Lowell Relay for Life (RFL) will shake things up this weekend as they celebrate their 10th year in the community with a brand new schedule and entertainment lineup.

The annual 24-hour fundraising event will kick off at 6 pm this Friday evening and run until Saturday at 6 pm. Planners hope the new hours, which replace the former noon to noon schedule, will attract more members of the community to the family friendly event which takes place at Red Arrow Stadium.

RFL is the largest fundraiser of the American Cancer Society.

The event even features a "Pink Arrow Power Hour" where community members are invited to wear their pink shirts on the track in honor of the now famous community service project.

Local songstress Elyse

Veldman will perform the national anthem at the start of the activities followed by a celebration of cancer survivors.

An exciting roster of free entertainment is scheduled featuring live music for the first time follows.

Local band "Off The Radar" will headline on Friday night with their upbeat contemporary hits and the "Easy Idle String Band" will play on Saturday.

highlights Other include interactive contests, like air guitar and lip sync, a for-fun Euchre tournament, the Ms. Relay competition and the luminaria ceremony to honor loved ones who have lost their cancer battle.

Food on site will include a pancake breakfast. Lunch and dinner will be served from the concession stand. Team tents will have gifts, crafts and snacks for sale, all benefiting RFL.

Phone scam targets LL&P customers

The Lowell Police Department would like to notify area residents that a telephone scam was targeting Lowell Light & Power customers Tuesday morning.

The caller states they are from Lowell Light & Power and tells the customers if they don't shut off. The caller then leaves a call back number, 877-432-9325, and they are prompted to press 1, that connects them to "George" who states he is from Lowell Light &

However, the city of Lowell does not have an employee by that name.

"George" is trying to get money from customers of Lowell Light and Power. Police are advising anyone receiving a call to not send "George" any money. If you have questions about your bill, contact Lowell Light & Power or Lowell City Hall.

Ullery appointed as new clerk at productive council meeting

by Tim McAllister contributing reporter

Lowell city council got quite a bit done at their meeting at city hall on Monday, June 15. Eight citizens attended the meeting, which lasted one hour and 15 minutes.

The first item of new business was the "Truth in Taxation" hearing, which turned out to be a non-event.

"We are not proposing any property tax or a millage

The council passed unanimously a resolution that will keep the millage rate at 15.9424

Deputy city clerk Sue Ullery was appointed to serve as Lowell's permanent city clerk. Ullery will take over the position when current city clerk Betty Morlock retires on August

"Sue Ullery has been doing the job for over a year during Betty's leave of absence," Howe said. "She's been trained by Betty. She's been here for 17 years."

"I think it's nice that you promote people [from] within and I hope that that's done in all the departments," said city councilor Jeff Altoft.

They also approved fireworks and closures to Avery St. and Washington St. during the Riverwalk Festival in July.

"This year's [fireworks] sponsor is still the Laurels of Kent and we're extremely grateful to the sponsor for hosting the fireworks," Howe said.

The council approved Lowell's changes to Freedom of Information Act policy. It will now cost residents 7 cents a page for copies of documents.

"Other than that, the document is the same as it was when we passed it at your last meeting," Howe said.

In other new business, council allowed the properties on Bowes Rd. and S. Pleasant St. to be rezoned from commercial to residential. They will allow a Scottville company called SyncWave to remove a defunct cell tower at no cost to the city. The burneddown home at 318 Lincoln Lake will be demolished by Olin Excavating. After a grant from the Lowell Area Community Fund, the city will pay 75 percent of the purchase price of a new police car. The total price for the new police car is $29,576. The city was also awarded a $15,000 grant from the Lowell Area Community Fund for replacement and upgrades to the heating and cooling system at the Englehardt Public Library. The Lowell Area Community Fund granted the Lowell Area Fire Authority $40,000 to purchase new breathing equipment.

The council's next regular meeting will be at city hall at 7 pm on Monday, June 29. They also have a workshop scheduled for Monday, June 22 at 6 pm.

Employee product sale raises funds for the Roanoke Ranch for Kids and Fountain View Attwood Corporation held a sale of excess product inventory to the employees on May 30. The employees were able to buy Attwood product, for personal use only, at a reduced cost. All proceeds from the sale were donated to the Roanoke Ranch for Kids and Fountain View in Lowell.

The sale was a huge success with over 100 employees participating. The day was rainy, but everyone had fun.

The real winners were Fountain View and Roanoke Ranch for Kids. Attwood employee sale proceeds totaled $7,000. Checks were presented to both on June 12, each organization receiving $3,500.

Fire department sells 1946 fire engine

by Tim McAllister contributing reporter

Lowell's fire department sold a 1946 Seagrave fire engine to a Caledonia man last week.

"We finally sold it to a gentleman who does some of the hose testing for us, currently," said Matt Mayer, city councilor and Lowell Area Fire and Emergency Services Authority board member. "It's more or less just a swapping labor type of thing. He gets the truck and we get the hose testing stuff for free for the next three years."

"We accepted the request to sell the Seagrave to a fire buff who lives about 30 miles away on Monday, June 8," said Frank Martin, Lowell's fire chief. "The new owner is keeping the logo on the truck, along with the S.S. Lee name because of the history with Lowell. He volunteered to bring the fire truck to any parade we desire him to once it is road worthy again."

The truck was purchased new for $6,600 in 1946. It was in service until 1970.

"The Seagrave fought a lot of fires in town," Martin said. "Its last fire was at Walter's Lumber [Mart in August, 1970]."

Lowell has owned this 1946 Seagrave fire truck since it was new.

The truck was used in parades through the 1970s and 1980s. Martin said the truck had a "complete restoration" in the 1990s.

"Due to our recent purchase of our newest fire truck, we have no more room for the 1946 Seagrave fire truck or a place to store it," Martin said. "Due to the age of the truck it is getting expensive to keep it running and obtaining parts and maintenance on it."

"It's a really good deal for the fire house," Mayer said. "Everybody was happy about it."

wrens return

Dave Stegehuis

People normally relate to wildlife in general terms as this species or that species and not as individuals. Bambi may be an exception, but that's fiction. This spring, I was witness to a wildlife drama that played out in our yard. I actually became somewhat emotionally involved.

The story begins with the arrival of dozens of birds which migrated south to more favorable living conditions for the winter. One of the returnees for the last several years has been a male wren. He announces his arrival with a unique song which is impossible to describe but is incessant enough to be noticed. Some may consider it annoying. I always anticipate his return by listening for its call. This spring, however, the surrounding woodland was alive with bird activity and chatter as usual, but there was no wren song. I was beginning to worry that he may have run into trouble or worse during the winter absence. More time passed and no wren. Spring isn't spring without a pair of noisy nesting wrens.

Finally, early morning at daybreak I thought I heard a wren singing. It was only a few chirps and then quiet. Several days later I heard it again, but again the bird went silent. A week after that, the bird returned and began long sessions of calling from the top of a tall oak tree by the house. Each morning the wren would sit on the same limb and call persistently for hours. He was trying to attract a female wren to partner in building a nest and hatching baby wrens, but despite his best efforts he wasn't having any luck.

I was relieved that he had returned safely home, but now was concerned he might not find a mate. Day after day he returned to the same tree and called. I began to feel his pain and even wondered if there was such a thing as an avian online dating service. I had almost given up hope, but the day before we left for a U.P. fishing trip a female wren finally showed up.

There is a wren house attached to the woodshed which the wrens had used in previous years, but the house remained empty. We had hung, as a decoration, the head of a fish carved out of a coconut shell from a support member of the porch. The fish has a very large mouth exposing the interior of the shell. Soon after the arrival of the female wren, small sticks appeared in the mouth of the fish. Although only four feet from the door, the birds apparently preferred the coconut to the specification correct wren house. On arriving home, we were elated to hear peeping sounds from the fishes' mouth.

The lesson from nature here is that determination and persistence will pay off in the long run. And even though the situation may look bleak and discouraging-it's not over till it's over. Hang in there.

Here are a few methods for doing just that:

relay for life

Dear Editor,

Celebrate. Remember. Fight back. Hope. Cure.

These words will be on display and on our hearts as we take to the Kathy Talus Memorial track around Bob Perry Field this Friday and Saturday, June 19-20, in Lowell's 10th Relay for Life event

Do you know someone who is fighting cancer? Are you fighting cancer? Have you lost a friend or relative to cancer? If you answer any of these questions in the affirmative, I invite you to join us any time between 6 pm Friday and 6 pm Saturday. Unless temporarily suspended for thunder and lightning, someone will be walking the track at all times during the 24-hour period...some will even be walking the entire 24 hours

We will be celebrating our survivors and caregivers. We will be remembering those we have lost. We will be fighting back against this horrible disease. We "relay" because we have hope that researchers will find a cure.

I lost my dad to a brain tumor in 2001. I lost a cousin to breast cancer. I have lost far too many friends and coworkers over the years. I walk for them. My mother, my sister, my sister-in-law, my niece, my aunt and several friends are cancer survivors. I walk for them. I walk with the hope that the word cancer will some day be an obsolete word, seen only in an old dictionary or historical medical journal.

We raise money through gifts from friends, family, neighbors and co-workers; business sponsorships; fundraiser luncheons; dog washes; car washes; Christmas tree sales; bowling and skating; candle and jewelry parties; food and other sales at the event and more. We raise the money for the American Cancer Society, supporting their efforts to fund research, as well as their locally available programs for those on the cancer journey (Road to Recovery, Look Good-Feel Better, Hope Lodge, etc).

Please join us. Walk a few laps. Buy a walking taco or a hot dog. Come at dusk Friday evening for a solemn and moving luminaria ceremony and lap. Come for live music Friday evening and Saturday afternoon. out Saturday's Check pancake breakfast and midday silent auction. Be a part of an event dedicated to making a difference locally and globally.

don't just drop off animals

Dear Editor,

My neighbors and I have chosen a country life. We never expected that we would be a drop off area for unwanted barn kittens, dogs and wildlife.

Last week I was out of town for two days. On my return, I was met by seven domestic ducks that had been "dropped" off. The appearance of my lawn showed that these ducks had been on my property for the entire time that I was away. "Seriously" people, be responsible for animals that you no longer want. In the past, kittens too young to leave mom have been dropped at each of our houses. Just because we chose a country lifestyle, does not mean caring for "country critters." It took me one phone call to find a refuge for the ducks. However, this became my unwanted responsibility.

This community offers reasonable neutering, spaying and a great wildlife center. A center that could certainly use financial help to support the wildlife and misfits. I was met by a terrific turkey when I surrendered the ducks.

Please people, be responsible, if you no longer want your animals, don't just dump them. Find them homes! Good homes where these animals will be cared for and loved.

the tradition continues

A year in perspective The long and rich history of terrific school years continued 2014/2015. Our students, educators, and programs collected numerous awards and acknowledgements. In case you didn't hear, U.S. World & News ranked Lowell Senior High School as 35th within Michigan. The report notes the district's advanced placement program opportunities and the participation rate of 52 percent. Our hard-working students earned many honors, however it was not without the support of our exceptional educators. Whether the support comes from a teacher, a smile from a caring bus driver, guidance from a school principal, or from a playground supervisor who cares enough to get to know each child, it is invaluable support that ushers students through a successful school experience. It's the people of Lowell Area Schools that make it a great place for celebrates the career of Lowell educators who make the difficult and exciting choice to retire and begin a new chapter of life. This year, the "people" or school family members retired will leave our doors with a combined 397 years of service, carrying with them years of accumulated wisdom and history of our organization that they helped to build. Some of our educators have completed 30 years of service right here in our district and choose to continue the fun.

At a yearend celebration, we acknowledged the following professionals who are each an integral part of Lowell Area Schools:

The commencement exercises of the Lowell High School will be held at Train's Opera House, next Friday night, June 20th and while the graduating class is very small, being composed of Misses Maggie L. Tate, Lura A. Hatch and Mattie A. Whipple, the program is well gotten up and very interesting. Under the efficient management of Prof. Larzelere – who we are pleased to state, has been engaged for next year – our schools are most successful. Interest has been aroused so there has been considerable investigation in their studies, in directions not covered, but suggested by their text books, which has resulted in much practical good.

achilles tendon rupture

The Achilles tendon is a strong cord that connects the calf muscles to your heel. It allows the foot to move up, down and push off.

Ruptures are typically caused by a sudden increase in stress on the tendon, sports that involve jumping, like basketball, are frequently the cause. Other abrupt stresses on the tendon like falling from a height or falling into a hole are also causes. The rupture typically happens just prior to the insertion point of the Rupture occurs five times more in men than in women and peak age for rupture is from 30 to 40 years old. Steroid injections near the tendon also can increase risk of rupture.

Most people will feel and hear a pop in the back of the heel followed by severe pain. One will not be able to walk on the foot at this point, swelling and bruising will follow. This type of injury typically requires surgical repair. It is important to seek care as soon as possible after the injury.

One can decrease the risk of Achilles rupture by stretching and strengthening the muscles. Also slowly increase training, intensity, vary your exercise routine, and running on slippery surfaces.

Marketing directory strives to make a positive impact

by Tim McAllister contributing reporter

Blanchard Tracy has been the director of marketing at Laurels of Kent, the skilled nursing and rehab center at 350 N. Center St., for the past twoand-a-half years. Under her guidance, Laurels of Kent strives to make a positive impact on Lowell by getting involved in many community events.

"We're really proud to be in the community of Lowell and we always look for ways that we can give back," Blanchard said. "You really can't work or live in Lowell without giving back to the community. We want to give back to the families of our employees, we want to give back to the community that supports us and we want to give back to the families that are here. We have something going on every season. It's busy, it's almost a full-time job. We want to be giving back constantly, not just one time a year. Every year we probably add five new things to our calendar. We want to constantly be doing it."

There is a long list of community events that Blanchard and the 130 employees at Laurels of Kent are involved in throughout the year.

"Riverwalk Festival is coming up [in July], that's going to be huge," Blanchard said. "We're the main sponsor for that and it's fun because we get to do something a little bit different, we get to sponsor the fireworks. That part is really fun. Everybody appreciates a good fireworks show. In the summer we started doing the Sizzlin' Summer Concert series. We're involved with Harvest Festival and Pink Arrow Pride in the fall. In the winter we do a lot with Christmas. We're part of Adopt a Santa. We provide financially so they can have Santa there [on the showboat] and we also provide, in the room upstairs, cookies and hot chocolate for the kids and the parents because usually they have to wait outside for a long time in the cold. I have two young kids, so I really like doing Adopt a Santa because I can usually bring them with me and they just have a riot doing that. In spring we do Adopt a Highway. We do that twice a year right here on M-21. We have the stretch from the McDonalds all the way into town. We clean it up twice a year and then we bring our residents down to Keiser's Kitchen for a lunch afterwards. We do a lot of things for the seniors in the community too. We're a big sponsor in partnership with the Lowell Senior Center. We go in there once a month and do blood pressure checks for free and we provide bingo. We work with Schneider Manor and do bingo over there as well. I'm also on the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors. I do a lot of community service with the chamber, everything from our board meetings to our Expo and every other event that the chamber hosts, we help plan."

Blanchard said that the 120 residents at Laurels of Kent get involved as well.

"Any type community involvement that we do, we try to bring the residents because they're a part of the community," Blanchard said. "Their mailing address is Lowell and a lot of our rehab and our long-term residents here, they're all either from the Lowell or Saranac area, a lot of them were born and raised here so they also have that pride. We had a resident last fall that actually was out on the field for Pink Arrow Pride, so that was really cool that he was able to do that with his family and show that support."

A native of the St. Joseph, Mich. area, Blanchard moved to West Michigan when she began her higher education.

"I started college at Grand Valley State University in 2001," Blanchard said. "I never thought I was going to stay in the West Michigan area, but within a couple years of being at Grand Valley I just fell in love with this area. My husband Brock and I got married, we stayed and > we've been here ever since."

She's worked in Lowell for two-and-a-half years. "I've with the Laurel Health Care Company about six years, Blanchard said. "I've been at Laurels of Kent for about twoand-a-half years. My job involves everything from meeting people in the community, meeting families, meeting residents, to the community support, to visiting people in the hospital and doing those type activities as well. I'm never sitting still, I'm never in one place, which I love. I'm always very busy. I could never do a desk job, I would get too bored."

Blanchard starts her day at the facility in Lowell, then spends a great deal of time out and about.

"I interact with the residents every day that I'm here, usually in the mornings or afternoons," Blanchard said. "I do all the admissions, so when they first come into us, I'm usually one of the first faces that they see. We always do paperwork and let them know what to expect within the first 24, 48 hours, then if I see them in the hallway or wherever I say 'Hello' and see how everything is going, see what we can do. On a typical day I usually start in the facility in the morning visiting with residents, having meetings, doing admissions and then usually pretty much 80 percent of my day is spent out in the community or out at the hospital."

Residents at Laurels of Kent are kept busy. Blanchard enjoys forging relationships with them.

"A typical day for a resident is, they usually get up anywhere between seven and eight in the morning and have breakfast," Blanchard said. "We have a fine dining program so they can eat restaurant-style here and they get tons of choices. There are activities going on from about ten in the morning until eight o'clock at night, so there are tons of different activities that they're going in and out of. Our rehab guests spend the majority of their time in our rehab gym where they're getting stronger, doing physical, occupation and speech therapy to get them back home. We have a separate rehab unit that's about 30 beds. That is just for people who, maybe they had a hip replacement surgery or a total knee replacement and they just weren't strong enough to go right home. They come stay with us a few weeks, they get stronger and then we send them back home when they're ready. That's one of the best things about my job, to be able to see people from when they're in the hospital, see them through that and then see how strong they get and how much better they get. We have a celebration when they discharge and say, 'Congratulations.' You build close relationships with those people. I love seeing people that were here out in the community. It's so nice to be able to see them back in the community and doing well."

mountain biking and a lot of

hiking, outdoor activities. I love to do that," Blanchard said. "I also love to do any type of arts and crafts with my daughter. We're always trying to build something, paint something. It keeps her entertained. Mountain biking is my one big passion. I'm usually out on the trails at least two or three nights a week. I ride with a group of friends. There are different trails and there are usually people out. I love to cook, I love cooking. That's one of my passions. Most people say they hate going home and cooking dinner, but that's usually the highlight of my day. I'm always bringing in treats for the staff here. My husband and I love to travel with the kids, so that's something we always try to do, even if it's just something local. Last year we took a road trip down to the Smoky Mountains. That was a lot of fun."

Blanchard wants Laurels of Kent to stand out in the community as a force for good.

"We're very thankful to be in the city of Lowell," Blanchard said. "We try to exceed everybody's expectations and go above and beyond. We want to make sure that Laurels of Kent is remembered in a positive light."

Lowell Showboat President Gordon Gould has said throughout the preparatory stages leading up to the June 21, 22 and 23 performances that 1990 is an important year. Important that the Showboat does better financially; important that community participation increase; it is important to put an end to the vandalism incurred by the Showboat throughout the year; and it is important that the Showboat maintain that festive atmosphere that has surrounded it for the past 50 years. It's been a long ride back for the Showboat City gala following the 1983 windstorm that left it in a pile of rubble. The volunteer-backed festive fanfare got off the deck in 1988 and a community of thousands was there to say "welcome back."

The team's third game of the season started rough but ended in triumph in one of the biggest come back wins of the season. After suffering a huge 4-0 deficit at halftime, the Arrows rallied huge and came up with five goals in the second half to earn a surprising 5-4 win. Freshman standout Johnny Draigh led the charge with two goals while Robbie Dubinsky, Collin Bowers and Curtis Bramble each added one.

#9 Girls varsity golf sends two to state

Seniors Anna Organek and Danni Krajewski set a new standard for girls varsity golf becoming the first duo in the history of the sport at LHS to qualify for state competition. Friends since the first grade, the pair placed first and second in their excellent bids for state qualification. Though neither girl earned a title, they both placed respectably in the top half of the 90 competitors at the state level. Organek earned a 92 and a 98 to place 25th and Krajewski carded a 103 and a 106 to place 44th.

#8 Gabe Steed's three-point onslaught

Junior Gabe Steed thrilled a record-breaking home basketball crowd when his team faced East Grand Rapids launching eight successful three-point gems on the way to a dominant 73-41 win. His exciting effort came just one short of the school record and the team's overall season effort earned them their best record in thirty years.

#7Gymnastics record-breaking meet

Lowell's varsity gymnasts team vaulted into the record books breaking the school's team record competing against conference foe Forest Hills. Led by senior Lauren DeHaan the team earned a record score of 139.875 to win the meet and set a new benchmark for future gymnasts. #6 Varsity baseball tops OK conference Top-notch pitching and play makers at the plate added up to an OK White conference title for the Lowell varsity baseball team as they finished the regular season in big fashion sweeping Forest Hills Central 3-0. Jarrod Melle, Cooper Perry and Collin VanNoord served on the mound in the wins. Sluggers Trevor Shurlow, Matt Milstead, Nate Stephens and Zach Gordon, who produced a two-run homer in game three, led the team offensively. This was the team's second consecutive OK White championship.

#5 Sophomore Matt Beachler dunks

After simultaneously setting records earlier in the season for most points in a game (44) and most successful threepoint shots (9) sophomore Matt Beachler offered up the first successful in-game slam dunk since the 2011-2012 season. Lowell and Grand Rapids Christian fans alike exploded with cheers and applause at the feat, which not only earned the squad two points toward the eventual victory, but also demonstrated the exciting changing culture of Lowell basketball.

#4 Lowell nabs close win over EGR in districts

For the fourteenth consecutive season, the Lowell varsity football team pushed past their round one district competitor, this year the East Grand Rapids (EGR) Pioneers, for a spot in the second round of the state tournament. The back and forth nail biter came down to the final minutes as EGR held the lead 28-21 with just over three minutes remaining. At 2:42 Gabe Steed caught a 73-yard bullet from first year quarterback Ryan Stevens to reclaim the lead sealing the Arrow's passage into the next level of competition.

#3 Bridget Garter shuts out FHC

In their best defensive effort of the season, the girls varsity soccer team shut out top ranked Forest Hills Central in a 1-0 victory starring sophomore goalkeeper Bridget Garter.

#2 Varsity wrestling

back-to-back titles

For the second consecutive year and the first under new head coach RJ Boudro, the Lowell varsity wrestling team dominantly claimed the Division II state championship. Lowell knocked out Comstock Park, Gaylord and Eaton Rapids on the way to the title, led by senior Josh Colegrove who recorded a perfect 39-0 season. Colegrove went on to successfully defend his own individual state title winning the bout by pin.

#1 Varsity basketball goes pink for the Offrinks

The Lowell athletic community came together this past winter bringing Pink Arrow Pride to the basketball court to benefit Shelby and Ben Offrink producing the best moment of the 2014-2015 athletic calendar. Shelby, a 2002 LHS graduate and her husband Ben are both in the fight of their lives against cancer. Using student led fundraisers, a spaghetti dinner and generous support and donations, the benefit earned nearly $50,000 for the couple and their two young children. The moment soared above all others based on athletic performance as Lowell varsity basketball team trumped competitor East Grand Rapids and then in sportsmanship as EGR surprised fans by donating $10,000 to the fundraiser.

Investment income above $2,100 will be taxed at the parent's tax rate.

 Roth IRAEven young children can contribute to a Roth IRA, as long as they have some type of earned income from babysitting, mowing lawns or any other type of employment. Your children can fund a Roth IRA and choose from several different types of investments stocks, bonds, government securities, and so on — and withdrawals of contributions are tax-free. Roth IRA earnings are also tax-free, providing the investor is at least 591/2 and has had the account for at least five years. A Roth IRA can be used to help provide retirement income for your children, but it also offers penalty-free withdrawals of earnings when the money is used for a first-time purchase of a home.

• 529 Plans — If you would like to give your child the gift of education, earnings in a 529 college savings plan accumulate and are distributed tax free, provided they are used for qualified higher education expenses. (529) plan distributions not used for qualified expenses may be subject to federal and state income tax and a 10 percent IRS penalty on the earnings.) Another benefit to 529 plan contributions is that they may be deductible from your state taxes. However, 529 plans vary, so be sure to check with your tax advisor regarding deductibility. A 529 plan offers other benefits, too. For one thing, the lifetime contribution limits are generous; while these limits vary by state, some plans allow contributions well in excess of $200,000. And a 529 plan is flexible: If your child decides against college or vocational school, you can transfer the unused funds to another family member tax and penalty free.

• Living Testamentary Trusts — If vou would like to leave a financial legacy for your children, and even their children, but still maintain some control over when they receive the money and how they can use it, you might consider speaking with an estate-planning attorney about establishing a trust. Some individuals create a trust to offer long-term support to heirs or charities after death, whether for several decades or several generations. Before you decide on any of these plans, consult with your tax and financial professionals to make sure the arrangement you've selected is suitable for your needs. But however you choose to help your children, your generosity will make all the Father's Days to come even more meaningful for you - so consider taking action soon.

Lowell Bucks designed to strengthen buying locally

Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce announced plans to strengthen and grow its Buy Local program by partnering with Conpoto, a Holland-based Community Currency software firm.

Lowell chamber will use Conpoto's cloud-based software to help fuel the local spending, providing an online platform for local gifting that competes effectively with big box retailers and credit card companies. The chamber is naming its program

Bucks can be purchased from the chamber's website www.lowellchamber. org. The chamber will use the program to drive local spending by connecting merchant members with large employers, providing community gifting alternative for employee incentive and recognition giving.

"The chamber commerce is all about making our community successful," said Liz Baker,

"Lowell Bucks." Lowell executive director. "With Lowell Bucks, we can show visibly how we're working to keep dollars circulating within our own community.'

> Conpoto has been working with Great Lakes region chambers for more than a year, bolstering membership and community.

"Community currency drives business and revenue to Main Street retailers by making it easier than ever to buy local," said Matt Lepard, Conpoto's co-founder and chief executive we all bleed local. Helping fully functioning Buy Local officer. "Conpoto thinks like chambers like Lowell machine is what ignites our a technology company, but realize the rewards of a passion for work every day."
