safety course is eventually required to qualify for a hunting license. Completing such a course is worth the effort even if one doesn't plan to hunt. Everyone should understand scientific wildlife management and the hunters' role in this process as part of resource conservation. Also, firearms are commonly kept in homes and cabins across the country, so knowledge of firearm safety is important to Scouting hunting areas and choosing stand sites early allow time for the wildlife to settle back into normal patterns before opening day. Check regulations on stand placement on public land before proceeding.

Don't forget the dog. A hunting dog is an athlete and needs pre-season conditioning just like football players. So much for the dog, how about you? Hauling equipment out to the marsh and setting decoys in a cold rain before daylight can be as physically trying as climbing into a treestand or busting alder thickets for grouse. Use hunting as a motivation for working to stay in shape all year long.

Finally, get your paperwork in order. When flying with firearms or hunting in another country, regulations are strict, so do the homework and stay on top of the process to avoid disappointment. Don't forget about obtaining licenses and

Preparation for a new season can be as enjoyable as the hunting or fishing experience itself if done on a relaxed schedule. Start early and extend the experience far beyond just the open season.

What about strength, protection and noise reduction in our new windows?

You should look for a window that offers both superior strength and energy efficiency. All Weather Seal's computer-controlled process ensures a perfectly square window sash and mainframe with superior strength. And for exceptional energy efficiency, a full interlock at the meeting rail helps protect your home against the elements, or unwanted intrusions.

In addition, our insulating glass unit traps dry air, creating an exceptional comfort barrier.

Moreover, homeowners with All Weather Seal Window Systems say there's a noticeable reduction in the amount of noise that enters their homes. A full interlock system at the point where upper and lower sashes meet helps stop air infiltration while providing an additional barrier against unwanted intrusions.

To The Editor

Dear Editor,

There was a comment made in the Aug. 20 Lowell Ledger Sound Off that stated that the city council was elected to govern. I believe the word governing can be confusing. Our city council was voted into office to be the servant to its constituents and should govern by the voice of the people.

Our council has ignored the voice of the community when it came to the two-year fiasco with the property on North Washington St., the selling of Lowell Cable TV, be done. the Cable TV Endowment Fund, the slaughter of many of Lowell's healthy trees and an ongoing confutation with property owners bordering the city airport. Lowell has become a city that is near the tops in the rate of taxation in Kent county and has sewer and water rates that are outrageous. Lowell has roads that are twice the age of replacement

All of the above statements didn't come about because the community voted on them. The problems reflects on the style of government the community has accepted. Our government should reflect the will of the constituents and not the council. It is time to put the say back in the hands of the constituents and limit the power of the council.

There is no reason why the community cannot, at the end of a year, vote on the future of the community. This can negative affects of a controlling person. What causes someone to be controlling? As mentioned earlier, the reasons why people are controlling are unique to every situation, so it's not always the best to generalize. What follows are three main causes for controlling behavior. The first cause for controlling behavior is childhood abuse. When a person has been physically, emotionally or sexually abused, the victim often reacts with trying to control their environment. This is an attempt to keep the abuse from happening again. Sometimes this strategy works. An example of such strategies are: when the victim hides to prevent an outburst, or they might take charge by limiting the information that the abuser might get so the abusive personality does not lose control. Because some of these behaviors might have worked as a child, they carry these controlling strategies to their adult life. As an adult, the abuser can become so stressed trying to stay on top of things, that they become out of control very quickly and suddenly. It becomes a vicious cycle.

Another common cause for controlling behavior is that it is a learned pattern of behavior. The controlling person has simply learned to be controlling because his or her caregivers modeled the controlling behavior. At some point, it is essential that the controller gives up the compulsion to control and develops new strategies that will create a less toxic living situation.

Finally, another reason for controlling behavior is the need to be competitive or to always insist on the upper hand. When the controlling individual has to always be the "Alpha male or the Alpha female." it creates an environment where people are not listening to each other. Instead, the need to dominate becomes the way of relating to others. Inherent within this type of behavior is a meanness that reduces the amount of respect and compassion among people in the family. That's why learning to share and be supportive, especially in the family unit, becomes so important.

This article is the first in a series addressing what to do with controlling individuals. I welcome your questions, so please email me at kathryndenhouter@gmail.com or on the web at www.kathryndenhouter.com

A Room Called Sovereignty

Soon after I became a Christian one of my best friends died. He was only 36 years old. He was diagnosed with cancer and over the next year or so, we watched as he withered away. I remember going to visit him the night he died. He was unwrapping green finger jello and as I entered his room, he looked at me and said, "I think I'm getting better." Around 2 a.m. that morning he did get better, he passed away.

Lake and sat there looking up at the night sky and thinking Isaiah 40:11, "He shall feed His flock, like a shepherd: He through the shattered pieces of my faith. Having only been a Christian for a short time I thought life was supposed to be bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young." rose petals and rainbows, but this was more than a bad day, this was an eclipse that seemed to shut out all light.

have my bouts of anxiety and disappointments with life as it came to me. It's a long story how God showed me about the "stuff happens" part of life, but it all came together for me one day while I was attending a seminar in a church. During a break, I walked through the facilities poking my head into rooms just to see how they were decorated. I came to this long hallway and as I walked along opening each door I got to the end and there was a door with a sign, "No Admittance!" I don't know about you, but when I come to a door like that I just can't wait to see what's going on in there that they don't want me to see. So, as any curious person would filled day.

do, I gave the door a try but it was locked, end of story. Until a few days later. I dreamed that I had just gone to heaven. Jesus and I were walking down a similar hallway and he was saying to me, "you can go into any of these rooms you like." So I would open a door and peer in and say, Wow! He would just smile as He walked with me. As we neared the end there was a door marked "NO ADMITTANCE!" As I tried the knob, He gently said to me, "you can't go in there." I couldn't understand that so I said, "why not?" Because that's the room called sovereignty and it's in that room that I work the wonders of the universe, including the stuff that goes on in your life, and it's there that I bring it all together. No, you can't go in there because it's far beyond even the intellect you have now.

Sometimes when things don't go as we expect, we must let God be God and since He is sovereignty, we must trust that in the room called sovereignty He is always at work, even though it may look like He's lost the reigns! Some-I remember how confused I was and I went out by Reeds day He will come as our conquering King, and as it says in shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His

Having been in the ministry for 30 years, I can tell you that my wife and I have seen some very difficult, heartbrea-Now I can't say that I've ever been mad at God, but I king things and were it not for the "room called sovereignty", we would come apart. But to rest in the knowledge that God is at work in that room gives us a fourth dimensional view of life and whether the times are joyful and happy or sad and filled with questions, God is always at work. Always at work in the room called sovereignty. Perhaps you are going through the most difficult time you have ever experienced. Think of that room in heaven with the sign "no admittance!" Know that the eternal God of all creation is at work. Rest in that truth. If you have time, read the entire chapter in Isaiah 40 and enjoy the blessing. May you have a blessed God-

THE LITERACY CENTER OF WEST MICHIGAN NEEDS VOLUNTEER TUTORS

The Literacy Center of West Michigan has scheduled information sessions on Tues., Sept. 2 and Thurs., Sept. Gaines Township Library located at 421 - 68th Street, SE, 4 for prospective volunteer tutors. This session is held at Grand Rapids. The session on Sept. 4 will be held at the 6:30 p.m. and lasts one hour. It allows persons interested in Grand Rapids Public Library (VanderVeen Center - 4th becoming volunteer tutors to find out more about the Center Floor) located at 111 Library Street, NE, Downtown, Grand and its literacy programs. At the end of the session, there Rapids. Please call us at 459-5151 to register. will be an opportunity to sign up for tutor training.

The Literacy Center of W. Michigan is a non-profit, United Way agency devoted to reducing illiteracy in our community. Based on 1990 census figures, at least 19,000 adults in Kent County cannot read at a functional level. At least 6,000 adults cannot speak or understand English well. By training people to be tutors, the Council can offer one-on-one reading help to adults asking for assistance in reading or English as a Second Language (ESL). You do not need to speak another language to tutor ESL.

The information session on Sept. 2 will be held at the

RESTLESS LEG SYNDROME

Restless legs syndrome (RLS) is a disorder of the part of the nervous system that affects movement of the legs. Because it usually interferes with sleep, it is also considered a sleep disorder. People with RLS have strange sensations in their legs and an irresistible urge to move their legs to relieve the sensations. These sensations are difficult to describe: they are not painful, but an uncomfortable, "itchy", "pins and needles", or "creepy crawly" feeling deep in the legs. The sensations are usually worse at rest, especially when lying in bed. They often lead to walking discomfort, sleep deprivation, and stress.

About 10 percent of adults have RLS. It tends to run in families, and men and women are affected equally. RLS is more common as people get older, but some people develop it when they are young. The cause of RLS is not always clear. Some chronic medical conditions like anemia, neuropathy, or kidney disease may cause RLS. As many as 40 percent of pregnant women may experience RLS symptoms. Primary RLS (where there is no underlying cause) is much more

There is no cure for primary RLS, although various treatments often can relieve symptoms. Avoid caffeine, cigarettes, and alcohol. Exercise may help. Stretching the legs and taking warm baths before bed may also help symptoms. Medicines that treat Parkinson's disease, seizures and pain may also treat RLS.

Politics is not the art of the possible. It consists in choosing between the disastrous and the unpalatable.

SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE NO. 2008-6.16

THE VERGENNES TOWNSHIP Sewer CONNECTION, USE AND RATE ORDINANCE, ADOPTED BY THE TOWNSHIP OF VERGENNES

This is a summary of Ordinance No. 2008-6.16, adopted on June 16, 2008 by the Vergennes Township Board, which is known as the Grattan/Vergennes Sewer Connection, Use and Rate Ordinance (the "Ordinance").

Article I - Short Title; Findings; Purpose. The Ordinance is known and referred to as the "Grattan/Vergennes Sewer Connection, Use and Rate Ordinance" and applies to all properties served by available public sewer disposal facilities within Vergennes including those properties served by either the Grattan Sewer System or the Grattan/Vergennes Sewer System. Collectively, the Grattan Sewer System and the Grattan/Vergennes Sewer System are referred to as the "Public Sewer System" in the Ordinance.

The Ordinance has been adopted to enable Grattan Township to operate, maintain, and administer the Public Sewer System and pay all costs related to the Public Sewer System. The Ordinance also establishes uniform requirements for users of the Public Sewer System in compliance with federal and state laws. Other objectives of the Ordinance include preventing pollution, recycling wastewaters and sewages, distributing costs of the System in a proportional manner and protecting the integrity of the System.

Article II provides definitions.

Article III outlines the requirements of use.

Article IV describes requirements upon unavailability, and subsequent availability.

Article V provides procedures for service connection, and explanations of responsibility.

Article VI describes prohibited uses and certain requirements of the Public Sewer System.

Article VII addresses sewer rates and charges.

Article VIII describes the revenue fund of the Public Sewer Article IX provides for Administrative appeals.

Article X gives claim procedures for overflow or backup.

Article XI provides for enforcement of violations.

Article XII addresses miscellaneous issues

Article XIII states "The Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after publication of it or this summary."

Article XIV provides for amendments and describes appendices to the ordinance.

A true and complete copy of Ordinance No. 2008-6.16 can be inspected or obtained during normal business hours of Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 9am to 3pm at:

FINANCIAL TIPS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

If you're a college student, you may already be back on campus. If not, you don't have long to go before school starts again. And this year, in addition to whatever courses you may be taking, try to master some financial lessons, as well.

Of course, many students already have at least one foot in the "real world," because, in addition to taking classes, they're working many hours a week to help pay for school, rent and living expenses. But even if you're a full-time student, living on campus and paying for school through a combination of grants, loans, savings and help from your parents, you can learn some financial basics that can help you throughout your adult life.

Specifically, consider these suggestions:

 Don't overuse credit cards. Credit card marketers aggressively target college students, so you'll need to be vigilant about all the offers that will bombard you. While it might not be a bad idea to carry a single credit card for use in emergencies, it's very easy to over-use the "plastic" and rack up big debts. You'll need to discipline yourself to save for the things you want, rather than charging them.

 Shop around for financial services. You'll find plenty of banks willing to give you a T-shirt or a frying pan for opening an account with them. But these places may not be offering you the best deal on checking or savings accounts or loans. It pays to shop around.

Keep track of your student loans. Make sure you understand all the terms of your student loans: how much vou're expected to pay each month, when payments are due. what interest rate you're paying, what credits may be available for on-time repayment, etc. You might be able to achieve a more favorable repayment schedule by consolidating two or more loans. Once you start repaying your loans, do whatever you can to stay on track with your payments.

Never stop looking for financial aid. The aid package you may have received as an incoming freshman doesn't have to be the final word on financial assistance. Colleges offer some scholarships based on college-level academic achievement or real-world experience - both of which you may have accumulated since your freshman year. Study your college's scholarships and be aggressive in going after them.

Estimate your future income. You may not know exactly what you want to do when you graduate, but if you have a career path in mind, try to learn what sort of salary you can expect during your first few years out of college. Once you have a realistic idea of how much you're going to earn, you may have the motivation you need to avoid bad financial practices, such as accumulating big debts.

College should be a learning experience — in many ways. And if some of the knowledge you obtain during your college years can help you develop sound financial habits, so much the better.

Whether you're a young

Your Social Security worker just starting a career Statement is an important or a seasoned employee document that can help you ready to retire, the Statement is designed to help you.

The Social Security Statementincludesamessage from the Commissioner and a record of your earnings each year. It provides you with retirement benefit estimates using different retirement scenarios and provides estimates of disability and survivors benefits for you and your family.

If you're like most workers who pay Social Security taxes. automatically receive a Statement in the mail each vear, about three months before your birthday but there are situations in which a person may not be receiving one each year.

For example, if you work each year, but your earned income is low enough that you do not need to file a tax return; you won't receive an automatic Social Security Statement. Also, if you are younger than 25 years old, or if you are already receiving benefits.

However, if you need one, you can request one www.socialsecurity gov/mystatement. Keep in mind that if you're already receiving benefits, it will continue to show your updated earnings each year you work, but will not provide an estimate of future benefits. Also, if you request to have one sent to you even though you already receive one automatically each year, the next scheduled automatic Statement will be canceled.

Get your child's eyes checked TODAY!

We recommend that children first visit an eye care doctor at the age of 6 months to be sure their eyes are developing normally. We have special techniques to check vision in young children. Additional exams should be scheduled when the child's eyes have finished developing (ages 3-4), and then again before the child begins kindergarten (age 5) After that, children should receive an eye exam about every 1-2 years if there are no problems.

Attention parents: Don't rely on school eye screenings. They are helpful to catch large problems, but are not complete eye exams and do not check for all the essentials necessary for good vision.
