Fast-approaching Relay for Life shoots for $75,000

by Casey Cheney

Relay for Life is aiming to boost their donations to $75,000 this year, $6,000 more than last year. New to the relay this year is the Pink Arrow Power Hour, where relay chairperson Paul Mundt said they would "join forces with the Pink Arrow Project."

"We're on the same team as far as objectives," Mundt said, adding that, "There was interest from the Pink Arrow Committee to form a team."

The June 24 to 25 event volvement," he said.

In fact, Mundt said he expects a larger turnout this year -2,000 over the 1,500 last year.

In his final meeting, retiring city manager Dave Pasquale read an optimistic State of the City Address.

"As I close the 24th year of service as Lowell city manager, it is still important to identify issues and establish goals," he said.

Retiring city manager Dave Pasquale.

While acknowledging the growth of Litehouse, King Milling and Attwood Corp., Pasquale also mentioned the vacant storefronts in the downtown area.

"Lowell must and will strive to maintain and improve as a business friendly city," he said. "In an era of intense competition, Lowell will continue to operate with greater efficiencies."

At the end, Pasquale received a standing ovation from the city council for his many years of service to the city.

"There was no chamber when you started and now there is a strong chamber," said mayor Jim Hodges, a close friend of Anne and Dave Pasquale.

Councilmember Andrew Schrauben said he met Pasquale while in grade school.

"You knew everything about the people," he said.

This year, 21 teams signed up, but Mundt said, "The more people we have the better."

A final goal, Mundt said, was to have 75 survivors come out to the relay. A few less than that came in 2010. Survivors that do show up get a free pancake breakfast Saturday morning.

"I fell in love with journalism," he said.

Cheney praised hometown reporting for its unique perspective and the ability to influence events in the community on a small scale.

"No one else offers that kind of information," he said. "Hometown news is pretty fantastic."

Publisher Jon Jacobs said Cheney is an exceptionally good fit with the paper and the community.

"I think that Casey has a bright future in journalism and with the company as a whole," he said.

Cheney will become an integral part of the Ledger team, striving for quality, diversity, versatility and coverage of the many events the community has to offer.

"Lowell loves its sports and I look forward to covering more than we were able to in the past," said editor Jeanne Boss. "Casey seems well suited for our working environment. His enthusiasm and willingness to jump right in will serve him well at the Ledger."

With all the recent changes in the Ledger and Lowell Buyers Guide, along with the addition of Cheney, Jacobs is hoping to move forward to expanding the papers and more unique projects.

Dear Editor.

This is a letter to the Lowell community, originally sent to the LHS principal, superintendent and school board president. To date I have had no reply from anyone. Dear Mrs. Patricia Murphy Alderman,

I don't think you realize the extent of hurt that was caused by your refusal to allow Joel Michael Bieri to be in the graduation festivities on Sunday. Many people spoke to me afterward and expressed opinions that the action was hard-headed, hard-hearted and the actions of a control freak! Owners of Johnson's Food Basket have made plans to build a retail shopping center next to the grocery store, but they must first either demolish or relocate the old St. Mary's Church.

The location of the church, behind the grocery store, is where the future retail center would be. health

Carpal tunnel syndrome is a common, painful disorder of the wrist and hand. It happens when the median nerve, which runs through the wrist, gets squeezed under a band of tissue over the wrist joint. This causes pain and other symptoms along the nerve. Anything that increases pressure on the median nerve can cause carpal tunnel syndrome. Sometimes pregnancy and health conditions like arthritis and diabetes can increase the pressure on the nerve. People who use their hands and wrists repeatedly in the same way (for example, typists, carpenters and cashiers) are more likely to develop carpal tunnel syndrome.

Carpal tunnel syndrome may cause pain, numbness or tingling in your wrist and hand, mostly in the middle finger, index finger and thumb. The symptoms are usually worse at night and when you use your wrists and hands a lot. Over time, grip strength may get weaker and you may tend to drop heavy objects.

The diagnosis of carpal tunnel syndrome can often be made by examination of the hands and wrist. There are also nerve studies that can be done. These test how your nerves respond to electrical stimulation.

There are several treatment options for carpal tunnel syndrome. Not repeating the same hand movements over and over, doing hand wrist exercises, and and wearing a wrist splint may help. Anti-inflammatory medications may help to reduce the swelling. If these treatments don't help, surgery may be an option.

Going Green art exhibit explores Earth's sustainability

The Going Green art exhibit explores the themes of Earth's sustainability by blending nature with art. It is now on display at the Lowell Arts! gallery through July Artists from teens to adults found inspiration in the ecosystem, recycling and energy crisis.

Robert Miller, in his sculptures "Garden Music" and "Summer Tunes," uses old spades, shovels, exhaust pipes and horns that no longer play music.

In his artist's statement, Miller writes that he uses objects that don't work, typically musical instruments and gardening tools.

Artist Scott Breen created a Lithutane still life set for a video. He used recycled material to create the props and the stage.

Casey Cornwell, project director for Lowell Arts!, said in spite of the small number of entries, the show is a good representation of the theme.

The exhibit educates the viewer on environmental issues and concerns.

Scott Breen made Lithutane still life from recycled materials.

New floral shop opens in Lowell

Although Mongar now the time when Mongar had wears two hats: one of a florist, the other of a bus driver, she feels up to the task with the support from her family. "We worked as a family to make it happen," said Mongar.

Partner Shawn Flippo helped remodel the store including painting.

And colleague bus drivers are there to help just like to handle orders for Mother's Day and the prom, just two days apart.

Four bus drivers volunteered their help, as well as the family.

"We got it done," said Mongar.

Mongar worked for West Michigan Floral Supply, that supplied Meijer stores for 15 years, as a su-came along, she decided to drive a school bus to have more time for the family.

"I love driving the school bus," she said, "but I also want to run a simple floral shop."

Mongar vowed to make pink bows for the entire town for the Pink Arrow Project until she cannot make anymore.

The shop offers fresh pervisor. When children flowers, gifts and plants.

Mongar does funerals, with free deliveries, and weddings. She has tuxedo rentals and everything from a $1 carnation to a $500 casket spray.

When she overbought flowers last week, Mongar donated a bucket of flowers to Fountain View of Lowell.

Daughters, Samantha Flippo and Raeanna Mongar, help out.

Longtime educator retires from Lowell Area Schools

by Emma Palvoa

Bushnell Elementary principal Karen Burd will never forget the kidlike box she found in her office on the last day of school

Inside the box was a stuffed puppy dog that looked like it's been through war. It was worn and dirty. and loved many times.

"I opened it and bawled," she said wiping off tears from her eyes.

When Burd announced her retirement after 33 years with the Lowell Area School district, she received an outpouring from children and families.

Former students, now parents, came to wish Burd happy retirement. One dad still remembered how Burd welcomed him to school. "I can make a pencil disappear," she said.

Burd could certainly turn teaching into magic with her love for children and the families. That is why she was hesitant to ac-

WOOD, JAMES D. "Woody" 6/8/1936 - 6/25/2010

In memory of a loving husband, father and grandfather, who passed away one year ago.

We took our vows together, said, "Till death do us part." H But when God came and took your hand, my whole world fell apart. No one knows the heartache I try so hard to hide, only God knows how many times ve broken down and cried But when I look back upon our lives, one of the thing that makes me glad, is I have wonderful memories of the precious years we had.

> Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife, Ruth

If daisies grow in heaven, Lord pick a bunch for me. Place them in my father's arms and tell him they're from me. Tell him that I love and miss him and when he turns to smile. place a kiss upon his cheek and hold him for a while. The rolling stream of life rolls on: but still the vacant chair, recalls the love, the voice, the smile, of my dad who once sat there. We think about you every minute of every day.

> Dad/Papa, we love and miss you so much! XOXO Love, Troy & Angie Nate & Lindsey Bry & Lynsey Sloan

I know you are near. but it's not the same. No hugs, no stories, you don't speak my name. The holidays and events, they just come and go. We keep waiting to see you, and say it isn't so. A year ago, you stood nearby, today you are gone. we still don't understand why. The "firsts" without you, they all hurt so bad. Life just isn't the same ... without you Dad

> You are so very loved and missed, Jeff, Candi, and Skylar Bowne

STATE OF THE CITY ADDRESS MONDAY, JUNE 20, 2011

Mayor Hodges, Members of the Lowell City Council and Citizens of To: Lowell

Over the past several years, I have had the privilege and opportunity to address the Lowell community to the current status of the City. As I close the 24th year of service as Lowell City Manager retiring from this position. it is still important to identify issues and establish goals.

The national and state economic events continue to dominate Lowell. Signs of optimism continue with a number of businesses flourishing. Vacant storefronts though do remain.

I am encouraged with the expansion of Litehouse, Inc. and one planned for King Milling. The employment growth of Attwood Corporation continues to encourage.

Lowell must and will strive to maintain and improve as a business friendly City. In an era of intense competition, Lowell will also continue to operate with greater efficiencies.

With the adoption of the 2011-2012 Budget, the following goals are established and in some cases reestablished:

Continue the strengthening of the General Fund seeking means to increase the fund balance. The 2011-2012 budget has provided a fund balance of $208,200 representing 8.3% of expected expenditures. While this falls short of the $300,000 balance and 15% of expenditures as a goal, the budget has been maintained even though there has been a $100,000 loss in property tax revenue as well as over $60,000 decrease in State shared revenues.

Outside sources of revenues should be sought for needed projects.

Continue to improve City streets. Through federal funding for several major streets and setting aside a mill of property tax revenue to local roads, construction has made significant upgrades. This coming year, federal STP-Small Urban funds are allocated to Bowes Road, while North Center is near completion with Hillside Court planned for rehabilitation. Street maintenance is a must to keep deterioration away from roadways.

Work cooperatively between the City and the Department of Light and Power.

Take advantage of the upgraded web site so that the City can reach more interested visitors.

Ensure that all municipal facilities and equipment are in good repair and well maintained.

Sidewalks, particularly school walks, continue to be a priority.

Continue to strongly support the Lowell Area Recreation Authority in its efforts to establish a communitywide trail system, noting the first phase is under construction.

thru Lowell

With the establishment of the LCTV Endowment Fund Board, opportunities have promoted for municipal and nonprofit projects.

The formation of the Lowell Area Fire and Emergency Services Authority have given the City, Lowell Charter and Vergennes Townships greater cooperation and sharing of resources for public safety.

Continue to recognize the Lowell Area Historical Museum, Lowell Area Arts Council, Kent District Library, Lowell Community Wellness, YMCA, Lowell Senior Neighbors and Gilda's Club as important resources to the City's quality of life.

Support the Airport Board's efforts to attain General Utility status for the Lowell City Airport understanding that safety is the first consideration for improvements.

Recognizing Lowell-Rockford Ambulance as an integral part of our health community system. This is further enhanced by the Ambulance station completed in 2007.

Recognizing the work of the City's Arbor Board and the gaining of Tree City USA status to promote the growth and maintenance of trees in our community. This has been further enhanced by the City attaining three Arbor Day Growth Awards.

Appreciating the service the Lowell Little League, YMCA, Xtreme Softball, Backyard Dreams, Kent County Youth Fair, Lowell Youth Football, Lowell Rugby and Lowell Lacrosse have given to the community's youth.

With a contract to Red Creek Waste Services, the City's waste collection system including recycling will be monitored.

Continue to plan for improvements to the Wastewater and Water Treatment Plants. The infiltration study to the City's waste collection system will soon be completed.

In conclusion, as I approach my retirement as City Manager, I know Mark Howe will provide strong administrative leadership as my successor. As mentioned many times, I have counted it a privilege to work for the City.

Continue support of the Downtown Development Authority and Downtown Historic District Commission in its efforts to improve the downtown. The improvements to both sides of the riverbank downtown are priorities. In particular a DNR Trust Fund grant application of $300,000 with $150,000 local funding would greatly improve the east side.

Continue to support the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce in its marketing strategy. The Chamber has been a key component in revitalizing the downtown through such activities as the Riverwalk Festival and Christmas
