The Downtown Authority Development

Thursday discussed the potential extension of DDA boundaries to include the property located southeast of town.

"It will have no effect on the tax roll," said city manager Dave Pasquale.

If the DDA boundaries are extended, funding for the project would be available through the tax increment financing authority. A public hearing on the issue will be held the fourth Thursday in September.

DDA discussed the paving of the alley between the post office and Larkins, as well as paving of the museum parking lot. The total cost for both projects is $9,250. The bid was awarded to Asphalt Superior.

Department of Public Works director Dan DesJarden also discussed the closing of the alley on the west side. If closed off, the alley would be widened and more parking space created.

However, this would only be possible with the approval of the post office.

"We would gain 16foot wide alley," said DesJarden. "We're waiting for approval from the post office.

To The Editor

Dear Editor.

Flowers, flowers everywhere! That is what it was like at our daughter's wedding in Frankenmuth two weeks ago. And they were beautiful! Daisy Floral did an amazing job for us, including delivery and setup. Their creative cost-saving ideas, beautiful arrangements and quality flowers met our every hope and expectation. We received many compliments from family and friends Floral have always said they are consumers first, and they truly mean that. They were gracious and friendly every step of the way, from the first day we sat down to discuss our ideas until the day of the wedding. They treat you like family. The bride and groom were just thrilled with the results. Daisy Floral, you helped make a special occasion even more so.

The same holds true for Fashionista Flair located on Main Street. Barb, Yvonne, and Sarah proved to be equally as talented. I received many compliments on the dress you made for me. Our daughter was very happy with the design and quality of her bridal veil and the purse you made to match her wedding gown. We can't thank you enough for all that you did.

Jim and Lynette Salzwedel who so unselfishly gave.

Dear Editor,

It is now apparent that a recent letter concerning Independence Day and the River Walk Festival ruffled a few feathers and above all, raised some argumentative points. This is good for controversy, spacious concerns, progress and change.

I would like to extend my apology to both the Lowell City Council and the Chamber of Commerce for any degrading remarks I might have expanded upon concerning this event. Words spoken in hast are often taken out of context.

It was not what was done, which is disputed, but rather what was not. We most assuredly cannot condone by passive the Fourth of July celebration, our very first and most important national holiday and replacing it, just one week later, with pomp an ceremony, with one of our own choosing, regardless of reason. I am ashamed of our service organizations, for their support. How soon we forget, particularly in a time of war and

Every year since 1776, when we gained our Independence from the British Crown, until this, 2008, we have traditionally celebrated this national holiday. Now apparently we have chosen to change this. What alike. The young ladies who own and operate Daisy is the opinion of our historical society? We seem to have misplaced our responsibilities, once again, of

Within his letter of rebuttal to this article, in opposition, the president of our Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Cliff Yaukovich, seemed to speak with an ambiguous and forked tongue. In two instances he stated that this was a fundraising event. He then pointed out, quite vehemently, that it was not staged to make money. We must then assume that it was a charitable event. We find this highly commendable, the fact being that any profitability gleaned is to be turned over to charity and aid from the less fortunate populace. This spawns the volunteer, the freely giving of oneself, in support of others. The American way, rich is self satisfaction. I Happy customers we are, would like to personally congratulate every volunteer

In the future, we would greatly appreciate the fest that serious consideration would be given to assume that no community special events be scheduled which would directly conflict with our national holidays. In support of yes, but not in opposition. This was a wellplanned, -organized and -executed program, as event for charity. Had it been incorporated within our Fourth of July celebration, which we did not have, it would have been a point of pride throughout the community.

Please accept my apology if my verbose opinion was taken out of context, not realizing that it was a charitable event. Within this time of war and depression, we must, as a community, stand united.

THE LITERACY CENTER OF WEST MICHIGAN NEEDS VOLUNTEER TUTORS

THE NEED IS URGENT AT THIS TIME

The Literacy Center of West Michigan has scheduled information sessions on Tues., Sept. 2 and Thurs., Sept. 4 for prospective volunteer tutors. This session is held at 6:30 p.m. and lasts one hour. It allows persons interested in becoming volunteer tutors to find out more about the Center and its literacy programs. At the end of the session, there will be an opportunity to sign up for tutor training.

The Literacy Center of W. Michigan is a non-profit, United Way agency devoted to reducing illiteracy in our community. Based on 1990 census figures, at least 19,000 adults in Kent County cannot read at a functional level. At least 6,000 adults cannot speak or understand English well. By training people to be tutors, the Council can offer one-on-one reading help to adults asking for assistance in reading or English as a Second Language (ESL). You do not need to speak another language to tutor ESL.

IS YOUR MONEY WORKING AS HARD AS YOU DO?

It's Labor Day, which, ironically enough, means that many people are taking the day off work. But if you're like most people, you spend most of your days working hard. And if you're going to achieve your longterm goals, such as a comfortable retirement, you'll want your money to work hard for you, too.

What can you do to keep your money gainfully employed? Here are a few ideas:

· Invest for growth. Many people make the mistake of investing too conservatively. Of course, the stock market will always fluctuate, and some price drops can seem frightening. Yet if you try to "play it safe" by investing strictly in conservative investments, such as bonds and certificates of deposit (CDs), you could be taking another type of risk: the risk of losing purchasing power. That's because fixed-income investments may not provide a return that keeps up with inflation. To really have your money work for you, then, you should include at least some growth-oriented investments, such as stocks, in your portfolio. You can't eliminate the risk of losing principal, but you may be able to reduce it by purchasing quality stocks and holding them for the long

 Don't take "vacations" from investing. If you want your money to continually work hard, don't give it a vacation. Yet that's just what many people do, especially following an event that is commonly perceived as detrimental to the financial markets, such as a war, a corporate or political scandal or a spike in oil prices. But in the past, the markets have always rallied, even after the most disturbing news. And while it's true that past performance is not a guarantee of future results, it's also true that investors who stop investing for a while, as they wait for "things to get

· Take the emotion out of investment decisions. It's been said that fear and greed drive the markets. In other words, investors sell stocks when their prices are down because they are afraid of further drops, and they buy more stocks when the prices are high in the hope of earning even more profits. In other words, their emotions cause them to do the opposite of the most famous piece of investment advice: Buy low and sell high. Don't make these mistakes. Your money will work harder for you if you invest it in a careful manner, based on your individual needs, goals and risk tolerance.

· Review your portfolio regularly. To make sure your money is, in fact, working hard, you'll need to check on it from time to time. That's why it's a good idea to have regular portfolio reviews, preferably with an experienced financial advisor. Over time, your needs may change, or your investments themselves may evolve area, topical steroid cream may be all that is needed. If in a way you hadn't anticipated. If these things happen, you may need to make some changes to your portfolio so that you can take advantage of new opportunities.

By following these suggestions, you can help your money work for you in the years and decades ahead. And, as is often the case in life, hard work can bring good results.

PSORIASIS

Psoriasis is a skin condition that causes pink or red areas on the skin with thick, silvery scales. The most commonly affected areas are the lower back, elbows, knees, scalp and nails. It's not clear what causes psoriasis, but it runs in families. It most often starts in the late teens. It is not an infection and cannot be spread from person to person.

If you are diagnosed with psoriasis, treatment depends on how widespread the rash is. If it is confined to a small the rash covers a large area, you may need to see a skin specialist who can give you special treatments of medicine. You should keep your skin moist by using over-the-counter creams, such as Eucerin to make the skin less scaly.

Psoriasis may worsen during periods of stress. Doing things to lessen stress (excercise, hobbies) may help prevent worsening of the rash. You should also stop smoking and limit alcohol. Some medicines may trigger psoriasis, so tell your doctor what you are taking. Don't take oral steriods like prednisone without talking to your doctor first.

Apple Origins

Through the years, the image of apples and classrooms have become synonymous, as has the idea of giving a teacher an apple as a gift. There is debate as to the origins of this tradition, but many sources have traced this practice back to the 19th century. School teachers in little farm towns were often paid in kind: sacks of potatoes, apples and so forth. Some think the practice originated as a simple gift of food for poorly paid teachers. Apples still remain a popular treat for teachers in the United States, Denmark and Sweden

THE BENNING-FIELDER by molly benningfield

Thanks, Lowell!

This week marks the beginning of my very favorite time of year. It's not quite fall, but the nights are getting cooler (even if the days are as hot as ever). With this season comes fall sports, complete with Friday night football games, soccer under the stadium lights, cross country meets on Saturday mornings, tennis and golf matches in the afternoon, and volleyball in the gym. Each sports season in the high school world is fun and the beginning games and matches mark a great time.

As the daughter of two elementary schoolteachers, I have always enjoyed that 'first week of school' feeling I love it so much that I always seem to mark my life changes on the school year calendar. Last year around this time, I had just started this job in Lowell after graduating from MSU. It was a big change and one that gave me the opportunity to write about something I loved - sports.

And now this September brings another change. This week I will finish my work at the Ledger and pack my bags to head to Chicago for a new job opportunity with the Great Books Foundation and their magazine, The Common Review. It's a weird feeling leaving a place that gave you so many opportunities, but it's the season for a change.

This week's column is to serve as a thank you to the Lowell community - the sports community in particular - for their support and kindness all year. I was nervous to come into such a close-knit group with a school that has certainly excelled in sports across the board. But I think with everyone's help, the Ledger has helped to make the sports section something to be proud of. It's an inspiration to talk to the student athletes as much as it is to talk with the coaches. I've thoroughly enjoyed my time covering each sport throughout the past three seasons and into the summer.

There are a few people who I'd like to give recognition to because of their help this year: Patty Sellner, the athletic trainer at the high school and director for Lowell Community Wellness; Betsy Maki the assistant to the athletic director, and Barry Hobrla the AD; Dave and Jan Thompson who were always there with a good story idea; and all of the coaches who were helpful and only an e-mail or phone call away. There were many parents, students, coaches and community members who made my time here worthwhile and fun, and I'll always appreciate it.

The Hanger offers fun atmosphere and affordable clothing

by Molly Benningfield

Kristina Laux, the owner of The Hanger, a clothing and accessories store on Main Street in Lowell, wants everyone who comes into her shop to have a fun experience and to leave knowing they had a good time. "I always say it's retail therapy," Laux said

Recently, I took my mom, aunt and sister into her store to show them how great shopping in Lowell can be. After spending almost a half hour in the store, and walking away with a couple of bags of clothes, it was clear that they all wanted to go back. Laux even offered a free purse to my aunt for spending a certain amount of money, which then prompted her to praise the heavens. Talk about shopping in paradise.

And that's the kind of atmosphere Laux has created. She redesigned the store earlier this year, and started making the switch to new clothes around the end of February.

"We got new selections and I asked customers what they thought of this, and little by little, we started to make the change," Laux said.

Another change Laux is in the process of making is the use of Americanmade goods. At least half of her store is from goods made in the U.S. She said it's cheaper to buy stuff overseas, but it's better for the American economy if goods can be made and sold here.

"I want people to know that I'm trying to support the American economy, and also the Lowell area," she said.

Laux said it's been nice setting up shop in Lowell because of how good the residents are about buying local goods and staying in town. "I think every merchant on Main Street is doing pretty well because the community really supports us. It's nice to shop downtown Lowell's market."

She said the area appealing. makes it "Lowell has everything a big community has, but exactly what a small town offers."

Currently, Laux is preparing for back-toschool goods, which should provide a relief on bank accounts, with every piece under $40. She said she has a wide selection, and is working on expanding even more, into a larger selection of women's clothing and plus sizes.

It seems as if Laux is in the right area and the right store. "I try to help people, whether it's with dressing them, or making the store shopper-friendly." Laux has a basket of children's toys in the back for parents who want to shop, but still bring their kids.

The Hanger is located at 209 W. Main St. and is open Monday-Friday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.
